Will Ask Commission About City's Lights

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee will be held this evening when it is expected there will be a conference with the Public Utilities Commission regarding the lighting of the City streets. Ald. Duffus has before stated that he is eager to know when the present service is going to be improved, as was duly promised the citizens what is now several years ago. There will also be some discussion of the lighting of George street, with a view of using the surplus standards now idle.

NEW SCHEME GRATIFYING

A large amount of correspondence has reached Mr. W. A. Cooper, manager of the C.P.R. dining car service, from passengers who have been interested in, or tested, the efficacy of his new scheme of dietetic menus. Most gratifying of all, however, are the letters from train conductors, stewards, etc., who are travelling all the time, and who in some cases have come to dread the sight of a meal. To these the suggestions have come as a godsend, and no more enthusiastic approval has reached Mr. Cooper than that which has come from this unexpected but welcome quarter.

Law Suit May Excite Symptoms Which Disappear at Settlement

Bit of Evidence by Dr. Holdcroft in a County Court Action To-day.

A week ago Judge Huycke was introduced to Dummer's farmers, at least quite a number of them. To-day Asphodel crowded in for the hearing of William Sampson's suit for $500 damages from the municipality of Asphodel for injuries to his daughter Jennie. Plaintiff claims that on June 22nd, 1914, his daughter was thrown from a buggy on the Hastings-Norwood road, near the township's stone crusher, which was operating, and at which the horse became frightened.

Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the defence, and Mr. I. M Humphries of Campbellford, for the plaintiff, who is a Percy Township farmer.

On Mr. Kerr's request, Mr. Humphries called two doctors who desired to catch the noon train. Mr. Kerr remarked that they felt their communities might not be able to get along without them.

Dr. Nelson F. Sutton of Norwood, said he had been practicing there for six years. A year ago June 22nd he received word of an accident to Jennie Sampson, who had been removed to a house nearby. The right kidney was found to be injured with a mark or bruise about three inches long on the right side of the body. After a time in which the patient made fair progress, Dr. Sutton concluded that the right kidney had been lowered.

In November he again examined Miss Sampson. She had not regained her normal condition. There were evidences of albumen in the urine, which Dr. Sutton concluded were the result of the injury received in the accident. The presence of albumen might be periodic. In December there were no evidences of albumen, and the right kidney had gone back to its proper place. Witness could not say how long it would be before the girl would be able to resume her duties as before. The bill for attendance was $20, and was yet unpaid.

Dr. Jos. Holdcroft, of Havenoch, said that he had been appointed by the Court to examine Miss Sampson, and did so on May 18. I could find nothing wrong with the girl; no permanent results of an injury.

Did you examine for this kidney dislocation?

Yes.

And what would you say of its position now?

It is in its normal position. I should judge there is no kidney trouble. I consider the girl is in a good healthy condition.

Dr. Holdcroft enumerated a number of causes of albumen in the urine. Dr. Holdcroft said that under the excitement of a lawsuit persons often show symptoms of various affections, or results of injuries, and after the suit is disposed of the symptoms disappear, whether the case is won or lost.

To Judge Huycke witness said that the medical profession has not yet decided the nature of such symptoms; they were more than imaginary for the actual symptoms were found. Dr. Holdcroft said that he knew of cases of this kind. However, there were no symptoms of injury on May 18th when he examined the plaintiff.

Maxwell Brown, the Reeve of Asphodel, said that a stone crusher was at work on the Hastings-Norwood road under the authority of the township council. James Buck was in charge of the crusher; William Buck, his son, was the engineer.

William J. Sampson, plaintiff, said he resided in Percy Township. He said that his daughters Jennie and Laura left home on June 22nd, 1914, to drive to Norwood. They were driving a mare of five or six years, which had always been quiet when meeting steam engines, automobiles, and so on. Witness was unable to say who ruled to have the girls drive it.

Delightful Picnic Up The Lakes

St. John's Choir Had Their Annual Water Trip—A Charming and Successful Outing.

The annual picnic of the choir attached to St. John's Anglican church, a day always looked forward to by those having the privilege of participating in it, or receiving an invitation thereto, registered another great success yesterday.

The outing was arranged to Burleigh Falls, and shortly after half past eight the sturdy steamer, "Stoney Lake," loosed from her moorings at the government wharf, on George street, and headed across the lake for No. 6 lock.

The morning was all that could be desired, so far as regarded the sunshine; yet a rather cold head on wind was blowing from the N.N.W. necessitating the use of more winter clothing than appears appropriate on midsummer-day, which yesterday — the twenty-fourth of June—happened to be, at least so saith the calendar. A very hearty welcome was extended to all by Mr. and Mrs. Devey and Mr. H. Morphet, on whose shoulders devolved the whole of the arrangements for this pleasant picnic. And none the less cordial was the greetings from Capt. Scollard and Mr. Frank Young of the good Canadian steamship by which we were all to journey.

The recent rains had made the country look charming, the sun was brilliant, while large, white, flocky clouds, many of them of wind betokening type, threw effective shadows over the landscape. The lift-lock was shortly safely negotiated, and then really began the long, and to some persons tedious, passage of the canal. Yet there is always something to interest the voyager over this stretch of waterway from Peterborouhg to Lakefield, anyway. There was wind enough to remove the headgear of one or two of the male passengers, said headgear not being recoverable.

The trip up the lakes is too well known to the majority to need repetition here. The various beauty spots abounding on every hand should be seen, for they defy description. During the transit through the canal and its seven locks time passed quickly enough by the intervention of music and singing, to say nothing of cards —of which "five hundred" seemed to be the favourite choice.

The passing from Lakefield to Hurricane Point was made and enjoyed when a delay to the "Stoney Lake's" progress was caused by a big jam of logs extending from shore to shore of the Narrows, entirely blocking the channel up to Burleigh Falls. A powerful looking tug—the "Ajax"— however promptly set to work, and, in the course of what seemed to be around three quarters of an hour, the hindrance to navigation was removed. Then came the two mile sail to the Falls, which haven was hungrily welcomed by the nearly one thousand souls on board. Ice creams had been served on the way up, but they had apparently the effect of whetting the appetite rather than otherwise.

A merry party sat around the well-supplied tables at the Burleigh Falls Hotel, and Mr. and Mrs. Darcy, the competent and popular proprietors are to be congratulated and thanked for the welcome spread they put up. Thorough justice was done to their experienced catering; of that there could be no doubt judging from the remarks this scribe overheard, to say nothing of his own experience. After dinner the Falls seemed to be the greatest point of attraction and several parties, some of two, some of more, wended their way to the cataract. A large number of logs were being sent down and these, tossing about in the tumbled waters or rolling over the miniature Niagara, gave added interest.

And now came the final warning whistle, for it is "hout ship" "all aboard," and the homeward journey has to be commenced, for there is to be a stop off at Young's Point to give the youngsters, and some of the old ones for the matter of that, races for various prizes. There were races for small boys and for small girls, for older boys and likewise girls, for middle aged men and old men, for spinsters and for married women, for bachelors and benedicts. And then it is "all-aboard" again, and the journey is continued to Lakefield, where the ship re-coaled and a number of the voyagers took the opportunity of going ashore and walking to the second lock, where they met the good ship.

Again we steamed along. A dainty tea, accompanied by ice cream, was served in Coleman's style, and in good style and the return journey through the various locks was continued, cards, music and singing also being in vogue. An emergency call brought everyone on deck for a presentation of a fern-bowl is made to Mrs. Common, a member of the choir who is going away to Quebec. A shower of short duration sent the majority of the passengers to the saloon, where "Sun of My Soul," "Blest be the tie," "O Canada" and "God Save the King" were sung. Canon Davidson proposed a vote of thanks to those who so successfully engineered the delightful days arrangements. Mr. Devey responded with some very pithy, happy remarks, as representing the choir, as did also Mr. Morphet as representing the church wardens and congregation. Mr. Wm. Johnstone in a facetious, good yet brief speech—for brevity says Shakespeare is the soul of wit—proposed a vote of thanks, carried it is needless to say by acclamation, to the captain and crew of the good ship for having safely navigated us all through the perils of the deep.

At nine o'clock the "Stoney Lake" was moored alongside the wharf, farewells were exchanged, offers to "see you home," were accepted, the ladies put away their rochet or needle work.

And this delightful picnic came to an end. Many thanks to you, Mr. and Mrs. Devey and Mr. H. Morphet. All the outings you undertake are enjoyable, each one, if possible, being more so than the preceding one. Hearty thanks were accorded the donours of many of the prizes, Mr. Conway, Mr. Fair, Mr. Kent, Mr. Chris. Graham and Mr. Frank Linton.

ALL-STEEL CARS FILL THE BILL

The all-steel colonist cars built by the C.P.R. fill the bill to a nicety. On the long journey to the west, these cars have to be eating and sleeping and living rooms combined. They must have cooking conveniences, for one thing; and there is always more or less danger when several people are using the stove that accidents may happen. For that reason alone, the all-steel car comes in handy, as there is absolutely nothing to burn. Well, there are the cushions on the steel seats; but they could not do much harm even if they did take fire. The seats, floor, roof, sides —every bit of the car is of steel. The fire stoves are fixed to steel frames. Every detail has been carefully thought out. The cars fill a much felt want, being as they are, roomy, comfortable and safe, while for three or five days, the life is lived as it would be in a permanent residence, with hardly an oscillation to remind one that the cars are on the rails, and that they are running at the rate of 40 miles an hour.

WORLD LOST IF GERMANY WINS

Southport, England, June 25. — Rudyard Kipling, in a public address to aid recruiting here, said:

"Up to the present Germany has suffered 3,000,000 casualties, can suffer another 3,000,000 for aught we know and another 3,000,000 after that.

"We have no reason to believe she will break up suddenly and dramatically, as a few people still expect. Why should she? She took two generations to prepare herself in every detail and through every fibre of her national being for this war, and she is playing for the highest stakes in the world—dominion of the world.

"In Belgium several million Belgians are making war materials or fortifications for their conquerors, getting enough food to support life as the Germans think it should be supported.

At Point of Bayonet.

"The United States supplies a large part of that food and in return the Belgians are compelled to work at the point of the bayonet. If they object they are shot. They have no more property and no more rights than cattle and cannot lift a hand to protect the honour of their women.

"There has been nothing like the horror of their fate in all history, that this system is in full working order within fifty miles of the English coast. Where I live I can hear the guns trying to extend it.

"The same system exists in such parts of France and Poland as are in German hands, but whatever has been dealt out to Belgium, France and Poland will be England's fate ten fold if we fail to subdue the Germans.

"That we shall be broken, plundered, robbed and enslaved like the Belgians will be but the first part of the matter. There are special reasons in the German mind why we should be morally and mentally shamed and dishonoured beyond any other people and degraded till those who survive may scarcely dare look each other in the face.

"We can be perfectly sure if Germany is victorious every refinement of outrage within the compass of German imagination will be inflicted on us in every aspect of our lives.

Would Take the Whole World.

"We must realize, too, if the Allies are beaten there is no spot on the globe where a soul can escape from the domination of this enemy of mankind.

"There has been childish talk that the Western Hemisphere would offer a refuge from oppression. Put that thought from your mind. If the Allies were defeated Germany would not need to send a single battleship over the Atlantic. She would issue an order and it would be obeyed.

"Civilization would be bankrupt and the western world taken over with the rest of the wreckage by Germany as the receiver. So you see there is no retreat possible.

"This war must go forward and with those men of England eligible for service but who have not yet offered themselves the decision of the [illegible] must [illegible], if the war rests."

THE CANADIANS AT YPRES.

Tears for the dead,
And laurels for the brave;
And glory ever more
For those who found the victors' grave
Upon an alien shore.
In freedom's right they fell,
For freedom did they stand,
For freedom, and the love
Of that dear Motherland,
"They saved the day," that bloody day,
For freedom and for right;
But many a gallant lad went down,
Beneath the moon that night.—

Dr. Dernberg Well Treated By Britishers

LONDON, June 26.—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, who is due in Berlin to-day, cabled the German Chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann Hollweg, from Norway, denying rumours that he had been molested by the British when the steamer Bergensfjord was detained at Kirkwall. Dernburg told newspapermen that he and others aboard the Norwegian ship were splendidly treated by the British officers.

HAIL OF MELLINITE SHELLS CLEARS WAY FOR ALLIES DRIVE ON TURKS

French "75s" Silence Ottoman Batteries and in General Assault the Franco-British Troops Make Substantial Gains Over a Mile of Front—German Marines Are Among Prisoners.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS, June 26.—A gain of from 150 to 500 yards on a mile front was made by the Anglo-French troops on the Gallipoli Peninsula as the result of a spectacular series of battles between June 1 and 8, says an official communication issued by the War Office Thursday. The main attack was directed against the strong Turkish positions at Kereves Dere, which runs through an abrupt ravine and empties into the Dardanelles about two and a half miles from the Aegean Sea. The communication says:

"Our offensive movement during the last two weeks of the month of May was most gradual, the line moving forward in small sections and making its way from one vantage point to the next point of support.

"But on June 4 the whole line was ordered to attack. The idea was to keep the enemy occupied at all points simultaneously, thus preventing him from bringing up reserves at any one point, and at the same time giving our men further opportunity to organize the positions already captured by them.

"At about eleven o'clock in the morning the bombardment of the enemy positions was begun. Owing to a long period of dry weather huge clouds of dust were thrown up by the shells and were blown back to our lines by a north wind, a condition which made our firing difficult. The enemy made only an occasional reply to the hail of our '75' guns. Toward noon our aeroplanes reported that all of the enemy's batteries had been silenced. Our infantry at a given signal dashed from the trenches and from the cliffs which dominate the Gulf of Saros in the direction of the deep ravine at Kereves Dere.

"As the Allies advanced the bayonets of the men and the swords of their officers gleamed under the bright sun. The principal attack was made upon the Turkish position located opposite the British trenches. British soldiers charged these trenches of the enemy and found that a majority of the Turkish defenders had been killed by the melinite shells. Without stopping at their first success our Allies charged again and were successful in occupying the second line of trenches. At this point they were given support, which permitted them to turn about and attack and capture a Turkish redoubt which still held out. They took also further positions situated on the right and the left of the first line of trenches and gained ground approximately 500 yards in depth.

"The French charged simultaneously with the British against the Turkish positions situated in front of Kereves Dere. The first line soon was taken as was also a Turkish fortress which, with the ditches surrounding it, was heavily fortified by barb wire entanglements. We called this fort 'Haricoat.'

"The result of our attacks gave to us an advance ranging from 150 to 500 yards along a lateral front of two kilometres (a mile and one-fifth). British troops took 500 prisoners, including ten officers, and seven German marines who formerly had belonged to the German war ships Goeben and Breslau, vessels which since the war have been under the Turkish flag."

ITALY TOLD AUSTRIA WHAT WOULD HAPPEN

Special to the Examiner.

PARIS, June 26.—Tomasso Tittoni, the Italian Ambassador to France, speaking at a meeting of the Franco-Italian League on Thursday, read with the consent of Antonio Salandra, the Italian Premier, the telegraphic Foreign Office correspondence between the Ambassador and the Marquis di San Giuliano, then Italian Foreign Minister, in April, 1913, at the moment when Austria threatened to occupy Montenegro. The correspondence indicated that the Italian Government's conviction was that Austria's Balkan policy was in violation of the Triple Alliance.

Signor Tittoni, whose advice in the premises had been asked by the Marquis di San Giuliano, wired the Foreign Minister on April 30 that "the day Austria undertakes to disturb, in whatever fashion or extent, the equilibrium of the Adriatic, the Triple Alliance will cease to exist. The Triple Alliance will have been torn up by the hands of Germany and Austria."

Signor Tittoni averred that Italy was compelled to take part in the present war because Austria, prior to the war, habitually disregarded Italy's vital interests in the Balkans, and began war against Serbia in entire disregard of the rights of Italy as stipulated in the Triple Alliance.

GERMAN ACCOUNT OF LIFE IN CITY OF LEMBERG

BERLIN, June 6.—(via London)—The Berlin Tageblatt has received a despatch from its correspondent at Lemberg descriptive of the situation in that city which reads as follows:

"Reviewing the nine months' rule of the Russians in Lemberg, it is found that among the chief sufferers in the Galician capital were certain former Government officials, whose salaries could no longer be paid. Prominent families were reduced to begging in the streets, and compelled to satisfy their hunger in the kichens of other people. Well-known men of Lemberg chopped and sold wood, while their wives baked and peddled bread and cakes around the city.

Russian Language Studied.

"The prices of food reached exorbitant figures. Butter cost 6 crowns (1.20) per kilogram (2.20 pounds, or equivalent to 5 cents a pound). The city of Lemberg issued emergency two crown notes, which however, had a barter value of only one crown.

"Regular Russian policemen and Cossacks patrolled the city. The schools were permitted to stay open only with the express consent of the Military Governor. At least five hours every week had to be devoted to the study of the Russian language. Only ten books approved for use in Russian schools were permitted in Lemberg. The Russian calendar was introduced. Certain prominent residents favorable to Russia assisted the invaders, and one of these, M. Glusakiewicz, a well-known Ruthenian leader, was later rewarded by being

All Officials Had Left.

"All men of military age were taken into custody by the Russian authorities, as were also all pensioned Austrian and Hungarian officers. These included General Ryck, a veteran of Sebastapol, over 80 years of age.

"The Russian municipal officials began leaving the city the latter part of May and all had disappeared before Lemberg fell. Emperor Nicholas paid one visit to the Galician capital while it was under Russian control. Ruthenian books were destroyed by the Russian authorities, and the exchange of telegrams and letters in the Ruthenian language was prohibited."

"Tell Nation the Truth" Pleads London Times

LONDON, June 26.—A demand that the nation be "told the truth about the war" is voiced by the Times in an editorial. The paper declares there is no immediate prospect of being able to compel the Germans to withdraw within their own frontiers; that it will take months to provide the British forces with the big guns which are necessary.

"The country has got to set its teeth," says the Times, "disregard confusing bulletins and face the probability of a prolonged and unprogressive campaign in the west, while General Von Mackensen's successful march probably has postponed a resumption of the Russian offensive for several months until they also are provided with guns and shells. To put it briefly, the Allies on both fronts are being held with no prospect of an early change. Moreover, the outlook in the Dardanelles, of which the less said the better, long ago ceased to offer prospects of a swift and easy diversion in the middle east."

The London Times is one of Lord Northcliffe's papers which has waged an energetic campaign for greater publicity in connection with the war. His attacks upon the British Government are credited with being largely responsible for the formation of the new Coalition Ministry and the appointment of David Lloyd-George as Minister of Munitions.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season; which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentry, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes that he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Austria Alarmed At Progress of The Italians

ROME, June 26.—Alarmed at the progress of Italian invaders, Austrian commanders in Tyrol and Carnic Alps have set large forces of men at work strengthening their works a few miles inside the frontier.

Gen. Cadorna reported that from the mountain peaks Italian observers have sighted the Austrians, miles away, dragging heavy batteries up the mountain sides. Slopes are so steep in many places that mules cannot traverse them. Guns are being hauled into position by linking hundreds of men together on the heavy cables.

"In the Carnic region we have repulsed night attacks in the region of Valgrande and Valpiccolo," the Italian Commander-in-Chief has reported. "Along Isonzo front our advance has been continuous despite many natural and artificial barriers. At one point an enemy battery, subjected to our shrapnel fire for several hours, hoisted Red Cross flags as a token of surrender."

In proportion to population Stockholm leads the cities of the world for telephone with Copenhagen in second place.

DYING OFFICER SHOCKS EMPRESS

"May the Kaiser and his Children Suffer as I Have" His Prayer.

PETROGRAD, June 26.—The Novoe Vremya correspondent at Warsaw says the German Empress visited the officers' hospital at Posen recently and was carried out in a fainting condition in consequence of the reply of one of the officers to her attempts at consolation.

The officer, all four of whose limbs had been amputated, while his body was covered with shrapnel wounds, lay very near death. When the Empress reached his bedside and asked if he had any wishes, the German is reported to have said:

Defy Dyspepsia!

Among the symptoms of Dyspepsia or Indigestion may be mentioned a heavy, cutting pain soon after eating; a distended, full feeling of the stomach and bowels; belching of wind and flatulence; a burning sensation in the stomach, which indicates acidity; heartburn; palpitation of the heart; oppression of breathing; pain under the ribs and shoulder-blades; headache through the temples and eyes; dizziness, coated tongue and constipation; sometimes nausea or vomiting.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt is the natural specific for all these conditions. Being an antacid, it immediately relieves the acidity of the stomach and stops the fermentation. It stimulates the secretion and muscular action of the stomach and bowels, and overcomes the constipation. When its use is kept up the normal action of all the organs of digestion is re-established.

Sold everywhere at 25c. and 60c.

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

"I won't tell," sez I, solemn, as I handed it back to her; "but how on earth did you get this away from him?"

She snatched it out of my hand an' tried to look mad, but she had to grin. "I kept tellin' him how horrid his whiskers were," sez she, "until finally he brought me this to show that he had once looked worse—and then I wouldn't give it back to him."

She was nearly adways gay, but the watchfulness and the buried sorrow never quite left her eyes, and ya knew that if the dog, Placido, could have told of some of the hours she wrastled through when no one else was nigh, it would have hurt like the probin' of an old wound.

Shortly after this she lost the photygraph, and she took on worse about it than ever I"d seen her. I first I tried to turn it into a joke; but it wasn't no joke to her. "What makes you set such store by that thing?" sez I.

"How do I know who'll find it?" sez she.

"What difference would it make?" sez I. "What if even Red Gingley 'd find it? He never sees Tom Smith any more so he couldn't rawhide him about it."

"It might lead to his discovery," sez she.

"Nonsense!" sez I. "You don't reckon that anyone lookin' for a killer would set any store by that photygraph. Why, it would take the feller in that photygraph four days to kill a fly with a club."

"He told me to be very careful of it," sez she.

"That was only to discipline you," sez I. "Mrs. Hummage—the wife of the storekeeper down at Elliott—was tellin' me only last week—"

"I hope that you don't think that Tom Smith is anything like Gabe Hummage, do you?" sez she.

"He's as much like him as you are like her," sez I. "She tells me 'at this is a regular way men have of doin'; they may put some little stunt on a woman and if she carries it all through, they praise her high, an' set her some bigger stunt to do, 'til they get her plumb loaded down. If she fails at the small stunt they rawhide her until she's so ashamed that she grabs up the bigger stunt of her own accord. Don't you fret none about that photygraph, the' wasn't a name of any kind on it, 'cause I looked mighty close myself."

"Well, that's true," sez she, "but I hate like the mischief to lose it."

"Now," sez I, "dont' you start in by makin' a hero out of Tom Smith, and performin' worship to him. If he makes a big fuss about your losin' that mushy picture, you just tell him to go to Jericho, and I'll hunt you up some better natured company. Have you any idee where you lost it?"

"No, I haven't," sez she. "I was sure I must have dropped it somewhere on the Horseshoe, but we've looked everywhere and cant' find it."

"The wind blew it in the crick, which is middlin' high and the chances are that it has killed fifty fish by this time," sez I. "Just forget all about it, and let's us take a ride."

"The's been two men spyin' around here lately,' 'sez she, after a short silence.

"What does the old hermit say about that?" sez I

"He dont' know who they are," sez she: "They came from the west and they have been all over your range, but they never speak to anyone."

"What do they look like?" sez I.

"One of them is short and he looks to be just like a boy, the other is a large man with a scar under his left eye," sez she.

"Ah-ho!" sez I. "How close a look have you had at the boy?"

"Not very close," sez she. "He was wearin' his hat over his eyes and had a big handkerchief around his throat, but he seems of slight frame, though quick and active."

"Have they ever seen you?" sez I.

"No," sez she, "I've allus had ample warnin'."

"What do you figger 'em to be, an' who do you figger 'em to be after?" sez I.

"Government officers," sez she, "after Tom Smith."

"You may wish they were before you're through with 'em," sez I. "Have you any idee where they are to-day?"

"We haven't seen 'em for two days," sez she.

"Well, the next time you do, you get me word," sez I. "I think I'm lookin' for that very pair, myself."

"I'll get you word if I can," sez she, and I left her with a smile on her lips that was mighty hard to hold true.

I just about knew 'at this man with the scar under his eye was Bill Stern, and the little feller was Banty, the worst o' the bunch, accordin' to Dan Cooper. Now, I figgered Banty to be the gel that Monody had told me the Panhandle Kid had been soft on, and I was troubled in my mind as I rode home. I had pumped Monody all I could about the fellers who don't get along well with the law, and I knew that honour among thieves was not any more to be depended upon han honour among detectives.

Panther Emmons hadn't been seen in our parts since the day Tom Smith had took his measure, and I estimated that Panther had figgered out just what I had, that Tom Smith wasn't no other than the Panhandle Kid, and had got word to Bill Stern and his fascinatin' sister down to have a little talk with Tom Smith.

A woman's got a mighty stretchy sense o' forgiveness, and I knew that under certain circumstances, Banty could easy forgive the Panhandle Kid for the shootin' of brother Buck durin' a brawl; but that if any word got out about Kate, the whole confounded Stern family would hunt him down, and if they got nosed off the trail, they would write in all the news of him they could think up, to the government.

Nothin' had ever been said to Kate's father about Tom Smith, and mighty few of the details of what had happened at Big Jeff's had been told him. He was a curious mixture, was Kate's father. At times, and most of the time,, he'd be placid, like a weakly child, and then he'd suddenly get the notion that he had to do the thinkin' for all o' that part o' the country, and he would make plans and give orders and scold around in a dry, pierin' voice that almost made ya believe he was the big overboss after all—and then he would have a turn and flatten out completely.

Most o' the time he treated old Josiah as though he owned that part of the world, and Josiah was doin' him the honour to pay a visit, and he'd get all out of breath makin' Josiah fine speeches and urgin' him to feel at home, and then again for a short space he would get till worried at the time he was wastin' at such an out of the way place, and he'd ask what his bill was, and urge Kate to hurry with her packin'.

The old hermit had told Kate that he had been one of the lucky ones in the California gold rush, and that he really had more than he knew what to do with, and that he was so honest and earnest that after a time she got over feelin' that she was imposin' on him, and then she chucked overboard what that finishin' school had told her about the obligations and liabilities of bein' a guest, and jest acted accordin' to what the still small voice of her instinct whispered.

That was to treat old Josiah Cornell just as though he plump belonged to her, to boss him, to ask him questions, to pet him, to scold him—well to jest be an out an' out healthy gel livin' her free, natural life with a lovin', open-hearted, genuwine old man who just doted on her, and he'd look whipped every time anything suggested her ever goin' away.

But we all knew that if her father suspicioned about Big Jeff, he'd either have the law on him or have another stroke, so Big Jeff flourished like a green bay tree—what ever that is.

I used to wonder myself, when old Josiah would decide was the time to settle down on Jeff, and I used to ask him about it occasionally; but he allus would say: "It seems to me, boy, as though things were goin' along all right. If we were to kill him now it would be out of reevnge, and that never pays. He's brought good to me by bringing me Kate, and he may be doin' some other good we don't know nothin' of. I've got a notion that when the time comes for his killin' he'll come right here after it; and all I hope is that I'll be able to attend to it in the right spirit."

"What's your religion?" sez I to him once.

"Well," sez he, after studyin' a while, "I haven't quite settled on that part yet, myself, that is, not one all of it, but the workin' part of my religion is to at all times do the thing that is goin' to win my own self respect. On the nights that I can go out and look up into the stars, and call up every word I've spoken and every deed that I've done that day, and say to myself, I wouldn't do not different if I had to do it over, why on those nights, I'm so blamed full of religion I dassent breathe as deep as I can for fear I'll float right up."

And so things flowed along peaceful and contented but all the time with something hangin' over us until it was time for Jim and the outfit to get back.

I will recommend your medicine to my friends and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. LAWRENCE MARTIN, 12 King St., Westbrook, Maine.

Manston, Wis. — "At the Change of Life I suffered with pains in my back and loins until I could not stand. I also had night-sweats so that the sheets would be wet. I tried other medicine but got no relief. After taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use for six months. A PRINCESS BEAUTIFUL

The homeless little girl of Europe, the princess beautiful, is Marie Jose of Belgium, the golden-haired fairy, with a glint of mischief in her eye, and the dignity of royalty in her regal bearing.

Out of the carnage the royal family of Belgium has emerged with great honour from the great Albert, a King every inch, and the regal Queen Elizabeth, who has inspired her young sons with the sentiment that true nobility lies in right living and right thinking, down to little Marie Jose, the homeless princess of Europe, now about 9 years old.

About the golden aureola of her fluffy hair gather almost the only gleams of light in the unfortunate country over which her father and mother were called upon to reign, and it may be surmised that the little princess is quite the idol of the Belgians.

And Princess Marie Jose is every bit as nice and popular as she looks. After the war began she was the guest of friends in England, exiled to remove her from the danger zone, and her popularity went with her. Her pictures encircle the earth, symbols of sweet childhood.

Larz Anderson, one time our minister to Belgium, knows well the little princess. Of her he says: "I knew the little princess when I was minister at the Belgian court, and she was like a fairy princess, the ideal princess of one's dreams. In our drawing-room there is a photograph, a gift to my wife, signed in her childish but strong handwriting [illegible] and in it she appears the little royal princess out of a story book, for her wonderful hair is all aglow with the light from a window by which she stands, and her dress seems to recall mediaeval times. I do not exaggerate her wonderful charm, and there is enough suggestion of mischief in the charm to prove her a little girl as well as a royal princess."

It seems but a few years ago, in reality it is more than 20, since the royal children most pictured were little Princess Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and little King Alfonso, of Spain. The little sovereign of the Dutch was a pretty child whose gracious ways endeared her to her people and the little Spanish monarch was then a pretty boy in velvet suit with lace collar and lightly waving hair.

How fast years pass for princes and princesses, as well as for the ordinary mortals, is shown when we realise that Queen Wilhelmina has a princess of her own now, little Juliana, and Spain's King has sons who are wearing soldier clothes.

Fortunate the prince who finds favour ten years hence in the eyes of the golden-haired princess of the Belgians. It is fair to assume, with strong monarchs for her parents, that Marie Jose will have ideas of her own regarding an alliance, and that questions of state will not cut over-much figure. However, she is not bothering her pretty head over that yet.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

Make haste to be kind to a neighbour.

* * *

No matter about the trouble, you have much to be thankful for.

* * *

Beware of two-faced peoples; they make a great deal of trouble in the world.

* * *

* * *

A Christian isn't really much of a Christian unless he's a Christian when there is nobody watching him.

* * *

Every to-morrow has two handles. We can take hold of it by the handle of anxiety or the handle of faith.

* * *

Do not think of your faults — still less of others' faults. In every person who comes near you, look for what is good and strong; honour that, rejoice in it, and, as you can, try to imitate it, and your faults will drop off like dead leaves when autumn comes.

* * *

Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities, no doubt, crept in; forget them as soon as you can. To-morrow is a new day; begin it well and serenely, and with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old nonsense. This day is all that is good and fair. It is too dear with its hopes and invitations, to waste a moment on the yesterdays.

Be continually looking upwards, our minds themselves will grow upwards, and as a man, by indulging in habits of scorn and contempt for others, is sure to descend to a level of what he despises, so the habit of admiration and enthusiastic reverence for excellence impart to ourselves a portion of the qualities which we admire. Here as in everything else, humility is the surest path to exaltation.

* * *

If we do not use our minds they become flabby and inactive. We have no mental muscle. If we do not use our hearts they become hard and unfeeling, caring little for love and tenderness. If we do not use our will, our conscience, we become indifferent to truth, to the right and the wrong of life. If we do not use our bodies, we become useless and unhappy, a misery to ourselves and to all about use. So let us all be up and doing—not overdoing—that is as fatal in its result as no work at all; but let us all be up and doing with a will that shall keep our minds busy, and our hands employed and our hearts happy. Satan finds mischief for idle hands. Let us be glad that most of us have our hands full of earnest, honest work.

* * *

Nothing is truer than the saying, "You may know a man by the company he keeps." We seek companions who are to us agreeable and attractive, who put us at our ease, and who can enter into our thoughts and feelings. Men on different moral planes cannot be good friends. The honest man is not more uncomfortable with a thief for a comrade than the thief himself in the presence of a man of honour. The chief offices of friendship demand that men be morally equal, although they may be intellectually unequal. We may have many a genial, social hour with those younger than ourselves, refreshed by their inexperience and innocence of life; and again we may have hours of deep, quiet joy with those who are older than ourselves, receiving from them wisdom and inspiration; but with those who are morally beneath us or above us, there is no pleasant companionship.

* * *

The Brevity of Life.

Life is very critical. Any word may be our last. Any farewell, even amid glee and merriment may be forever. If this truth was but burned into our consciences, and if it ruled as a deep conviction and real power in our lives, would it not give a new meaning to our human relationship? Would it not make us far more tender than we sometimes are? Would it not often times put a rein upon our rash and impetuous speech? Would we carry in our hearts the miserable suspicions and jealousies that now so often embitter the fountains of our lives? Would we be so impatient of the faults of others? Would we allow trivial misunderstandings to build up a wall between us and those who ought to stand very close to us? Would we keep alive petty quarrels year after year, which a manly word any day would compose? Would we pass old friends or neighbours in the street without recognition, because of some real or fancied slight, some wounding of pride, or some ancient grudge? Or would we be so chary of kind words or commendations, our sympathy, our comfort, when weary hearts all about us are breaking for just such expressions of interest or appreciation as we have in our power to give?

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Cooking Kills:—There are certain elements in uncooked foods that are essential to life and health. In some foods, but not all, these elements are killed or destroyed by cooking. Perhaps there is no more striking example of this principle than in cabbage. Eaten raw and thoroughly masticated it is said to supply organic iron in greater abundance than any other food and the beneficial effect is at once apparent. It is easily digested, and as much of the fibre is waste matter, it supplies bulk which aids in overcoming the form of constipation that is caused by the habitual use of condensed foods. As soon as certain degree of heat is used in cooking it the same cabbage becomes tough and hard to digest. The organic iron is destroyed and but little nutriment is left.

With this idea before us it is not difficult to understand why the dutchman puts up an extra barrel of sourkraut for use in case of sickness, or why the New Englander must forego his boiled dinner of corned beef and cabbage when not in perfect health.

This simple test also explains why the laity finds prompt relief and speedy cures through the use of old-fashioned herb remedies that are gathered from the fields and gardens and prepared as a simple infusion by slowly steeping or simmering, while the college graduate in medicine with the famous chemist at his service, after sterilizing, baking, boiling, fermenting and extracting, finds nothing in the little plant to justify the claims of the Herb Doctor. Therefore he argues, the patient was not suffering with the supposed disease or he was cured by suggestion.

Instead of the organic iron of cabbage, peaches, grapes and other fruits and vegetables, the chemist prepares a dose of inorganic iron that is administered by the doctor and presto, the red blood corpuscles are at once increased, but the ultimate effect upon the health is, I believe, valueless. A simple and harmless method of increasing the red blood corpuscles is fully described in Vol. 3 of the Home Health Club books under the heading, "Pure Blood and Clear Skin." The remedies used are at hand and no possible harm can follow.

The sustances of the chapter may be stated in a few words. The remedies are fresh milk and hot water, equal parts. Instead of the usual breakfast take the juice of an orange and then place in the double boiler one pint of sweet milk and one pint of hot water. Take only 1 tablespoonful every 5 or 10 minutes during the entire day. Do not let the water in the double boiler get too hot to boil, but keep it on the stove and keep it hot. Do not take more than 1 tablespoonful at a time and not oftener than once in every 5 minutes and not less often than every 10 minutes. If a blood test is made before this treatment and again in 24 hours, a much greater and better change will be found than through the administration of inorganic iron and the anaemic patient will be ready to eat and assimilate a wholesome meal of uncooked fruits, vegetables and milk with a reasonable proportion of cooked foods.

It is not intended that you should now discard cooked foods, far from it, but along with the cooked foods eat freely of the uncooked and you will be better nourished, your blood will be purer and the action of the ductless glands will be natural and effective in maintaining efficiency.

Preserving Soldiers' Graves

When after the battle of the Marne the fields and forests were filled with dead heroes, thousands of willing hands, young or old, dug graves on which girls and women planted little wooden crosses with the name of the fallen soldier in ink or pencil. As there was danger that agricultural labor should destroy these graves and the weather efface the inscriptions, the municipal and village authorities everywhere have issued instructions that all these graves are to be left intact and suitable measures taken to preserve the inscriptions. School children regularly visit the graves and cover them with flowers.

INSULT AFTER INJURY

Belgians Were Told Their Country Was at Peace—Funds Taken

From Paris comes the story of how General von Bissing, who was made military dictator of Belgium by the Kaiser, deprived the Belgian Red Cross of its funds, which he ordered should no longer be used to assist wounded Belgian soldiers back to health. The governor did not set out on a dark night armed with a jimmy and flashlight and the other paraphernalia of the ordinary cracksman to burst open the safe of the society, but adopted a less risky and more efficient way.

The Belgian Red Cross Society was founded in 1882 and its by-laws say that in time of war it must devote all its funds to assist wounded Belgian soldiers and must in every way co-operate with the Belgian military authorities. Its charter would be forfeited if the funds were used for any other purpose.

Governor von Bissing sent a letter to the administrative committee of the Red Cross Society in which he announced that as Belgium was occupied by German troops it was in a state of peace, and consequently the society, according to its by-laws, must not use its funds on wounded Belgian soldiers, but must use them as he saw fit. Immediately afterwards he ordered the society to turn over its money to a German organization the aim of which is to fight consumption. When the committee refused to destitute the governor ordered it to assist the poor and needy of the country, but the answer was that this was being done through the regular channels, and that the Red Cross could not use its fund for this purpose. The committee was then ordered to appear before the governor and when the members of the committee refused to be bullied by him, he gave them ten minutes to make up their minds. The committee said did not change him an answer and immediately after they left his presence the German governor [illegible] their money and declared it German property.

GIRL'S HEROIC WORK

"Her work in tending the Belgian wounded has won for her the affection of the whole Belgian army," said an English officer of Lady Dorothie Feilding, the pretty young daughter of the Earl of Denbigh, to whose unselfish bravery heroes themselves pay tribute. Lady Dorothie is attached to an ambulance party in Belgium, whose duty consists of driving motor-cars into the firing-line to pick up the wounded. Perilous journeys have to be made along narrow roads rendered veritable death-traps by gaping cavities torn in the surface by shells. On occasions pieces of metal discharged by projectiles bursting overhead have smashed the woodwork of Lady Dorothie 'car, and once whilst she was driving in pitch-darkness her vehicle crashed into a hole as big as a room, and forty soldiers were required to lift it out.

The Belgian soldiers worship the young English aristocrat, who for their sakes has set aside the comforts of a dual home to face the dangers of the battlefield, and King Albert expressed the gratitude of his countrymen by decorating Lady Dorothie with the Order of Leopold. This is the highest military decoration in Belgium.

Lady Dorothie's "five o'clock teas" among the ruins of Pervyse have become famous, and the Belgian officers greatly appreciate this little touch of civilisation amidst the ravages of war. She holds her receptions within range of the enemys' artillery nearly every day, for her ladyship possesses astonishing nerves, and her coolness seldom deserts her. As is well known, the Germans have little respect for the sign of the Red Cross, and when making their way to and from the trenches the motor ambulances are subected to heavy shell fire, whilst at times Taubes endeavor to annihilate the vehicles and their occupants with bombs. Yet for months Lady Dorothie has withstood this terrible nerve strain, though daily she moves amidst the worst horrors of war, and frequently escapes death by a hair's breadth. The plucky young Englishwoman probably has [illegible] and Red Cross Order in her veins. Lieut.-Colonel the Earl of Denbigh is a seasoned soldier, who served in the Egyptian campaign and in India, and is commanding the Honorable Artillery Company.

FINDING THE RANGE

A remarkable story of a French artillery officer whose bravery and resource saved the force under his command comes from northern France. He was in charge of a battery of the famous 75's. The enemy found the range of the French guns and subjected them to sever bombardment. The fire was so accurate that the French position became untenable. The French, on the contrary, had been unable to find the range of the enemy's guns, and the order was given to withdraw the guns to a more sheltered position. At that moment one of the German shells fell in front of the battery. It did not explode, and the lieutenant in charge, ordering his men not to move, calmly walked out in front of the line under a hail of fire and examined the shell. It was set to explode at 5,600 metres. Returning to his battery he ordered the men to fire at a range of 6,000 metres, and in a short time the enemy's guns were reduced to silence.

"I suffered for many years with terrible Indigestion and Constipation. I became thin and miserable. I had frequent dizzy spells and became so run down that I never thought I would get well again.

A neighbor advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'. I did so and to the surprise of my doctor, I began to improve and he advised me to go on with 'Fruit-a-tives'. I continued this medicine and all my Indigestion and Constipation was relieved. I consider that I owe my life to 'Fruit-a-tives' and I want to say to those who suffer from Indigestion, Constipation or Headaches, try 'Fruit-a-tives'. Give this lovely fruit medicine a fair chance and you will get well the same as I did".

Wood Pulp in War Bread

[illegible] been removed by bread made from straw and finally ground wood pulp invented by Professors Friedlander and Haberlandt. Professor Haberlandt in a recent article in the "Kreuzzeitung," stated that many people who had become used to it declared it not only highly nutritious but even delicious.

The Haberlandt bread is made from a dough containing fifty per cent. fine sawdust. The professor's theory is that during winter trees store up a great quantity of sugar, oils, fat and a small percentage of albumen, and the young branches and twigs are eminently fit for human consumption.

Doctoring Dreadnoughts.

After the conflict, Jack Tars have several methods of stopping the incoming water when a battleship has been hit below the water-line. For instance, if a small hole has been made in the vessels' side, an apparatus like an umbrella is used. This is thrust through the hole, point first, and then drawn back so that it will open like an umbrella, leaving the canvas outside.

Of course, the pressure of the water effectually forces the canvas against the ships' side, thus stopping the leak; but to make it more secure the handle of the umbrella, which is formed like a screw, is fastened by a nut inside.

COSSACKS FIGHT MUCH LIKE COWBOYS

Superb Horseman Made a Magnificent Showing as They Beat Back Superior Austrian Force

Mr. D. Thomas Curtin describes below how he watched by the side of a Cossack chief the failure of the huge Austrian advance from Czernovitz against the small Russian forces which had just withdrawn from that corner of Austria near the Rumanian border. Mr. Curtin states that the Russians left behind not so much as a wounded man or a rifle.

The artillery, with caissons of ammunition, rattled over the road, while Cossacks dashed beside to lash the horses up the hill towards Sadagora. The infantry was coming up, choking the road as far as one could see.

The first battalion stepped smartly to the fray. A field priest clad in rich robes of satin and velvet rode in majesty on his coal-black steed. And then, striding along beside those big men was a mite of a boy who could hardly be 13, and who wore a complete uniform. Lengthening his stride to keep pace with the men, and with head erect and eyes that never swerved, he swung along in measured tread, the embodiment of martial pride. Rough stretchers and a battered Red Cross wagon bore testimony of the grim work about to begin.

In a field directly opposite a battalion was still waiting for orders. It had been there since early morning, and had evidently marched during the night, for the men lay stretched out fast asleep. The call to assemble brought them to their feet, and the companies formed before one could realize that the men had been awakened. They moved across the field and hit the highway in column of fours, an old veteran with a medal of 1904 blowing lustily into a mouth-organ while the dull brown column went into battle to the strains of some soldier song.

At last I succeeded in reaching the top of the highway hill, from where I could watch the shrapnel bursting in the valley. The Austrians, who had crossed, numbering 2,000 men, I was told, were battered back across the pontoon bridge, to which a body of Russian infantry advanced along the open road. "This division could have been wiped out while advancing," an officer told me later, "if the Austrian artillery had only devoted its attention to it instead of trying to find ours."

Preparing for Stand

A clatter of hoofs coming up the hill caused me to turn to see a troop of Cossacks, their lance-tips glinting in the dazzling sun, a red-legged Hussar at their head. "Stay right here," he exclaimed, "if you wish to see the big excitement. We are going to set up a machine-gun by this building; the Austrians know that our main force has gone back to Sadagora. It is of vital necessity that we prevent them from crossing."

We took up our position near the partly-completed building, which looked like a blockhouse. The Cossacks gathered fondly about their new pet, captured from the Austrians, and belted it for action. "We will not fire until they cross," said the chef. "If the enemy throw a bridge and attack in force he can wedge us in from two sides. If we can forestall this by bluffing until our reserve infantry come up from Novosielica we can save the day. Now you will see what my Cossacks can do!"

A whirlwind of cavalry was launched from the base of the hill across the plain towards the river. A rattle of Austrian rifles from the opposite bank, but not a horse swerved, not a rider fell. When near the bank the avalanche broke up into flying fragments, which whirled in every direction in wild confusion. Erect in their saddles, to which they stuck as if glued, the Cossacks blazed away like the American Indian of pioneer days.

Magnificent Soldiers

On the mound by the machine gun stood the Cossack chief, gazing down in admiration upon his men. "Are they not magnificent—admirable? See how motionless they sit there watching to pick off any enemy who may appear. My men form a picked regiment, chosen from everywhere. They are the greatest Cossacks of the world!"

I was thrilled by the scenes of this wild Eastern warfare of the old type. Not a motor-car or a motor-cycle; every officer rode a horse.

The sun sank behind the hills when a great body of cavalry was seen approaching along the highway from Novosielica. Even in the distance they did not appear quite like any Cossacks I had ever seen. Every papakha was jet black, and every flowing robe was of carmine, faintly streaked with white. The handles of their deadly yataghans were all of ivory and bone, while that of their leader was inlaid with precious stones. Not the faintest flicker of change in the broad Mongolian features of these proud fighting men as they passed by on their superb black chargers; not a lip seemed to move as they chanted some soft, weird melody of a far-off Eastern land. They were the Tar-tar Cossacks whose coming had been so long expected.

"The Austrians have lost their opportunity," the chief cried joyfully, as he sat down to eat that night.

Fighting Barbed Wire

How to enable soldiers to overcome barbed wire obstacles is a problem of which an English company sought the solution.

The result is the "Barbed Wire Travesor," an invention in appearance more like a khaki-colored waterproof bed quilt, 6 feet square, than anything else. Thrown over a fence, the sheet transforms the barbed wire into a sort of wall, capable of being easily surmounted without risk of a scratch.

The Travesor was tested by twenty soldiers across a barbed wire entanglement in a camp near London. The soldiers, all being athletic men, were over the fence and away long before in the ordinary way they would have started cutting the wires. Not one of them received the slightest hurt. They were mainly concerned as to any increase in the weight of their equipment if the invention was adopted by the War Office.

Spraying Liquid Fire

The liquid fire used by the Huns has been chiefly employed to repel the attacks on their trenches. It is really burning petrol or oil, containing a certain amount of phosphorus to make it flare more fiercely, and many of the French invalided home were so severely burned by this barbarous method of making war as to be incapable of taking any further part in the fighting.

The implement used to spray the burning oil is very similar to the blow pipe used by plumbers, though of course it is very larger and heavier. The pressure of the air, which can be increased to as great an amount as wanted by a special air pump, forces the liquid out in a fine spray. It automatically catches fire in the air on account of the mixture of phosphorus.

Once it has been started a new phonograph can mechanically play records of the cylindrical type, one after another.

The finest bronze statuary is cast in sand imported from France, consisting of eighty per cent. silica and 20 per cent alumina.

Comfort and Cure For Baby's Skin Troubles

Dr. Chase's Ointment Cured When Baby's Body Was Covered With Distressing Eczema

If every mother could try Dr. Chase's Ointment for the chafing, skin irritation and resulting eczema which tortures so many babies, what a blessing it would be for the little ones.

This letter will give you an idea of what a wonderful work this Ointment is doing in the way of bringing comfort to children who are so unfortunate as to contract eczema. It is so easy for this trouble to develop from chafing or irritation caused by the clothing, and so difficult to get it cured, that Dr. Chase's Ointment is appreciated when once its healing qualities are known.

Mr. M. L. Dusclos, Postmaster, Dugnayville, N.B., writes: "I believe it is my duty to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema. My baby was seised with eczema and his face and arms were covered with this terrible disease. After trying all sorts of ointments the disease continued to spread until it covered the entire body. When the itching became bad he would scratch himself and was sometimes found in his cradle covered with blood. Hearing about Dr. Chase's Ointment I bought two boxes and before this was all used the child was cured. That was a year ago, and there has been no trace of eczema since. I recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from eczema as being the best treatment in the world for itching skin diseases."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is for sale by all dealers at 60 cents a box. It is a good idea to keep it at hand along with the bath soap to be used for roughness of the skin, chafing or irritation. Prevention is so much better than cure. Powders clog the pores, but Dr. Chase's Ointment cleanses the pores and thereby keeps the skin soft and smooth. Sample box free if you mention this paper. CHAPTER XXII.

The Quest of the Hindu.

THAT night Wilkerson sought out Jean Darnell. She received him in a manner that told him distinctly that she was in a towering rage, though she was outwardly calm.

Wilkerson paid no attention apparently to her blazing eyes nor to her restrained. "Well, once more your schemes have failed."

"Not failed," he said boldly. "I admit we nearly passed up what we were looking for. Do you remember that idol that was in the chest?"

"Harry," she said huskily, "I am weary of this."

"Wait a moment," he pleaded. "When I went back to the launch I found that Dorr had been quizzing the men about that image."

"And I suppose he had got it."

"No, he didn't. One of the sailors

"Wait a moment," he pleaded.

She stamped her foot.

"Where is it? What has it to do with the plans?"

"I don't know where it is," he responded sullenly. "A Hindu rug peddler bought it."

"And Dorr bought it from him?"

"Not yet," he said, risking the statement. "Now all I have to do is to find Mr. Peddler and get it back."

Mrs. Darnell flung herself into a chair and laughed hysterically.

"You mean to tell me Tom Gallon hid his plans in a heathen idol and that we overlooked them and that a rug peddler has them now?"

"Do you know all you have made me go through, Harry? Kidnaping, theft, murder—yes, murder—and at the end of it all, when we neither of us dare breathe for fear of the police finally getting us, you tell me that a tramp has got what we want! I'm done!"

Wilkerson had expected and feared this. He saw his wild efforts going for nothing. Without her assistance and her money he was helpless.

And profounder even than his hatred of Dorr and his desire for the hidden wealth was his agony at the thought of his failure to win the woman whom he loved.

"I'm going to get that idol."

Love is a noun which conveys to the ordinary mortal no definite meaning without an adjective. There is, indeed, an essence of love, a complete and all absorbing passion, before which even the gods bow and against which the world is powerless. Too often we must describe it as lawless.

Yet it also exists when it evokes the reverence of the most cynical. Wilkerson's love for Jean Darnell was the very essence of his being.

It had made a brave of a coward. It had welded a dozen strands of viciousness, weakness, wickedness and treacherousness into a strong character—strong only in its relation to the woman.

The past few weeks, with their wildness, risk, crime and continual plotting, had made the Harry Wilkerson who was a weakling and sport of circumstances into a personality. His must be dealt with.

Jean Darnell realized something of this when he next spoke.

"All this has been disappointing," he said quietly, his eyes burning steadily on hers. "But the more disappointments I have to overcome the more worth while it will make you."

"Quite an old time knight," she said sorrowfully, but with an effort.

"I am going to get that idol," he went on. "I know just two things—there are millions in gold hidden in the 'Master Key' mine, and the plans are concealed in that image."

"When will you have them?" she cried, trying to fight against the man's evil power.

"Tomorrow," he returned.

"Even if Dorr and Ruth"—

He nodded gravely. She read the message in his eyes and shuddered. Wilkerson laughed. He had won. He had conquered not only the woman in that moment, but himself.

He was ready to do murder deliberately, without a qualm. There had been born in him another physical thirst—the blood lust.

He left immediately without uncovering his plans. He knew that the final victory would not be won until he could fill Jean Darnell's soft and avaricious palms with glittering gold, heaps of gold, gold that ran over, that spilled in luxuriant streams over her clutching fingers; gold that rang under her feet, that mounted like an enveloping flood about her till her flesh was bathed in it.

That night he paced the floor of his room, dreaming of gold and of blood.

So the next morning when John Dorr fared forth on his quest for the rug peddler Harry Wilkerson was not far behind him, watching his every move, studying him, trying to read what was in his mind. And all with the great question before him:

Had John Dorr the idol?

While these two were seeking for the strange image of an unknown god there was a third who had found in it the goal of his life's toil.

When God conceals himself from us in time of stress and agony, when he has closed His brazen heavens and our prayers die in the empty air it is but man to build for ourselves a tangible God, one whom we can see and feel, into whose face we can look and before whose feet we can lay our offerings and our petitions.

In a far city in India men had died of famine. The earth had turned to iron under their plows and the heavens to brass above them.

They had implored a hundred gods for help and made offerings at a thousand shrines. There had been no response. The smoke of the burning ghats by the side of the shrunken river told the sorry tale of prayer unanswered.

And in their last misery men turned, as men will, to one who dreamed. Reality was death. Dreams held out the promise of life.

And this dreamer, as do all who follow a vision, made his dream into a god.

People listened to his tale of a deity who was merciful to listen and powerful to save. They fed on the dreamer's words and called him a prophet.

Yet still the earth refused food, and the river shrank within its bed. Then they went to the prophet and called on him to save them and to call his god to their aid.

Like many prophets, he found himself forced to materialize his dream in order that the common folk might see and believe, for he had taught them that unless they believed there was no salvation.

"How can we believe in a god whom we cannot see?" they cried.

"I believe, though I do not see nor feel," he told them. But they were not satisfied and menaced him with death.

So he took metals and fire and made an image of his god and made a shrine for it and set the image in the shrine, where all might see and worship.

And the people prayed to this new god and laid offerings at his feet and looked into his eyes and called upon him to save them, as his prophet had said he was able.

Thus, with the folk believing on the god of his vision, the prophet prayed also to the spirit of the deity, and the rains came from the hills, and the river rose, and the earth grew green.

When they had been saved and their stomachs were full the people went away and left the prophet alone with his god and his deserted shrine.

Yet always in time of trouble and stress they remembered the god who had saved them and returned to his worship, so that in season other prophets of him arose and erected a temple and taught the people to bring offerings at all times.

Thus the image became the image of the tutelary deity of the city and its river, with other images to do him homage and obey his commands.

Centuries passed, and the god still maintained his place. His priesthood prospered; his temple was never empty.

And one day a drunken sailor wandered into the temple to stare at the heathen wonders, and when he slipped away the niche of the god was vacant.

"He has gone on a journey," said the terrified priests and concealed the theft. But the high priest sent several of his chosen acolytes throughout the world to seek for and recover the image.

"How shall we find him?" they asked.

"By a path of death and destruction," was the answer.

So they set out and found the sailor who had stolen it dead in a lane with a knife between his shoulders. And his murderer they discovered in a Chinese seaport gaping horridly at the sky, with a rope twisted tightly about his neck.

So the image passed from hand to hand, always bringing with it death, until some sailor hid it in his chest, and when he had been washed overside in a storm and his effects were distributed a captain bought the idol for a curio.

It was in his chest that Thomas Gallon had found it when seeking a safe place to hide his precious papers in time of mutiny and fire.

Now, at last, it had fallen into the hands of one of the seekers, and he took it to his little tenement room and prayed to it and swore that he would return it to its proper place in the temple.

There was no response from the image, but when the Indian fell asleep on his rug that night in the alien American city he dreamed that his god appeared to him and spoke of death and destruction yet to follow, commanding him to start instantly for the east.

The next day, while Dorr was seeking for a Hindu selling rugs and Wilkerson was shadowing him the new possessor of the idol was hastening to San Francisco to take steamer for India and the city by the river.

The image was concealed with all reverence in his bundle of rugs, and he moved cautiously, because of the dream.

Strange destiny that centered old Tom Gallon's plans for his daughter's happiness, Dorr's dreams of love, Jean Darnell's lust for wealth and Harry Wilkerson's passion for a woman without a heart in the possession of a grotesque image made by a dreamer in faroff India centuries before when a city died and a river waned within its bed.

Repartee.

Repartee is the promiscuous ricochetting of verbal fireworks. It is a rocket which has been touched off by an ingenious remark, and this rocket is very apt to touch off another, which in turn may touch off still another, and so on until all bolts have been shot.

The very best examples of repartee are the thoughts which come to us a few hours or perhaps a few days after we have listened to remarks which seemed to plead like angels, trumpet tongued, for us to rise to the occasion. —Judge.

Flowers and The Graves

Mystery of a Great Struggle of Life and Death in War Time.

Mr. William G. Shepherd, a special correspondent with the British Army, in the course of a despatch from the Army in Northern France, states: Ploegsteert Wood (the "Tommies" call it Plug Street, is in Belgium. Some day it will be a great historical place like the field of Waterloo. Just now its trees are scarred by bullets and shells. German bullets whistle now and then through the branches and clip them off with a lightning snip; from time to time the ambulance men run to some corner of the forest to pick up a British soldier who has been hit by a stray German missle, and taking it altogether now is not the time to see Ploegsteert Wood.

Great Forest Dotted With Graves.

In October the Germans, sweeping down towards Calais, tried to take the wood. Sir John French gave one of his ironclad orders that it must be held. The fighting for Ploegsteert Wood went on for days. The Germans got into it—and died. The Britishers fought them out of it—and died. And when winter fell the great forest was dotted with graves, and its trees were battered with bullets and shells, but the British trenches circle its outer edge and the German trenches were dug 400 feet from the forest's limit.

A Corduroy Footpath.

The forest is two miles long and a mile wide. We came to its border after crossing ploughed fields where German shells fall daily. We found a sidewalk two feet wide made of sticks fastened together with wire, a corduroy footpath.

"It was unspeakable here in the winter. The men floundered in mud to their waists until we built these footways," explained the English major who was acting as my guide. The footway led straight into the heart of the forest. "It's rather ticklish living in here," added the major.

"Here Lie Two Gallant German Officers."

There's one spot in Ploegsteert Wood that German shells ought never to touch. It's a grave with a carefully made woden cross on it, and the lettering says:

"Here lie two gallant German officers."

"That's rather unexpected," said a civilian who was with us.

"But they were brave," said the major. "The Germans aren't always so bad. Five officers from my regiment were missing one time, and we never expected to find their bodies. But when we drove the Germans back we found a grave on which was marked: "Here lie five brave English officers." We identified the mail and their bodies were taken back to England."

We followed another sidewalk and came to a huge mound covered with yellow flowers which had been planted by the English soldiers. On a neatly made cross at the head of the mound a British soldier had patiently printed the words: "Here lie seventeen German soldiers."

There wasn't an English grave in Ploegsteert Wood that was better tended or more heavily bedowered than these mounds of fallen Germans. Everywhere in Ploegsteert Wood were signs of high spirits. Every soldier we met had a smile on his face or a happy remark. They led us to odd signs or to particularly pretty gardens. I want to come back to Ploegsteert Wood again some day when the big shells aren't whipping over it and the German bullets aren't singing death-songs through the trees and think out, in quiet, all this strange mystery of war that makes you kill a man and then makes you put flowers on his grave and keeps you smiling and happy through it all.

THE TRAVELER'S VEIL.

Many Styles Shown For the Vacationist Who Likes to Be Neat.

Veils are well nigh indispensable to the traveler, and the wise woman has a fresh veil in her dressing bag to supplement the one she is wearing. The new fine veilings might have been specially designed for the traveler, so admirably do they suit her purpose. They keep her neat, preserve the complexion and hair from dust and grime yet do not unduly obstruct the sight.

These fine veilings are sometimes woven with a single tiny lace motif at one side, and very pretty this looks when the veil is adroitly arranged over the face.

Very attractive veils for motoring of chiffon, with squares or circles of shadow lace set in to cover the face, are sold in the shops at varying prices. These are infinitely more comfortable than the all chiffon veil, which clings uncomfortably to the face in warm weather, and they are infinitely more useful than an all lace veil for country drives, when the lace veil is hardly adequate in case of wind or dust.

What Thin Folks Should Do To Gain Weight

Physician's Advice for Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat-producing elements of unprecedented merit have been combined in this scarlet preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A fortnight's systematic use of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that this purple meal are provided. All leading druggists supply

Nervous Prostration and Heart Troubles

Nervous Prostration, or Neurasthenia, is one of the worst forms of nerve trouble and brings about a general weakness of the whole nervous system

The symptoms presenting themselves are headache, a feeling of depression disturbed and restless, unfreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams, fright when in crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, fright of travelling, muscular weakness, sense of fatigue upon effort, etc.

All are curable if taken in time.

Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills are just what you require at this time. They strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mrs. John Hewson, Caledonia, Ont. writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know the great benefit your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. I suffered for four years with heart trouble and nervous prostration. I was so bad I could not go up stairs without sitting down at the top before I could go to my room. I could not sleep nor could I lie on my left side, for it would seem as if my heart would stop. I thought my time had come. I was doctoring with the doctor, but didn't get any benefit. I took eight boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and am enjoying good health."

A Decalogue of Conduct.

Always be master of yourself. Never betray any irritation or disappointment or any other weakness. Never slop over, never give yourself away, never make yourself ridiculous—what American would not admit that these are foremost among the rules by which he would like to regulate his conduct? It can be hardly denied that this habitual self mastery, this habitual control over one's emotions, is one of the chief reasons why so much of American life is so uninteresting and monotonous. It reduces the number of opportunities for intellectual friction; it suppresses the manifestation of strong individuality; often it impoverishes the inner life itself. But, on the other hand, it has given to the American that sureness of motive, that healthiness of appetite, that boyish frolicsomeness, that purity of sex instincts, the quickness and litheness of manners, which distinguish him from most Europeans. It has given to him all those qualities which insure success and make their possessor a welcome member of any kind of society.—Atlantic.

Two Bits of Wood.

Importance cannot be reduced to a matter of size. The success of a piece of work may depend on a tiny detail. Such is the case in regard to that marvel of construction, the violin. Rev. H. R. Haweis in his "My Musical Life" tells of the care and labor expended on two little pieces of wood which go to make up the perfect whole. The sound bar is a strip of pine wood running obliquely under the left foot of the bridge. A slight mistake in its position, looseness or inequality or roughness of finish will produce that hollow, harsh on edge growl called "wolf." It takes great cunning and a life of practical study to know how long and how thick the sound bar must be and exactly where to place it to work instrument. The sound post is a little pine prop, like a short bit of cedar pencil. It is the soul of the violin, and through it pour all vibrations. Days and weeks are spent in adjusting the tiny sound post. Its position exhausts the patience of the master and makes the joy or the misery of the player.

Enormous Rainfall in Hawaii.

The rainfall on the island of Hawaii varies greatly, ranging from the enormous downpour of 353 inches a year in the upper Waipio valley to twenty inches on some of the slopes of Hualalai. The only surface streams on the island are found along the northeast coast between Hilo and Kohala. Waipio river, according to the United States geological survey, is the largest stream on the island and has been partly developed for irrigation. At Kapoho, on the east point of the island, warm water flows from seams in the rocks. These warm springs flow into a pool about 100 feet long, 25 feet wide and 20 feet deep. The pool is entirely surrounded by rocks, and its color varies in shade from a beautiful blue to violet. Waiapela, or Green lake, is a body of fresh water in the pit of an old crater near Kapoho. This lake covers an area of about five acres and is fed by springs below the surface. A pumping plant takes water from this lake for domestic use and for irrigation.

Almost a Death Struggle.

A large crowd had gradually formed around the two fashionably dressed and oblivious young girls, and at one time it seemed necessary to separate them.

"What can it mean?" said the stranger who had just come up.

"It took me," said the man addressed, "some time to learn; but, as I understand it now, one girl has been six months in Europe, and while she was gone the other one has learned to play golf, and they are trying to tell each other about it."—Life.

THE DAWN OF YOUNG WOMANHOOD

Girls upon the threshold of womanhood often drift into a decline in spite of all care and attention. Even strong and lively girls become weak, depressed, irritable and listless. It is the dawn of womanhood—a crisis in the life of every girl—and prompt measures should be taken to keep the blood pure and rich with the red tint of health. If the body is not in a healthy condition at this critical stage grave disorders may result and future life become a burden. Deadly consumption often follows this crisis in the lives of young women. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved thousands of young girls from what might have been life-long invalidism or early death. They are a blood-builder of unequalled merit, strengthening weak nerves and producing a liberal supply of rich, red blood, which every girl needs to sustain her strength.

Over and over again Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved their value to women and girls whose health was failing. Miss Jennie Gereau, St. Jerome, Que., says: "At the age of eighteen my health was completely shattered; I was suffering from anaemia, with all of its attendant evils. The trouble forced me to leave school. I suffered from headaches, was tired and breathless at the least exertion, I had no appetite and my face and lips were literally bloodless. A good friend advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and thanks to this great medicine I am again enjoying good health with a good appetite, good colour, and a spirit of energy."

Every anaemic girl can be made well and strong through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

FOR LACE OR FLOUNCING.

By Anabel Worthington.

As summer approaches one's thoughts as well as the shop windows turn to flouncings and bordered fabrics. And this is a season for both. Special designs are always needed, as a straight edge is essential. The straight edge in the waist here, illustrated is at the side, overlapping the vest piece, where it must be admitted the flouncing edge or border is going to be displayed to best advantage. The back is plain; though, if one liked, the flouncing could be carried down each side, to correspond with the front. In the small views a plain fabric is shown, the collar, vest and so on being finished with hemstitching. This is another excellent way to use this design.

There are two collars, one a stock and the other rolling at the back and open in front. For medium size 2¼ yards of 36 inch material would be required. The pattern, No. 7,103, comes in sizes from 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

HEAVY RAINS IMPEDE INFANTRY OPERATIONS

THE RUSSIAN ARTILLERY SHATTERED ENEMY'S POSITION

ENEMY'S ATTEMPTS TO CROSS THE DNEISTER ALL DEFEATED

Remnants of General Von Linsinen's Forces Have Been Thrown Back Across the River With Heavy Losses---Russian Artillery Destroy Pontoon After Pontoon---Germans Attacking in the North.

COMPARATIVE QUIET IN THE WEST

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, June 26.—The German attacks north of Warsaw are increasing in violence. The War Office admitted to-day that under a terrific bombardment by German howitzers, the Russians were forced to evacuate a fortification wrecked by the enemy's fire. In South-East Galicia the slavs continue to beat back all enemy attempts to cross the Dneister. Remnants of General Von Linsinen's forces defeated at Kosary have been thrown back across the river with heavy losses. In the Martynow Styr region 715 prisoners have been taken in addition to those previously reported.

Austrian troops on Thursday night launched a new attempt to cross the river south of Bukaczovite. The Russian artillery shattered one enemy position after another. At noon yesterday, when the last dispatches were filed to the War Office, the Czar's forces were holding their own.

Only minor clashes have occurred in the last 24 hours between the Russians who withdrew from Lemberg and the armies of Gen. Mackensen.

PARIS, June 26. — The official statement says a heavy downpour of rain from the sea to the Swiss frontier has impeded infantry operations in the past twelve hours. "A lively canonade in the region of Souchez is continuing," said this afternoon's communique. "Elsewhere the night was comparatively calm because of the heavy rainfall."

Will Return The Teacher's Diploma

Warden Kindred and Reeve Shaw of Harvey met School Inspector Broderick in the County Buildings this morning regarding the inspector's suspension of Miss Graham's teaching certificate.

Mr. Broderick said he had acted according to law, but it was pointed out that the trustees of that school in Harvey desired that the young lady retain her Normal Entrance certificate. As a result of the conference, Mr. Broderick said he would ask the Department to return the certificate.

Miss Graham is a Simcoe County girl.

These papers, magazines, etc., will be shipped to the pulp mill and the money obtained from the sale will be used for supplies for military hospitals. The citizens are again appealed to, to save all papers, books, etc., until the 5th and 6th of July, and are asked to please tie them securely in bundles, from eighteen inches to two feet high, so that they can be easily handled and tightly packed in the car. It will help the collectors if those who can do so will deliver their papers, books, magazines, etc., to the car which will be on a G. T. R. siding on above-mentioned dates, July 5th and 6th.

Peterboro Health Association, Which Has Done Magnificent Work Since Its Organization Appeals to the Public for $3000.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE

The following circular letter is being sent out by the Peterborough Health Association. It should be read carefully by every citizen:

Peterborough, June 15th, 1915.

Dear Sir:

Four years ago the Peterborough Health Association was formed with a Charter from the Provincial Government for the purpose of caring for the tuberculous poor in the first place, and subsequently extending nursing assistance to the needy in general. The intention of the Founders of the Association was to make as little appeal as possible to the public excepting through the Annual Membership Fee of $1.00.

In June, 1912, the Summer Fair was given from which $3,800.00 was secured. With this amount of money we were able to begin an active campaign by engaging our first District Nurse. In 1913 the work had grown to such proportions that we were compelled to put the second Nurse in the field. Since then we have maintained the two. Another very important part of our work is that of supplying such comforts in the way of eggs, milk, clothing and medicine to the sick as they are unable to provide for themselves. The expense of maintaining this organization is a little over $2,000 a year, made up of $1,500 to our Nurses and $600 for food and comforts. In July of this year our funds will be exhausted, and our intention had been to offer the public another entertainment such as we did in 1912, with the hope of raising funds sufficient to carry the work along for another three years. We believe that the conditions of our land are such to-day that our people would not care to enter into the splendid holiday spirit which was such a help in the success of our Summer Fair in 1912. We are consequently forced, much against our former desires, to make a personal appeal to our citizens to supply us with sufficient funds to ensure the carrying on of our work until the autumn of 1916. This is estimated at $2,000. If funds are not forthcoming it means an abandonment of all the work we have organized in the past. The Door of Hope that has been opened to some of our unfortunate citizens will have to be closed and they left to shift for themselves in the arduous work of regaining their lost health. We do not believe that our citizens desire this, consequently we make this appeal to their generosity to help us over a difficult spot in our work.

We would be glad if you would make a contribution to this fund, but if you feel that your circumstances will not permit you making a donation would you be good enough to become a Member of our Association by sending us the Annual Subscription of $1.00. If you do not wish to become a member, will you kindly return the enclosed membership ticket.

NEWS OF OTHER BOYS

Another Peterborough boy to make the supreme sacrifice is Corp William King, whose death from wounds is officially reported. Corp. King's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John King, who reside at 380 London Street, received an official message this morning to the effect that he died in No. 1 General Hospital, Etretat, France, on 24th June, or two days after he had been wounded for the second time. He received his first wounds on the second day of the battle of Langemarck, and had been out of the hospital three weeks when he was wounded the second time on 22nd June.

The late Cor. King was a member of the 24th Field Battery detachment of the 1st Artillery Brigade, having been transferred from the 3rd Brigade. He enlisted at the outbreak of hostilities. In the official message received this morning he is referred to as Corp. King, which suggests a recent promotion. Prior to that he was a gunner.

The late Corp. King was twenty years of age, and was born in Peterborough. Besides his parents, he leaves two sisters, Margaret and Agnes, and four brothers, Orville, Arthur, Jack and Stafford. All reside at home. Prior to enlisting, Corp. King was employed with the Bell Telephone Co.

MOST EPOCH MAKING WEEK OF THE WAR

Events of the Past Few Days Have Revealed in a Flashlight the Growing Seriousness of the View of Conflict Says T. P. O'Connor.

THE RUSSIAN TACTICS

(Copyright, 1915, Central News.)

By T. P. O'CONNOR.

LONDON, June 26.—This week has been the most epoch making since the war began. Its events have revealed in a flashlight that growing seriousness of the view of the war which I have already noted among the people. As Lloyd-George said the other day, "The epoch of easy optimism has now passed, and every one in Britain recognises that the struggle is going to be a long and fierce one."

In one respect the people have come up to the highest expectations as regards the resources of the country. Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald McKenna's gigantic budget having been received with great popular favour, demonstrating that the "silver bullet" remains Great Britain's most potent weapon.

From the military fronts the news is strangely in contradiction, for the French report unbroken success, while the Russian retreat continues steadily. The Russian reverses are explicable by her deplorable and admitted want of ammunition.

Extraordinarily Bravery.

Even her defeats, however, bring out the extraordinary bravery of Russia's soldiers. It is held, too, that whether Russia occupies or abandons this or that town does not touch the core of that part of the campaign. One of the Russian generals has summed up the situation as dependent upon one point only; that Russia should kill so many as to exhaust her enemy's armies and prevent the release of large bodies of men for the Italian or French frontiers.

So long as the Russian generals can retire in good order and draw on the Germans, so long as they can inflict a tremendous slaughter and force Germany and Austria to keep all their eastern forces occupied, that long the Russian generals will think they are doing their part in the campaign for the moment.

It does not seem possible that Germany will be able to withdraw any large body of troops, and for that consolation the Allies are thankful. In the meantime, this country has grasped the fact that ammunition is the decisive factor, and that it must be speeded — must be obtained from all possible resources.

Lloyd-George's Plans.

Lloyd-George's plans for organising industry, and even the hint that compulsion will be used as a last resort, have been received favourably in all quarters, except by some Labour extremists, who are rather prejudiced by their splendid and uncured hostility against the war.

The United States and Canada ought to welcome this new policy. D. A. Thomas, the biggest coal owner in Wales—a multi-millionaire—well acquainted by frequent visits and many big transactions on the other side of the Atlantic, is the best man for the job. He was estranged from Lloyd-George for years by political differences and the two were only reconciled a year ago. Lloyd-George, in his hour of difficulty, sought assistance from his wealthy countryman, and it is characteristic of the splendid spirit of all classes that, despite his unpleasant experiences in doing this work, he will not receive one penny of remuneration.

Bulgarians In Line Soon

ROME, June 26.—The Eucharest correspondent of the messagero wired to-day that the Turkish Garrison at Adrianople has been withdrawn, probably in anticipation of a Bulgarian attack, and that the Turkish forces are retiring to new lines north west of Constantinople. The report is unconfirmed from any other sources. All Bulgarians in Italy were to-day ordered to hold themselves in readiness to join the colours at a moment's notice.

SHOPLIFTERS AT WORK IN STORES OF PETERBORO'

Police Have Made a Number of Arrests, Including One Woman Who Gave Her Name as Mrs. Beverley Hunt.

A MALE COMPANION

Shop lifting on a systematic scale has evidently been going on around the different local stores during the past few days. A woman by the name of Mrs. Beverley Hunt, in company with a man giving his name as Lee Albrett, was arrested on George Street yesterday afternoon, and in the possession of the woman, it is said, was a purse reported as missing from the store of Robert Fair and Company.

Mrs. Hunt was charged in Police Court this morning with theft, and she was remanded until Friday, July 2nd. Albrett was charged with vagrancy, and also remanded until the same date.

Other Stores Touched.

The police have received reports from different stores in the city of articles missing, and they have been busy looking for the culprits. Two other men were arrested yesterday, giving their names as Harry Baggs and Claude Pierson, and they were charged this morning with vagrancy. With the other two they were remanded until next Friday while some inquiries are made regarding their records.

The prisoners are evidently following the show which has been in progress at the Exhibition Grounds during the past week. There will undoubtedly be more arrests during the next couple of days, as it is thought the ringleaders are not yet apprehended.

Prisoner Broke Down.

Mrs. Beverley Hunt was a pitiful sight when she was called into the Police Court this morning. She was in charge of the Police Matron, who was doing all in her power to comfort her. The wail: "Please don't send me in," was heard a number of times, but the prisoner was able to say quite distinctly that she was prepared to be tried by the Magistrate. She is a young woman, rather gaudily attired, possibly in keeping with the life she has evidently been following.

Some friends of the prisoner made their way around to the Police Station after Court was adjourned and informed the officer in charge that they were going to see Mrs. Beverley Hunt. This they were not allowed to do, however, and were instructed that they could go to the jail when she was taken there, and state a request to that effect. The visitors, a man and woman, had to be ordered out of the station before they would leave.

One of the male prisoners, when he was being measured and having the impressions of his fingers taken, admitted having spent a short time in Mimico. During the next week the police expect to unearth some information respecting some of the prisoners which will not be to the credit of the latter.

HELP FOR HEALTH ASSOCIATION.

In our complex community life there is almost no limit to the demands upon our Christian altruism. We are responding day after day to the demand for providing means to help heal the victims of the war—the sick or wounded. We do well to do this—it is a duty that can't be set aside. But there is an enemy at home, more dangerous to life, if more unobtrusive and insidious, that is creating in the community, more silent and terrible, and, unrelieved, more hopeless, suffering than the armies of Germany and Austria. Like a good general this home enemy selects the weakest spots—the bodies weakened by want, the homes where lack of means forbids sanitary surroundings.

We have amongst us many victims to tuberculosis and other forms of disease, quite incapable of putting up any effective defence, unable to provide or pay for the treatment that will relieve present suffering, and give hope of cure. The suffering involved, the danger to the community, make assistance on the part of the public a measure of self-defence, as well as the discharge of a Christian duty.

The Peterborough Health Association, legally organized, exists for providing treatment through nursing and in other ways, for the need of sufferers from tuberculosis and other diseases. The association provides two nurses, and these with the expense of providing food of a kind the cases demand, involve an expenditure of $2,000 a year. Certainly two nurses at $1,500 to give their whole time to the work is not extravagant.

To continue the splendid work the association is doing, funds are needed; and for particulars the circular letter now being sent out by the association, published in this issue, should be consulted.

That the money donated will be wisely used, and the beneficent manner in which it is used, may be gathered from a partial reference to the extent and character of the work done. From June, 1913, to April, 1915, the Association nurses made 6,286 domiciliary visits to 406 patients, of whom more than two-thirds were tuberculous. In the same period 3,000 dozen eggs and 4,000 quarts of milk have been dispensed, besides medicines, bedding, clothing, tents, etc., etc. In the same period the nurses received $229 —voluntarily paid by patients who could pay, a very small proportion of the $2,000 expended in Good Samaritan work by the association. In addition last summer the association took care of 35 delicate children in a summer camp at Jackson Park.

Who does not feel the force of the appeal the Association is making to carry on a work like this amongst us?

Read the open letter of the Executive Committee in another column; take counsel with your conscience and your heart. If every citizen honestly does this, the Association will not lack funds for its noble work.

IN DOING OUR BIT, ARE WE DOING OUR BEST?

In the matter of supplying the prime necessity of the hour—ammunition—is Canada doing her best? By no means. Our public men are not by public appeals impressing the situation and need upon the popular mind and conscience; nor are the authorities providing the means, or taking the steps necessary to permit our manufacturing concerns to turn out as many shells as with proper aid to equipment they could do.

Lloyd George in Britain is setting the heather ablaze by his daily appeals; ergo the ammunition spirit in Britain is at fever heat, and production at full tide. Here we have two cabinet ministers, neglecting this duty, and instead, making making partizan political speeches. Hon. W. T. White, and Hon. Mr. Meighen have been making public speeches lately. They have said a good deal to set our united people fighting — ranging them in hostile camps, instead of inciting every mother's son of a Canadian to do his best to supply ammunition. We, who don't go to war, should provide ample ammunition for those who do go.

We have heard of a typical case which shows that we are criminally neglecting to utilize the full possible capacity of our factories for shell making. In this case an Ontario factory, well known to many in Peterborough, wished to make more shells, but felt it could not afford the expense of the special mechanical equipment necessary. It was promised assistance by the local bank with which it dealt. The local manager, who was enthusiastic over the idea, submitted the proposal to the head office, which absolutely refused to advance a cent for the purpose. It is said the government also refused to exert its influence to promote the advance of funds. As a consequence the factory mentioned, with its inadequate facilities, is only turning out 200 shells, where it could, if equipped to its full capacity, turn out 2,000 shells.

Have the banks whose fortunes are directly involved in the issue of this war no responsibility in this matter? They exist and make big dividends by the help of the people of Canada. The government has a very direct responsibility. What is to prevent a government guaranteeing a few thousands advance in a few cases, especially if such a guarantee would result in a ten-fold greater production of shells. The government can guarantee railway bonds by the million, but at the critical moment, when the fate of Canada and the Empire hangs in the balance, it does not see its way clear to helping factories in a way that would help turn the scales on the right side. Ammunition is the crying need of the troops in the battle line. From lack of it precious lives are imperilled and sacrificed, progress is delayed, and the stupendous expense is prolonged, in a way it would not be prolonged, if a little expense were incurred to help the output of ammunition, or even if the government would exert its influence and lend its guarantee.

EXAMINATIONS.

There has been a good deal of uncomplimentary comment upon the character of the arithmetic paper at the recent Midsummer Examinations. Without entering into detail of the characteristics of the paper that made it objectionable, it is enough to say that competent judges have pronounced it unfair and unpractical, something of an arithmetical puzzle instead of being composed of questions that would be a fair test of the candidates, a sort of arithmetical ambuscade. A paper that is tricky, and in this and other regards, does not provide a fair test of the candidate's knowledge, is not a desirable thing. Nor in fact is it alone in its class; for it is perhaps problematical whether any examination paper among the multitudes that are set for pupils or students, provide a fair test of knowledge. The element of luck may easily be a determining factor in a student's success at an examination. If the questions happen to come within the range of a candidate's greater knowledge of some facts or features of a subject, the questions are well answered, and a high standing achieved. But if a set of questions happens to largely deal with parts of the subject under examination, with which the student may not be familiar, though the student, who for this reason fails, may easily have a far better general and more useful knowledge of the subject than the candidate, who passed with flying colours simply because luck favoured him. In another, among many other ways, examinations are not always a fair and adequate test of useful knowledge of a subject, or range of subjects at examinations.

The object of education is to develop the mind, and in the process store it with useful knowledge, so effectively that it will be a life possession, a permanent asset of equipment, for the duties of life. One of the evils of the examinations system is the encouragement to "cramming" involved. A brilliant boy or girl may have the faculty of learning easily. Such a student can in a short time cram for an examination, in a way to pass creditably—on paper. But there is no thorough mastery of the subject or subjects, only a superficial and temporary smattering that may fade away before the vacations are over. The advantages of examinations, especially in our public and high schools, consist in their meeting an emergency. The pupils must be pushed forward to make room for others coming behind, and this condition is so urgent, that it necessarily comes to be the teachers' chief ambition to have his pupils pass, and by his success in this, is his teaching efficiency gauged.

It comes to this that the examination evil seems to have become a necessary evil—an evil, since it necessarily ignores the benefit of thorough mastery of any subject, only demanding knowledge enough of it to pass. This seems to be inevitable, with the multiplicity of subjects with which the curriculum is overloaded. Enough subjects to require almost a life time for practical mastery, are crowded into the short space of "school age." The result is that few, if any, subjects are sufficiently mastered to be of use in the world of action that follows the period of school-training, without some special supplementary training in subjects which a particular vocation requires should be thoroughly learned.

The subject is one on which one may not dogmatize; but to the man who thinks the situation over thoroughly, the suggestion comes whether greater, if not exclusive attention should not be given to the three R's; that is the rudiments of a sound English education. Thorough equipment with these, to the exclusion of a smattering of minor subjects, would send forth the child into the world equipped to continue his education upon the lines which in his place in life shall be most useful. The house of knowledge has so many rooms, that a key to each, if its provision were possible, would be a burden. A master key that would open every room would be useful. If we could provide such a master way through the teachings of our schools, educationalists would rejoice, and the rising generation would be better prepared, for the actual duties of life.

CANADIAN PRISONERS WELL LOOKED AFTER

LONDON, June 26—Much indignation is expressed regarding the appeal made by the Evening News on behalf of Canadian prisoners in Germany who are alleged to be starving. Mrs. Rivers-Bulkeley, who is directing the department of the Canadian Red Cross charged with the distribution of food parcels to Germany, states that such an appeal is quite unnecessary, as her department is ready to take care of all cases. Col. Hodgetts has written to the News, pointing out that Canada is not negligent in this respect.

The fish, which is a large one of its kind, put up a hard battle, and was landed with difficulty by the youthful fisherman.

PETERBOROUGH - ONTARIO

Eleven Months of War and All's Well

Peterboro's Business is Steady and Secure Thanks to the Unsung Defensive Qualities of the Merchants—A 'Reminder to Every Citizen.

During the past eleven months Peterborough has freely contributed a share in the defence of the Empire in a crisis that is testing every link of the British chain. The spontaneous loyalty of the first response to the call to arms has been succeeded by a grave and determined patriotism that filled the ranks of the later drafts of volunteers. It would be but an idle observation in these lines to trace the gradual realization in the public mind of the complete significance of the issues at stake in the conflict which at times seems to be yet in an early stage. Suffice to say that the resolve runs deep and strong from one end of the Empire to the other that British principles must prevail.

It has been frequently asserted that every citizen has a definite duty to perform during this critical period. No doubt everyone has expressed a willingness to co-operate within the limit of his opportunities and has cheerfully accepted the most obvious of them. Women have knitted for the soldiers and sewed for refugees and their children. Agricultural reports indicate the promise of heavier production of foodstuffs. City dwellers have contributed to various funds and have not neglected the dependents at home. There has been a generous response to every need that has been indicated and emphasized.

And through it all there has been a wonderful maintenance of business equilibrium. When the war clouds broke the timid citizen looked with alarm to what the future would bring. Few, if any, communities in this country, at least, but had many persons among them who regarded with serious misgivings the approaching clouds. From all reports these apprehensions were universal. The Old Country's reassuring slogan "Business as Usual" had some good results, but only among the more stout-hearted.

Looking back now, it is clear that Peterborough's merchants steadied local affairs in a manner that has not been fully appreciated. They trimmed their sails not rashly and precipitately, but carefully and especially with commendable consideration for their crews. It cannot be said that in those first days they showed a selfishness for their own interests that might have been expected and even excused by the generally alleged idea that merchants thought only of themselves. While the ranks of artisans, mechanics and labourers numbered many who presaged hard times, the merchants quietly set about to stabilize business affairs under the new and trying conditions. The success of their efforts is amply evinced by the present healthy, if not flourishing trade in Peterborough's mercantile district.

Admitting these facts, it behooves all the citizens to give their assistance in maintaining the present steadiness. Even now you hear in the street expressions such as, "Oh well, we got through all right last winter, but wait until next." They are fortunately not general, but if this spirit is fostered and fed the existing security and faith in the community's ability to weather whatever conditions may be experienced is thereby materially diminished.

Under the circumstances there is every reason to congratulate ourselves upon the soundness of the business tone in this city.

An Encouraging Sign.

There are six or seven business changes pending, all of them to be carried out within the next month. They involve the opening of new stores in new locations, also of new stores in old locations. One is on Charlotte Street, another on Simcoe, and three on George Street, and there may be others. These are striking illustrations of business faith, security and steadiness. They call for our united support. It may not be possible to apportion trade among them, though that is the obvious way. Rather let there be an end to craven squawkings and fearsome mouthings of remote possibilties. There is no reason in such utterances which oft-repeated will almost become convictions.

Hence, when the average citizen asks himself wherein lie his duties of the hour, let him quietly resolve to frown upon the cowardly gossip that can only unsettle and unnerve the general mind. This is a real duty and test of brave citizens. It was not an easy matter for the merchants a year ago to hold their lines against an unseen and unexpected swoop. But they did not flinch. Their attitude has materially helped to calm the spirit of the community in the worst hours of uncertainty. For such service they receive no decorations, not even recognition. And yet their acts were for the public good.

If the cultivation of a spirit of confidence would be regarded not as a trivial affair, if each citizen would consider himself, not as an individual standing alone, but as one of the units of the community and bound up with and dependent upon all the others, then this spirit of confidence-building and co-operation, would receive the consideration it necessarily demands.

Don't Listen to Them.

Hence, as summer fades into fall and winter comes again, let us meet it bravely; not with alarm and trepidation, but with staunch determination, realizing that fears are only bogeys built in our imagination. When you hear a man or woman, too, expressing fears that have no immediate foundation it would be pardonable to remind them to "Be British," the common synonym for "Be Brave." And after all we need brave citizens to fight the silly fears which, even if they took form, could never approach the trials which the Old Country is facing, not to speak of the men at the front and in the fleet. This is your duty.

To Reduce Your Weight Easily and Quickly

If you are overstout the cause of your over-stoutness is lack of oxygen-carrying power in the blood and faulty assimilation of food. Too little is being made into the order tissue of muscle and too much into little globules of fat. Therefore you should correct the mal-assimilation and increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. To do this, go to any good druggist and get oil of orthine, only sold in original packages and in capsule form, and take one capsule after each meal and one at bedtime till your weight is reduced to what it should be in all parts of the body. The effect of oil of orthine in capsule form is remarkable as a weight reducer and it is perfectly safe.—E. J. T.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address E. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1205, Montreal, Can.

Notice is hereby given that a Quarterly Dividend for the three (3) months ending June 30th, 1915, at the rate of ten per cent. (10%) per annum has been declared upon the Capital Stock of this Institution, and the same will be payable at the offices of the Company in this City, on and after July 2nd, 1915.

The transfer books will be closed from the 21st to 30th June, 1915, both days inclusive.

Prohibition Favors Tea Drinking.

Well-informed members of the tea trade say that the figures for the year show an astonishingly large increase of tea drinking throughout the world. Prohibition is largely to account for this, and, when a great country like Russia prohibits the sale of strong drink and the people turn to tea, it means an immense drain on the resource of the gardens whence comes the world's supply. In the last few months the cost of tea has risen 12 or 14 cents a pound.

EXERCISE WAGON AT THE FIRE HALL

Was Manufactured One Year Ago and is About to Fall to Pieces

Last night the Fire, Water and Light Committee purchased a light exercise waggon at a cost of $160. The waggon is used for exercising the horses at the Fire Hall. It is in actual use about four hours each day, six days a week, and contains one thousand feet of standard fire hose.

At last night's Committee meeting, Fire Chief Howard reported that the waggon was about to fall to pieces, and would require at least a new set of wheels. The Aldermen could hardly credit the statement.

Ald. Weir, who is engaged in the coal business, said that trucks of three tons capacity could be purchased for $115 each, while an ordinary farm waggon can be purchased for $75 or $80. The latter will give fifteen or twenty years' service under very severe conditions. The Committee failed to realise how an exercise waggon used on the asphalt pavement for four hours a day could become useless in one year unless some very inferior workmanship entered into its construction. A new set of wheels will cost $48.

The New System.

The new system as proposed by the Commission would be ready inside of two years and probably less. This includes the erection of a sub-station, which will be completed some time next fall.

Mr. Fisk stated that the shade trees should be pruned higher up. Many of the lights at this season of the year are almost obscured by the foliage. The Commission propose to undertake a pruning experiment on McDonnel Street at an early date.

Ald. Duffus, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, suggested the possibility of placing a light on each verandah in the city.

This, to Mr. Matthews, appeared to be a unique scheme, but he was of the opinion that the Hydro-Electric Commission would object, and for other reasons such a scheme would be impracticable.

A light on each of the two thousand available poles in the city was suggested by Mr. Fisk.

On the motion of Ald. Stratton and Ald. Green, the matter was referred to the Commission, with instructions to report back to the Fire, Water and Light Committee some time next week.

Asks Pope to Reaffirm His Neutrality

ROME, June 26.—According to reports in diplomatic circles, Sir Henry Howard, the British envoy to the Vatican, has notified the Holy See that Great Britain will not follow the Pope's interview in the future for the exchange of prisoners or for other proposals connected with the war, unless formally assured that the Pope's attitude is not influenced by Austria.

Cardinal Gasquet, Abbot of the Benedictines, has been received in audience by Pope Benedict. The English cardinal protested against the interview with the Pope published in Paris La Liberte and urged a retraction. The envoys of the allies also urged the Pope to retract the interview.

It is considered likely that the Pope will issue an encyclical deploring the methods of war employed by the Germans.

COMMISSION WILL MAKE A REPORT

Sixty-seven Additional Street Lights Recommended For the City—Arc Lights Are Obsolete

To the Utilities Commission has been delegated the task of preparing a report on additional street lighting for the city based on the Fire, Water and Light Committee requirements, which include sixty-seven tungsten lamps and four arc lamps to be replaced. The estimated cost of the work is placed at $600.

A combined meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee and the Utilities Commission was held last evening for the purpose of considering the street lighting situation with a view of improving it.

Mr. Matthews, chairman of the Commission, said that the Commission was prepared to undertake any additional street lighting that might be recommended by the City Council at the usual rates which are fixed by the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario. The lighting system at the present time was in a state of transition, and as a member of the Commission he would not recommend any changes until the new sub-station was erected and other necessary improvements made.

Mr. H. O. Fisk, manager of the Utilities Commission, was of the opinion that the present arc light was more or less obsolete. He referred to a nitrogen-filled lamp which he saw in operation in Hamilton. It compared favourably with the magnetite arc light as used on George Street at the present time, and could be had in various sizes. He spoke of a lamp using, 500, 250, and 100 watts. The magnetite arc lights consume about 480 watts.

SEEMED TO GO DOWN AS ONE MAN WRITES CAPT. C. H. ACKERMAN

In a Letter to Brockville Officer Peterboro' Boy Tells of the Fate of Major Bennett's Company at St. Julien--The Death of Lieut. Brister.

An officer of the 41st Regiment, says the Brockville Recorder, has received the following interesting letter from Capt. C. H. Ackerman, of Peterborough, 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., who was a few days ago reported seriously wounded. Capt. Ackerman gives a stirring story of the part played by the 2nd Battalion in the fighting up to the time of writing, and mentions particularly the late Lieut. Brister, who, he says "played the game" successfully and created a wonderful impression on the officers and men of not only the battalion, but on the whole brigade.

"Bivouac, France, June 15, 1915.

My dear ———:

Received your letter last night along with several other enquiries from people in Canada for information of relatives and friends.

Curry, of your regiment is out here with us now, and in my company and I told him of your letter. He told me he had written home about poor Brister and no doubt you will likely have heard of his letter before you receive this.

The last I saw of Brister was on the night of April 22, during a short halt while on our way out towards Langemarck. I spoke to him for a second about the prospect of at last getting into really close touch with the Germans, and you may be sure we were all keen for the experience of feeling what a shock action was really like after having spent so much time training and living in dirty, wet muddy trenches. We felt that we had at least earned an opportunity to assist in the wiping off of some of the old scores against our friends the Germans.

When we eventually got into touch with the enemy it was just breaking day and as they were strongly entrenched we found ourselves in a very tight corner when Major Bennett's company received the order to take their trench which was about 200 yds. away, across a piece of ground upon which they had concentrated the fire of many machine guns. Our company, No. 4, under Major Bolster was detailed for their support and as I was on the left of our company I saw very plainly what happened to the company led by Major Bennett.

I shall never forget the sights I saw. The company had just formed into two lines, fixed bayonets, and started for the German trench when they poured out the most withering fire from machine guns and rifles; the company halted under the shower and seemed to go down as almost one man. One half of our company was only 25 or 30 yards on their left rear immediately behind a small hedge that grew along a ridge just large enough to provide head cover. We waited there for orders to go on with the assault but Major Bolster fortunately saw how utterly impossible it would be for us to advance and ordered us to dig ourselves in. We acted on his orders and remained there all day, losing a few men who were unable to dig themselves in quickly enough.

That night several of us went out in front to bring in some wounded who were still alive, but we were compelled to stop as the Germans kept firing at us. There were very few wounded left out there by evening as the Germans shot any person who dared move. I would like to feel that there was some possibility of some of No 1 company turning up as prisoners, but I know there is absolutely no hope.

On the afternoon of the 24th our battalion was ordered to retire from the salient we were holding and in doing so we had to leave our unburied dead and a few wounded in the hands of the enemy.

It was an experience never to be forgotten. We were called upon to stop the onslaught of the Germans who were pouring through a gap which they had broken in our fine (by using gas) and we stopped them. We lost heavily and were put to a tremendous nervous strain but we were physically fit and held on until sufficient troops were brought up to relieve us. I think the feeling of pleasure to think that we had been given such a responsible task to carry out, and had succeeded, more than counteracted my feeling of depression caused by the loss of so many of our chums.

This is a very poor account of the part played by the second battalion, but I have tried to explain to you, in a kind of way how poor Brister lost his life with so many of his friends in a successful effort in stemming the tide of a portion of the Kaiser's army in their mad rush for Calais.

There is no more striking case in British history of any one who strove harder to "play the game" than Buster did. He played the game successfully, and in doing so made a wonderful impression on the officers and men of not only our battalion, but on the whole brigade. He was a chap who enlisted, not for the mere pleasure of enlisting, nor for the flag-waving patriotic send-off given that afternoon in August when he left Brockville; he enlisted for the purpose of coming to France to do his "bit." He did his "bit" and I trust his example will be followed by many other fellows who will soon realise the magnitude of the demands for more men, and join up themselves to assist in the early and satisfactory termination of the war.

Remember me kindly to any Brockville people who may happen to remember me, and thanks very much for writing. I remain,

Yours truly,

C. H. ACKERMAN, Capt.

BUSY SESSION AT POLICE COURT

A Number of Vagrancy Charges—Fines Imposed For Having Horses Run at Large

Two local men whose horses ran at large, pleaded guilty to the charge. They let the animals out, as they were a little short of feed.

"Well, you know, the law," said His Worship.

One was fined $2, and costs, amounting to $5.35, and it cost the other $5.05.

"It is no harm to have your horse eat the grass down," said the magistrate, but you must tether it."

John Lowry, charged with being drunk in a public place yesterday, was fined $2. George McDonald pleaded guilty to the same charge. He asked for a chance to go to work. He repairs umbrellas. "You are fined $2, to be paid forthwith," said the Magistrate.

Leo Albrecht, also charged with vagrancy from Markham, said he was looking for work. His family lives at Markham.

"How long will it take you to get out of town?"

"Not very long."

"Well, you had better get out as fast as you can. If they do not want you in Markham, they can put you in jail there."

Claude Pierson, also charged with vagrancy, was remanded until 2nd July.

chambers of the Admiralty and War Office without getting any recognition, will be glad to know that Mr. Thomas, co-operating with J. P. Morgan & Co., will have plenipotentiary powers and will be ready to listen to anybody with a reasonable proposal.

The Government has also succeeded in enlisting the services of that incomparable organizer, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who has spent hours daily at the War Office, and who left three days ago for America, where he will have the chief voice in forming contracts in Canada, a job for which he is fitted by years as purchaser as well as chairman of his company.

A New Movement.

I drew the attention of several labour leaders to a new movement, news of which was cabled from the United States, of some Labour leaders allied with Bryan to demand an early peace. Everyone repudiated such a campaign as futile and mischievous, and above all as against the interests of labour throughout the world, including America.

Arthur Henderson, who is still the chairman of the Labour Party, as well as a member of the new Ministry, repeated his oft-expressed opinion that so long as a single German soldier occupies an inch of French or Belgian territory, he will not listen to a whisper of a peace plan. "Besides," added, Henderson, "the liberties and rights of working men in America, as well as in Britain, are involved in the success of the Allies over Prussian reaction, and the persistent and consistent oppression of labour in Germany. Unless Britain and her Allies come out on top, there will be an end to free labour and free democracy."

Labour Views.

Charles Roberts, another Labour member of the Ministry, writes from No. 12 Downing Street, one of the three houses occupied by Ministers in the great official centre of the British Empire: "The British Labour movement has for years striven to establish a world peace on an enduring basis. It has sought to cultivate friendly relations with all peoples, and particularly with those of central Europe. Because of the suspicion with which Briton and German have long regarded each other, it has influenced the British Government to make proposals to Germany for a diminution of armaments, and has been aggrieved to see these approaches treated with contumely.

"To the last, British labour encouraged the Government in its strenuous efforts to avert the war. Germany's refusal in July last to restrain Austria in her unparalleled demands upon the independant state of Serbia, although she was aware that the flames of a European conflagration were being thereby kindled, made British labour suspicious that Germany willed the war to begin.

"This became a certainty when Belgium was violated and devastated. Then Germany stood revealed as a menace to public liberty and moral sanction. Called upon to choose between peace and liberty, Labour evinced immediately its intention to fight for liberty. Since then hundreds of thousands have enlisted voluntarily. Now that the urgency of the need for ammunitions has been made clear, thousands more are sacrificing home and its amenities and are clamouring to be transferred to works where arms and ammunition are being manufactured in rapidly increasing quantities.

"All this exhibits the appreciation of the working class of the tremendous issues involved in the war, together with their inflexible determination to prosecute the fight until Germany acknowledges defeat.

"No class knows better than the working class indecisive result will be fatal to the progress of human betterment. A drawn war would assuredly mean another war in a few years. In the meantime, the enemy nation would pile up armaments and concentrate preparations for the next struggle; internal development would be stagnant; trade and commerce would be dislocated; and wealth and endeavour which might otherwise fertiltze homes and lives would be bestowed on means of destruction.

"British labour is conscious of the mightiness of its country's cause. It applauds its loyalty to its international obligations, its defence of small nattonalities, and its devotion to the right.

No Premature Peace.

"Holding these views, it recognises that premature peace and an uncertain ending can not be entertained, whatever the alternative may cost. Victory must abide with Britain and its gallant Allies, for that is the only guarantee of durable peace. That is the decree of Labour; a decree that shall be fulfilled."

William Brace, another Labour member of the Ministry, and Will Crooks, the greatest wit of the Labour Party, expressed similar views in response to my requests, voicing their confidence that the working men of Britain will meet any demands that may be made upon them.

Joseph Albert Pease, one of the old Ministay who was excluded from the new, has revealed what was already known in private with regard to the curious conditions under which the reconstruction of the Ministry was carried out. There is a good deal of mystery over the whole transaction even yet, and the exasperation which it created in many quarters has not yet passed. Nor is the special part played by different members of the late Ministry altogether defined. Some of them, accordingly, have created a good deal of suspicion and ill-will, and though things are mending, this feeling of exasperation threatened for a time the existence of the new Cabinet.

What Mr. Pease has revealed with regard to the break-up of the Ministry is that the only notice he received was a printed paper in a box which had already passed through the hands of several Ministers, and this printed paper was a blank and bold demand for his resignation. When this story—already current in private—was made public, there was a considerable addition to the existing surprise and resentment, and people thought the Cabinet had been treated cavalierly, if not scurvily. It was then also learned that the reconstruction of the Ministry had taken place without any consultation of the Cabinet as a whole and that it must accordingly have been the work of two or three members, and of them alone.

The Downfall of the Ministry.

Who, then, brought about the downfall of one Ministry and the creation of another? At first the idea was attributed to Mr. Churchill; then Lloyd-George was credited with the main share. As to Mr. Asquith, it was generally assumed that it was imposed upon him rather than desired or created by him. Mr. Asquith certainly made no concealment of the bitterness of his feeling in being compelled to part with his old colleagues and in being forced to ally himself with some men with whom he had had rather sharp and angry conflict in the past.

Why, then, it may well be asked, did Mr. Asquith consent to a reconstruction, and why did he carry it out in so curious a fashion. The answer is to be found in Mr. Asquith's temperament. He has at once the finest intellect and the loftiest character in British public life to-day. Everyone who has ever had any transaction with him joins in declaring that he is the straightest of men; that his word is his bond.

But Mr. Asquith is very shy, very sensitive, hates to give pain, and shrinks from the unpleasant rancour and sordid sights to which politicians have to time to try to become hardened. The explanation of the box with the printed notice instead of a consultation and oral communication is, I believe, that he shrank with horror from the prospect of having to address each of his colleagues individually and of making upon him the demand that he should give up his office.

The question which is now agitating the minds of those who are already speaking of future Ministries is whether this intense sensitiveness on the part of Mr. Asquith will be able to survive all the jars which must necessarily come in a new Ministry composed of such conflicting materials as the present. He has splendid qualities for the particular position, for he is what is called on the other side of the Atlantic, a splendid mixer. His equable temperament, his good nature and good humour, his power of getting to the kernel of a subject, and therefore of eliminating small differences, have enabled him many a time to compose the conflicts among his colleagues in a way no other man could equal. Doubtless every attempt will be made by his new Cabinet to retain his services, for his hold over the masses of the people, even among his old political opponents, is immense. There is something about him so typically British in its straightforwardness, in even his bluntness and his simplicity, that appeals to the popular imagination. Many people say of him that one of his faults is that he has not a sufficient realisation of his own power. But will he be able to keep together such discordant elements? Will he fact the music of perhaps bitter moments? Nobody can tell.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS.

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

WITH OTHER MUNICIPALITIES.

A deputation waited on the Grey County Council at Owen Sound and urged that a special tax of one mill on the dollar on the equalized assessment of the county be devoted to patriotic purposes. This would mean a contribution of $33,000.

Licence for Jitney.

The Hamilton Police Commissioners decided that jitneys should pay a license of $3 per seat per year; that they should be regarded as licensed omnibuses and nothing else, and that they should carry only as many as seats were provided for.

ONE THOUSAND MEN KILLED EACH HOUR

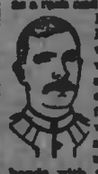
HARTFORD, Conn., June 26—Mr. George B. Thayer, a lawyer of this city, who has just returned from a walking tour in France, said to-day that men are being killed at the rate of one thousand an hour in the war. He describes his experiences as follows:

"The hotel in France where I was stopping was closed, the proprietor being called to the colours, and I was obliged to move on. I decided to cross into Switzerland. This did not prove very difficult for me, though I saw one man, who had fully give up his beautiful machine to soldiers stationed at the boundary and continued his journey on foot.

"A few days later I stood at a small railway station, which had been converted into a hospital, and saw the wounded being brought in. Here I got my first real idea of the awfulness of war. Young men in the first flush of manhood were literally shot to pieces, and others maimed for life. It was appalling. Men are being killed at the rate of one thousand an hour, and the dead, if piled in one heap, would make a pitiable human pyramid as tall as the Washington Monument and twice the height of our State Capitol."

ECZEMA ON ARMS ITCHED AND BURNED

Unsightly. Could Not Put Hand in Hot Water. Very Painful. Used Cuticura. Completely Healed.



Imperial, Sask.—"My eczema appeared as a rash and itched and burned very badly. It was certainly unsightly and I could not put my hand in hot water or work at all when it was at the worst. Both my arms were covered with the eczema and it was very painful. One day the chemist advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I immediately sent in, washing my arms and hands with the Cuticura Soap and then applying the Cuticura Ointment. In a month all signs of that awful disease had gone. I was completely cured." The CRESSMAN Company Limited

CANADIAN GENERAL OFFERED TO INSTAL SPECIAL MACHINERY

Would Have Spent Two or Three Million Dollars on Shell Manufacturing Plant if Big Order Was Given but War Office Declined the Offer Declares Mr. Frederic Nicholls.

TORONTO, June 25. — Canadian manufacturers of shells do not take kindly to the remarks credited to Lord Curzon in the British House of Lords reflecting unfavourably upon their efforts to help out the supply of shells.

"Did you notice the despatch in which Lord Curzon made the remark as to deliveries of Canadian shells?" Mr. Frederic Nicholls of the Canadian General Electric and the Allis-Chalmers companies was asked.

Curzon's Statement Unfair.

"Yes, I have noticed Lord Curzon's statement made in the House of Lords to the effect that deliveries of shells from Canada have been exceptionally bad, and with all due respect to Lord Curzon, I consider that this statement is about as unfair as it could be made, and am quite sure that his Lordship was not well informed as to the facts.

"It was some time after war had been declared before any orders for shells were placed in Canada. These were not placed direct with the manufacturers, but were given to an organisation appointed by the Shell Committee. The first order received from the War Department was for 200,000 shells only, which, divided up amongst a number of Canadian manufacturers, made the quantities allocated to each so ridiculously small that no serious investment in suitable machinery was warranted. For instance, in the case of the Canadian General Electric Company, which has many millions of dollars invested in manufacturing plant, the allotment was for 15,000 shells.

Only Lately Good Orders Came.

"It is only lately that orders for shells in reasonable quantities were offered to the Shell Committee by the British War Office, and at the late date at which these orders were offered it was exceedingly difficult to secure the special machines required for the reason that Great Britain had already placed enormous orders in the United States, and the United States manufacturers securing these orders had cornered all the available machinery in the market, and Canadians had to take second place in the matter of shipments of machinery.

"As a matter of fact I personally forwarded a communication, in October, 1914, to the War Office offering to invest two or three million dollars in a manufacturing plant for quick production, provided we received an order for one million shells, with the expectation that on receipt of this order we could immediately purchase the machinery, on which we had an option, and have been in a position to produce about 15,000 to 20,000 shells daily by April or May last, but I received an official letter from the War Office advising me that no further supplies of ammunition were required, and that I would not be warranted in proceeding to England to negotiate for a contract.

Made Offer Last October.

"In October last, when we made the offer to the British War Office to produce shells on a large scale, it was not with the idea of securing a large order for the sake of commercial profit, but solely with the object, after full discussion by our Board of Directors, of offering in this manner to be of service to the Empire.

"Under such circumstances I have no hesitation in saying that I am of the opinion that Lord Curzon could not have been fully informed when he made the statement that the deliveries of shells from Canada were exceptionally bad, for the reason that Canada had to take an entirely secondary place to the United States in the original placing of these orders, and although offers were made direct to the War Office to produce large quantities very promptly, no opportunity was given Canadians to devote their energies to producing munitions in such quantities that the British troops at the front might have been placed in a far more favourable position than they are to-day, if we are to believe the newspaper statements that many lives have been lost, and progress has been retarded solely from the want of munitions that could have been shipped from Canada in a continual stream, had any enthusiasm been shown in the matter of utilizing Canadian facilities.

Other Companies Agree.

"Apart from my own company other great corporations could and would have done likewise, had they recived any encouragement, but although it has been stated by the Shell Committee that some 200 firms are occupied in the manufacture of shells at the present time, no large concern like ourselves were given an opportunity, in the early stages, to install the necessary equipment for large production, and it is only within the last few weeks that we have received orders for further production, and even then in only moderate quantities. Perhaps in view of Lord Curzon's statement the following copy of my cable to the Right Hon. David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, may be interesting.

Mr. Nicholls' Cable.

Toronto, June 12th.

Right Hon. David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, London, England.

The Canadian General Electric Company communicated with the War Office on seventh October last, offering to invest necessary capital in special machinery for manufacturing shells should we receive a firm order for one million shells, but a letter from the War Office under date of thirteenth November declined to consider our proposal, and stated that as there was not likely to be any immediate demand it would probably not be desirable for me to undertake a journey to London at present. If the offer had been accepted we could have long before this been shipping from fifteen to twenty thousand shell daily, but all the orders we have received was one from the Canadian Shell Committee for fifteen thousand and another for twenty-five thousand all of which have been shipped, although we have recently received further orders, but at this late date production is much delayed until the delivery of special machinery. Many millions of dollars of orders have gone to the United States, but a company like ours, with ample capital and reserves, was not authorized to use its capital and energy in producing munitions at a time of such vital importance to the British Empire. At the time the War Office declined to consider our proposal we could easily have secured delivery of necessary special machinery, which it is now almost impossible to obtain. The Bank of Montreal can advise you of the standing of this company, which has assets of four million pounds sterling.

FREDERIC NICHOLLS.
President.

Says Inspection is Rigid.

Canadian Fairbanks, Limited, was one of the first companies to enter into the work of making shells. "We have heard no complaints from the chief inspector of arms and ammunition at Quebec," said a representative of that company. The John Inglis Company were also engaged in the work among the first.

"All the shells we make are passed up on by the Government inspector," said Mr. William Inglis, of that firm. "The chief inspector is an Englishman, and the inspection is very strict General Bertram said that the War Office had declared that the Canadian shells were the equal of any they ever saw at Woolwich Arsenal."

DIVISION COURT IN LAKEFIELD

A Number of Cases Disposed of by His Honour Judge Huycke

LAKEFIELD, June 25.—An interesting session of the Division Court was held in the Town Hall, when the following cases were heard by Judge Huycke:

McNutt vs. Harding—Manson McNutt sued Frank Harding upon a promissory note for $100 and interest, amount to $6.15. Defendant counterclaimed for $21.00 alleged paid and $26.40 for meals. Plaintiff admitted receiving $10 after suit entered. After hearing a number of witnesses, judgment was awarded plaintiff for $85.00, and plaintiff's counsel was awarded $5.00 counsel fee. O. A. Langley for plaintiff, C. D. Hall for defendant.

Blakeman vs. Whits — Judgment awarded plaintiff for costs, the defendant having paid the claim but disputing right to costs. O. A. Langley for plaintiff.

Davis vs. Graham—J. H. Davis sued A. E. Graham for $91.65 upon an account. The defendant had tendered $85.00 which was refused, and he paid $85.00 into Court and pleaded tender, disputing the account on various grounds and alleged a counter claim of $9.35. Several witnesses were called on both sides. The plaintiff admitted the counter claim to the extent of $2.50. The Judge disallowed plaintiff's claim for interest $12.19, and $5.00 charges in connection with repairs to cutter which had been hired by plaintiff's son and broken, and $5.00 on painting bus, and allowed the counter claim of $9.75, resulting in finding $65.75 due to plaintiff, being 75 cents more than defendant had paid into court. Judgment for plaintiff for that amount without witness fees owing to the smallness of amount over defendant's tender. B. D. Hall for plaintiff, O. A. Langley for defendant.

Lloyd vs. Harding—Suit for $10 for service of horse and counter claim of $18 for pasture. Adjourned until the September Court, both parties to file their books in court. O. A. Langley for plaintiff, B. D. Hall for defendant.

Strawberries At Two For a Quarter

Strawberries sold at two boxes for 25 cents on the market this morning. Butter ranged from 26 to 28 cents, and eggs were generally quoted at 21 cents. Chickens were from eighty cents a pair, up, and even a pair of the cheapest did not seem large enough for a one-man meal

On the whole the market was quiet and featureless. Gardeners say there is still a large supply of strawberries to come forward.

A Decrease of Ten Per Cent.

NEW WITNESSES IN BRIDE'S BATH MURDER TRIAL

Examiner Special:

LONDON, June 25—The Crown scored to-day in "Brides Bath" murder trial by offering a surprise witness against George Joseph Smith, charged with the murder of three of his six wives, found dead in their baths. Haines, who lived near Smith, at Blackpool, swore that after the nude body of Alice Burnham Smith was removed from the bath he found a quantity of woman's hair in the tub. His testimony was presented to support the Crown's theory that Smith drowned his three wives by holding their heads under water.

W. A. Hazerraws, a Blackpool undertaker, testified that Smith requested the cheapest possible burial for Alice Burnham Smith, and he buried the body in a public grave.

APPEAL HEARD AT AT OSGOODE HALL

In Lytle vs. Shearer Action for Specific Performance of Contract

The appeal against the judgment of His Honour Judge Huycke in Division Court in the Lytle vs. Shearer case, which Lytle was sueing for Specific Performance of a contract for the sale of a certain piece of land, was tried in Osgoode Mall yesterday. The following is the result:

F. D. Kerr, for defendant. G. N. Gordon (Peterborough) for plaintiff. Appeal by defendant from judgment of County Court of Peterborough of May 21, 1915. Action for specific performance of contract by defendant to sell certain lands to plaintiff. At trial judgment was given plaintiff for specific performance with costs. At suggestion of court that this was a proper case for settlement it was agreed that the claim of defendant for which he has judgment in Division Court is to be released to plaintiff, and the defendant is to pay $25 to plaintiff within ten days, and on these terms appeal allowed and action dismissed, both without costs.

Antipon in Canada

Spreading the Fame of the Great British Specific for Rapid Fat-Reduction

The burden of obesity is so distressing and so unprepossessing, and is generally so difficult to get rid of with any degree of permanence, that the introduction to Canada of the famous British Specific Antipon will be welcome in many quarters. The preparation is not unknown here already, but the obstacles in the way of its supply to the general public were necessarily great. All difficulties are now removed.

Ere the important discovery of Antipon the treatments usually employed for the reduction of weight included starvation dietary rules, sweating and purging, together with mineral dosages. All these things are weakening in the extreme, and, when obstinately persisted in, ruinous to the constitution. Antipon is diametrically opposed to such drastic methods.

To expel the superfluous fatty matter from the system is all very well, but the body must be amply nourished at the same time. Now, Antipon not only rapidly eliminates the excess of fat, but overcomes the unfortunate tendency to "run to fat." Ample wholesome food therefore becomes Antipon's strength-giving ally, and there is no need to dread that the entire nourishment taken will bring about a re-development of excessive fatty tissue.

Every dose of Antipon is a sure step in the direction of the recovery of beauty of form and vigorous [illegible] energy.

The desertion of weight is never a tedious process. Within twenty-four hours of the first dose there is a reduction varying, according to individual condition, between 8 oz. to 3 lbs. The scales will be the unerring recorder. The daily decrease is eminently satisfactory. When normal weight and symmetrical proportions are regained the treatment is no longer necessary.

Antipon contains only the most harmless vegetable substances in solution, the liquid being in appearance like a light red wine. It is palatable, refreshing and slightly tart, and never occasions any unpleasant reactionary effects.

Antipon can be obtained at all drug stores, from stock or to order; or in case of any difficulty, a large case will be forwarded direct from the Antipon Laboratories, Store Street, London, W.C., Eng., carriage paid, on receipt of remittance for 8 dols. 75c.

ANOTHER BIG FEATURE

For Dominion Day at Port Hope Contracted For

After considerable correspondence and a very large expense, the Special Attraction Committee of the Port Hope Dominion Day celebration, have secured the services of Professor Hardy, the world's most celebrated high-wire walker. Mr. Hardy was recommended to the committee by Mr. J. O. Orr, Manager of the Toronto Exhibition, and Mr. Orr's recommendation was that Mr. Hardy had no equal. He performs stunts on the wire that would appear almost impossible. A further recommendation of his ability is that on July 4th he opens a season's engagement at White City, Chicago. The 57th Regimental Band of Peterborough will furnish the music during the day, and a special train will return to Peterborough after the evening programme.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Elms, Brockhouse, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

One German Sees Beginning of End

Girl, Writing to Brother, Thought Italy's Entry Would Mean This.

TORONTO, June 26.—A copy of a letter taken from a German prisoner by Canadians on May 22, has been received in Toronto. The communication, seemingly from a member of the captured German's family, supplies proof of the high prices which foodstuffs are bringing in Germany, due to the shortage of supplies.

One striking sentence reads: "Would to God the war would end, but when Italy begins it cannot last much longer."

The letter, translated, reads as follows:

"Millingen, 13th May, 1915.

"Let us look up, call to him, dear Gerhart, the beginner and the fulfilment of our faith. . . .

"We are still all safe and sound, which we also hope is the case with you. I had thought that we would have had a letter or a card from you ere this, but it may well be you have not much time for this. Let us know sometime, please, how it is going with you—we trust well.

"We have sent you three parcels, one containing eggs, 3 from Anna, and we trust you will receive them. You must not write to me at Horstgen but to this place instead when you receive them. Anna was here for 8 days but has gone back to Horstgen. Jacob has received 12 days' furlough (follows something about christening and Whitsuntide).

"To-day we had Communion. Here we are having very wet weather. Yesterday we ate our first salad. Spinach is also to be had now. You don't get any fresh vegetables. Do you still get enough meat and something to spread on your bread. Dear Gerhart, do you still lie four days in the trenches and two in reserve. Have you had any fights or battle yet Please let us know. Will send you a parcel the first time I get any money. If you still care for honey, let us know. When you have time you must write to us more often. We always have to wait so long for a letter or a card. I have very little news. Kate has been going to school since the 1st May. She is still thin, but in time of war when everything is so dear one cannot become fat. We receive every day ½ lb. of bread per head on our bread card. Meat costs: Ham, 2Mks. a lb.; bacon, dried 1 Mk.60, and fresh, 1 Mk.20, and is very thin. Beef, Mk.1.20, and all other wares are away up. With only a little money one can no nothing. Would to God the war would end, but when Italy begins it cannot last much longer. Dear Gerhart, write us sometime a long letter and lots of news. Emil is quite well; he is still with the paymaster and likely to remain with him. We have heard nothing yet from John. She said a fortnight ago he would become (?) and had received an Iron Cross, as also Gerhart Wettals. Have you still got lice? Shall I send you something for them? I will now close in the hope that we shall see each other again.

"Hearty greetings from Home. Your loving parents and sisters send to you. Au revoir. God guard you.

"The Lord is my shepherd. He shall lead me into green pastures, and there shall I fear nothing, etc., etc.

"Ends."

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer

These days the face needs special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the beating sun, are severe on any skin. Their compelling efforts are best overcome by the application of pure mercolised wax. This keeps skin and pores in a cleanly condition, and complexion beautifully white and spotless. Discoloured, freckled and roughened cuticle are actually absorbed by it. One ounce of mercolised wax, obtainable at any druggists, is sufficient to completely renovate a veiled complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night, and washed off in the morning.

As the skin tends to expand in warm weather causing wrinkles to form, a good astringent lotion should be used. Dissolve 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathe the face in this during the heat of the day or before going out for theatre or social affair. It is a remarkable skin tightener and wrinkle eraser.

TIMELY HINTS ON HOW TO UPSET A CANOE—Seasonable Cartoon by James Frise

Neutrals, Come Over and Help Us

Neutrals, come over and help us,
Why should you stay out longer, thus?
There's honour in the Allied 'Bus,
In the European war.
The Kaiser has made a sad fuss,
And, Neutrals, you should make a push.
Now is your time to make a rush
In the European war.

Lusitania's horrid case
Leaves Uncle Sam in sad disgrace,
He hesitates to take his place,
In the European war.
Mr. Bryan wants one year of truce,
And Uncle Sam wants some excuse;
All shuffling cards for voters' use,
In the European war.

Lusitania massacre,
Leaves Uncle Sam in misery,
It was a sad, sad butchery,
In the European war.
Neutral nations will be sorry
Not to share honour and glory,
When history tells the story,
In the European war.

The Balkan States are on the drill,
Italians are in the mill,
To force the Kaiser make his will,
In the European war.
If Belgium will sign a lease,
If elgium will sign a lease,
A paper scrap is a small piece,
In the European war.

Some clergymen in Germany
Uphold their horrid butchery,
Such men are a great mystery,
In the European war.
Germany leaves a legacy
By her inhuman policy,
By Kaisers awful lunacy,
In the European war.

The Lusitania outrage
Will leave a stain on German page,
An everlasting heritage,
In the European war.
The world should be proud of England;
On scraps of paper she will stand;
Her money-bags are in demand,
In the European war.

OTTAWA, June 26.—The Canadian casualties have now reached a total of 9,042. The killed number 1,484, the wounded 5,947 and missing 1,611.

NEWPORT, L.I., June 26.—Revolutionary changes in naval warfare must be devised to bring the United States up to date. Secretary Daniels declared to-day in a speech that at times bordered on sensational. He told the Naval War College that the submarine's development and airships have utterly held Germany's and Britain's biggest fighting ships behind land-locked barriers for the first year of the great world war. Old things have passed away, he asserted, and he called on the members of the College to find new weapons which will make the American Navy the greatest weapon of offence and defence in the world. Those who heard his speech interpreted it as a plea for great fleets of sea-going submarines and aeroplanes.

LONDON, June 26.—A Central News despatch from Amsterdam says that several trains loaded with heavy guns have left Essen for the German front on the Bzura River in Poland, where, it is believed, they will be used in an advance against Warsaw.

50,000 MORE MEN FOR NAVY.

LONDON, Eng., June 26.—A supplementary estimate to-day provides for the addition of another fifty thousand officers and men to the British Navy, making a total of three hundred thousand men. It is supposed that extra men are needed to replace casualties and provide crews for a number of new warships ready for commission.

"LET SWORD DECIDE," SAYS FRANCIS JOSEPH.

LONDON, June 25.—The Daily Chronicle's Turin correspondent telegraphs:

"The Stampa learns from Bucharest that Emperor Francis Joseph strongly opposes cessions to Roumania. 'Let things go their own way,' he declared; 'the sword will decide this question, as many others.'"

SOLID CEMENT AND STEEL PLATES PROTECT GERMANS AT FESTUBERT.

LONDON, June 25.—According to the Morning Post's correspondent in France the Allies in the Festubert district have come against the most formidable entrenchments yet encountered in the whole war and composed of solid cement and steel plates, with dug-outs twenty feet deep. The British soldiers unite in declaring they never have seen anything like them. In these entrenchments, aided by the enormous number of machine guns they are using, the Germans are enabled to hold their line with comparatively few men actually in the trenches.

TEUTONS STRIKE NORTH OF WARSAW.

BERLIN (via wireless), June 2 .—The War Office announced this afternoon that German troops have launched a violent attack against the Russians north of Warsaw. Wurtemberg troops have stormed and captured a Russian position at Ogleanda, north of Prasanyas.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

LAWN BOWLING

The field of sports opens one of life's most interesting pages. Unconsciously the members open to each other their life's inner springs.

Whether bowling brings out a man's better nature, or whether better natures take to bowling, it is hard to decide.

But whichever way it is, the bowlers seem to be a happy family, with very few of the rough edges showing.

There is a kindly helpfulness shown to the beginners, an entire absence of patronage, a delightful manly equality seems to prevail.

It is said that, could we "see oorsels as ithers see us," we would see rather a queer individual. Each of us doubtless have our own little oddity.

One of our members is a man of many inches, whose life's work, strange to say, is to provide for death.

This member labours under the hallucination that he cannot play; at the same time he is one of our recognised top notchers. You can easily recognise him by the kindly twinkle in his eye; it is the biggest thing on the green. When we hear him click the little latch on the gate, the twinkle is the first thing we notice, and then we see him; there is quite a lot of him to see, too, for he extends quite a long way up into the ambient blue.

Some sports remind you of little Johnny who had shocked his mother by using the awful word "darn." His mother gave him ten cents, and got him to promise that he would not repeat so bad a word.

Little Johnny was quiet for a long time, then he sidled up to his mother and said, "Mother, I know a word that is worth a dollar."

• • • •

This week two of our rinks went down to Millbrook. The result was a tie. One rink won, and the other lost.

Our people always like to go to Millbrook, and they look forward to meeting them again at our tournament in August.

The tournament at Oshawa takes place on the "First," when it is expected that at least four rinks will enter the lists. It is hoped that every member who can will arrange to go on Thursday.

THE INDIAN SOLDIERS IN SPORT

British Headquarters, June 23.—Perhaps the strangest scene that has been witnessed in Flanders since the war broke out, took place the other afternoon on a broad plain, some miles behind the firing line, where some of the Indian regiments hold a gymkhana.

It seemed as though every regiment of the Allies were represented. The Indians were largely in the majority, and presented a splendid picture. Mingled in the crowd were here and there to be seen the white cloaks and gold beribboned waistcoats of the Moroccan light cavalry, the finely proportioned blacks being the object of great interest among the French peasantry.

The programme included tent pegging, runnig races, jumping, wrestling, the V.C. race, trick riding, races for the village girls and boys, and a sack race. The sack race was open to both Tommies and Indians, and some of the latter showed themselves quite expert at what must have been to them an unaccustomed mode of progression. One of the prizes in this event was, in fact, captured by a native.

Trick Riders.

Undoubtedly the most interesting event of the afternoon was the rick riding by selected members of the Indian cavalry. The feats they performed and the agility with which they were carried out were astounding.

Te men seemed to be fashened to their fiery steeds. Nothing could shake them off. Men passed standing erect on the saddle with the horse going at full gallop. They rode on their heads, they rode backwards, and sideways, went down and picked objects off the ground with one leg crooked around the saddle and performed a multitude of other feats.

In one event a couple of lances were set in racks on the ground, and a few yards further on two pegs were fixed. Two riders came thundering down the course, picked up the lances, skilfully impaled the pegs in the exact centre and rode off with them at the tip of their lances.

As a finale all the competitors in this event rode down the course at full gallop, standing on their horses and firing their revolvers.

All were keenly desirous of getting to grips with the enemy. As one native officer remarked "How can I return home to my village with none of my company wounded?" This is illustrative of the spirit of Britain's Indian soldiers.

GOLF

Those players for the Stratton Trophy who have not yet handed in their cards, are reminded that they only have until the 26th of June, inclusive, to play the first round. After that date the draw for the second round will be made.

All cards must be handed in to Mrs. Head.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Sampson Suit for $500 Against Asphodel Heard in County Court

Judge Huycke reserved judgment this morning at the conclusion of the argument in the case of Sampson vs. the Municipality of Asphodel, a suit for $500 damages. The evidence merely outlined the details of the accident on the Norwood-Hastings road, on June 22nd, 1914, when Miss Sampson's horse shied at the Township's stone crusher. She was injured when she was thrown from the buggy.

MARKESFELDT GIRL PUZZLE TO DOCTORS

TORONTO, June 25.—A puzzle to her employers, to her acquaintances, to her fellow-workers and to the police, Louisa Markesfeldt now provides a baffling problem to the Government doctors who have been examining her mental stability since she was remanded to the Reception Hospital from the Women's Court last Friday.

During the six days she has been under the doctors' observation "the girl of mystery" has positively and consistently denied any knowledge of Shelbourne, or of any of the varibus persons who have identified her as the Dr. Barnado's waif who was sent out to this country from London in 1907, and who has since been under the supervision of the Margaret A. Cox Home for Girls at Peterborough, while she has worked as a domestic servant at various small towns of the province. So positively, indeed, that the doctors themselves are tempted to believe her rather than the evidence to the contrary.

"I suppose there is no doubt that she was at Shelbourne?" said Dr. Harvey Clare, speaking with a touch of doubt in his voice to-day.

Had Been Identified.

The Daily News assured him that Mrs. C. E. Morgan, her mistress, had instantly identified a photograph of the girl as the Louisa Markesfeldt who had worked in her house from April to September, 1914, and that The Daily News reporter who followed her in Shelburne, Berlin and Earnescliffe found precisely the same characteristics, heard the same stories in kind as those Louisa Markesfeldt told to the Toronto police. She was identified without equivocation by responsible persons, yet the girl positively denies the identification.

While Dr. Clare declined to state positively to The Daily News to-day what conclusion the examining doctors had arrived at regarding her, "I don't think she is any fool," he said with conviction. "She seems to be very clever along some lines.

"The girl is one of the most interesting cases I have ever met," he said, adding that three doctors were meeting in consultation on the case to-day. Their report on the case livered to-morrow.

"She's a good talker," said the doctor laughing. "It's a good job she's not engaged to some poor fellow," or she would "talk his head off," it was suggested, and the doctor agreed.

Stock Markets

New York Stocks

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

NEW YORK, June 26—There was some realizing in the second hour, but the market maintained a good tone, and substantial strength was shown in a number of leading issues. U. S. Steel became a feature; the stock apparently overcoming the effect of recent liquidation for foreign account. Reading's rise to 150 caused a revival of the rumour of a big war order for the Reading Iron Co., all whose stock is owned by the Reading Railway Co. The Reading Iron Co. has a plant at Reading, Pa., which the late Geo. F. Baer, who was not prone to exaggeration, said several years ago, was worth not less than $25,000,000 it could probably handle war business on a large scale. Goodrich crossed U. S. Rubber selling at 52, when the latter declined to 51 1-2. Total sales 203,42 shares.

How Studebaker cars are built—chassis

The Rear Springs
In some cars the springs are used for driving and are, therefore, subjected to DOUBLE strains. Studebaker uses the springs solely to make the car easier-riding and drives thro' radius rods.

The Radius Rods
In a Studebaker car free the springs of the driving thrusts, making the car much EASIER in its riding qualities. They connect the rear axle housing with the side member of the frame [illegible] here.

The Torque Arm
Is used in the Studebaker Chassis. Made of pressed steel—designed to support all the twisting strain of driving. Helps keep the driving mechanism in perfect alignment.

The SIMPLEST chassis you ever saw

And it takes just a glance to show you that it is, too. For when you study the illustration of this Studebaker Chassis—or better yet, when you come in and see the Chassis itself—the first thing that will impress you is its freedom from "clutter."

Observe the line of the drive, for instance. STRAIGHT as a shot from the motor back to the rear axle. This means power, too. And everything in just the place it belongs. And then, when you get down to the finer details of design, you find that the motor, for example, is as simple as any you ever laid eyes on—and extremely accessible.

The irreversible steering-gear is a simple, EASILY adjusted worm and worm-wheel and every part of the steering gear is adjustable to wear. The exhaust line is straight and free from sudden angles. The transmission, set back on the rear axle for better balance and straighter drive, is simple, CLEANLY designed and easily gotten at.

And every last detail, as a glance will show you, is designed and placed with the idea of furnishing the EASIEST and STRAIGHTEST channel possible for the power to flow from the motor to the rear wheels—and to make it as "trouble-proof" as a man expects this car to be

—because it's a Studebaker

But why not come in and go over the Chassis itself in detail? In addition to its simplicity, we'd like you to know how accessible every detail is and how well-balanced the entire chassis is to give EASIER riding and EASIER-driving qualities. And if you will, we'd like to have you drive the car yourself and KNOW from your own experience the riding comfort and the free-flowing power and the many conveniences that a Studebaker offers. Can you come in today. If not, write for the Studebaker Chassis Book.

Near Accident at Charlotte St. Corner

Harold Yelland, a C.P.R. Telegraph Co. messenger, was struck by Mr. Felix Brownscombe's automobile, at the corner of Charlotte and George Streets, last night, about 6 o'clock. The boy was knocked off his bicycle, but was uninjured except for a few bruises. Fortunately the car was not moving fast. This corner apparently needs as much policing on Friday as on Saturday nights.

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR PICNIC.

In our report of the pleasurable picnic at Burleigh Falls, on Thursday last, by an obvious typographical error on the part of a compositor, it was made to appear that there were nearly one thousand passengers on board the good ship Stoney Lake. The paragraph in question should, it is plain enough to see, have read, nearly one hundred. We hope that our good friends, the officers of the steamer in question, will not be likely to be harassed by the maratime officials for overlooking their comfortable little steamship.

Suspect Is Arrested In Dynamite Case

WINDSOR, June 26.—While Chief of Police Morand, of Ford, was making investigations early yesterday morning in connection with the attempt to blow up the Peabody factory at Walkerville he discovered 60 stocks of dynamite hidden among weeds at the rear of the Gramm motor truck factory, Walker Road.

Shortly after the discovery William Lafler, 45 years old, was arrested at the plant of the Tate Electric Auto Company, Ford. He was employed there as a watchman, and said he lived in Detroit, but refused to give the police his address. Lafler has been employed in Ford for some months. He declared he was a Canadian of Dutch parentage. The police give this statement little credence, because he speaks with a strong German accent, and declines to say anything about himself.

It is the belief of the police that the dynamite found by Chief Morand was not placed near the Gramm factory with the intent of destroying it, but with the idea of hiding it until it was wanted.

The markings on the wrappers of the explosive found to-day correspond with those found at the Windsor Armouries on Monday, and the police are emphatic in their declarations that it was manufactured in or near Detroit. Although they would not admit it definitely, the police hint that the dynamite was purchased in the vicinity of Wyandotte, a suburb of Detroit, and taken across to the Canadian side in a rowboat enough.

Extraordinary precautions are being taken at all factories in Windsor and adjacent towns. Oliver J. Wilcox M. P. for North Essex, declared this afternoon that the situation was becoming serious. "I know that the Government intends to take every precaution to prevent a recurrence of the outrages perpetrated early Monday morning," he said. "I do not know whether a guard will be placed along the river, but it is certain that Windsor and other towns must be given protection."

Reeve Charles Montreuil, of Ford, was very emphatic in his declaration that the Government should at once recruit a guard to patrol the river. "We are not worrying about trouble, from sane people in Detroit," he said "but there is danger from fanatics, and we should guard against attempt by that class of men."

GERMANS Lines Pierced At Several Points

AN IMPORTANT SUGGESTION CONTAINED IN GERMAN REPLY TO SECOND AMERICAN NOTE

Germany is Said to Favour Proposal That Submarines Refrain From Attacking Unarmed Passenger Ships Carrying No Contraband, Provided They Bear Certain Distinguishing Marks. Document Will Be Ready For Delivery on July 5th or 6th.

CHANCELLOR IS AT THE FRONT

Special to The Examiner:

BERLIN, via The Hague, June 28.—The German reply to the second American note regarding the Lusitania will be handed to Ambassador Gerard on July 5th or 6th. Because of the Fourth of July celebrations in the United States, the Foreign Office deems it inadvisable to send Germany's answer before that date.

The tentative draft, outlined by the United Press several days ago, has not yet been approved by Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz. But the reply, it was assured by a high official here to-day, will take a form to which no one in America can make objection."

It is understood that Germany will make as important suggestion in her answer, a suggestion of such a nature that if President Wilson accepts it, the German-American controversy will be at an end.

It is considered probable here that this suggestion is the proposal that submarines will not attack unarmed passenger ships carrying no contraband, provided they bear certain distinguishing marks.

GREAT OPTIMISM PREVAILS.

Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollwegg is now at the Galician army headquarters of the Kaiser. He is not expected to return to Berlin before the German reply is sent. Because of the importance of the Galician campaign the Kaiser, it is certain, will not return to the capital.

Dr. Bernard Dernberg reached Berlin last night and was in conference with officials here to-day. In Government circles the greatest optimism regarding German-American relations prevail.

Do these summer days set you listening to the call of the wild—or looking forward to happy days by lake or ocean?—Doubtless your holiday has been well earned.

Even at that you are not justified in running the extra risk involved without having placed adequate insurance upon your life. In fact, you will not completely enjoy the holiday if you are thinking that some easily imagined accident may suddenly place those you have left behind in a position of want.

If you have insurance, the holiday you have earned will be all the happier. You will be absolutely sure it is right as to both protection and investment if the policy be issued by the

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR A VISITATION

Just the very day before Jim got back a trail herd went north which more 'n got even with us for what Flames did to 'em in sellin' the sacred hump-backed cow over again. This was a mixed herd and a calf about two months old had got leg-weary and was about to be killed. Isaac happened along and of course Isaac then adopted the fool thing.

We didn't have a milk cow on the place, and Isaac 'a' got killed complete through actin' on Flames advice and tryin' to get an old scold of a cow to adopt it. This cow had crumpled horns and her hoofs grew long and crooked so that she couldn't get about well and she never herded with the rest. She used to stick around close to the house, but she was powerful fussy and did't set store by anyone but her own calf. Isaac offered her a small pan of barley thus thinkin' to win her affection, but he was leadin' one calf by a rope and this calf was bawlin' and struggling', and the old scold of a cow thought he was in the calf-collectin' business and she handled him roughly.

If it hadn't 'a' been for Confucious the chances are that Isaac would have celebrated his funeral just about then, but that mite of a terror was game clean through and he gnawed at the cow's leg, snapped at her nose, and gave Isaac a chance to get to his feet. The cow could have run about as well with table legs as with her own, and Isaac got off with nothin' worse than a bumpin', and Red got his calf for him.

The calf was a scrawny thing and the foreman o' that trail herd must 'a' been one of these fellers who think they have a soft heart, when it's is only their heads that are mushy. It stood around all drawed up and peaked, and kept up a mournful bawlin" like a couple o' souls in torment. Shorty was all for applyin' the axe, but Isaac like to have had a fit at this, and Red to'd him that the calf would thrive on weak barley water. Isaac had a kind heart for dumb critters sure enough, and the' wasn't any put on to it. He fed the thing out of a bottle with a rag in it, and when Shorty swore he'd shoot the calf if Isaac brought it into the bunk-shack, why, Isaac took his blankets and then bunked out under a tree, with the calf on one side and confucious on the other, and all three snugglin' under the umbrella.

[illegible] got back the next day and Jim was up in the clouds. They hadn't had a speck of trouble, the cows had brought big money, and the hosses had surprised even Jim.

Isaac's calf had provided the boys with considerable conversation, and some genuwine amusement. Orphant calves are some of the worst pests ever invented and this here one laid it over airy other ever I heard tell of. He had already got to nibblin' purty free at grass, and the barley-water soon straightened him out when he stuck to that in moderation, but he was allus projec'in' around to see what he could get into.

I made a great fuss over Monody, and told him how ganted up I was over Flames' cookin' and he agreed to fix me a batch of light biscuit over the very next Sunday. Sure enough, Sunday mornin' Monody turned himself loose on some light biscuits and just as they got done to a turn Shorty and Red got into a wrastlin' match.

Monody called us to "come and get in," but when he saw Red and Shorty with their horns locked, he set his biscuits on a bench and came to see the fun. Shorty was set square on his feet like a barrel and it was mighty hard to back him, especially as he 'd grab a mouthful o' Red's whiskers and shake them like a terrier every time that Red's weight was beginnin' to tell; so that by the time they were willin 'to be satisfied with a dog fall, the calf had et up all the light biscuits, and Monody's Zulu blood was in command.

He grabbed up a young cleaver, and started in to veal the calf, but Isaac grabbed Monody about one leg, and Confucious picked him out a good grip on the other and the calf sauntered off to the crick to fill himself with water. I never knew anybody kinder in his hearts to animals than ol' Monody was, and the most he'd have done to the calf was spank him with the broadside of the cleaver, like as not; but when these two Easterners took it up why Monody lost part of his patience. He took Connie by the scruff of the neck and dropped him out of the window where he remained howlin' with rage.

A bucket o' water stood handy, and Monody poured this over Isaac and then plunged him headfirst in the flour barrel. He was the most unusual sight ever I saw when Monody set him on his feet with a bang and yelled at him in the high pitch his voice allus got when his nerves tightened up on him: "Get out o' ma kitchen, man, get out o' ma kitchen! If I was to serve you right, I'd call you a pa'tridge pie and bake you in ma oven!"

Isaac burst out o' that kitchen spoutin' indignation and flour like a snow plow with dry bearings, but if he had been the Angel Gabrie with his trumpet in his hand, we couldn't have kept our faces straight, and once we let go we howled, and slapped each other on the back and rolled on the grass, until Isaac's feelin's were hurt, and him and Connie and the calf all went off in a huff, and weren't seen any more until supper time.

That calf'd would eat anything! It wasn't more'n three days after this that Isaac went over to see the old hermit, and the calf got into the bucket of barley Isaac had set aside to make barley water out of, and et it up clean. As soon as this calf had et something he shouldn't have, he'd make for the crick direct and pump himself full of water. Well that barley swelled until the calf looked like a barrel and I reckon his in'ards were more like those of a brewery than anything else. Red found him and walked him around some, and rubbed him, but the calf didn't care what happened, so after a time Red joined in and took the same view.

He rolled the calf in a blanket and put it into Isaac's bunk and when he came back the boys stopped him and Red spoke to him in low solemn tones. "Mr. Foster," sez Red, "you came among us shoutin' to be healer and you have talked to us a heap about human organs and such things. Now I ask you as man to man, do you know how to cure a woman from fits?"

Well, Isaac he asked a lot o' questions, and they all made answer, sayin' that the woman was young and good lookin' but a stranger in those parts. They told about her comin' on hossback, givin' a gasp and keelin' over and that part of the time she was unconscious, and part of the time she was stiff in the limbs and quivery.

"Where is she?" 'ses Isaac.

"She's in your bunk," ses Red. "We thought perhaps you might not come back to-night, and as your bunk was the cleanest, we just put her in there.

Some fellers allus look for flaws and they spoil a lot of fun, but Isaac never strayed from the idee you sicked him on, and he speeded for the bunk-shack. At the door he paused, saw the dim form in the light of a candle, and said in a low tone, 'Madame, madame?"

The' wasn't no response except the calf garglin' for breath, and when Isaac saw how the blanket hove up and down, he turned to Red, and ses:—"This is a desprite case; send some one for the regular doctor, and some other for Mrs. Cooper."

Red shouted out the orders and the boys dashed around a little, while Isaac shuffled at the door and seemed willin' to wait for the regular doctor. [illegible] in a case like this,' 'ses he. "Just listen to her breathe!"

"I reckon she ort to be bled," ses Red, shakin' his head dolful. "You will simply have to do somethin'."

"I—I couldn't do that!" ses Isaac. "We had better just wait for the doctor."

"You're a nice one!" ses Red. "If that was an animal you'd wear your heart out doin' some fool thing for it but just 'cause it's a human—Stop your nonsense, and go on in and do something!"

Well, Isaac went in on tiptoe, stopped near the bunk, and sez: "Madame, Madame, are you conscious?"

"Feel of her pulse, you chump," wispered Red; so Isaac all turned his face away and ran his hand under the blanket. When he first felt that calf he gave a surprised mutter; but when he found out what it really was, he started a regular riot, and accused Monody of havin' poisoned the calf.

Phil McLaughlin finally told him what was worng, helped him tie a stick in the calf's mouth and Isaac led it up and down, drenched it with molasses and linseed oil, and in about a week the calf was as gone as ever. It was a steer calf, but after that it never had no name but Madame, and Red used to tip his hat to it every time that he met it.

It was just about this time that we bought about five hundred cows from a feller down near Ellis, and after getting 'em up on the range we started to ride in to the ranchhouse. We came up the ridge in a bunch and I happened to glance over towards the trail from Dan Cooper's, and saw Dan drivin' over in his buckboard with a woman beside him which I knew was n't Mrs. Cooper, 'cause he' wasn't any sight of the baby, and she knew we'd treat her rough if she ever dared come to our place without that baby.

We discussed who the woman might be all the rest of the way in; for we knew that Jim had made arrangements to ride down to Ellis that evein', and so it couldn't be any company of his choosin'. We raised the pace a little and came in on the run, just havin' time to turn the ponies loose when Dan drove up.

To Look and Feel Bright in Hot Weather

This is the season when she who would have a lily-white complexion should turn her thoughts to mercolised wax, the firm friend of the summer girl. Nothing so effectually overcomes the scorching effects of sun, wind, dust and dirt. The wax literally absorbs the scorched, discoloured, freckled, withered or coarsened cuticle, bringing forth a brand new skin, clear, soft and girlishly beautiful. It also unclogs the pores, removing blackheads and increasing the skin's breathing capacity. An ounce of mercolised wax obtainable at any druggists, applied nightly like cold cream, and washed off in the morning, will gradually improve the worst complexion. When chapped by the hot sun and you want to freshen up for the afternoon or evening, bathe the face in lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. You'll find this more refreshing than Nature's rest. It is fine for smoothing out wrinkles, even the deeper ones.

HUMANITY DELUDED BY DEMON DOCTRINES

Deception of Our First Parents.

Satan's Monumental Lie Foisted Upon the Church — Christian Standards Lowered—Foundation Falsehood For All Unscriptural Teachings—Refuge of Lies to Be Swept Away—The Name of God Blasphemed Daily — Medieval Darkness Passing—Responsibility of the Ministry—Day of Their Visitation.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

Indianapolis, Ind., June 27.—Pastor Russell is here to-day. We report his address on the text, "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ * * should shine unto them." (2 Corinthians 4:4.) The Pastor spoke as follows:

During the Dark Ages doctrines of demons were foisted upon the Church by Satan's hosts of fallen angels. Millions were driven into the Church, but driven away from God and from the Bible. The theory was that all not members of the Church would surely go to eternal torture, but that by joining the Church they would have a chance of Heaven, even though the path led through Purgatory. Under these unscriptural teachings, Christianity has enrolled its hundreds of millions, very few of whom know anything about the real Christianity of the Bible—true discipleship of Jesus Christ.

We see them in Europe to-day—of all creeds—doing their best to destroy each other—to send each other to Purgatory or to eternal torture. About five per cent. are estimated to be Mohammedans, Jews and infidels, and the remaining ninety-five per cent. Christians. What a farce! What a hypocritical deception! The fact is that probably less than one per cent. of all these millions would make any claim to be followers of Christ or of seeking to cultivate His Spirit of meekness, gentleness patience, long-suffering, brotherly kindness, love. The great majority manifest the reverse spirit of anger, malice, hatred, envy, strife—works of the flesh and of the Devil.—Col. 3:8; Gal. 5:19-23; 1 John 3:8.

How few anywhere profess to be disciples or followers of Jesus and His teachings! Christian standards have been so lowered that to-day a Christian is not one who has surrendered his whole being to God and His service, and who has devoted himself to following the Master's example, but merely one who refrains from profanity and such gross sins as murder and immorality. This change has come about as a revulsion against the thought that everybody except a mere handful of saints is en route to eternal torture. Kind-hearted people could not think of their friends and relatives as suffering thus. They had the thought of eternal torture firmly fixed and let it remain, but moved down low the standard of worthiness for everlasting life.

Lucifer, the cherub, through ambition became Satan, God's opponent. He deceived our first parents into sin by his great falsehood, "Ye shall not surely die." (Genesis 3:4.) Since then he has supported that lie personally and through his demon hosts of fallen angels. These are not far off stoking fires in Hell and Purgatory, but right with humanity, perpetrating the original lie and convincing the world that Satan told the truth when he said, "Ye shall not surely die"; and that God lied when He said, "Thou shalt surely die." The doctrines of demons have so far succeeded that now practically everybody believes that lie, and the claim is made that the dead are more alive after death than before.

On this original foundation-falsehood Satan has built up various theories, all of which tend to delude humanity and to drive them away from God and from the promises of the Bible. He tells them that the dead are alive everywhere, and that at death the good and the bad immediately enter their rewards and punishments without resurrection. The errors are so skilfully framed as to teach that Heaven can be entered only through a number of passage confirmation, holy water, holy candles and holy burial, prayers, Eucharist and masses. Satan enlists on his side all who are interested in these various Heavenward helps. These have been reverenced; money has been paid to them freely; they have made the success already suggested, and claim four hundred million Christians. But how few of these really know the true God or really love Him!

In the Bible, however, God sets forth the True Church of the Firstborns, whose names are written in Heaven. Jesus is the Head over these; and they all are brethren, and not divided into clergy and laity. They are called saints. (Psalm 50:5.) God could indeed use force in gathering His Elect Church, but He will not do so. He will now gather merely those who have the hearing ear and the responsive heart. Of these He says, "They shall be Mine in that Day when I make up My jewels."

Then a New Epoch will open; and under the Headship of Jesus these jewels will constitute the Messianic Kingdom. Then the blessing of the world will begin. The first step in that blessing will be the binding of Satan, that he may deceive the people no more. Next will come the sweeping away of the ignorance and superstition which have been his web for entangling humanity. Thus all the blinded eyes will be opened, and all the deaf ears unstopped—all will see; all will hear; all will know of the Love of God, which passes all human understanding. (Isaiah 35:5; Romans 8:38, 39.) Then the knowledge of the glory of God will fill the earth; and as a result every knee shall bow and every tongue confess to the glory of God.—Isaiah 11:9; Hab. 2:14; Phil. 2:10, 11.

The outcome will be that all willful sinners will be destroyed in the Second Death, while all others will be ushered into the perfection of life in a world-wide Eden. Then there shall be no more sighing, no more crying, no more dying; for all the former things shall have passed away. "And He that eat upon the Throne said, Behold, I make all things new."—Revelation 21:4, 5.

Is it not strange that we ever believed the monstrous falsehoods taught us by these doctrines of demons—that the dead are more alive than ever; that nearly all of them are suffering untellable tortures, while the remaining small remnant look over the battlements of Heaven and rejoice in the misery of the unfortunates? Assuredly no human brain ever concocted such a Satanic theory! We challenge the ability of any man to sit down and deliberately concoct anything worse than has been described to us as the Plan of the great Heavenly Creator, the Father of mercies, from whom cometh down every good and every perfect gift, and whose very name is Love. We have never found man or woman so fiendish as our God has been described to us.

Herein we see the Satanic cunning of our great Adversary: By establishing great religious institutions he has satisfied a certain mental craving, bound to assert itself in humanity. Yet by these false doctrines, which blaspheme the Divine character and the Bible by misrepresenting them, he has driven far away from God nearly all, even of those who have professed church membership — "They profess that they know God; but in works they deny Him."—Titus 1:16.

Some may be disposed to say, Satan would never teach about eternal torment; for it would be contrary to his interests and would keep people away from him. We reply that after eighteen centuries this theory is proven to be wrong, and Satan is proven to have been wise in his method. Mankind do not wish to serve Satan and sin. Naturally they would be, as the Apostle declares, feeling after God and desirous of finding Him; for every man has inherently some degree of reverence for a supreme Creator. Let me give an illustration of how Satan's lie operates:

A Christian lady who has become a Bible student, and who now dearly loves God and the Bible, told me her experience thus: "I was a Presbyterian, trusted that I was one of the Elect, and felt serene, but not without sympathy for the non-elect, who were to be tortured eternally. Then came the thought, Are you sure that you are one of the Elect? In distress I went to my pastor. In substance he said, 'You are all right; you are one of the Elect. Do not bother your head about such questions.'

"But still I was troubled. Finally I feared that I would land in an insane asylum; for I could not lift my thoughts from my danger of eternal torture. To escape insanity I plunged into social functions, and made my life one busy whirl, in which I had no time to think of God or Satan or the Bible. Oh, how changed everything is now, Pastor Russell! My heart always yearned for God, and now I know Him. I read His Book, and see its great Divine Plan of the Ages, showing a gracious blessing for the Elect on the Heavenly plane and a grand Restitution for the non-elect to perfection on the earthly plane. I ever thank God for the 'Studies in the Scriptures.'"

Have we not driven away from God and from the Bible some of the very best minds of the world, plunging them into business, pleasure, society, novel-reading, theatre-going or intoxication—anything to stop themselves from thinking about the terrible possibilities of the future related to them by you and me who have been deluded by these doctrines of devils?

St. Paul describes Satan's work concisely in the statement which forms our text. If the true light of God shines into any heart, it begins a transformation work at once; hence Satan's anxiety to keep people from thinking of God as a reasonable and adorable Creator and from studying His gracious Plan for human redemption. We see how the eyes of all have been much holden—the world seeing nothing at all, and Christians seeing little enough of the goodness of God. Thus St. Paul prayed for Christians that the eyes of their understanding opening, they might be able to comprehend the lengths and breadths, the heights and depths, and to know the Love of God, which passes all human understanding.—Ephesians 1:15-23; 3:14-19.

This Love of God was completely obscured by the dense darkness of the medieval period, when the doctrines of demons got full hold upon the minds of the people, because the Bible was reprobated and out of use for twelve hundred years, while the people were misguided into thinking that so-called Apostolic bishops had the same authority as the original Twelve Apostles whom Jesus ordained. The creeds made by these bishops took the place of the Word of God until the beginning of the Sixteenth Century; and since then, it has been a battle for the Bible to get into the hands of the people and for the latter to realise their privilege of Bible study. Protestant bishops, in front of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, set the example of burning the New Testament, because those who would study it would thereby be ignoring these false apostles, who styled themselves Apostolic Bishops, and of whom Jesus said, "They are not Apostles, but liars."—Revelation 2:2.

Finally the people, feeling after the True God and His true Message, and wondering why the bishops kept it from them, made such a stir about the matter that both Protestant and Catholic bishops gave them the Bible in English, but with dire threats that if in reading they got anything different from the creeds that the bishops had made, they would roast to all-eternity. Ever since, the Bible has been obliged to fight for every inch of ground it has gained—fighting against bishops and clergy who, if they could not keep it from the people, did their best to make it support the doctrines of demons—the clergy themselves being deceived also, and verily thinking that they were doing God service.

During the past fifty years general education has come. Satan realized that he must adopt a new course. As St. Paul foretold, he affected to be an angel of light, a leader into new light. (2 Corinthians 11:13-15.) He got hold of the colleges and seminaries, and now sees to it that practically everybody of college education has his religious faith entirely destroyed, so far as a Divine Revelation is concerned. Surely not five per cent of every hundred ministers and others graduated make any pretense of believing in the inspiration of the Bible, when they are speaking privately and confidentially! They can find intelligent reasons for believing in natural torture, and experience a revulsion of feeling against the Bible, which the doctrines of demons have led them to believe teaches these Satanic delusions.

As a result, we have thousands of ministers drawing salaries totalling millions of dollars annually, who outwardly pose as God's servants, ministers of his religion revealed in the Bible, but who in reality are hypocrites. Privately they will confess that they do not believe that man was created in God's image and fell from it. Neither do they believe that Jesus redeemed man from the fall; for they say, There was no fall. Neither do they believe in a coming Time of Restitution, which the Bible declares is the great hope for the world. (Acts 3:19-23.) They are hypocrites pure and simple. As the Apostle Paul declares, they "speak lies in hypocrisy, having their consciences seared with a hot iron."—1 Timothy 4:1, 2.

There are exceptions to this general rule. They are found amongst the less educated ministers, whom their educated brethren style "mossbacks." There are others whose consciences are not entirely seared, but fearing the cost. They say little about the future, occasionally work in a little Truth, and are generally very unhappy. I have hope for many of these yet, that they will get right with God and take their stand for truth and righteousness, casting all their cares and fears upon the Lord—fears respecting their living and provision for their families, respecting their good names, which will be cast out as evil, as mine has been, if they will firmly stand. The time of decision is here. Whoever is not for God and for the Truth is against the same.

The great leaders of Ecclesiasticism seem to have no conscience. If approached by their confiding flocks, they dodge the questions with deceptive phrases, fearing not God, neither regarding man, but merely looking for gain, each from his own quarter—his denomination.—Isaiah 56:11.

It is the duty of all who see the Truth clearly to act positively. (2 Corinthians 6:17, 18.) Whoever lends financial aid or moral support to the great systems which are opposing the true teachings of God's Word, and assisting in the perpetuation of Satan's lie, is a partaker of the evil deeds and will share in the woes soon to come.

Recently a young business man told me of his experience. He inquired of his pastor, "Is there a Hell of eternal torture for all except the saintly?" The cheerful answer was, "Yes, certainly." The young man had been reading and thinking, and told the pastor his conclusions. As he left the study, the pastor put his hand on the young man's shoulder, saying, "George, I do not believe in eternal torture, either. But, you know, we must preach it; otherwise, what would become of the world? They would go from bad to worse."

What does that young man think of his pastor now?—a liar, a hypocrite, a blasphemer of God—all to hold his place in the religious firmament—justifying himself by saying, Let us do evil that good may come; let us blaspheme God's name, that we may lead the people, and drive them away from God and the Bible! We know of no worse crime that humanity could commit than that of blaspheming God's holy name. In the Jewish Law this sin was placed ahead of all sins relating to fellowmen. That minister is merely a sample of about nine-tenths of the entire clergy, so far as we are able to know from their creed professions and their private denials of these. St. Paul's words surely appeal to every true Christian when he declares that the Love of God and of Christ—not fear—constrains us.

DEATH DEALING GAS ODORS

The gas poured over towards the British trenches in heavier and heavier volume, and even the most careful of the men felt that their heads were bursting for the lack of a breath of fresh air, and that their throats were being flayed by the metallic asphxia of the diabolical gas. Some could no longer endure it. They tore off their respirators, and madly drank in a fatal draught of the terrible air. But not a man ran back.

The incident occurred at a certain section of the British first line trenches, which had for some time been the object of repeated German "gas attacks."

Death or Perpetual Agony.

In the officers' sandbag mess but one candle glittered and spluttered dimly, casting its unreliable gleams upon the faces of seven sun-scorched men in dirty khaki, who sat around the rough deal table, with its array of tin plates and mugs, sliced meat, bread, cheese, and jam-pots, all set out with an orderliness that suggested fine linen and regimental plate rather than the rough and ready meal of the active service mess, writes Percival Landon.

The Colonel broke the silence. "Well, I hope our men have learnt their lesson. To breathe through the nose and not through the respirator means death of life-long agony. You must all go round before dawn and see that each man has his respirator damped and ready. Can't you think of anything to stop them breathing through the nose. Commerich?" he added, turning to the Captain. The latter shook his head.

"No, sir I'm afraid not. One might serve out cotton wool, and tell them to plug their nostrils, but they swear that they can't hear as well if their noses are blocked. And the worst of it is that if they think they can't—why, they actually can't. People talk about the simple, sturdy, unimaginative nature of the soldier. Bless you, he's often as responsive to suggestion as a woman."

"Something in the Wind."

The flap of the door was pulled up, and Major Sandilands entered.

"Wind still nor'-east?" demanded the Colonel anxiously.

"Afraid so, sir," was the reply, and a gloomy silence followed.

Gradually the night dragged by into dawn, and when the first solar rays darted through the sky and lit up the British trenches the wind still blew in the same fatal direction. This morning there was no noisy greeting of "morning hate" in the shape of Maxim and rifle fire, yet every man knew there was, in the real sense of the words, "something in the wind."

The chaplain, his eyes veiled by the long night of voluntary work was standing near the Colonel. Suddenly he turned and ejaculated quietly, "I can smell it!"

Before the respirators had been adjusted the lookouts had reported that there was something like a fog on the ground in front of the enemy's trenches. It was true enough. The deadly gas was rolling rapidly over the two hundred yards of intervening space towards the British positions. At first it was a faint green vapour, which swayed and hung under the lea of the raised parapet 200 yards away, then it rapidly increased in volume, and strayed out in tattered yellowish streamers towards the British lines, half-dissipating itself in twenty yards, until the steady outpour of the green smoke gave it reinforcement, and it rolled on again.

The nor'-easter had betrayed us once more, for the curling, tumbling vapour reached the British lines in a wall 12 feet high.

Through it nothing could be seen, but the Germans kept up a steady machine gun fire, sweeping the crest of our trenches.

Stifled Yells from Unlucky Men.

At the moment of impact there was a stiffening along the line as the awful concoction met out men in their faces.

China was the original home of both the rose and chrysanthemum.

On the theory that the flavour of the sugar maple is contained in the rough outside bark as well as the sap of the tree, a West Virginian has patented a process for making maple syrup that contains an extract from the bark.

DECREASE IN BIRTHS INFANTILE DEATH RATE HIGHER IN LONDON

LONDON, June 26.—Births in London are averaging nearly five hundred a week below the figures for the corresponding week in previous years, allowing for the growth in population. Mortality tables show that children have been dying at the rate of 200 a week in excess of the old average.

Official returns dealing with nearly a hundred of the largest towns and cities in England and Wales show corresponding decreases, most of which are chargeable to the war.

The increase in deaths is explained by the fact that infants are getting less care. There are fewer physicians and nurses in civil life, and they are overworked. Other adverse conditions are the increased use of married women in industrial employment and the breaking up of many homes by the war.

HAD DYSPEPSIA

So Bad Could Not Take a Drink of Water Without Suffering.

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure. You eat too much. Drink too much. Use too much tobacco. You make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of a short time before dyspepsia follows.

That old, forty year old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we have received from time to time.

Miss Sarah McRae, Newfield, Ont., writes: "I write to say that I have used your Burdock Blood Bitters, and have found it the best remedy I have ever used for dyspepsia. Two years ago, I had stomach trouble so bad that I could not even take a drink of water without suffering. I took six bottles of B.B.B., and have been entirely cured, and can now eat anything without any bad after effects."

Burdock Blood Bitters is an old and well tried remedy but on account of the many substitutes we would ask you to make sure that our name appears on both the label and wrapper as this preparation is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THIS SCHOOL GIRL HAD BAD FAINTING SPELLS

Was Weak and Run Down. But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Made Complete Cure

The most critical time in a girl's life comes during the school age, when she is impelled by rivalry to put forth her best efforts in studying for examinations. At the time she should have healthful outdoor exercise and abundance of fresh air, to keep the blood pure and rich, she is confined to her studies. Is it any wonder that she becomes run down in health and suffers from headaches, indigestion, loss of appetite and spells of weakness or fainting?

The case described in this letter is a good illustration and you can read here the splendid results of using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to help through this critical period.

"While attending school my daughter became weak and very much run down. She was frequently troubled with bad fainting spells, and nothing we tried seemed to do her any good. We were advised to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and did so with most satisfactory results. I am pleased to tell you that after using five boxes of the Nerve Food she was completely cured, and has no return of the fainting spells."

This statement is certified to by Mr. Hamilton Houston, Justice of the Peace.

The reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is so effective in cases of this kind is because of its extraordinary blood-forming influence. By creating an abundance of rich, red blood it strengthens the action of the heart, revitalizes the exhausted nerves and builds up the system in every way.

The appetite is restored, digestion improves, you rest and sleep well, and the new vigour and energy is felt in every organ of the human body. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is doing wonders for men, women and children whose systems have become weak and run down. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

"Never Hope to See a Braver Act"

Bravery knows no distinction, but is common to all classes, to the Edinburgh newsboy and the wealthy aristocrat. Nor is the city clerk exempted, and one of the most thrilling tales of great bravery related since the war began centres round a shorthand typist.

Toward the end of the last month Private F. Wood, 1st Battalion Royal Berkshire Regiment, was reported killed, but the manner in which he came by his death has only just come to light by the receipt of a letter by his mother from his commanding officer. He says:

"It is with deepest regret that I write to tell you of the death of your son, Pte. F. Wood, who was killed in action. It may help to soften your grief if I tell you that he died in the performance of an act of very great gallantry. My company, to which your son belonged, had orders to assault a German trench on the afternoon of March 10th, if a gap sufficiently wide could be found in the barbed wire protecting it.

"Just before the time for the assault, while our guns were heavily bombarding the German trench, I sent out two men, of whom your son was one, a little way in advance, so as to gain a clearer view, and to find out whether there was a gap in the wire or not.

Twice Shot.

"Your boy, to make assurance doubly sure, advanced alone right up to the German trench looked well round the wire, and then came back with his report. On his way back he was shot twice, but managed to report to his friend that there was no sign of a gap in the German wire, and that the trench was full of Germans.

"His friend returned safely to me with the news, which was of such importance that the assault was countermanded, and to lives of many men were thereby saved, as in those countermanded and the lives of many possibly have succeeded. Your boy was brought in at dusk, but died that night. I shall never hope to see a braver action, and I thank you as his mother from the bottom of my heart for the sacrifice, whilst I pray that the memory of his very gallant death may prove to be some slight consolation to you in your great sorrow."

Mrs. Wood, the lad's mother, was naturally keenly touched by the contents of this letter, and restraining her tears with great difficulty, said, "I feel grateful, very grateful, to the officer for writing."

Of a Loveable Nature.

Frank was of a studious, lovable nature, and was passionately fond of his brothers and sisters especially of his youngest brother, Johnny, who is four years of age.

"Johnny and Francis were very fond of each other—in fact, Francis idolised little Johnny," said Mrs. Wood, and Johnny only wanted Ms brother Frank. Even now he runs about with his toy revolver and says 'I want to help Francis kill the Germans.' I cannot tell him of his brother's death—I haven't the heart—they were so fond of one another." As Mrs. Wood gazed at the little chap, who was playing Germans with the hearthrug as the foe, it was plain to see her difficulty.

"Both Frank—we always call him that—and Basin joined the same day—on September 3. Both joined the Royl Berks Regiment, but later they were put into different battalions, and they were very unhappy about it," continued Mrs. Wood. "Later my son, Bernard—he is only 21—joined the Territorials and is now on his way to India.

Courageous Letters.

"Frank was a quiet boy and very ambitious. He was always trying to get on, nd his only enjoyment seamed to be gained from playing with little Johnny."

Frank's last letters beforel leaving for the front were full of manly courage. With reference to his brother Bernard, he said, "Give Bernard my love. Tell him I am going to try and put a few Germans out of gear in case he doesn't get a chance." To Basil he wrote, "I shall try and do your share as well as my own."

In his last letter to his mother, written from the front, he seems to have had a presentiment of death. "We captured and blew up a German trench—it was ripping! But we don't want any more of them. It's an awful sight." Then he concluded, "Keep on praying for me: I shall need it all."

Private Wood's good work has not passed unnoticed, and it is only fitting that Mrs. Wood should have heard from the commanding officer of the regiment announcing that the Field-Marshall Commanding-in-Chief would have awarded the D.C.M. to her son for his very gallant act, had he lived.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

PRETTY APRON FOR CHILDREN.

By Anabel Worthington.

To make this cunning little apron for a girl one must first cut out the three pieces, apron, collar and pocket. Then all the edges of the apron should be turned under in a narrow hem and stitched. The neatest way to make the collar is to have two sections exactly alike and then, placing them wrong sides together, stitch along all but the neck edge; then when the collar is turned right side out the neck edge is slip stitched. But a quicker way to make the collar is to have one section and turn under all the edges in a narrow hem. The front ends of the collar must each have a buttonhole, the button to the top of the apron.

All there is left to do is to turn under the edges of the pockets and place them on the fronts at the indicating perforations, stitching them to position. For the 6-year size you would need 1¼ yards of 27 inch material. The pattern, No. 7,462, can be obtained in five sizes, from 2 to 10 years.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 15c.

Pte. Fred Buntin Killed June 15th

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. F. Buntin, Chamberlen Street—He Enlisted at Edmonton With First Contingent—Had Resided Here 18 Years.

WORKED IN THE C.G.E.

That Private Fred Buntin, of Peterborough, was killed in action on June 15, was the brief but distressing information from the Canadian Militia Department received this morning by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Buntin, 564 Chamberlen street.

Private Buntin was born in Port Perry 28 years ago, but had resided in Peterborough eighteen years. During that time he made many friends, and became widely known in this city sufficient to be called a Peterborough man. He was employed as a machinist in the C.G.E. Company's local works. When war broke out he was in Edmonton, where he at once enlisted with the 1st Contingent.

Besides his parents he leaves a wife and three children.

Only last week a card was received from him in which he stated that he was well. Of course it was posted before the Festubert action, in all probability the place where he met his death. In his last letter a few weeks back he stated that he was well except that his nerves were a bit shaken. He had then come back from the trenches. Numbers of the men felt the effects of the work at the front by more or less shaken nerves.

The first word his father received of his death was at noon to-day when he returned from the C.G.E. works. "He went to fight for his country," remarked his father. "He did his best."

Private Buntin was originally with the 9th Battalion, but was latterly transferred to the 1st.

PRIVATE FRED BUNTIN

Another Peterborough man from the First Contingent in the list of killed. He fell in action on June 15th, probably at Festubert. Pte. Buntin enlisted at Edmonton. He was a C.G.E. employee.

GERMAN PARAPET WAS BUILT OF DEAD SOLDIERS

SOME STRENUOUS DAYS

Writing to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews, Lieut. Harold Matthews of the 1st Artillery Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery, gives some interesting information about the work of the artillery at the front. He says:

June 10th, 1915.

Dear Father and Mother,—The last few days have been rather strenuous and until now I haven't had time to write home to you to tell you about it.

First of all, I have had several letters from home lately, but have lost them and don't remember the dates of them. The Benson and Hedges cigarettes arrived O. K. and were acceptable indeed. Next time you are in Montreal be sure to send some more.

But to begin the tale: Four nights ago I had to take a working party of ten men up to a point just behind the first line trenches. It was a very hot spot, with plenty of shrapnel bursting around. Needless to say no one needed coaxing to work with all his might, but the worst part is the getting up there. Just in this section the English have captured some three lines of German trenches and although this was done some three weeks ago the most of the dead aren't buried yet. Words cannot describe the stench and it seems to stick with you for hours afterwards. There was one German communication trench where we had to walk on the dead. The parapet was made of corpses with a little earth thrown over and you could see heads, arms and legs, all black or yellow (from lyddite) sticking out. It made some men sick, but the majority of us are too tired, or were then, to pay much attention to it.

Thatnight we got in about 10 o'clock and were up next morning bright and early and fired off and on all day, wire cutting, which needs very careful and accurate calculation, and therefore is tiring. At half past eight we pulled out and marched about eight miles to a new position. It is rather tiring to march along roads which may be shelled at any moment. Next morning we got up early and fortified our position, and in the afternoon reconnoitred all the different observation stations which meant walking through literally miles of communication trenches. That evening we got word to send down an F. O. O. to the reserve trenches and it was my turn. It was raining hard and we had to lay our wires to within 250 yards of the enemy, along trenches. This was finished about 11 o'clock and we crawled in a wet trench [illegible] morning. This morning I got home (to the Battery) and tonight am looking forward to a decent sleep.

Goodwin has rejoined. We are awfully glad to see him you may be sure. Must close.

Affectionately,
HAROLD.

Their Eagerness Met With Reward

Lieuts. Elliott and Bateman Who Went With the 39th as Privates Have Been Given Positions as Officers.

JUMPED ON THE TRAIN

Two young Belleville officers, Lieuts. Bateman and Elliott, have found that it pays to take a chance. It appears that the two have been in training at Barriefield Camp with the prospect of getting to the front sometime in the near future. Both were anxious to get away in a hurry, and accordingly the other day when the 39th Battalion came through Kingston on their way to Montreal, the young lieutenants, taking only the clothes they wore, leaving their per- [illegible] and without any time to say goodbye to relatives, boarded the train and asked permission to accompany the battalion as privates. They were permitted to stay on the train and reached Montreal with the 39th. A letter to a Peterborough officer received this morning and written on board the steamer Missanabie gives the sequel of the story. It appears that the matter was reported to Major-General Sam Hughes, who was so pleased with the spirit shown by the young officers that he ordered that they be appointed to the 39th Battalion as lieutenants. So now they are on their way to the firing line, instead of waiting for the next contingent.

RETAIL TRADE ACTIVE IN RURAL ONTARIO

Large Yield of Winter Wheat is Expected.

Trade in wholesale lines in Toronto has been quiet the past week, say Dunn's report. Weather conditions have been unfavourable for business in summer lines of merchandise, there having been but few warm days. The outlook for the grain crops, however, is satisfactory. A very large yield of winter wheat is expected. A large crop of this grain is now being harvested in the States; hence the lower prices. Banks continue to hold a conservative course and there is practically no speculation in commodities. These institutions have unusually large liquid assets and some of them are likely to participate in the new British loan. Quite a good retail business is reported in many country districts in Ontario, where the farmers are in a prosperous state. Prices, as a rule, for leading staples are firm. Wool is very high, fine washed combing bringing about 38c. per lb. It is thought that this is only a temporary condition as Australian wools can be laid down here much cheaper. The prices of canned goods are unsettled and lower, owing to the anticipated plentiful supplies of new fruits and vegetables. Seven district failures are reported for the past week.

75 Children at 1st S. S. Meeting

The Salvation Army Sunday school in Byersville opened yesterday afternoon with an attendance of 75, as compared with 80 at the last meeting in the Orange Hall near May's school a week ago. In the evening the Boys' Band attended the adult meeting, prior to which an open air meeting was held at the dusty corner of Albert and Lafayette streets, with Mr. J. Cunningham leading. The first Sunday provided an auspicious beginning.

PURSE OF GOLD FROM CHOIR TO MR. BARTLEY

The choir of the Church of the Sacred Heart on Friday night presented Mr. Ed. Bartley with a purse of gold as a remembrance in connection with his approaching marriage. Mr. Bartley has been leader of the choir and baritone soloist with a partial base range. He has been a great source of strength to the choir, wherein his services have been entirely appreciated.

WATCHMAN CONFESSES HIS PART IN CONSPIRACY

Wm. Lefler Admits He Was in Plot to Blow Up Windsor Factories and Public Buildings.

NAMED THE OTHERS

WINDSOR, June 27.—After the police had grilled him for hours, without result, Wm. Lefler, of 889 Warren avenue, Detroit, watchman at the Tate Electric plant, has made a confession of Crown Attorney J. R. Rodd that he, with two other Detroit men, had conspired to blow up Windsor factories and public buildings.

Lefler broke down completely when he was leaving for Sandwich jail yesterday afternoon.

"I could not hold out any longer," he sobbed, as he stepped into the automobile.

Besides Lefler, two other men were engaged in the plot, which contemplated not only the entire destruction of the Windsor Armouries, but of the Canadian Bridge Company's plant in Walkerville, the Peabody Company, the Dominion Stamping Company at Ford, the Tate factory, as well as several other large manufacturing plants.

Lefler declares he was selected as the man who was to plant the bomb at the Tate factory, but his heart failed him and he did not finish the job.

Albert Kaltschmidt, who for four years was manager of the Tate plant, together with a man named Schmidt, both residents of Detroit, are named by Lefler in his confession.

The confession made to Crown Attorney Rodd yesterday afternoon was brought about after Lefler's wife had come over from Detroit and seen him in his cell at police headquarters.

"Tell me what you have done, Wilhelm. Please tell me that you have done no wrong," she sobbed.

The prisoner, with tears running down his face, clasped his wife in his arms, declaring: "I will tell you all I know if I swing for it."

Lefler's Alleged Confession.

The confession, as related by the police, was as follows: "I have been employed with Albert Kaltschmidt, who was manager of the Tate plant in Ford City, for four years.

"When the war started the plot to blow up factories making supplies and ammunition was first introduced to me by a man whom I met in Mr. Kaltschmidt's private office, who offered me $200 if I would handle the dynamite at the Tate plant.

"Several months ago this man commenced to smuggle dynamite over in his auto to Walkerville. This was stored in the vault of the Tate factory. Another man named Schmidt was to bring over the fuses and time clocks, and I was to supply the suitcases. I bought two of these in Detroit, and took them over to Walkerville without any questions being asked by the customs officers.

"The details of the plot were discussed in the office of this man in the Kresge Building, Grand Circus Park, Detroit. The part he took in the plot was to furnish me with money and smuggle the explosives over from Detroit."

Remanded For Eight Days.

Yesterday afternoon Lefler was arraigned before Magistrate Mirse of Walkerville. He was charged with conspiring with others to destroy pro-

Papers Will Be Collected

During the week of July 5, collectors in motors will call for the papers, magazines, pamphlets and books which the citizens of Peterborough have been asked to save. These papers, magazines, etc., will be shipped to the pulp mill and the money obtained from the sale will be used for supplies for military hospitals. The citizens are again appealed to, to save all papers, books, etc., until next week and are asked to please tie them securely in bundles, from eighteen inches to two feet high, so that they can be easily handled and tightly packed in the car. It will help the collectors if those who can do so will deliver their papers, books, magazines, etc., to the car which will be on a G.T.R. siding next week.

ROAD MAKING AS PUNISHMENT FOR LEAVE-TAKERS

IN FORT HENRY

KINGSTON, June 28.—About forty men of the 8th C.M.A. are confined in Fort Henry undergoing detention for being absent without leave. Lieut.-Col. Munro is determined that his men shall learn soldiering at this particular time is serious business, and must be taken as such by all in his battalions. As a punishment these men will be put to work on road making, in the hope that it will teach them and others that absence without leave is a serious offence.

Property Offered For Sunday Schools at Downer's and Nassau

It is reported that Adjutant McElhiney has received two offers of lots, one at Downer's Corners, the other at Nassau, as the locations of Sunday schools. It is stated that there is a need in both of these communities for accommodation and services similar to that provided at Brayley's in North Monaghan and Byersville. It is not known whether the Salvation Army intends to accept these offers which, it is stated on good authority, have been made.

PRINCE YUSUP IZZED-DIN

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, JUNE 28, 1915

OUR HOME-BRAND OF GERMAN CULTURE.

The whole of Europe groans under the manifestations of the German spirit, and the rest of the world stands aghast at the enormities of which it is the agent. Are we in Canada, are we in Peterborough, quite free from this spirit, one of whose most maleficient evidences is wanton destruction, cruelty for cruelty's sake "with no military advantage" as a justification.

A day or two ago a local doctor saw some bad boys trying to get at the nest of a robin in a tree. He prevented them for the moment; but as soon as his back was turned the young "Kaisers," determined to do their work of wanton destruction, stoned the nest till it fell from the tree, and the fledglings were helpless on the ground.

What spirit was it but the German spirit of destruction and lawlessness that prompted this act of cruelty, and disregard of law, civil and moral, and human?

With our twenty churches and Sunday schools, with our nearly as many secular schools, can one think such things possible? Do our religious teachings and our educational training risk no more denial. If the boys to question had had impressed effectively only the barest rudiments of morality and the qualities of good citizenship, such a thing as that related—as a specimen—could not have happened.

In the first place, the divine law of kindness and mercy was outraged and disregarded. Yesterday was what is known as "mercy Sunday" in the churches, when thousands of sermons were preached from the text—"Be ye also merciful as your father in Heaven is merciful." But cui bono? As far as such sermons in the past have affected some of the youth of the land, their lesson did not touch the conscience or reach the heart.

We should have taught, especially in our schools, the sacredness of bird life. The action of the lads was not only wanton and barbaric cruelty, but an outrage of economic law. The fact that if our bird life were destroyed we should starve, illustrates the service that birds do in destroying the insect life, which unprevented, would like the locusts, waste every green thing.

But such acts are not the only manifestations of the failure of churches and schools to eliminate the spirit of wanton mischief and lawlessness from the hearts of our boys.

There is hardly a whole pane of glass left in the windows of the old West Ward school building. Boys have broken them all by "firing" stones. Instance after instance of wanton destruction of property could be given.

This may be regarded by some as a small matter, which comparatively it is; but it becomes a tremendous matte. when we think what possibilities of evil to the community reside in such a spirit, such disregard of human and divine law, and all the duties of good citizenship.

Is it worth while training our youth in right ways? Is such traisng worth the trouble. We in Canada and the Empire are spending in war fifteen million dollars a day—in a weak a sum equal to the whole yearly revenue income of the Dominion of Canada. What for? To destroy the dominance of the very spirit which we see evidences of every day in our midst in a hundred forms.

What's the remedy? Since for some reason beyond human finding out, we can't get at the root of the trouble, through the agency of our churches and schools, we naturally look to the law of the land for relief.

We may not strike at the root of the evil of lawlessness in the city, but we can possibly prevent a little of the destructive lawlessness; we can at least try.

We have a police force of about a dozen, and if that is not enough we should have enough more appointed to permit of more effective patrolling of the outlying sections of the city.

Even the most lawless are afraid of the law—if it comes dangerously near. A policeman present in a neighbourhood has a deterrent effect upon lawlessness.

If we had two or three policemen circulating in different parts of the city, a good deal of the lawless action could be prevented.

If this patrol were made at odd times, but in the main irregularly regular, so that the presence in any particular neighbourhood could not be anticipated, bad boys would feel the constant risk of detection and would not take the risks; the feeling would soon grow and become general. Boys would soon feel that the game was not worth the candle—the risk of detection too great for the"fun" of doing wanton damage with "no military purpose served."

The public pay taxes for, among other things, the protection to be expected from the agency of the law, and when we have to come to meet evil force with legal force, we should have things so arranged that we get the worth of our money in this respect.

The Utilities Commission is placarding their light poles with offers of "$10 Reward!" for the detection of the breakers of lamps. Would it not be a better investment to prevent the breaking by adequate police protection? This provided would not only serve for the protection of the lamps, but incidentally afford protection, in other respects.

It seems that the subject is one worth thinking over. Something partially effective can certainly be done—by doing it.

We are sending our sons, the flower of our citizens, to fight against just such a spirit of disregard of rights, just such a spirit of wanton destruction, that is every day almost rampant, right here in Peterborough. German "kultur" is the same in spirit no matter what name is given it, or how, or where it is manifested.

THAT ATTACK ON KARLSRUHE

The attack upon Karlsruhe by French aeroplanes excites such savage rage in the hearts of German editors, what might they have to say if some day German towns and cities suffered at the hands of the Allies in the way Belgian and French towns and cities have suffered at the hands of the Germans? How would they express themselves if Aix-la-Chapelle, Cologne and Coblenz were treated as Louvain, Malines and Dinant have been treated?—New York Herald.

ENGLISH LABOUR IS READY.

It is not the lack of labour, nor the unwillingness of labour which has been responsible for the deficiencies in the past. It has been the failure of our administrative system to grapple fully with the unprecedented problem of supply, to organize the manufacturing resources of the country and to create the channels into which labour should flow. It is in this direction that organization is required. No whip is necessary for English labour.

CANADA TRUE TO TRADITION.

Including those already sent to Europe, Canada, according to an Ottawa estimate has recruited from 130,000 to 140,000 men for service in the European war. Thirty-five new regiments have been recently authorized, and enlistment is rapidly going on. And yet Germany is said to have believed that, with England involved in war, Canada and South Africa and the other British colonies would seize the opportunity to break away and assert their independence. The war has destroyed a great many illusions and this is not the least notable of them.—New York World.

THE COST OF "THAT LITTLE WORD"

Perhaps we have been a little led astray by President Wilson's diplomatic correctitude — possibly a little disappointed that no great American has risen to smite with the word that kills the jack-booted bully of Potsdam. Some of us may have made too little allowance for the difficulties of the United States Government; we may have underestimated the cost of the little word that would have told lacerated Belgium that her woes were sympathetically noted by the greatest neural Power.—London Standard.

FINE WORK BY THE FRENCH.

There has been no better fighting during the war than the succession of strokes which the French have been delivering at the enemy since the opening of spring. They have not been the great offensive which the military prophets were promising us, but they have trained the troops for it, and prepared the strategists for it, and given us every reason to hope that when the blow is struck the genius of the General will find the valor and the knowledge of the soldiers equal to the largeness of his conception. The unshakable confidence in final victory which M. Millerand expresses is no phrase. It is the conviction which British and French troops alike have won from the experience of these past months, heavy though they have been in their festing, bitter in their enduring, and costly in their demands.—London Daily News.

LABOUR DEPARTMENT STILL SNOOZING.

The Canadian Liberal Monthly's cartoon for June pictures the Hon. Mr. Crothers in a profound sleep instead of dealing in an energetic manner with the serious problem of unemployment in this country.

The cartoon is a timely one. The inaction of the Labour Department during the most trying period with which Canadian working men have been confronted in recent years has been astounding. Thousands of men who were out of work last winter are still wandering about the streets of our cities seeking employment. Every civic authority in Canada has been almost overwhelmed by deputations asking for work, not charity. The situation has been brought about by the almost complete cessation of work in railway construction and the building trades. Here surely is an emergency demanding prompt attention from the department established especially in the interests of labour. But what has that department done? Nothing whatever.

For all the influence that this department exercises on the welfare of the working classes, it might as well be non-existent. Under the present Government it would appear as though the Department of Labour exists for the purpose of providing a comfortable berth at a good salary for a member of the Conservative party.—Montreal Herald Telegraph.

CLIVEDEN HOSPITAL AND TIMELY RED CROSS NOTES

Amongst the many hospitals where our sick and wounded soldiers are being brought back to health, there is perhaps no institution which will appeal to Canadians more than the Duchess of Connaught hospital at Cliveden, a beautiful country house, along the upper reaches of the Thames, which was given to the British War Office by Waldorf Astor.

The covered tennis court, probably the finest in the country, with its appendages, cut by the golf links, and close to the football ground, within the screen of the woods, has been turned into a hospital building, capable of holding over one hundred patients. This accommodation has since been increased to five hundred beds.

The following interesting description of his hospital is taken from a London paper:

"What between the donors of the building and the Canadian Red Cross Society, this hospital is a model. The great height of the building and its glass roof insure the wards being flooded with light and air. The operating room is one of which any hospital might be proud. The X-ray room, though small, has received high praises. The laboratory, the medical stores, the disinfection and other features of the equipment are all of the best that can be got.

"The whole atmosphere is cheerful. There are beds in the wards by which one does not linger — beds where the signs of pain or of exhaustion are woefully patent. For the most part smiling faces greet one, and the men are laughing and talking in contentment as they sit knitting or smoking. Just outside on the terrace is a row of beds. Every man fit to come out spends so many hours of the day out here where he may watch his stronger fellows playing bowls or football. No wonder that the wounded heal quickly, and the prostrate dream and sleep themselves smoothly back to strength.

The staff consists of twenty officers 33 nurses and 10 non-commissioned officers and men, with many female cooks and servants. All this will mean a considerable outlay of money.

It should be remembered that this hospital is a Canadian institution in every way. It is manned by Canadian doctors, and nurses, by Canadian non-commissioned officers and men; it receives Canadian wounded, and is supported and kept up by Canadian money. It only remains for the Canadian people as a whole to give their whole-hearted financial support to this Canadian hospital, where our own fellow countrymen will be brought back to health and strength.

While the public is generously answering the appeal for tobacco for the Canadian soldiers at the front, a very large amount is still needed and will be needed continuously as the war progresses. Tobacco in tins is specially welcome as are cigarettes of all kinds. Tobacco in packages, a large number of which have reached the head office of the Canadian Red Cross Society in Toronto, is not very welcome as it soon becomes dried up and almost unfit for use by the time it arrives at the front.

There can be no doubt of the importance of tobacco in the present crisis. Even those who oppose its use as a matter of principle will admit this. Tobacco has played its part in every war, from Waterloo to the Balkans. It is playing a tremendous part in this, the greatest war in history. Tobacco is a solace and has won and lost battles. It is stated that smokers are far more immune than non-smokers to "Occipital Cramps," and other neurasthenic ailments caused by the terrible ordeal of shell fire.

Strange as it may seem, there is a greater consumption of tobacco by those who have nothing to do with fighting in war. The war throughout the world has stimulated men, who, roused from the humdrum of their regular lives, consume more tobacco when such an excitement as the great war is on. The consumption is greater now because this war touches more men than any war since history began.

Nothing is better than tobacco to relieve the necessary tedium of convalescence, when the soldier, too weak as yet for any active physical employment, finds the time hang heavy on his hands. Further, no greater proof of [illegible] could be performed than the sending of tobacco to prisoners whose life at the best can scarcely be considered one of pleasure. In short those who know anything about men under nervous tension, know that tobacco is even more of a necessity than food. It is to be hoped that the public will think generously of this matter.

EAST CITY AND THISTLES WERE SATURDAY'S WINNERS

Don McCabe's Team After Two Losses to the Classics Successful in Third Attempt After Hard Fought Game—Thistles Had Little Difficulty in Beating the Empires.

	Won.	Lost.	To Play
East City	5	2	5
Thistles	4	3	5
Classics	3	4	5
Empires	2	5	5

This is the standing of the City Baseball League following Saturday's games, when East City beat the Classics 8 to 7 and Thistles easily won from the Empires 14 to 1.

The clash between East City and the Classics, although not the best played game of the season, was one of the most exciting, as it was of the see-saw variety, with both teams fighting it out all the way. The Classics had beaten East City twice before and another victory on Saturday would have left East City, Classics and Thistles tied for first place. However, Manager Fowler's team failed to turn the trick, although they made it a close fit for the league leaders. It was a battle of the kind that makes the fans sit up all the way. Neither pitcher was a mystery to the hitters, and the fielding was shaky, with the result that there was something doing every minute. East City shoved across a big four in the second and led for the greater part of the game. Classics came back with four in the seventh and took the lead, only to lose it again in the East City half of the same innings, when Dan McCabe's team scored twice. It was 7 to 6 against them when the Classics went to bat in the ninth and they tied the game up, only to lose out when East City took their last innings. The Classics took all kinds of chances on the bases and got away with most of it, scoring twice on double steals.

East City started the scoring in the second. Lowe opened with a single through second, and Barrie also hit safely. Swanston fanned, but Guerin dropped a safety to left, filling the bases. Primeau flied to right. With two out Kirn singled through third, scoring Lowe and Barrie. Butcher followed with another single, sending Guerin and Kirn in and going to third on Frost's bad throw to the plate. Hagerman ended the innings by striking out.

The Classics got two back in the third. With one out Hatrick walked and stole second and third. Davis also walked and purloined second, and Frost's hard single to left centre scored both runners. Frost was out stealing.

In the fifth with two out, Shaw singled and stole second, scoring on Lowe's single.

The Classics made their big spurt in the seventh. Hatrick started the trouble with a single and stole second, going to third on a wild pitch. Rose walked. On a double steal Hatrick scored and Rose was safe at second. Hagerman dropping the throw. Davis flied to Barrie and McDonald fanned, and the trouble seemed to be over. However, O'CoCnnell singled through the box and then stole second. Captain Neary was there in a pinch, singled to right and Rose and O'Connell scored. Anderson's single send Neary to third, and once again the double steal was pulled, Neary scoring, and Anderson being safe at second. Kenneally ended the innings with a fly to Hagerman.

Classics did not hold the lead long. With one out, Hagerman beat out a roller in front of the plate. Bill Shaw followed with a beautiful triple to deep right, scoring Hagerman, and counting himself when Hatrick made a wild heave fo the plate. Lowe singled, but was forced by Barrie. Swanston also singled, but Guerin flied to Hatrick.

There was no scoring in the eighth, a fast double play by Barrie, Hagerman and Guerin saving trouble in the Classics' half.

In the ninth Manager Fowler's team made a bid for the game. McDonald opened with a single and O'Connell also hit safely. Neary flied to Lowe. Anderson hit to Kirn, forcing McDonald at third. With two out Kenneally singled, scoring O'Connell with the tying run. Kenneally stole second, but G. Rose ended the innings by striking out.

Hagerman opened the East City half with a double to left. Shaw flied to Anderson. Lowe was safe on O'Connell's fumble, Hagerman going to third. Barrie died on a bounder to Neary, who had a chance for a double play when Lowe ran down to third. He played safe, however, and did not throw. Then Swanston wound up the game with a single through short.

With good pitching the Empires can give any of the teams a battle. They didn't have it Saturday and were badly beaten by the Thistles. J. Neary, who started the twirling for the Empires, had nothing and was found for six runs in the first innings, while Heenan, who was yanked in from centre field to the rescue, was also hit hard. He hasn't pitched for several years, but was an improvement on the first twirler. Huycke started for the winners and held the Empires scoreless until two were out in the fifth when he and Smythe changed places. Smythe was also in good form, allowing only three hits. The only run scored by the losers was made by Cherrett, who started to steal home with two out. Corin, who was at bat, crossed everybody with a bunt which he beat out and the base runners scored. The Thistles hit the ball hard, Munro and Long having triples and Knapman two doubles.

LAWN BOWLING

Bowling on the green xcells, for healthful exercise. It is not so strenous as some.

Yet the act of bowling is well calculated to maintain the various organs in their normal condition.

The lungs expand with the pure outer air, enriching the vitality and for the time being, the player forgets how he makes his bread, and returns to his work with renewed nerve.

By diligence you can become a good bowler.

We have a President who could never have been taught or acquired his bowling talent. His skill on the green is something uncanny.

In the "good old times" he surely would have been burned as a wizard.

He can roll a bowl around a wide corner of obstructing bowls and make it describe a letter "S" around the kitty, and then come back and hit the desired bowl on the left cheek and just so place it that it always brings woe to his opponent.

This is what we call being born with the talent.

The writer is merely acquiring the art, sometmes his erratic bowls arrive half way up the green, and sometimes on a wrong bias they go wandering outside the boundaries when, in bowling parlance, they are dead.

But you know, if it were not for boys like these to keep the average down, our rinks would be phenomenal.

The writer plays the same part as the sod does on the boy's kite — he steadies them.

There will be a meeting on the green to-night to make final arrangements for bowlers to go to Oshawa. Everybody who can is expected to be there.

Electric locomotives powerful enough to haul 300-ton trains up steep grades, have been adopted by a new Swiss railroad.

LORD FISHER'S SUCCESSOR; ADMIRAL SIR HENRY B. JACKSON —He is an expert in torpedoes and the submarine. But it must be remembered above all that he is a very practical as well as scientific seaman; witness the fact that he commanded the Sixth Cruiser Squadron in the Mediterraneon for two years; and, especially, that he was in command of the Royal Naval War College from 1911 until 1913, and became Chief of the War Staff in 1912. Last year he was appointed Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean. He was born at Barnsley on January 21, 1868, and entered the navy in 1885. His appointment is everything that could be desired; he is a fine sailor and a master-mind.

BELGIUM IS NOT ENTIRELY DESOLATE--REBUILDING CITIES

Surrounded by green fields that portend an unusual havest and transform all Belgium from the scene of desolation that has been often pictured since the beginning of war, Louvain still stands as a monumental wreck. Little of its former life has crept back into its streets and the walls of practically all of its buildings are still crumbling ruins that have not been removed and apparently will not be. Here and there a wooden shack has been erected by some enterprising vendor of tobacco or post cards, but as a city it is still uninhabitable.

Yet Louvain is not entirely dead, and in one most important particular work of renovation is going on apace — the renovation and restitution of its wonderful cathedral, which escaped complete destruction only by a seeming miracle. The church now is in the hands of a score of workmen who are painstakingly restoring those portions of the walls which are shaky or damaged, the little panes of glass—not stained glass — which were blown out by bomb explosions, and the altar which was burned by a shell that caught fire after it tore through the roof above.

Competent architects who have visited the cathedral say that it has not been weakened by the constant shelling that destroyed the rest of Louvain, and claim that with a very little money it can be put back into the shape in which it was before the war. The beautiful stained glass in the windows to the rear of the altar is absolutely undamaged. The altar picture was removed before the shell came which tore open the roof, and the majority of the works of art and other valuables in the building are now safely stored in the basement of Hotel de Ville across the way — almost the only other structure in Louvain that was not razed.

It is conceivably only Louvain's total demolition that has prevented efforts to rebuild it, for that has been accomplished in many other of the Belgian cities that were wrecked by the Germans as they advanced toward France. It has been accomplished so completely in some cases that the ignorant visitor would never know there had been any war in the little country.

This is true of Namur to the southward. Namur played a conspicuous part in the early days of the war, and by no means escaped without damage, yet little of it is in evidence to-day, particularly among the forts that were held to be invincible, and that to-day probably are so. Standing high above the River Meuse, these forts present an absolutely unbroken and undamaged appearance. Where the great shells burst in the masonry one can only guess at, for the holes are gone. Only the hotel at the very top of the hill on which the fortifications are built is still in a state of ruin.

In this hotel, so goes the story that many maintain is a fairy tale, there was the telephone central into which ran the wires from all the forts. The Germans, advancing, are supposed to have learned of this vital fact, and to have trained their guns effectively on this building first of all, so that the connecting lines were cut and no one fort had any means of communication with any other.

The German officers in Namur to-day, smile as they tell the story and shake their heads. They admit that it is quite possible that the Germans should have learned the secret of the position of "Central," and also that the aim of the guns might have been accurate enough to destroy the building, but they cannot quite believe that the Belgians could have made so great a military mistake as to expose their lines of communication, and prefer to think that the hotel was burned in incendiary fashion and the loss blamed on to the invaders.

In the country portions of Belcium to-day there is scarcely a trace of war beyond an occasional ruined building. As in Northern France, the landscape is infinitely more attractive than of old because the extensive culture of sugar beets, with their brown growth has been discontinued, and wheat and corn, with green shoots, have been substituted.

The destruction in Belgium may have been overestimated and exaggerated in the beginning. Whether that or not, the combination of the reconstruction efforts of the victors and invaders, and the forces of nature in the springtime have made of it once more a pleasantly smiling country that taxes the imagination to draw a picture of war in progress.

BASEBALL

An all star team from the Peterborough City League will clash with the Lindsay all stars on Saturday afternoon in what should prove one of the most interesting games of the season. Three Wives of George Smith Met Death In a Bath Tub

Latest Murder Was Reconstructed in the Courtroom—Witnesses at Trial Refer to Sixth Wife of Accused—Honeymooners Took Walk at Noon—"Dead in Tub" in Afternoon.

LONDON, June 28—George Joseph Smith, husband of three wives, who died in their baths and who is now on trial charged with the murder of one of them, whom he married as Beatrice Mundy, had to face the ordeal of a partial reconstruction in court of the scene immediately after the death of Alice Burnham, second of the three brides.

The bath tub in which Alice Burnham met her death was placed on a table in the court room while a physician, Dr. Billings, illustrated how, when he was summoned to the house where the couple lived, he found Smith supporting his wife's head just above the surface of the tub full of water. The witness testified the woman's head was toward the narrow end of the tub. A previous witness had testified that he had found an abnormal quantity of woman's hair at the round, broad end of the tub.

Evidence was then introduced to show that Smith had purchased annunity insurance from a company after the woman's death. The trial judge explained to the jury that the significance of the evidence was that the prisoner in October told an insurance agent he would have $2,000 or $2,500 to invest in an annuity on his birthday in January.

"On the arrival of his birthday in January," said the judge, "he did have such a sum to invest, and that money was insurance money, payable upon his wife's death."

The case of the third bride, Margaret Lofty, was then opened. She died in her bath in a house in Highgate.

Made Her Will.

Other witnesses offered by the Crown to-day in the so-called bath tub murder trial testified that the prisoner's sixth wife visited a lawyer and made her will on the morning of December 18, the day after the wedding, leaving $3,500 to Smith. The "honeymooners" took a walk at noon. Early in the afternoon, witnesses testified, Smith ran downstairs, shouting "My God, she's dead, in the tub."

Boarders rushed upstairs on the heels of Smith. Their testimony echoed that of witnesses who told of the mysterious deaths of the prisoners' other wives. They said they saw the prisoner bending over the tub, holding the head of the dead woman.

Husband Got $2,500.

More damaging evidence was offered by the Crown at this afternoon's session. An insurance inspector testified that in October, 1913, Smith invested in life insurance and told him that in January, 1914, he would have another $2,500 to invest. Alice Burnham Smith was found dead on December 12, 1913, and her will brought Smith exactly $2,500.

The inspector's testimony closed the Alice Burnham case and the Crown began presenting evidence in the case of Margaret Elizabeth Lofty, the prisoner's sixth wife, who was found dead in a bath tub while on her honeymoon at Highgate, December 17th, 1914, after willing the prisoner $3,500.

From Scotland Yard.

Under the name of John Lloyd, Smith, according to Scotland Yard detectives, who were the first witnesses, married the Lofty woman exactly three months after he had taken a fifth wife.

Mrs. Emma Heiss of Orchard road, Highgate, testified that the prisoner with the Lofty woman attempted to rent rooms in her lodging house at Highgate. Smith first inquired if she had a bathroom, she testified. She said she did not like Smith's looks, and declined to admit the couple. Later they took rooms in Bismarck road at Highgate.

The case will be resumed to-day.

Britain at Last Awakened To the Gravity of the Peril In the Terrible Life Wastage

(By G. W. Smalley in the New York Tribune.)

LONDON, June 28.—Bronzed from the front to which he returns to-day, Earl Stanhope told the House of Lords, in substance:

"The French hold their trenches by their wonderful 75-m gunfire.

Never before has the truth been told so tersely. He added:

"Every day wasted at the factories means more lives lost at the front."

And meanwhile the Prime Minister was telling the House of Commons that the casualties to the British Army since the beginning of the war now amount to 258,000. He omitted to add that 119,000 of these have befallen within the last seven weeks.

Lord Stalbridge, also from and for the front, said the troops were asking: "When will the people at home send us the guns and shells we need?" And Lord St. Davids said:

"Victory is not yet won or begun."

The Cabal in the House.

With this handful of facts in mind, look at the House of Commons and what it is doing. True, it has passed the Ministry of Munitions bill, a most useful and necessary measure. But in what spirit and by what concessions? In a spirit which allowed old party animosities to lift their heads, and by concessions which amount almost to a surrender. The Irish and the Radicals snarled at the Government, Mr. Dillon, Mr. Outhwaite, Mr. Pringle, Mr. Philip Snowden, the Socialist, denounced and derided every notion of disciplined effort.

Mr. Lloyd George is Minister, but he has been discredited; his Manchester proposals are abandoned; he himself is thrown over by his one-time Radical friends and, in respect of compulsory service, by his present colleagues. He gets under this new bill no power which did not exist before. He has no power of compulsion; hardly even a power of effective organization except by the consent and good will of men who, like the Liverpool labourers, have shown themselves hitherto deaf to every appeal of patriotism and reason. They stayed away last week-end from their work exactly as they had stayed away before. Mr. Lloyd George had gone to Liverpool to persuade them to be patriots. He talked in vain, and control over them he has none.

Prophets of Gloom.

Well may Lord St. Davids say that victory is not yet won or begun. Well may Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, the leading journalist of the great Nonconformist body, say that the next three months of the war will be "extremely critical for the Allies." Well may Mr. Lambert, late Civil Lord of the Admiralty, say that the Ordnance Department of the War Office has failed in its duty. Well may the friends of the late Ministry lament the supineness of wasted months.

National Service alone can win the war, and to the enforcement of National Service not a step has yet been taken. There is still a great mass of public opinion which is inert. The patriotism is there. The capacity is there. But discipline and organization are still to seek. And because they are still to seek the casualties at the front are 2,000 a day, 5,600 a day, 20,00 in a week, 119,000 in seven weeks!

The Government Attacked.

The hopes of the country are centred in its Government; which its friends call a National Government and its enemies a Coalition Government. But whatever you call it this new Government has yet to assert its authority and to prove itself more efficient than the Government which went down in ruin a fortnight ago. Over Parliament it has established no control. With the country it remains an unknown force. When it was formed I called it an experiment. You do not expect an experiment to succeed or fail in a fortnight but it might make a beginning.

It is attacked; but what Government is not attacked? The attacks upon it this week are party attacks; or it might be truer to say faction attacks. The men I named above are not exactly the men to overthrow a Ministry which contains pretty much all the available political talent of the Kingdom, but they showed their teeth. Mr. Dillon says the new Ministry is seeking to Prussianize England; and, of course, Ireland, which to his mind has always been Prussianised. It is no longer a "Home Rule Ministry," he cries, and his friends cry. There is a chorus in which Irish, Labour Members and Socialistic Radicals join.

The nucleus of a formidable Opposition has already been formed. Old supporters of the old Ministry have united against the new Ministry. Sir Henry Dalziel, Mr. Handel Booth, Mr. King and many more pursue it with questions, with innunendoes, with taunts, with threats. In the end, they contented themselves with the heads of Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill. I do not mean that either of these Ministers, both the darlings of the Back Benches in old days, has been driven from office. It is only their policy which their colleagues have sacrificed to still the tumult of a Parliamentary mob.

Mr. Asquith's Way.

Mr. Asquith's disposition is to make the best of things. When the fury of the onslaught has spent itself on Tuesday he testified to the "admirable spirit" in which it had been conducted. To some of his associates, certainly to the Unionists and certainly to the public, the spirit seemed deplorable, but when Mr. Asquith thinks it needful to be conciliatory, he goes to great lengths. And he had this excuse: His new Ministry is new and it is not yet firm in its new place; nor perhaps are these incongruous ministerial personalities wholly yet at harmony among themselves. Yet the authority of a Cabinet must depend on the cohesion among its members. And cohesion, as Chatham said of confidence, is a plant of slow growth. There has not yet been time. Even a homogeneous Ministry, a Ministry all of one party and of all the Talents, does not find its bearings in a fortnight.

I put it all in a sentence or two, rejecting the temptation of details. When the spoils were divided between the two sections of the Coalition the whole Liberal hierarchy was left in possession of Ireland — Lord Lieutenant, Chief Secretary, Agricultural Board— everything. That was Mr. Redmond's demand. He had refused to come into the Coalition; he was an outsider; he had no standing, but he had his way. The Unionists asked for but a single Irish appointment—Mr. Campbell as Lord Chancellor —and this Mr. Asquith promised them.

Instantly Mr. Redmond was up in arms. He brought over his forces; he came himself; he menaced Mr. Asquith with anew Irish Opposition and a vote of censure. The thin layer of patriotism he had assumed last August had worn off. Mr. Redmond posed once more as a House of Commons Warwick, a maker and unmaker of Ministries if not of Kings. The Radicals backed him and promised him one hundred votes. Mr. Campbell was an Ulstermen, an Ulster "Rebel"; Sir Edward Carson's right hand man; odious to all Nationalists; and as Lord Chancellor would hold the Irish Bench in his own hands. Down with him.

The crisis lasted a week or more. The chief Radical organ in the London Press declared it a question of "Campbell or Coalition" —in other words, if Mr. Campbell were made Lord Chancellor the Coalition Government should go down. Such is the degree of national spirit in that quarter. Mr. Asquith's pledged word was scoffed at—"would it be the first pledge he has broken?" The hopes of the country, the efficient conduct of the war, the hopes of victory, all centre in this National Government. What are they to an Irish or Radical grievance? It is not the war, but of what may happen after the war that Irish and Radical are thinking Whether they will then have a country in which anything may happen is a detail.

The Usual Compromise.

But after a week of dangerous intrigue and suspense the crisis was disposed of in the usual way. There was a compromise. Mr. Campbell from the beginning behaved as the loyal patriot he is. He pressed no personal claim. He put himself in the hands of the Government. The promise of the Prime Minister goes the way of other promises. The Ministerial Coalition surrenders to the Irish-Radical Coalition. Mr. Campbell, probably the best lawyer in Ireland, is not to be oLrd Chancellor. The Unionists, subduing party to patriotism, renounce their rights. Mr. Ignatius O'Brien, the present Nationalist Lord Chancellor, remains Lord Chancellor. Mr. John Gordon, a Unionist, becomes Attorney General. Mr. Campbell may or may not receive an English judgeship as a consolation prize. Home Rule wins another victory. The Ministry emerges from the struggle still a Ministry. Mr. Redmond returns to Ireland with another leaf to his many-leaved shamrock.

A Black Moment.

I have painted a black picture. It is a true picture of the moment, but not of the future. I do not believe the Government will be overcome by this or any other factious opposition. It will survive these animosities. They are infinitely petty and trivial. Ministers have only to rise to the full height of their mission and of their country's need, and they will triumph. The country, the nation, a huge amorphorous, uncertain, half-doubtful, half-blind, still in part indicerent mass ,and struggling to its feet and to the light. Once really roused, it will win, and there is still every reason to hope that this National Government will lead them to victory.

After considerable correspondence and a very large expense, the Special Attraction Committee of the Port Hope Dominion Day celebration, have secured the services of Professor Hardy, the world's most celebrated high-wire walker. Mr. Hardy was recommended to the committee by Mr. J. O. Orr, Manager of the Toronto Exhibition, and Mr. Orr's recommendation was that Mr. Hardy had no equal. He performs stunts on the wire that would appear almost impossible. A further recommendation of his ability is that on July 4th he opens a season's engagement at White City, Chicago. Gallant Work of Canadians Wounded From Recent Fighting At Festaubert Arrive in England

LONDON, June 26.—A party of 46 wounded Canadians has just arrived at the Duchess of Connaught Hospital, Cliveden, mostly victims of the Festubert fight in the last week of May. This time they are not quite so badly used up as the men who came through the Ypres engagements.

Private D. S. W. Best, of the 3rd battalion of Toronto, had a narrow escape of being shot fatally, as the bullet which struck him lodged in the top of his skull. He is doing well, however. Private Best took part in a big action about the middle of June, in which he thinks the Queen's Own suffered heavily later.

Among several of the party who had been poisoned by gas was James Burke, of Vancouver, a member of the Princess Patricias. Burke had been put hors de combat on May 24. He says the men have a new type of respirator served out, but that they occasionally neglect to use it. All are unanimous in emphasizing the need for high explosives.

Storming the Trenches.

The Canadian Associated Press correspondent has gleaned further particulars of the gallant work achieved by the Western Ontario battalion in last week's fighting. The battalion was subjected to a heavy fire on the left when they went forward and captured for the time being three trenches. The charge was led by Major Smith, the battalion having been reinforced by men from the 101st Edmonton Fusiliers, a number of Edmonton men being among the wounded. If the division on the left had been able to advance with the same rapidity the trenches would undoubtedly have been held, but in the face of the terrific German fire the Canadians were obliged to relinquish them.

Chained to Guns.

The first forward movement was made by mine explosions leading to the enemy trench. The dust and debris assisted in obscuring the Canadians, who advanced shouting, "Gas Devils," which it appears has been agreed upon as the battle-cry. On arrival at the first trench a number of Germans were found chained by the waist and padlocked to the machine guns. "The majority of the Germans had already gone," said an Edmonton man, who took part in the engagement, "but some remained, pumping lead into us as long as they could. When we reached them they threw up their hands crying, 'Comrades.'"

Officer's Heroism.

A thrilling story is narrated concerning the heroism of Lieut. Campbell, of the machine gun section. After reaching one of the enemy's trenches he was unable to get a satisfactory position for his machine gun. It was when the Germans were pouring a heavy fire, not only from the front, but on the left of the Canadians. Lieut. Campbell, desirous of meeting the attack on the left, knelt down in the trench and supported the gun on his back while his corporal fired it. Campbell was severely wounded. The men of the battalion speak in high terms of his brilliant example and courage at all times.

ITALY ANXIOUS TO FIGHT OLD ENEMY

Newly Arrived Consul Discusses Situation in his Country—Italy Has Prepared for Long Contest—Has Two Million Soldiers.

EVERYTHING SETTLED

TORONTO, June 28.— Fresh from the Italian capital, where he appears to have caught some of the fighting instinct of the ancient Roman, Signor Calametea Marino, the newly-arrived representative of the Italian Government in Toronto, declares that the cause of the allies is the cause of the nation. Italy, he asserts, will fight to the end, and furthermore, she did not go into the conflict until she had made adequate preparations for a long campaign, or before she had settled in advance just what territory is coming to her when the successful end has been won.

There is no possibility of conflict with Serbia over the possession of seaports or other territory on the Albanian coast, Signor Marino assures since all that has been arranged in advance.

"Italy is now satisfied," he states. "She is fighting her ancient enemy, Austria, and she will wrest from her the old Italian possessions of Trente and Triest. Italy is not grasping, she is merely fighting to get back her own and to liberate her people from the yoke of Austria. Experience has shown us that Italy must have naval ports on both sides of the Adriatic. If Italian cities are to be safe, and that is another of the conditions upon which Italy fights. Of course she must win it."

Italy is Enthusiastic.

Signor Marina, who is young, just over thirty years of age, dark featured, black-haired, and with eyes which sparkle with their eagerness, told of the enthusiasm which pervades the whole Italian nation at the prospect of delivering a blow at Austria.

"Mothers are giving up whole families of sons, with a smile," he declared. "And the sons do not care what happens to them so long as they are striking at Austria. You will find that everywhere, in every city. No, there is no trouble with the Church, nor is there anything real behind the suggestion that the Holy See be removed to Spain. There may have been some difficulty at first, before everybody understood, but now there is no more enthusiastic body than is the Church. The clergy all through the nation have risen nobly to do their duty."

Will Help Reservists.

One of Signor Marino's duties will be to arrange a free passage to Europe for some 1,500 Italian reservists, who expect to leave soon. Speaking of the Italian army, the consult states that Italy to-day has almost 2,000,000 men along a battle fron of 330 miles. The navy is at in the air fleet there are some 200 craft. The King is in personal command of the troops at the front, while the Queen is personally supervising the Red Cross work.

Chester's New Store

The new dry goods and clothing store of B. Chester, which was opened for the first time on Saturday in the Lundy block, George street, opposite the Opera House, was greeted with a fair patronage. The opening prices were all below regular and the bargains were many and varied. The window dressing was quite effective, everything being ticketed in large figures. The store was stocked with a general assortment of new goods, all bought at close prices, and the values given now no doubt bring customers back again.

Tug O'War Sides Dwindled From 25 To 2 When Rope Broke Three Times

But Married and Single Men Were Determined to Decide a Winner in Spite of the Spills—Milk Vendors Had Fine Picnic.

A weather-beaten rope at the Milkmen's Picnic turned an old-fashioned tug o' war into an amusing burlesque that is still tickling those who witnessed it. The married men guaranteed to drag the bachelors all over the garden at Jubilee, and the new proprietor, Fred Finnie, produced a rope that seamed strong enough, although there were unmistakable signs of age about it. Well, with the usual fuss and bragging twenty-five of the married men arrayed themselves against twenty-five of their unhappy brothers. Every man proceeded to dig himself in, according to the most approved methods of tug o'waring, and George Downer, the married anchor, located himself in a shallow pit from which wild elephants couldn't drag him, so he said.

Albert Hunter was judge when he said "go" and fifty husky milkmen, mechanics, business men and others, snapped the rope tightly, feeling out every strand. And while they were also straining every muscle the rope parted in the middle. Twenty-five tuggers turned reverse cartwheels in one direction, and the other twenty-five rolled backward in the opposite direction. They managed to pick themselves out of the tangle while the crowd recovered from a big laugh.

The rope was tied up with a guarantee not to break and the opposing sides were reduced to twelve men. As usual in all these cases there was the usual endless arguments before the new volunteers were set to work. In spite of the previous experience they put all their energy into the pull and again the rope parted, spilling the twenty-four men in two opposite directions. By this time both sides were determined to settle the matter if they stayed all week at it. Two men aside, selected, after careful inventories, were drawn up in the third stage of the struggle. It was reported that the rope broke a third time but that the decision was won by the benedicts. At any rate the bachelors were noticed smoking cigars. But it was a great victory for the representatives of the married state.

Jim Carney was one of the two benedicts and Bob Dolby was one of the two final bachelors.

THE YOUNGER SON

The younger son he's earned his bread in ways both hard and easy,
From Parramatta to the Pole, from Yukong to Zambesi;
For young blood is roving blood, and a far road's best,
And when you're tired of roving there'll be time enough to rest.

And it's "Hello!" and "How d'ye do?" —"Who'd ha' thought of meeting you! Thought you were in Turkestan, or China or Peru?"—
It's a long trail in peace time where the roving Britons stray;
But in war-time, in war-time; it's just across the way!

He's left the pots to wash themselves in Canada's caboose;
He's left the mine and logging camp, the penny, pick and plow,
For young blood is fighting blood, and England needs him now.

And it's "Hello!" and "How d'ye do, How's the world been using you? What's the news of Calgary, Quebec and Carlboo?"
It's a long trail in peace-time where the roving Britons stray,
But in war-time, in war-time, it's just across the way!

No road to rough for him to tread, no land too wide to wander;
For young blood is roving blood, and the spring of life is best,
And when all the fighting's done, lad, there's time enough to rest.

And it's good-bye, tried and true, here's a long farewell to you (Rolling stone from Mexico, Shanghai or Timbuctoo!)
Young blood is roving blood, but the best sleep is best,
When the fighting all is done, lad, and it's time to rest!

A wag said that he could prove by the prayerbook that man was entitled to 16 wives. For better, 4 worse, 4 richer, 4 poorer; total 16.

The Committee's Report on The School Question

Suspension of Teacher's Certificate Was Investigated by a Committee of the County Council—Ratepayers Satisfied With Progress of Pupils.

INSPECTOR EXPLAINS

The Comimttee of the County Council appointed to consider the action of School Inspector Brokerick in cancelling the teaching certificate of Miss Graham, School Section No 3, Harvey Township, made the following report:

Present: Messrs. Kindred, (Warden), and Shaw and Mr. Broderick, and Miss Graham.

At the suggestion of the Warden, Miss Graham stated her views of the stand the Public School Inspector took with reference to her certificates and her position as teacher in the above section. She claims the Inspector, on receiving her certificate, placed it in his pocket, refusing to return it. The certificates she claims, is a Normal Entrance Certificate.

The Inspector explained the difference between a second class and Normal Entrance Certificate, stating that he forwarded the certificate to the Department.

Mr. Shearer, the Secretary of such section, explained the difficulties the Board have had in securing teachers. He stated that after advertising they selected Miss Graham, from the fact that they deemed she had qualifications equal to a Normal certificate. As a result after three weeks teaching we entered into an agreement with Miss Graham.

With respect to Mr. Broderick's correspondence both Miss Graham and myself replied and as a result the Inspector requested that her term cease at Easter, but due to the almost impossibility of securing teachers and the agreement we had entered into, we kept Miss Graham until midsummer on condition that she resign at midsummer, which she did.

Mr. Shearer asked the Committee if they considered that the Section should be deprived of their Government grants according to the threats of the Inspector.

The Inspector explained that advertising as he suggested would have secured competent teachers. No teacher should apply for a school unless he or she holds a certificate.

Miss Graham explained how she had prepared an agreement giving one month's notice, but the Board insisted on three months' notice, prior to resignation or severing connection with the Board.

Mr. Shaw explained that although Miss Graham is successor to two first class teachers, viz., Misses Flinn and Weir, yet the ratepayers were satisfied with the progress of their children under Miss Graham.

The Inspector explained that he had the regulations to live up to and unless circumstances over which the Board had control, he must live up up to them.

Mr. Shaw opined that the Inspector since he knew the Board were going to make a change at midsummer, that it would have been better in the interests of the Entrance Class to have assisted the teacher in placing those pupils in as good a position as possible, as it is, only three are now trying, due to the scare their teacher received.

The Committee and the School Board are both anxious to have Miss Grohom's certificate returned to her.

The Warden expressed the opinion that a young lady who spends time and money to secure a certificate should not be deprived of the same, and he would advise the Board to appeal to the Department to return such certificate from the fact that Miss Graham did not deceive the Board in any way.

The Inspector agreed if such steps were taken he would be satisfied, also Miss Graham stated she would be satisfied.

H. C. KINDRED,
Warden.
ROBERT SHAW,
Member of Committee.

WOGO TAMKOSITSCH

Germans say he is the cause of the great war, and in a sense this is so. He is credited with being the man who plotted the Sarajevo assassination. He is specifically named in Austria's ultimatum to Serbia as one of those Serbian officers whose trial Austria wished to conduct, this being the rock on which negotiations broke. Tamkositsch is now a major in the Serbia army. This is his first authentic picture.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

What's Doing in Civic Circles—Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

A meeting of the Central Charity Board is called for this evening. The world undertaken by the Board is now at low ebb, where it will likely remain until the approach of fall, and the seasonal suspension of work.

Recording the Traffic.

For some days past a man has been stationed at the corner of Reid and McDonnel streets, presumably for the purpose of recording traffic conditions at that particular point. This follows the announcement of the Peterborough Radial Railway to extend their tracks along McDonnell street.

Oiling the Streets.

The work of oiling the streets throughout the city is progressing. It will be some time before the entire city is covered. The work when completed once will amount to approximately fifteen miles of roadway. This will require two applications.

Complaints Are on the Decrease.

Sanitary Inspector Spence reports a very gratifying decrease in the number of complaints respecting the collection of garbage. This is taken as an indication that the contractors are fulfilling the terms of their contract.

Council Meeing.

It is altogether likely that a Council meeting will be held to-morrow evening for the purpose of dealing with the question of laying three or four blocks of concrete pavement on some one street in the city. This will be the third or fourth meeting at which the above question has been discussed.

Regular Monthly Meeting.

One week from to-day the regular monthly meeting of the City Council will be held. The report of the Utilities Commission regarding additional street lighting will be presented at this meeting.

WITH OTHER MUNICIPALITIES.

The city of Brantford has held out large offers for the electrification of the Lake Erie and Northern Railway.

Petition Signed.

A long petition has been signed by residents of Cobalt and other northern towns, to be sent to Ottawa, asking the internment of all alien enemies.

WATCHMAN CONFESSES HIS PART IN CONSPIRACY

perty and endanger life. Without being asked to plead he was remanded for eight days, and was sent to Sandwich jail.

The police believe that Lefler's chief is the head of an organized gang of German spies, and that he engineered the attempt to destroy a railway bridge in Maine a few months ago. Schmidt, the other man named, is not known to the police, but they say he also took an active part in a big German meeting of recent date held in Detroit.

Confession Believed Genuine.

Crown Attorney Rodd declared that, as the plot was hatched in Detroit, the fellow-conspirators of Lefler would come under the jurisdiction of the United States laws.

"I have," he said, "made a preliminary charge against the two men mentioned by Lefler in his confession, but that can be changed at any time. There is no doubt that Lefler's confession is genuine. I shall certainly urge the government to name him as one of the principles in the plot.

"I am doubtful whether Lifler's associates can be extradited for their share in the conspiracy, but I am sure the United States Government will not put any obstacles in our way in our efforts to bring them to justice."

Schmidt was introduced to Lefler as an expert on explosives and as the man who would take care of the jobs. The sum of $25 given Lefler several weeks ago for expenses had never been spent and was handed over to the police when the confession was made. The money was in American bills.

Lefler is 42 years old, and claims to have been born at Brantford. His mother and sister, it is said, still reside at Otterville, Ont.

Kaltschmidt denies he has yet been approached by any Canadian officers in relation to his part in the Lefler affair.

"Lefler was in my office in the Kreage building a few days ago to see if I could get him a better job. I cannot imagine his trying to implicate me in a dynamite plot," he said.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like a small space in our home paper, the Examiner, in regards to the dreadful things that are happening in our city to our little girls. It is high time that money and influence are dashed to bits in covering up these terrible doings. Young men of the city we beg of you to step to the aid of the terrified mothers and defend your baby sisters or where are you going to find your pure wives. I am sure all feel sorry for the friends of these low men, but far more for our little girls, and if it is not stopped what will be the end? Oh, mothers, we must watch our darling, for she may be the next!

A Vivid Story Of The Great War Struggle

How One Soldier Was Able to Save a Company—German Soldiers Trapped.

PARIS, June 28—Convalescent in a British Hospital, an officer who was "in the thick of it" from the start recently related some incidents of the underground campaigning that has been and still is a dominant feature of the present war.

This officer mentioned dates and places, but not for publication. Thus it was at "Dug-out X" that, after what is termed "efficacious artillery preparation," the Allies succeeded in taking a group of houses in the northern part of the village, of which the enemy still occupied the other portions very firmly.

Towards evening the order was given to try to "turn" the village—otherwise put, to oust the enemy. But before undertaking this operation it was necessary to gain possession of a vast structure which our men had nicknamed "the Gaol," on account of the dreary, dark aspect it presented before the bombardment.

"Precisely at 10 that night we attacked resolutely. Crawling in close formation as silently as silkworms, we advanced to some 20 yards from the main building, when, responding to a shrill order, we rushed forward.

"A terrible 'popping' ensued, cutting down our first rank. But our attack had been made too rapidly to be swept back. We got into the place and our next task was to dislodge its occupants.

"Among the wreckage on the ground floor not a human being could be perceived. A French sergeant, followed by four men, went down a few steps and was killed with a bullet. As he fell he shouted "Vive la France!' adding in gasps, 'Down in the cellars, boys, quickly! The [illegible]

"The Undauntables."

"A brief council was held, for it was evident that there was another exit, which it was necessary to find. Some of our undauntables started to scout and presently one, nicknamed Forlorn-Hope, came back triumphant In the darkness he had seen a human figure step cautiously from a sort of trench dug about a hundred yards behind the gaol and move towards the middle of the village. Then, gliding over the slimy ground he reached the narrow, meandering communication passage, termed a 'boyau' and found that it led into subterranean depths.

"He guided us to it. It was the exit prepared by the Boches to be utilized in case of danger.'

"The captain called for thirty volunteers. Sixty men stepped forward and, following the captain, this little bunch of braves entered the underground passage.

"The remainder of the company kept alert at the other—the main—exit. What seemed a long silence ensued, then some dull detonations, and afterwards the voice of the Captain was heard coolly and clearly saying 'Attention on the other side! Forward!'

"We who had been at the main exit or entrance (whichever you like, for it was both), went down the steps without encountering any resistance. We finally reached a large, low hall, dimly lighted by an oil lamp.

Lashed to Their Guns.

"When our eyes had become accustomed to the queer semi-obscurity of the place we discerned a weird spectacle. Around an oberlieutenant some forty men were assembled. They seemed stupefied and were standing 'hands up.'

"Here and there, by the flickering lamp light, we noticed corpses, while, at the same time our ears were assailed by the moans of men badly wounded. In a corner were some gunners lashed to their quick-firers.

"Turning to us, with a smiling countenance, our captain said 'Here is the bag boys! It seems that they didn't expect us to come this way!' The German officer changed colour, became ashy grey, but uttered not a word.

"In a few phrases the captain told us what had happened. Surprised by our fellows' sudden intrusion the enemy's men had made very little resistance. Realizing that they were surrounded they had spedily surrendered. Six of our men had been wounded, but none gravely.

"Then we counted our 'loot,' which consisted of seven quick-firers, 200 rifles, some hand grenades, a nice stock of barbed wire, some cartridges and enough other stuff to fit up a small arsenal. The 'bag' was indeed a good one and it gladdened us.

"The captain did not forget that chap who had 'spotted' the small safe entrance to this nasty nest of hornets.

"He embraced him as a father does his only son an told him that his folks at home would shortly see his name mentioned in despatches. If it hadn't been for that chap's 'cool cheek' and presence of mind we should have had to fight against awful odds and lose many men, for the German forces were splendidly supplied and could have held us in check for a long time.

PROMOTED TO SERGEANT

Sergt. Fenwick of Canadian Engineers Tells of the Comfort Gained From Tobacco at the Front.

In a letter to his mother, Mrs. A. L. Fenwick, 418 1-2 George Street, Stanley Fenwick of the 2nd Field Company, Canadian Engineers, now at the front, tells of his promotion to sergeant. He also describes the comfort the Canadian soldiers get out of their tobacco.

Sergt Fenwick writes: "I didn't get the cigarettes yet, but I guess they'll come all right. They will be very welcome as although we get quite a number from different places [illegible] and I think for the rest of the boys. When I am in the trenches under shell fire or any of the other nerve-racking things which go on continuously I can nearly always keep fairly cool if I have a cigarette to smoke. Of course there are lots of times when to smoke would be just signing one's death warrant. There is another time when a smoke does me good, and I think its the only time.

I have an attack of nerves and that is after a battle or bombardment. I begin to think of what has happened and I candidly don't think its being scared, but I just get so mad to think of my chums and others getting killed and wounded that I can hardly keep still. I smoke a few "fags," and I'm all right again.

"I did a little job one night some few nights ago. I can't tell you what it was but the officers complimented me, and then to-day I was made a sergeant. That means another stripe and a grenade on top. The appointment dates from the fourth of this month. Hope I have the luck to carry them right through. I very often have my doubts but I've got through up there now and hope for the best.

Showers and Sunshine In Crop Districts

Bank Reports Counter Business as Being Quiet.

Showers and sunshine alternate frequently throughout the entire Canadian grain country, according to the last weekly reports of the branch managers of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Growing weather so far this month would appear to be nearly ideal, as there has also been sufficiently cloudy weather to let the ground soak up the much-needed moisture. Frosts have been more or less general, and while these have undoubtedly had a bad effect upon vegetables, they have had little or no effect upon the grain, and have done much to eliminate the fly pests.

Most branches report counter business as being quiet, stating that the breaking of new ground and summer following is keeping the farmer busy and away from the centres. Deposits, however, are holding well. Demands for loans are few and far between and real estate business is nil.

GARDEN FETE WAS A SUCCESS

Gross Receipts Amounted to $104 —Music Supplied by 57th Band.

The garden fete that was held at the residence of Major Vincent Eastwood, 810 George Street, on Saturday afternoon and evening, was an unqualified success. The affair was held under the auspices of the 57th Chapter Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire for the purpose of raising funds for the Canadian Military Hospital. The gross receipts amounted to approximately one hundred and four dollars. Out of this is be deducted the expenses. The thanks of the Chapter is extended to all those who contributed to the success of the affair. The Greene Music Company loaned a gramophone for the occasion while the following ladies donated flowers: Mrs. G. W. Hatton, Mrs. H. Rush, Mrs. Adam Hall, Mrs. R. T. Hounsell and Mrs. H. O. Fisk. Both candies and cakes were also donated. The lawn of the Eastwood residence was prettily decorated and in the evening a large crowd participated in the event. The decorating was done by the Chapter. One of the best attractions on the grounds was the fish pond. In the evening music was supplied by the Band of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

Gunner Mordie McGill Now In London Hospital

Underwent Operation on June 16—Has Narrow Escape When Piece of Shell Rent his Shirt—Looks For Another Winter of It.

WILL BE ALRIGHT SOON

Gunner Mordie McGill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin McGill of the Customs House, has written home from a London Hospital, that he had been sent back to England from the firing line to undergo an operation. His letter is dated June 15th, and in it he writes that the operation "will be performed tomorrow. It will not amount to much; I will be alright again in three weeks".

This intelligence is characteristic of Gunner McGill, who would naturally speak lightly of any injury he might receive.

Continuing, he says he will never forget Ypres. While in action there a fuse head pierced the shield of the gun he was serving. A piece of it tore Gunner McGill's shirt off his back, and also tore his coat which he had hung on a tree nearby. Evidently his escape was a very close one.

"I am afraid we are going to have another winter of it" he writes. "We have had but few casualties in the battery. "Happy" O'Toole died of wounds. Three had died when I left the battery. The Canadian division has got a very bad cutting up. I do not suppose there are 4,000 left out of the first contingent. The 2nd Battalion of Infanry, in which nearly all the Peterborough boys were in, was wiped out. Major Bennett, was one of the greatest Majors that ever led men into action.

Dr. Naismith (he recently visited Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Parsons, in this city) is not killed. He is here in England some place in a hospital. One of the fellows out of his own battalion told me he helped to carry him out. He got shot through the breast. Jimmy is in the missing. A bunch went out looking for the wounded but could not find him, so one of the men of the same company that he was in was telling me. He may be taken prisoner. If so his chances are very slim for the Germans bayonet nearly all the wounded. The Canadians that were draffed in to fill the battalions are getting badly cut up."

Gunner McGill's address is as follows:

Gunner Mordie McGill,
Cote's Ward, London Hospital,
No. 42531, White Chapel Road,
London, England.

He adds this postcript: "Ask Sam. Newhall if he knows this place, for mind he claims this is where he made such great captures of wild men.

Flower Sunday At George Street Methodist Church

Yesterday was Flower Sunday for the George street Methodist and Grace Church Sunday schools. In the morning the scholars from both Sunday schools met at 10.30 o'clock and marched up to the church at eleven where a special service was held.

The pupils as they took their places in the body of the church, marched across the auditorium and each carried a bouquet, which they gave to those in charge of the floral design. When the Sunday school was seated and the design completed, the effect was very beautiful.

The service was in charge of Rev. R. J. Peever. His Honour Judge Huycke was the principal speaker, speaking of flowers, the shamrock, thistle, rose and maple leaf, drawing a lesson from each. The service was in many respects a patriotic service, the flags of the allies being largely used in the decorations. The music was composed of patriotic hymns, including the maple leaf.

In every way the service was a gratifying one. In the evening the flowers, and there were many, were taken and distributed among the sick.

JOKER LANDED IN POLICE COURT

Those in Habit of Taking Articles From Restaurants May Take Warning.

Over two hours of the time of the police court was taken up this morning when a local man was charged before Magistrate Dumble with having taken two table napkins from the restaurant of a Chinaman on Charlotte street. The accused was finally discharged.

It would appear that several of the local restaurant keepers have been having trouble with patrons taking articles from tables when they go in for a meal. On Saturday evening the accused, with some friends, was in the restaurant from whence came the charge, in company with some friends. They were joking among themselves and one man had some salt poured in his coat pocket. Two table napkins were also placed in his pocket.

The Chinaman missed some articles and at once accused one of the patrons of theft. A policeman was called and the accused taken to the station and searched, when some salt and the two table napkins were found in his clothes.

There was sufficient evidence this morning to show that the accused did not know he had the property in his possession.

Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the prosecution and Mr. J. A. New of Messrs. Gordon & Widdifield, appeared for the defendant.

RUSSIANS BATTLE WITH TURKS IN CLOUDS AND INFLICT HEAVY LOSSES

Turks Continue Their Attacks in the Melagharsk Valley of the Caucasus But Russian Troops Disperse Attacking Body.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, June 29.—A battle in the clouds overhanging Gheldag Mountain, in the Caucasus, resulted in the defeat of the Turkish forces with heavy losses, according to official despatches to the War Office to-day.

"The enemy attacked under cover of heavy mists and attempted to storm our positions," said the official statement. "Our artillery was trained down the mountain slopes with deadly effectiveness. When the enemy retired we counted more than a thousand Turkish dead and hundreds of wounded."

Supported by several thousand Khdish irregulars, the Turks are continuing their attacks in the Melagharsk Valley of the Caucasus. Russian troops on Saturday dispersed an attacking body and captured the commander of the Kurds.

LIVERPOOL, June 29.—The White Star liner Cymric arrived from New York to-day after an uneventful passage. The liner Orduna reached port last night.

ROME, June 29.—There seems now no doubt that Bulgaria will join with the British Allies.

LONDON, Eng., June 29.—Italy and Turkey are now officially at war, and Italian troops will go to the Dardanelles.

PETROGRAD, June 29.—Russians are now strongly entrenched on the River Bug. Germanic forces have not budged them.

EDMONTON, June 29.—Two thousand people are homeless as a result of recent floods and a tornado in Edmonton and Calgary.

MONTREAL, June 29.—Four soldiers of the Lachine Canal Guard have been mysteriously drowned, and there will be an inquiry.

FRENCH ASSAULTS.

LONDON, Eng., June 29.— Apparently heavily reinforced, the Germans began fresh determined assaults on British positions, with the apparent object of pushing through to Calais.

EFFORTS TO REGAIN TERRITORY.

PARIS, June 29.— In Alsace districts Germans made terrific efforts to regain territory recently lost, but failed utterly.

TRANSPORT ARRIVED SAFELY.

DESERTION AMONG TROOPS.

ROME, June 29.—General Cadorna reported heavy desertions from among the Austrian troops.

GOOD WEATHER IS PREDICTED FOR QUARTER

Another change of the moon took place on Saturday, and weather prophets predict good weather during the quarter. This is to some extension based on the belief held by Indians, and also Canadians who in the northern part of the province, study weather conditions, and who state with conviction that after a showery quarter, an evening change of the moon, coming with good weather, means good weather during the quarter.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS BLAME COLLEAGUES

BERLIN, June 29.—(By wireless to Sayville, L. I.)— Dr. Ernst Quark, social democratic member of the Reichstag, is quoted by the Overseas News Agency as declaring that French and English socialists "regularly kept away from the conferences recently held with the object of paving a way for peace."

"German and Austrian socialists," he says, "were ready from the beginning to get others to discuss the preliminaries. The German government never placed any obstacles in their way, but the French and English socialists remained deaf and dumb. They are the real culprits. They should be placed before the tribunal of the International socialists."

ITALY WILL PARTICIPATE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, June 29.—Berlin announced that Italy will participate in the Dardanelles operations by sending a fleet to release British ships. Declaration of war by Turkey considered imminent.

FRONT AND FLANK ATTACK FORCES RUSSIANS TO GIVE GROUND ON THE DNEISTER

Austro-Germans Cross River Northwest of Halicz, While Second Army, Moving From Mikalajou, Attacks Czar's Troops on Wing.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, June 29.—Two explanations are offered by military observers here for the resumption of the Austro-German sweep in Galicia after three days, during which the Russians held them completely in check.

The first is the arrival at the front of the reserve supply of ammunition for the big guns, which had not reached the armies when they passed through Lemberg, and the second is the possibility that Grand Duke Nicholas, after falling back from the Galician capital, threw every ounce of reserve strength in powder and men into the fight in a desperate effort to retain his small remaining hold on Austrian territory. This, it is believed, may have stopped the German advance until his comparatively small reserve was augmented. If the official statement from Vienna Sunday night [illegible] the latter possibility is considered the more probable, for the communique commenced on the fact that the Russian artillery fire is growing more feeble.

Reports from the eastern front Sunday told of a new Russian retirement both north and south of Lemberg. The Germanic allies seem to have crossed the Dniester north of Zurawno and driven the Russians about six miles into the hills, while General von Linsengen, moving from Mikalajow, has struck the same force on the flank and forced it back to a point about midway between Rohatyn and Halicz. The great effort of the Austro-Germans now is directed at the latter town, on the south bank of the Dniester, and the only important point on that side of the river still in Russian hands. The fighting here is of especially ferocious character and the Tsar's troops, probably, will be called upon to face the most murderous bombardment yet undertaken in this sector.

According to report from Berlin and Vienna, Field Marshal von Mackensen has gained more ground north of Rawa Ruska, where he is driving northeast toward the frontier, and General von Boehm-Ermoli is moving on Busk, the strongest Russian position east of Lemberg. Here, where the Lemberg-Brody railway crosses the Bug River, or rather where, in a stables of two miles, the Pelten, the Belzec the Zlota Lipa and the Dunajec unite to form the Bug, Grand Duke Nicholas has built a remarkable series of defences, naturally of great strength on which he depends to prevent further eastward advance of the Teutonic allies. The battle for these positions is expected to develop in the next two or three days and to be equal in tensity to the battles of Grodek and the Dniester.

The new drive on Warsaw, begun by Field Marshal von Hindenburg, is being directed from Przasnys, fifty miles almost due north of the Polish capital and in the valley of the Orzyc, and from Swadsy, down the Omulew. The last Petrograd report told of a terrific artillery action during which the Russians were compelled to abandon the secondary fortress of Ostrolenka. The same report spoke of infantry engagements between the Arzyc and the Omulew which were developing great intensity.

Observers here say it is too early to say whether this a serious attempt to penetrate to Warsaw or one of the occasional German demonstrations in force. It is the consensus, however, that Germany intends further to press her eastern victories with another battering ram stroke toward the capital in an endeavour to seize that city and the whole line of the Vistula.

Not since the war began has the British public been so convinced that it will be a long one. Those who took this view months ago were called pessimists, but now it is generally admitted that the Russian armies must fight for months to come under tremendous disadvantages, and that in the meantime the much heralded big general movement on the western front must be indefinitely postponed, while the Entente Powers thoroughly reorganize their methods.

While the campaign for munitions in Great Britain is at its height, it must be assumed that Germany is straining every fibre to the same end and calling into play her inventive skill to increase her deadly mechanisms of war as an offset to the inevitable and terrible drain on her men.

Liquor in His Ice Box Cost Young's Point Hotelman $300

Inspector Jos. Stewart Gathered a Pat Hall From Wm. McFarlane of the Carleton House—Complaints Had Drifted From the Local Option Belt.

MINIMUM FINE AT THAT

Three hundred dollars and cost ($300.00) was the penalty imposed upon William McFarlane, proprietor of the Carleton House, Young's Point, who pleaded guilty to keeping liquor for sale without a license, contrary to the Liquor License Act. The case was heard in Lakefield on Monday before County Constable Langley. License Inspector Jos. Stewart, who worked up the case, was the principal witness. He had received complaints that the Carleton House was selling [illegible] Those parents in Peterborough said at their sons and blackliisters returning from Young's Point intoxicated. Inspector Stewart bided his time and quietly motored up on June 9. He demanded admission into the Carleton bar and sure enough fished a bottle of liquor from the ice box. McFarlane pleaded guilty. He was given an option of a fine, not less than $300 and not more than $500, or three months in gaol. He paid the fine, which was one of the heaviest ever recorded in these parts under the Liquor License Act for a similar offence. Formerly the minimum penalty was $100, but was advanced to $300 some long ago.

Chief Webster of Lakefield was called to testify that the hard stuff was liquor. It is stated that it was of the "squirrel" brand, with the quick, hard, kick that is not a quality of "good" whiskey.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the joints and muscles it forms stones. In the tissues and muscles it causes inflammation. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys and enable them to clear away the uric acid and poisons in the blood. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Second Attempt Proved Successful

James Smith Hanged Himself by Hay Wire in Stable.

TORONTO, June 29. —At the second attempt, James Smith, aged 64 years, 57 Dagmar avenue, yesterday committed suicide by hanging himself in a barn at the rear of his home. An attempt to end his life in a similar manner several years ago, was frustrated by one of his four children. He was discovered by his eldest son yesterday. He was a fish and fruit peddler and his business had not been progressing very well lately. His wife is at Peterborough. He went into the barn yesterday ostensibly to feed his horses, and when he did not return his son went to look for him and made the gruesome discovery. The man was suspended from one of the rafters of the room of the barn by two strands of hay wire tied round his neck. He was past medical aid. Coroner [illegible] was unnecessary.

May Call Jerome As a Witness

NEW YORK CITY, June 29. — Former District Attorney Wm. T. Jerome, who has been the barrier between Harry K. Thaw and liberty for nine years, may assume his old role as "nemesis." It became known today that the State is planning to call Jerome as a witness. By use of certain statements Jerome was alleged to have made, Thaw's lawyers have attempted to show Jerome never really believed Thaw insane.

The State's attorneys are preparing to bring Jerome into court to refute these statements.

Dorando Is Now With the Army

ROME, June 29.—Dorando, who was disqualified in the spectacular Marathon race held at the London Olympic games in 1908, is now driving a military automobile at the Italian front. Some of the winners at the Olympic games held in Stockholm participated in the military operations which resulted in the capture by the Italians of Monte Nero.

The members of all the sporting clubs, gymnastic societies and racing associations have enlisted for the war and some have distinguished themselves. Vincenzo Lancia, Felice Nazzaro and other automobile drivers have been retained in the factories and are working under high pressure to turn out military motors.

Delightful Summer Drinks

Many Tempting Beverages From the Same Bottle

One of the very pleasant features of a bottle of Montserrat Lime Fruit Juice is its versatility.

The ordinary Montserrat beverage is made with half a wine-glassful of Montserrat, some sugar, broken ice and a glassful of water. This is delightful and quenches the thirst.

Another Montserrat beverage can be made by using Soda Water instead of plain water. It gives a little more snap—Golfers like it.

Montserrat can also be used instead of lemons for flavouring frozen punches and ice creams.

French Youths Eager For Front

PARIS, June 29.— So many young Frenchmen of the continent of 1917 have volunteered for the duration of the war that a great many of the artillery and cavalry regiments have already been filled.

A great many more, principally students waiting to pass examinations for degrees, are thus liable to be excluded for the privileges of enlisting before July 15 and from choosing their regiments according to the ministerial decree relative to the eventual incorporation in this contingent.

A delay has been asked for future graduates to enable them to enlist now, choose their regiment and join the colours after they have passed their examination.

To Put on Flesh And Increase Weight

A Physician's Advice.

Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Thin folks stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "blessed pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal, is said to have the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

He looked some apologetical, but she was as easy minded as the Queen o' Sheby gettin' back home. I never was able to find out if folks got their ways from the shape o' their face, or the shape o' their face from their ways; but it's surprisin' how frequent they match. Right at first glance I knew that this lady was bound to be a storm-centre of some kind, 'cause she had a month drawn down and out at the corners till it looked like a barrel-stave, and a chin that was firm, and built like a snow plow.

When you find a woman with a cute little oval chin, you can rest in peace, for all she feels responsible for is just one family; but whenever you see that providin' a woman's head would set firm and upright on her lower jaw, you can count on her takin' charge of the surroundin's without waitin' to be urged.

Jim was still under cover so I stepped up, took off my hat and bowed at her. She jerked back a nod at me, and sez: "Are you the proprietor?"

I felt as though I'd been accused of stealin' sheep, but I managed to stand my ground, and say: "No, ma'am, I am the segundo."

"Never heard the term before," sez she, pursin' up her lips and glarin' at me.

"It's Greaser, for substitute boss," sez I, in meek and lowly tones.

"Well,' 'sez she, "have them take off my baggage, then."

"Are you sure you are at the right place, ma'am?" sez I.

"What place is this?" sez she.

"This is the Lion Head Ranch, ma'am," sez I.

"That will do very well," sez she. "Take off my baggage."

I looked at Dan Cooper, but he didn't have the nerve to meet my eye. "We dont' happen to have any women here at this ranch, ma'am" sez I.

"Then you need one," sez she, "take off my baggage."

I waved my hand to the Jones boys and they hooked onto the trunk in the back of the buckboard while I rooted out Jim and turned the case over to him. He had just finished shavin' an' slickin' up his hair and he stacked up mighty attractive. When I told him what was the trouble, he put on his Kansas City hotel manners, and stepped out to the buckboard.

"How do ya do?" sez he, bowin' "I am Mr. Jamison."

When that boy chose to put it on a [illegible] could easy enough show he was different gaited from the rest of us, and the woman she bent her eyes on him and drilled in a look as though she wondered where he'd rustled up his langwidge.

"I wish to stop here," sez she, "and have just given orders to have my baggage set down. I am Mrs. Hollis."

"I should be very glad to entertain you, Mrs. Hollis," sez Jim, "but we have no ladies here and things are very rough."

"I have been told that before," sez she, raisin' her eye-brows, "and I have no doubt that you are sadly in need of a woman's influence. Where shall they set my baggage?"

Jim, looked as though he'd been growled at by a pet lamb, and hardly knew what to do. "Why, you can take it into that middle room," sez he, "or else just leave it on the porch, it don't look like rain to-night."

Jim's cabin had three rooms to it, and two galleries. The ridge pole ran north and south, his bedroom was the south room, his library the north one, and a big sittin' room between them leadin' out to a gallery on each side. It was built of logs and mighty tight and comfortable. The woman got down and gave it a look over. "Set the baggage in the bed-room," sez she.

Hospitality is the workin'est part of a Weste'ner's religion; but if such as this woman would come often, I reckon we'd take to livin' in trees. Jim showed her around and then he saddled up and rode away without waiting for supper, and his face was wearin' a thoughtful expression as he rode.

I didn't throw any kisses after him, neither, 'cause leavin' this female on my hands looked like downright cowardice on his part. I didn't know whether it was manners to ask her to eat with us first, or what the h—; but I soon found out it wasn't none of my worry. She et with us, and she examined everything we did, all the time keepin' her nose screoged up as though the vittles smelt sour, until we all got twitchy, and when Shorty knocked over a cup of coffee he bolted for the door as though he expected to have his ears boxed.

After supper she cut me out of the herd and asked me a lot o' questions about Jim, and if we had much company, and if we all had been at the supper table, and—oh, she unloaded her mind on me until I was weak in the knees.

"How does Mr. Jamison behave when he is drunk?" sez she finally.

"I don't know," sez I. "Does he get drunk?"

"All men are likely to get drunk," sez she, lookin' at me distrust. "Drink is the curse of the land."

I looked around at this land and I winked my off eye, but I didn't say nothin'.

"He said I would have this cottage to myself," sez she, "but I feel nervous about stayin' here all alone."

When I saw what she might possibly be drivin' at, I began to get nervous. Some trees die from too much clingin' vine, and I was superstitious that I was one o' that kind. "All of us boys get what sleep we can right over there," sez I hasty, pointin' to the bunk-shack.

"Does he gamble?" sez she, driftin' back to Jim again. I found out later that she was one to ask a question of ya, and then to think about somethin' else while you were answerin' it.

"He don't gamble enough to hurt him," sez I; "and besides he only took five dollars with him. That wouldn't be more than enough to put him in good humour should he waste it on drink, nor it wouldn't set him back very far should he gamble at it."

"Does he—uh—has he any other vices?" sez she.

"Well, I'll tell ya, ma'am," sez I, drawin' a step closer, and speakin' hushed; "he's mightily inclined to read books when he ort to be out in the saddle; but what makes you so everlastin' suspicious of him?"

"I dont' want to wrong no one," sez she, bitin' off her words as though she was chewin' up one reputation after another; "but it seems very pecular to me that a man who uses correct langwidge should be living in such a rought place as this."

"Oh," sez I; "that's the way you feel about it, is it? Well, ma'am, you're just as safe here as if you were in jail, so you might as well turn in and get a little rest."

I whirled about and started to leave but she called after me: "Where did you say you slept?" sez she.

I had another sinkin' spell. "Right over there where you see that light backed up against the bank," sez I, a shade short.

She hung silent a minute listenin' to Red's screechy voice. The' was one song that he sang every day, and some days, all day, until it had got so that the other boys joined in from habit. It was about the saddest song ever sung and the oftener you heard it the sadder it made you feel. The part I recollect ran this way: "All I ask of you my darlinnnnnnnnag, ere your love for me grows coooooocold is the promise from your sweet liiiiiips, that you'll love me when I'm old, is the promise from your sweet lips, that you'll love me when I'm o-oh-oh-old." Even Shorty used to join in this song unconscious, and then when he'd catch himself at it, he'd break out and bellow and roar, and swing on to Red's whiskers in a riotous and unseemly manner. Such an event took place while Mrs. Hollis was engaged in listenin'.

"Are they all drunk?" sez she.

"No, ma'am," sez I, "they're un? usual sober," and I started on again.

She roped me again and sez "Are there any Injuns about here?"

"You never can tell," sez I. "Injuns don't travel with a brass band this time o' the year. I haven't seen none lately."

"Are they dangerous when they do come?" sez she.

"Well," sez I, "Injuns are mightily inclined to have Injun nature, which it is never wise to take too careless."

"Do they drink?" sez she.

"Well," sez I, "good Injuns don't."

"I dont' feel a bit at home here," sez she. "Couldn't you fix up a string or something so I could signal to you? You have a better face than the rest."

My face is allus gettin' me roped in on honorary jobs o' this character, so I told her I'd do it; but I was surprised a lot to think that after the way she had handled us at the start, anything on earth could make her nervous. "Did you lose your way, ma'am, in comin' here?" I asked her.

"I did not," sez she. "I came on a mission."

"I don't rightly know at that time just what a mission was. The only other one I had ever seen had been built of stone and run by a fat priest.

By the time I had rigged up the signal, Isaac had come back from the old hermit's and fed the calf. He set down the empty bucket on the front gallery and we went up to the bunk shack together. He was mighty interested in hearin' about the newcomer and asked a lot of questions about her.

"What I want to know," sez Red, "is why she thought we couldn't get along without her?"

"She come here on a mision," sez I, solemn.

The rest all sat in a scared hush except Shorty, who muttered somethin' fierce between his teeth. "What do you know about 'em?" sez I.

"I lived on a ranch with one of 'em,' hes he' "and they ain't nothin' but reformers in disguise. You just wait and see if she don't tie onto us, and make us quit eatin' tobacco and cuss-words, sign the pledge, and give down money for the heathen every time she hears a spar jingle. I am goin' to pull out."

"Mebbe she wouldn't stay long," sez Missourie.

We sat discussin things for some time until I heard the can rattlin' in my dug out, and went up to see what she wanted. I sneaked around to her back window and scratched on the shutter, according as it had been agreed.

"I just wanted to see if the signal worked," sez she, in the most temperate voice she had yet used.

HER COUSIN AGATHA

She Was Dashing and Handsome and Many Moths Fluttering About Her.

By GEORGE MUNSON.

Sylvia Blaine was happier than she had ever been in all her life before. But when one is nineteen happiness comes easily, especially when one is in love.

Tom Darragh was generally considered the most promising young lawyer in Stapleton. The Darraghs and the Blaines had been members when Stapleton was only a tiny hamlet; old Mr. Darragh had returned to the city of his birth to end his days there, and Tom had gone into a lawyer's office. Now at twenty-seven he had a flourishing business. And he loved Sylvia Blaine.

Sylvia could not believe that it was right for any girl to be as happy as she was. And why should Tom have chosen her when there were so many sweet girls of his acquaintance? If he had ever known her cousin Agatha, for example, she was sure that Tom would never have looked twice at her.

Agatha Blaine was five years older than Sylvia. Although she had been born in Stapleton, she had not lived there much during her checkered existence. She had made an unhappy marriage and was suing the man for a divorce. Agatha was a handsome blonde—"dashing," people called her—with any number of moths fluttering round her. And the worst of it was that Agatha, who could never resist making conquests, was coming to stay with Sylvia's mother.

How could the little country girl retain her influence over Tom when handsome, rich, citified Agatha was there?

"Why, you foolish child," said Tom laughingly, when Sylvia voiced her fears, "don't you know that I am madly infatuated with you? Bring on your Agatha and watch me."

Suddenly She Stopped.

Sylvia sighed and suffered Tom to kiss the incipient lines of trouble on her pretty forehead. But when Agatha did arrive, a resplendent being in a picture hat, with four trunks and a pedigreed dachshund, she was more than ever convinced that her days of happiness were numbered.

Agatha was so kind that the girl half minded to confess her trouble to her. But Agatha seemed also a little heartless. Sylvia was bound to confess that as she sat with her and her mother and watched the elder lady's eyebrows gradually contract as she listened to their visitor's flippant comment on men and events. But doubtless it was Agatha's unhappy matrimonial experience that was responsible for that.

"Why, my dear auntie," she said to Sylvia's mother, "what funny, old-fashioned ideas you have about men. Any woman can twist any man round her little finger, if she chooses."

"I wonder if she will choose to twist Tom round her little finger," sighed Sylvia to herself, when Agatha congratulated her warmly. Her interest in the engagement seemed almost unnatural, and she insisted upon purchasing a large part of Sylvia's trousseau. She also inquired into the condition of Tom's finances, and when she learned that his home would have to be a very modest one she seemed quite distressed.

"And I have more money than I know what to do with," musingly. "Richard settled $40,000 on me when we were married, you know."

On the day after her arrival Tom was introduced to her. Sylvia, watching them closely, although she assumed an indifferent manner, felt that her worst fears were confirmed. Within a few minutes after the introduction they were chatting together like old friends.

"Well, I've seen this wonderful Cousin Agatha," said Tom, as they parted, "and she can't hold a candle to you, sweetheart." But Sylvia detected a note of insincerity in his voice, and that night she cried herself to sleep.

The next day Cousin Agatha pleaded a headache when Sylvia broached the proposition of a walk. Sylvia had some shopping to do, and, after a stroll through the woods alone, returned through the village. Suddenly she stopped dead; she felt as though an icy hand had been laid upon her heart, for at a window on the second story of some business offices she saw Agatha's hat.

There was no mistaking that hat. There could not possibly have been another like it in Stapleton. And the irony of the situation lay in the fact that the hat was nodding at the window of Tom's office.

There were few people in the street, and nobody noticed Sylvia clinging, with pale face and trembling limbs, to a corner of the building opposite. She could not tear her eyes away from what she saw. And a moment or two later she saw Agatha's fluffy head disappear suddenly as her eyes, saw Agatha's head bowed upon her hands, and saw Tom's hand patting her cousin's shoulder consolingly.

After awhile Sylvia summoned strength to go home. She did not tell anybody what she had seen. She wrote a little note to Tom that evening.

"I find that I made a mistake," she said. "I thought I loved you, Tom, but I was wrong. Please do not call or write to me, and never ask me to explain."

She knew Tom was too proud not to take her at her word. And the next two weeks were miserable ones, for she herself was too proud to let Agatha know how she was suffering.

"Well, I must say I don't think much of that Sweetheart of yours, Sylvia," said Agatha. "If I were engaged to a young man I should expect him to come to see me every evening. And here it must be a couple of weeks since he has put in an appearance."

Sylvia did not make the retort that was upon the tip of her tongue: That on four separate occasions she had seen Agatha in Tom's office. And when her mother, looking at her searchingly that night, asked her whether anything was wrong between Tom and herself, she denied it miserably and hurried to her room, that she might give way to her tears without restriction.

But everything draws to a close, and the time was come for Agatha to leave. The four trunks were packed, the wonderful hat went into a special box, giving place to a neat traveling hat, and Agatha was waiting for the carriage to come to convey her to the station.

"Sylvia, dear," she said, "there isn't anything wrong between Tom and yourself, is there?"

"N-no," stammered Sylvia brazenly. She would never give her cousin the satisfaction of knowing the harm that she had wrought.

"Because," said Agatha, "I wouldn't have engaged his services if I had reason to believe he was going to be unkind to you."

"Engaged his services, Agatha?" asked Sylvia, bewildered.

"Yes, dear. You know I didn't like my lawyer, Wagstaff, who, between ourselves, hadn't been quite straight with me. So I thought: Here's $500 worth of law business going begging, and why shouldn't Tom Darragh have it and be able to start housekeeping with a nest egg in the bank? Only, I'm afraid he must think me a dreadful goose, Sylvia. Because, the first time I went to his office I began contrasting him in my mind with Richard, and thinking what a lucky girl you were—and I just broke down and cried. Why—Sylvia!"

For Sylvia was crying, too, and when the cab arrived she had only just begun to explain. She was so remorseful that she did not notice the direction which the cab was taking until it stopped outside Tom's office. And then—

"I can't go in, Agatha. I dare not. I'll write to Tom—"

"Well, now, you just sit still and I'll bring Tom out to you," said Agatha sternly. And when a minute later, the door opened and Tom came in, Sylvia clung to him, sobbing and repentant.

"O, Tom, what a goose I was. Can you ever forgive me?" she asked.

"On one condition," he answered. "That you marry me next month."

"On one condition," said Sylvia demurely.

"Which is—?"

"That Cousin Agatha shall be bridesmaid."

SAYS CANADA WANTS NO PRO-GERMANS FROM THE UNITED STATES

The following is from the New York Herald:

That German-Americans are regarded as personae non gratae in Canada came to light yesterday when Mr. Eugene H. Meyer, a lawyer in Newark, related that he is preparing papers in a damage action against the Delaware, Luckawanna and Western Railroad, because the company's ticket agent at the Broad Street station in Newark refused to sell a ticket to Detroit to Mr. John Koller, of No. 12 Bumpton Street, that city, vice president of the American Coal Chute Company and Architectural Iron Works.

The agent took Mr. Koller to be a German and gave as the ground of his refusal to sell him a ticket that a rule of the company forbade the sale of transportation to a foreigner that would carry him through Canadian territory.

According to Mr. Meyer, Mr. Koller has been a citizen for more than 20 years. When the ticket was refused, Mr. Meyer says, Mr. Koller offered to produce his citizenship papers and credentials from business men of Newark.

It was explained by Mr. W. C. Ellis, the Lacakwanna's city passenger agent in Newark, that the company has had trouble lately by undertaking to transport foreigners through Canadian territory.

"In some cases," he said, "applicants for tickets have declared they were naturalized citizens when they were not, and in every case they have been sent back by the Canadian authorities, in two instances on charity tickets."

The order referred to by the ticket agent reads:

"On account of the European war the Canadian authorities are exercising great diligence to prevent foreigners who are not friendly to England from entering Canada, subjecting all foreigners to rigid inspection. Foreigners destined to points in Canada, therefore, should be ticketed to Suspension Bridge or Bridgeburg only, and foreigners destined to points in the United States should in all cases be routed via lines which will not take them through Canada, unless such foreigners are British or French subjects."

Plan to Get Holy Land After War

The possession of Palestine after the end of the European war and its organization as a Jewish state, with ancient Jerusalem as the capital, is an ambition which will be seriously considered at a great conference of Jewish organizations of the United States, which will open in Boston next Friday and go on for a week.

Palestine, it is estimated can accommodate a population of 6,000,000. With the establishment of new political control of the Holy Land it is intended that Jews shall migrate there from Russia, Germany, Austria and other European states. Thus, the leaders of the movement say, a solution will have been found for the race-old Jewish problem. Not only will the Jews have their own land, but an end will be brought to the discrimination against them in other countries.

Partly as a result of the Zionist movement, initiated several years ago, many American Jews have already made investments in Palestine. Jews in this city own a large tract of land in the neighbourhood of Haifa. St. Louis Jews bought not long ago 800 acres near the shores of the Sea of Galilee. Chicago Jews control territory near Cana, where the ancient religious feast formerly was held. A vast tract in the vicinity of Joppa is in the hands of Jews living in Winnipeg while Jews of Pittsburg and Cleveland own 1,800 acres near Armageddon.

The investment of foreign capital has resulted in a marked improvement in the physical features of Palestine, it is said. Until a few years ago the country was a treeless region, with much desert land. The ground has been rendered productive, with soil formerly considered barren yielding great wheat crops.

It is asserted that nearly every acre from the sea to the west to the Euphartes river on the east, including the whole of Syria and a part of Mesopotamia, may be made to blossom.

American financial intervention has resulted, too, in the transformation of some of the cities. Damascus, for instance, now has a street railway system to serve its 150,000 people, and banks and industrial institutions have been established.

Soon after the war started Protestants in England made an informal proposition to their co-religionists in the United States to obtain joint control of Palestine. It was suggested that the Holy Land possessed tourist drawing qualities enjoyed by no other country and offered extraordinary opportunity for development through the modernizing of intercity transportation facilities.

There were to be rapid transit trunk lines connecting Damascus, Nazareth and Jerusalem. A branch line was to draw Mount Hermon close to Damascus. Mount Carmel was to be brought within easy distance of Nazareth. Trolleys were to take Perusalem visitors on excursions to Bethlehem, Bethany and Jericho.

All of this, the English propagandists said would prove the greatest missionary movement for the Christian religion conceivable. The success of the project was contingent, of course, on the wrestling of Palestine from the domination of the Turks. The present Jewish movement assumes also that a fresh disposition of the Holy Land will be made after the end of the war.

Leaders of the Boston conference assert that the possession of Palestine by the Jews would not prevent Christians from developing the country to show purposes. Rather, they see in such a movement the welding of a close spirit of co-operation between the races. They are ambitious to obtain Palestine for a national home but, once established there, they would welcome the coming of visitors to the places of peculiar interest to Bible students, it is said.

Jews to the number of 10,000 are expected to attend the meetings this week. Efforts are being made to obtain the co-operation of Jews throughout the country because, owing to the lack of organization among the Jews in Europe, the project, of it succeeds, must result from the activity of those in this country, according to statements made here yesterday. The organizations to be represented are the Federation of American Zionists, the Knights of Zion, the Order of Zion Hadassah, a woman's society; Mezrachi and the Young Judeans. Others will be welcomed.

Louis D. Brandeis is the president of the convention committee. Jasob de Haas is the chairman of the executive committee and Charles B. Strecker, assistant treasurer of the United States, is the treasurer. The movement to establish a Jewish university in Jerusalem, advocated by the Rev. Dr. Pereira Mendes of New York, will be advanced, it was said.—New York Sun.

Four Experts For Thaw

Alienists to Testify—Evelyn Nesbit and W. T. Jerome for State.

NEW YORK, June 29.—With the testimony of four expert alienists who were prepared to swear he is sane, Harry K. Thaw, expected to close late his latest sanity test.

The real fireworks of the current Thaw case were expected to come when the litigant closes his case. The state will produce William T. Jerome, former District Attorney and for eight years Thaw's "nemesis" and to-day deputy sheriff in the service of Deputy Attorney-General Frank K. Cook, who is securing the northern border of New York for Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, actress wife of Thaw.

By the testimony of his wife Cook hopes to clear the name of Stanford White and also to show that Thaw threatened his wife's life.

The experts ready to testify were Dr. Charles F. Bancroft, superintendent of the New Hampshire Hospital [illegible] and Gen. Frank A. Streeter, a Concord lawyer, member of the New Hampshire lunacy commission that declared Thaw sane, and Dr. D. F. Percy Hickling, of Washington, D.C.

At the opening of court Justice Hendricks said: "If another article of any kind is published in the New York newspapers about what is going to happen or is going to be done in this case, you may tell your editors that I will send a warden to arrest them and bring them before me in contempt of court."

It was announced that the examination of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, would be taken on Wednesday at Cambridge.

REVERTS TO THE STATE

Mrs. Amy Cox Signs Over Large Sherbourne Street Residence.

TORONTO, June 29. — Mrs. Amy Cox, widow of the late Senator George Cox, has signed off her life interest in the large residence on Sherbourne street in which she lives, to the Cox estate. In return she is to receive certain considerations, among them being the reservation of the north sixty feet, which is to become a part of the property to the north, which she purchased to use in future as her home. This house to the north was formerly occupied by Mr. A. E. Ames, son-in-law of the late Senator.

The property which Mrs. Cox is giving over is No. 439 Sherbourne street. The residence is one of the finest on the street, being, at the time it was built, in the best residential part of the city. The grounds around it are very extensive, the total frontage being about 300 feet. The estate, therefore, gets about 240 feet frontage with a depth of between 240 and 250 feet. The market value of this property with its large depth is around $250 a foot, or a total valuation of about $60,000.

It is understood that Mrs. Cox retains her interest in the stables at the rear along Bleecker street, and that the new agreement goes into effect on the first of July.

Alcohol Gives Way to Tea.

The restriction of the sale of spirits in England has resulted in a greatly increased consumption of tea, and even though the new laws regarding the use of alcohol should be relaxed after the war a large percentage of people will have acquired a permanent taste for nature's stimulant—tea. Undoubtedly the consumption of tea is increasing throughout the world, and will continue to increase at a greater rate during the next few years, and until the supply can cope with the demand higher prices for tea must be expected.

WORKING DAY AND NIGHT AT MUNITIONS

ROME, June 29.— Italian military authorities to-day asserted that all the arms, ammunition and explosive factories in the kingdom were working day and night to obtain not only what will be necessary for the war this summer and the coming autumn, but for the possibility of a continuance of the conflict for three years, including the supplies of arms which it will benecessary to replace.

Had Heart Trouble FOR YEARS.
Weighed 87 Lbs.
Now Weighs 138 Lbs.

Miss Beatrice Lougheed, Staples, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to tell you what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I had heart trouble for quite a few years. I doctored for it, and altogether my bill amounted to $400, and still no cure. One day when very sick I was lying on a couch close to where some almanacs were hanging. I took one down, and was reading about what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cured, and thought I would try them. I got six boxes to start with; have only taken three boxes and I never felt so well in my life as I do now. I only weighed 87 pounds when I started to take them, and now I weigh 138 pounds. I hope all poor sufferers will be benefitted by them as I have been."

Wherever there is any weakness of the heart, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will strengthen it and build up a strong healthy system.

FRENCH START NEW BATTLE TO THE NORTH OF ARRAS

Have Gained Ground in First Stages of New Offensive Making Progress Along the Sunken Road from Angres to Ablain---Heavy Bombardment Opened a Way For The French Artillery.

CANNONADE WAS VERY EFFECTIVE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, June 29.—The battle north of Arras has been resumed after several days of inaction.

Preceded by a heavy artillery attack, the French infantry regiments have rushed the German positions at several points from Souchez to the northern outskirts of Arras.

An official statement this afternoon reported that the French have gained ground in the first attack of the new battle, making progress along the sunken road from Angres to Ablain.

The crash of great shells around Souchez signalled the renewal of the struggle. The cannonade continued throughout the night with frightful effectiveness. Daybreak showed portions of the enemy's works wrecked and levelled by the terrific fire and opning the way for the French infantry.

The combat is being waged at present on a one-mile front, but the belief here is that the fighting between Angres and Ablain forecasts the resumption of the French offensive on a great scale in the region north of Arras.

The War Office admitted this afternoon that the Germans gained a temporary footing on the ridge east of Metzeral, in the fighting for Colmar. During the night French counter attacks drove the enemy from nearly all the newly acquired ground.

AMSTERDAM, June 29.—The Cologne Gazette, whose Berlin representatives are usually well informed, declared to-day that Germany will make no peace proffers but that any suggestions for ending the war must come from her enemies.

"The time is near when our enemies will cry for peace," said the Gazette. "Until that time comes we must fight on, and, above all, we must remain united."

OTTAWA, Ont., June 29.—Casualty lists received by the Militia Department since yesterday relate more particularly to the fight of June 15, where the First And Second Canadian Battalions suffered some heavy losses. So far as known, the Canadians have not been in any heavy action since that date, and the list of those killed or wounded in that fight is probably about complete. The casualties received now total 9,420. The killed number 1,647, the wounded 6,508, and the missing 1,630.

LONDON, Eng., June 29.—The first year of the war will cost England at least five billion dollars, Premier Asquith declared at a monster mass meeting in the interest of national economy, staged at the Guild Hall this afternoon. The Prime Minister declared that the success of the new Government war loan is absolutely assured. "But it is necessary to urge the most national economy," he said. "In a time like this waste on the part of either individuals or the Government is nothing short of a national crime."

ROME, June 29.—Montenegrin troops have occupied Scutari, the largest city of Albania.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The United States has adopted the practice of notifying the German Admiralty through Ambassador Gerard of the time of departure of every passenger boat sailing under the American flag, and approximately the hours during which it will pass through the war zone. Officials here believe that if the German Admiralty sends to its submarine commanders notification of what American passenger ships are passing through the war zone, there can be no doubt of their identity.

QUEBEC, June 29.—Fifty sticks of dynamite in a wooden box, buried under the earth, were discovered last night about 7 o'clock in Shaw Park, Levis, close to Mercier's machinery shops, which is to receive a contract from the British Government for ammunition.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—England has agreed with the Swedish Cotton Spinners' Association to permit ten thousand bales of American cotton to reach Sweden monthly.

'Bath Tub" Drowning Case at Old Bailey

LONDON, Eng., June 29th.—The counsel for George Joseph Smith, charged with drowning three wives in a bath tub, created a sensation in the Old Bailey this afternoon by the unexpected announcement that the defence would offer no testimony.

Distinguished Service Orders for 2 Officers

LONDON, June 29.—Distinguished service orders were to-day conferred on Major D. R. McCuag of the Thirteenth Canadian Battalion, and Major G. B. Wright of the Third Canadian Engineers.

36th Arrives Safely

BRANTFORD, ONT., June 29.—A cable received here today states that the 36th Overseas Battalion, Third Contingent, composed largely of Western Ontario men, has arrived safely in England.

GEN. VLADIMIR SUKOMLINOFF.—The retiring Russian Minister of War, who had such a great reputation as an organiser that he was called the "Russian Kitchener." No reason is given for his retirement. Gen. A. F. Verander is his immediate successor, but Petrograd believes Gen Ruzsky will eventually be appointed to the position.

CYMRIC ARRIVES WITH BIG CARGO OF WAR MUNITIONS

Extraordinary Precautions Taken to Safeguard Passengers on White Star Liner as Steamer Passed Through Danger Zone.

NO SUBS SIGHTED

LIVERPOOL, June 29.—Extraordinary precautions to safeguard the lives of the passengers in case of submarine attacks were taken by the officers of the White Star Line Cymric which arrived here to-day from New York. The vessel carried a cargo of war munitions for the allies. Every passenger aboard the liner was supplied with a life belt and taught how to put it on shortly after leaving New York. Under the direction of the officers the passengers and crew were rehearsed in the act of getting quickly into boats. Two lines of British destroyers escorted the vessel through the danger zone. Entering the Irish Sea yesterday the passengers were ordered to adjust their life belts, boats were swung out and made ready to be lowered instantly and double lookouts were established. Officers declared these precautions reassured some nervous passengers, who feared the Cymric might meet the fate of the Lusitania. They said so submarines were sighted.

Lots of Work For More Men

Send the Third and Fourth Contingents Write Peterboro' Boys at the Front.

Mr. Alex. Atchison of this city has received an interesting letter from a quartette of Peterborough boys now on the firing line in France. They are A. Nokes, Percy Gold, T. McDonald and W. Livell, all of the 4th Battery, First Artillery Brigade, First Canadian Contingent. The letter which reads as follows, is dated June 14th.

"Just a few lines hoping they will find you in the best of health. We have been enjoying the best of weather here lately. We are living the simple life. We were in action at Boisquenier, Ypres and LaBassee. We have been very lucky considering the hot fire we have been under. I am sorry to say I had the unfortunate job of stretcher bearer to poor "Happy" O'Toole. We never dreamt he would not recover. I am proud to say he never flinched and was game to the last.

We are informed that there is a third and fourth contingent ready. They can send them all for there is lots of work for them." (Signed)

Percy Gold,

W. Livell.

MAJOR-GENERAL HUGHES IN LINDSAY SUNDAY

Canada's Minister of Militia, Major-General the Hon. Sam Hughes, arrived in town on Sunday morning by special train on the C.P.R., and after spendin ga few hours at his home on Glenelg street, motored in his new 8-cylinder Cadilac, to Belleville, returning in the evening. It is rumoured that Sir Robert Borden, Premier, will leave for Great Britain this week, and that he will be accompanied by Major-General Hughes. However, it is stated that the Minister of Militia will not be leaving for the Old Country until a week or so.—Lindsay Warder.

CAN FIGHT FOR YEARS

Russian Armies Neither Beaten or Down Hearted and are Fighting as Stubbornly Now as Ever

HEAVY ENEMY LOSSES

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., June 29—The Russian armies are neither beaten nor downhearted, according to a correspondent of the Times in reviewing the six weeks' Teutonic advance, after a visit to the Russian headquarters. In spite of enormous losses which are estimated at 200,000 Germans, and probably an equal number of Austrians they still encounter the same stubborn Russian army as before, which is willing to keep on fighting for years, if necessary.

Criminal Case In County Court

Trial of Alfred Nelson is Being Heard in Camera.

The trial of Alfred Nelson, charged with criminal assault, commenced this morning in the County Court before His Honour Judge Huycke. The accused was represented in court by Mr. G. N. Gordon, while Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the prosecution. A number of spectators who has foregathered for the purpose of hearing the trial were invited to leave the court, as the star witnesses in the case are a number of young girls of immature age. One little girl, eight years of age, was put into the box. She was in charge of Police Matron, Mrs. McElhiney. She told her story only after considerable persuasion on the part of Crown Attorney Hatton.

When the Court adjourned for lunch at 1 o'clock, the evidence for the Crown was all in; also character evidence for the defence. Previous to resuming at 3 o'clock, the Court visited the City's incinerating plant, where the alleged offence was said to have been committed.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., June 29.—The government to-day took the first steps in the direction of conscription. Walter Hume Long, President of the local Government Board, introduced the National Register Bill in the House of Commons.

GARDEN PARTY GREAT SUCCESS

Enjoyable Event Under Auspices of Kawartha Chapter I. O. D. E.

A most successful garden party, both from the social and financial standpoint, was held yesterday at Englehurn, the residence of Judge Huycke.

The day was ideal, and everybody and everything seemed to combine in making the first public function of the Kawartha Chapter a gratifying success.

Judge and Mrs. Huycke deserve the hearty thanks for throwing open their home and grounds in such a whole-hearted manner, and for their kindly and hospitable welcome to one and all.

The grounds were illuminated with coloured electric lights, these combined with the great natural beauty of the surroundings and the dianty summer dresses of the ladies suggested a scene in Fairyland.

Delightful music was rendered by an orchestra from the Conservatory of Music.

$113 was realised yesterday, and there is a considerable sum still to come in for tickets sold, and as the expenses are small, the Chapter feels gratified that through the generosity of its friends, both ladies and gentlemen, it is able to forward such a substantial sum for the purchase of sandbags.

A meeting of the Chapter will be held next Monday afternoon in the Art Room of the Public Library, when it is hoped the charter and badges will have arrived.

Judge Huycke has presented the new Chapter with its standard, a gift they acknowledge with thanks.

The Kawartha Chapter intends organizing a junior Chapter for girls, and are delighted at having prevailed upon Miss Jean Harstone to take charge of this work, for her enthusiasm and thoroughness will undoubtedly make the Chapter a success. Active work will be undertaken in the fall, after the summer holidays.

PRACTICAL PATRIOTISM AT THE PICNIC

"Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them" will apply to some heads of families at the T.A.S. picnic on Dominion day. It will be the first held under the amalgamated societies. With so much wastage of manhood by war, with so great a decrease of population, a measure of practical patriotism is to encourage by recognition, increase of population. In this year of war the one or two prizes usually given to the largest families in the picnic grounds will be increased to ten, all good prizes, too. Any father and mother with a large family should line them up for competition. They have done their duty as good citizens and a prize will be if not their reward—for their patriotism cannot be repaid—a recognition and matter of pride.

Your King and Country need you.

RECRUITING CAMPAIGN WILL SOON BE STARTED

Preliminary Meeting Was Held Last Evening and on Friday Night There Will be a Public Meeting in the Council Chamber to Organize

A NECESSARY STEP

A preliminary meeting was held last night of those who feel that the call for more men to go to the front, to defend our country and Empire from the domination of Germany, should be seriously taken to heart and a systematic organization formed to cope with the situation.

It was felt by those present that a crisis had been reached and should be met by the business men of the country.

Recruiting here had practically ceased, and something has to be done to educate those who ought to heed the call of their King and country, to a sense of the responsibility resting on them.

For this purpose it was decided to call a meeting for the organization of such a campaign to be held in the Council chamber on Friday next, July 2nd at eight o'clock.

The following have asked that such a meeting be called:

T. F. Matthews.
B. F. Ackerman.
His Honour Judge Hughes.
W. H. Hill.
Peter Campbell.
Robert Fair.
Michael O'Meara.
W. C. Ackerman.
Dr. T. N. Green.
T. A. S. Hay.
R. B. Rogers.

YOUNG NURSE IS A VICTIM OF SPINAL MENINGITIS

Miss Vera Johnston of North Monaghan Contracts Disease While Nursing a Patient and Succumbs in a Short Time.

SISTER IS VERY ILL.

The news of the death this morning of Miss Vera Alma Johnston, daughter of Mr. David Johnston of North Monaghan, from spinal meningitis, and the very serious illness of her sister, Miss Zeta, from the same disease, came as a shock to the many friends in the city to-day. Miss Johnson has only been ill since Wednesday and although everything possible has been done to save her, all efforts were of no avail and she passed away at her home, North Monaghan at 4 o'clock this morning.

The circumstances of the death are particularly sad. Miss Johnston as a nurse contracted the disease while attending a patient who was suffering from spinal meningitis. She was called to Bobcaygeon a few weeks ago on a similar case and her patient has practically recovered. After resting a few days at her home she went to Bethany, Ont., to relieve another local nurse who was attending another spinal meningitis case there. The patient was the late Mrs. Alfred Galloway. A brother of Mrs. Galloway, Mr. Davis of Bethany, passed away a few weeks ago, a victim of the same disease. The late Mrs. Galloway attended her brother and shortly after his death she was herself a victim. When Miss Johnston arrived at the home of Mrs. Galloway it was found that one nurse was not enough to look after the patient, and the other lady, though feeling a little ill, remained to help Miss Johnston.

After the death of Mrs. Galloway, the ladies attended to the fumigating of the residence and other matters, and returned to the city on Tuesday evening last. Miss Johnston had quite a distance to walk to the home of her parents in North Monaghan, Mr. and Mrs. David Johnston and on her way home she felt a chill. She did not think much of it, but when she continued to feel ill during the evening a physician was called, and as the symptoms were similar to those of spinal meningitis, she was at once treated to for that disease. On Wednesday she continued to become worse and since Wednesday she had not been conscious.

A telegram to Belleville brought a physician from that town, who has had considerable experience with the disease and with him came two nurses. But nothing which they could do would bring relief and yesterday afternoon all hope of her recovery was lost. At 4 o'clock this morning she passed away.

On Wednesday morning a younger sister, Miss Zeta, came to the city to be away from possible contagion, but she became ill while here and was removed to her home. Here she was treated in a tent, away from her sister. But she was found to be a victim also and to-day there is very little hope for her recovery. The other nurse who was at Bethany with Miss Johnston is ill, and the symptoms point to spinal meningitis as being the cause of her illness. She is isolated at present and is able to look after herself. It is thought that she is a carrier.

Miss Johnston was born in North Monaghan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Johnston, who survive. She has one brother, Mr. George Johnston, North Monaghan, and two sisters, Miss Edna, who is employed in the office of the Quaker Oats Company, and Miss Zeta, who is at present seriously ill at home. Miss Vera was but twenty-two years of age and was a graduate of Belleville Hospital, graduating last fall. She has since that time been engaged in her profession in and about Peterborough. She attended May's school, North Monaghan, and up to the time of her leaving for Belleville to commence as nurse in training, she remained at home. She attended Knox church.

Miss Johnston was a girl of sterling qualities, with a kindly disposition and a nature which made for her many friends, and helped her retain them. Though only a resident for a short time, her disposition was such as to make her very successful in her profession.

The funeral which was private took place at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon, interment in Little Lake cemetery

YOUR KING AND COUNTRY NEED YOU.

One cannot believe that it is lack of patriotic spirit that interferes with effective recruiting. There is plenty of that if it is properly appealed to. The first point of appeal is to arouse all our people, urban and rural, to realize the situation — to realize the full meaning and urgent necessity of the British call—"Your King and country need you." If that truth is deeply and widely impressed, the first step is taken to filling the ranks; for it is not the British spirit nor the Canadian spirit, to boggle at difficulties, or shy at danger, nor to bargain with duty when that duty is made plain.

Sir John French gave Capt. Frederick Guest 72 hours' leave from the battle lines, so that he could go home and tell Parliament as he did do, that "the nation had failed to seize the meaning and significance of the war." He was opposed to conscription, but the ranks must be filled. The need was urgent. If there is need to realise the peril of the situation, to realize what is at stake in Britain, there is the same need here; for our interests are one. If the enemy of all true liberty and national well-being, as we Britishers know them, should triumph, then there would be conscription to the hilt; and not only that, but conditions such as no Briton nor Canadian could live under would be forced upon us and the world, and with the German ideal of world domination realized, we should have no place of refuge.

A German victory would mean world enslavement—not gyves of iron, but a far more grievous bondage—of soul and spirit—and we should lose all of the liberty and free institutions, we glory in to-day. In these considerations, consist the importance of the public meeting in the Council Chamber, July 2, to discuss recruiting and devise ways and means for Canadians taking the place they should take in the battle line.

NO QUARTER TO CROOKEDNESS.

This war has made it hard for many of us in many ways; it has made business difficult; it has made it hard to make money honestly. It has also made it harder to make money dishonestly, or do other dishonest things. It has also aroused the public conscience, and strengthened public opinion in regard to the duty and good of doing right. It has multiplied and sharpened the thorns in the pathway of the crooked politician. It has brought the public to a humour of giving no quarter to crookedness. The war has done this, in that it has given the world a nauseating surfeit of crookedness, of deceit, lying, baseness and disregard of all the moral restraints that civilization and religion impose upon man in his relations with men. The war is a fruit of the German system of militarism, of German kultur, whose foundation stones are lying, deceit, spying, breach of faith—a satanic synopsis of the harvest of organized dishonesty. We have had a bloody object lesson of the fruits of crookedness; we have got "a sickener" of it and we all, that, is the mass of honest people, no matter what our race or our religion, or our politics, are ready to cry out—"away with it." Hereafter, it is probable that the people won't "stand for" politcial or other crookedness with a hundredth part of the toleration they would have shown a year ago. This war has made a close season for the political adventurer, of whatever brand, who felt that partizanship would, in the name of the party, make the people lend themselves to crooked political policies and practises. We shall pay a high price for deepening the sense of honour and honesty in the popular heart, but if we only do that it is worth while; it will achieve triumph of the principles of high morality, unstained honour, and thus conduce to the greater realization of public health, righteous administration and government. It is the irony of justice, that the cause of Kaiserism is its fuller exposure, has helped destroy itself, and hopes are really on their way for victory. We are fighting for what is every day more applied in government, in society, and in individuals.

ALL TOGETHER.

We have universal strife. Not even the elements are at peace. While millions of men are locked in sanguinary struggle in Europe, and when almost every country of that agitated continent is a storm centre, in our own peaceful land the winds are let loose and tornadoes tear the face of the green land, prostrating crops and levelling buildings to their foundations; cloudburst floods sweep away bridges, and gutter green fields. Though in the vicinity of Calgary three-quarters of a million dollars' damage is done by storm, that is only a trifle compared with the cost in money and damage wrought in all the war fields, every second.

We thus see that all are involved in this all-embracing war. While our own soldiers are laying down their lives and getting deadly wounds, we, at home, have a great duty to do. At the beginning of the war the great cry—which yet has not lost its force—was for men. Now the great cry is for munitions of war, and the means to heal the wounds of war and mitigate the sufferings, We, at home, cannot fight with the weapons of war, but we are called upon for an unremitting fight. We can't give ourselves to be sacrificed on the battle line; we cannot yield our members to mutilation, but we can contribute to success, by providing ample supplies of war munitions; by contributing means to help.

There does not seem to be a prospect of a speedy end to the war; and it does not seem that we yet realize fully the gravity of the situation; the supreme need of ceaseless endeavour, that should appeal to all of us. As in the days of Noah, we are marrying and giving in marriage, playing and pleasure seeking, while a sanguine flood is submerging every few days in Europe a population greater than that of the whole earth in the time of Noah. While we sport, and play, and laugh, light-heartedly as the thoughtless child, there are woe and worry, suffering and sorrow, at millions of hearths; and millions of hearts are bleeding white.

It is, perhaps, well that we can be light-hearted. But we must remember that thousands of those suffering at home and abroad, are our friends and neighbours, and our fellow-citizens; and millions are our fellow-citizens of the Empire. It is meet to think of these things so that we shall come to realize the situation, and be stimulated to more complete, to more unresting activity to do our share. If we cannot enlist in the kahki ranks we can enlist in the scores of activities that have for their object the only humane features of the dreadful war, helping the soldier in the trenches and the wounded in the hospitals.

Do we realize what is going on; where we are at? In the remoter and peaceful country districts, where, the people are busy with plowing and mowing; sowing and reaping, does the full meaning of this awful crisis, appeal to their minds or imaginations? Does the full weight of the responsibility rest consciously upon them? Do they realize that while the happy birds are singing, the harvest springing and ripening, and all is bloom, and promise and peace, the fate of the Empire, their personal liberties, their right to think and speak their thoughts, their right to enjoy the fruits of their labours, without the fear of the toll of militarism; that, in a word, the enjoyment of the highest benefits of British civilization, is in the balance, is at stake?

While things are as they are; while the clouds of war and woe hang low over the earth, do we all of us realize how the petty things of life, the trifling pleasures of the moment, as innocent as they are inappropriate at this time; how the petty ambitions of party politicians, and the greedy schemes of the devotees of gain; how the frivolous plans of the thoughtless pleasure-seekers, are, or at the least, should be, pushed into the background. Our public men should not be making political speeches; should not be making themselves Neroes, while Rome is burning. They should be carrying the fiery cross of duty through every side line, waking every farm and hamlet, and the occupants thereof to the grim reality, not only of danger, but the higher reality of their duty. We all need to get ourselves together and think like thinking beings, and act like men and women who see their duty and are ready to do it.

WHY THIS MEIGHEN ACTIVITY?

Porbably the greatest offender against the political truce which, in a comparative sense, is being observed in Canada just now, is Hon. Arthur Meighten, Solicitor-General in the Borden Cabinet. He is attacking the Transcontinental railroad, which he declares goes through a country in which a squirrel could not live, and charges that the Laurier Government is responsible for the fact that Canada is not represented in the British fleet to-day. It is hardly worth while treating seriously such absurd misstatements, but the fact that they are made at this time, and are accompanied by the charge that the Liberals are troubling the political waters, is abundant evidence taken in connection with Premier Borden's stubborn silence, that the Dominion Government has not given up the idea of bringing on a general election this fall. Liberals would do well, therefore, not to permit themselves to be lulled into sleep and are justifiable in maintaining a wholesome criticism of the general policy of the Government until such time as they have authoritative assurance that their opponents intend to fight fairly.—Brantford Expositor.

A PRIZE POEM.

The following poem on Belgium by an undergraduate of Harvard won a silver medal and a hundred dollars, known as the Lloyd McKim Garrison prize:

"Wait watch and pray!
The uneven candles from the altar burn;
The shattered windows blaze the last return
Of sinking day;
The evening sky
Lapses from battled crimson into dark
And to the altar tapers, spark on spark,
The stars reply,
And black above
The short-torn rafters meeting overhead
Watch o'er the land's petition for its dead—
A grief of love
That never ends.
A nation, shrapnel-scarred and faint with war,
Humbled along the Church's stone-strewn floor,
In conquest bends,
Bends to receive
The sacrament of Christ, the blood of peace,
The benediction prayer of swift release,
Disdains reprieve,
Kneeling alone.
Belgium, bowed down, but not reproached, aspires
In hope to see the morning gild her spires
And dawn atone
For dark to-night,
When brothers slay from hill to distant hill
Or in the bayonet charge, white hot to kill.
Fall in the fight . . .
God grant the day
Break golden clear beyond the coming morn.
Wait—light in future glory will be born,
Wait—fight and pray."

THE NEWSPAPER IN PITH AND POINT TELLS WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES

Born of the deep, daily need of a nation—I am the Voice of Now—the incarnate spirit of the Times—Monarch of things that are.

My "cold type" burns with the fire-blood of human action. I am fed by arteries of wire that girdle the earth. I drink from the cup of every living joy and sorrow. I sleep not—rest not. I know not night, nor day, nor season. I know no death, yet I am born again with every morn—with every noon—with every twilight. I leap into fresh being with every new world's event.

Those who created me cease to be—the brains and heart's-blood that nourish me go the way of human dissolution. Yet I live on—and on.

I am Majestic in my Strength—Sublime in my power—Terrible in my Potentialities—yet as democratic as the ragged boy who sells me for a penny.

I am the consort of Kings, the partner of capital, the brother of toil. The inspiration of the hopeless, the right arm of the needy, the champion of the oppressed, the conscience of the criminal. I am the epitome of the world's Comedy and Tragedy.

My Responsibility is infinite. I speak and the world stops to listen. I say the word and battle flames the horizon. I counsel peace and the warlords obey. I am greater than any individual, more powerful than any group. I am the dynamic force of Public Opinion. Rightly directed, I am a Creator of Confidence. I builder of happiness in living. I am the Backbone of Confidence. The Trailblazer of Prosperity. I am the teacher of Patriotism.

I am the Hands of the Clock of Time, the clarion voice of Civilization. I am the Newspapers.

From address delivered by Joseph H. Finn, President Nichols-Finn Advertising Co., Chicago, before Associated Advertising Clubs of the World Convention, Chicago, June 2, 1915.

FRENCH SCHOOL FOR CRIPPLES A SUCCESS

BOURGES, June 28.— The school opened here for the re-education of maimed soldiers is operating with great success. The number of pupils enrolled already is 150, nearly all of whom will be unable to work at trades by which they earned their living before the war, and must learn some new means of making a livelihood.

A staff of eminent physicians is faithfully attending the unfortunates preparing them for their changed future and helping lighten their tasks. Among the instructors are former teachers who themselves are cripples.

In spite of all their afflictions the students go about their work gayly. Men who before the war were grocers, plasterers, barbers and miners now are designing patterns for lace, while farm hands and butcher boys are taking courses in electricity and architecture. The course in stenography and accounting is the most popular, the pupils including a head waiter, a carpet layer and a gardener.

Portions of store windows can be converted into blackboards for sign-writing by sandblasting the outside of the glass and painting the inside.

Confidence Makes Jake Daubert Star Player in the Major Ranks

There is a lesson for all young men in Jake Daubert, star of the Brooklyn baseball team and premier first baseman of the country. It is a lesson in confidence in one's own ability and a proof that the fellow who sticks to his work faithfully, who refuses to be discouraged, and plugs right along sooner or later will find himself.

If you glean through the three leagues, among the players you will find fewer fellows who will interest you more, or whom you will like better than this same big, quiet fellow who is almost as shy as a girl and very hard to get acquainted with. He runs from interviewers, but when he finds they are on the level about it, he smiles a kind, likable smile and is just a natural fellow.

Few players ever have gone through the experiences that he endured and then come back. Four times he was brought up from the minor league and four times he was sent back before he finally gained the confidence in himself that was necessary.

Daubert was born on a farm down in southern Pennsylvania not far from Lancaster, and as a boy he played ball for a little town team. He was brought into Lancaster, and for a whole year and part of another played around that district.

The next year he was in the Southern league, and it was at Nashville that he came to the prominent notice of scouts. At the end of the first season there were five major league clubs fighting for his service and Cleveland got him.

He joined Cleveland in the spring training trip. He was too modest and retiring to advertise himself, and although he looked good, he was sent back after a brief trial.

Three years in succession he was beyond doubt the greatest first baseman in the Southern—and each year he joined the big show and was declared a failure.

Down in Nashville there was a veteran ball player. He had had his chance; he had been up and come back—and he knew Daubert and knew what the matter was. He wont the confidence and the friendship of the retiring young player and he told him a few things.

Daubert set the Southern afire that year. Cleveland had grown to believe Daubert never would do, but Brooklyn stepped in and procured him.

This time Daubert determined to make good. The first day he stepped on the base he started rushing the attack. Rather to his own surprise he discovered that the difference between the major and the minor league playing was chiefly in the imagination. He commenced hitting, and found that he could bat the pitching of the big stars almost as well as he could those lesser ones who shine in the smaller leagues.

And from that day to this he has been one of the best batters in the National league.

BOOSTS TENNIS FOR YOUNG MEN

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 28. — Lawn tennis is one of the best sport, if not the best, for the physical and moral development of young men, said Fred Alexander, former international Davis cup player, in addressing the students and teachers of Curtis High School. Not only strongly did he advise the students to become enthusiastic participants in the game but told them that if at any time they would make arrangements to meet him, he would take some of the tennis players to a tournament and show them the fine points of the game.

Mr. Alexander, who spoke on "The Ethics of Tennis," said that when he was four years old his father had built a tennis court at their home and he had practically been brought up on it. When eleven years old he had a serious illness and the physician advised that he keep out in the open as much as possible, so he spent most of his time on the tennis court.

Game Promotes Honesty.

The speaker said tennis raised a man's standards of honesty, and as far as he was concerned he was willing to play with any one without a referee, and be certain that there would be no differences over the score. Speaking especially to the members of the Curtis tennis team, who sat in the front row, Mr. Alexander advised that they play with better players than themselves, watch as far as possible, copy the style of better players than themselves.

Tennis requires a quick thinker, said the champion. A successful player must have his mind under control at all times, and one will acquire the power of quick and accurate thinking by playing the game, he said. Another thing of which the champion spoke was the apparent ease with which it was possible to play the game; this is, it is only necessary to get a partner and go out on a court, and have a game, whereas in baseball it is necessary to assemble eighteen players to have a game. Tennis can be played and is played by men of all ages and stations of life, he pointed out.

No Longer Ridiculed Sport.

Mr. Alexander told the students that when he was a student at Princeton he travelled around the country with a tennis team, and much ridicule was hurled at the players and the game, but he explained that all this was past now and the public had rapidly become fascinated with the game, until to-day it was one of the foremost sports.

Your King and Country need you.

CANADIAN DEEDS OF BRAVERY ARE WORTHY OF AN ILIAD

LONDON, June 29.—Major J. L. Newman, writing to an officer at Shornoliffe after the fight of June 15 and 16th, in which the first and third battalions weer particularly engaged, says: "One 'coal box' wiped out eight men of my platoon. The third man following me was killed. It happened while coming up the communication trench about 50 yards behind the fire trench. Captain Morrison of the Engineers, was killed by an explosion. I thought my time was come. I felt as if I were in a vise with my breathing squeezed out of me. I was stunned, but escaped without a scratch. They shelled the devil out of us and I saw some awful sights. Our front trench was full of the killed and wounded, some turned to bits. It is wonderful how anyone emerged alive."

The description from British headquarters to-day of the recent actions is thus commented upon by the Evening Standard: "The Canadians have taken part in some of the most furious fighting of the war. They have not only done all that was expected of them but much more. Their deeds of bravery would make an iliad which a Canadian poet may some day write."

Poison Gas For Germans Made Near New York

CHESTER, Conn., June 29. — An acid which is said to be the principal property in the poison gas used by the Germans, is being manufactured here in immense quantities at a plant which was conducted until a few weeks ago by Magnus, Maybee & Reynard, of New York city, for the making of witch hazel.

The product is shipped to New York entirely in automobile trucks, five or six of which, laded high, leave the factory every night. It is said Germany is the destination of every shipment, but how and where the transhipment is made is not explained.

The plant is running night and day with three shifts of employees, all of whom are foreigners, it is said, and were imported here a month ago. They live near the factory, and around them and the mill is a cordon of guards who permit no stranger to approach.

It is said the employees are paid from $1 to $2 an hour, but they are being replaced continually by other workers. With nearly every shipment that is made go emaciated men, their faces a livid yellow, who do not return. To take their places the returning automobiles bring fresh supplies of toilers.

According to papers on file in the Town Clerk's office a transfer of the plant was made about May 1 to "Philips, Jr., New York." No other clew to the identity of the owner has been found.

Shipments of vitrol for the concern arrive daily by rail and water. They are consigned to names unknown here. That of McBride and Hedrick appears most frequently.

Two workers at the plant have ben in the Middlesex Hospital for three weeks suffering from severe burns caused by acid. They profess ignorance of the nature of the product.

Complaints are made by residents of noxious fumes from the factory that cause a sense of suffocation. Employees are seen stretched on the ground near the plant daily seemingly overcome by the fumes.

Prepared to Manufacture Shells

Frederic Nicholls Tells of Endeavours to Manufacture Munitions.

TORONTO, June 29. — Frederick Nichols, president of the Canadian General Electric and Allis-Chalmers Companies, discussing Lord Curzon's reflections upon the ability of Canadian manufacturers to provide munitions, states that on October 7 last he wrote Gen. Hughes that he expected within two or three weeks to be able to produce 18 and 15-pound shells at the rate of about 1,000 a day, with possibilities of turning out many more, and that his company could also readily commence the manufacture of machine guns and other munitions, if provided with detailed drawings and the services of an arsenal expert. This offer was acknowledged.

On December 19 Mr. Nicholls wrote the British War Office, stating that the Canadian Shipbuilding Co., on the Niagara River, was in a position to build submarines, and offering to put these works and machinery at the disposal of the British Government free of charge, or to build submarines for Great Britain if provided with plans. To this there was no reply.

On June 19 another letter was sent to the British War Office offering to co-operate in replacing Canadian guns which it was reported were about worn out, and renewing the offer made to Gen. Hughes on October. Mr. Nicholls offered to place his plant at the disposal of either the Canadian or British Governments without charge. No reply has yet been received.

France Gives Food to Luxemburg As Germany Refused to Supply It

PARIS, June 28.—The arrival of the first consignment from Switzerland of foodstuffs to be supplied to Luxemburg until the harvest is reaped caused the greatest rejoicing in the Grand Duchy.

The situation in the Grand Duchy has been desperate for some time. At the end of March the population already had been given bread cards, limiting the consumption of bread to seven ounces daily, and later this amount was reduced to four ounces. In the middle of April the Mayor of Luxemburg announced that that city alone required 6,000 barrels of flour and 1,000 barrels each of barley, beans and rice to starve off starvation until the crops were available. The country districts of the industrial town of Echternach are even in a worse plight.

The Luxemburg government sought relief through the American Committee for Relief in Belgium, which, however, was powerless to act, as it lacked the co-operation of Great Britain and Germany. The British Government alleged that as Germany had forcibly occupied the Grand Duchy she must feed the population. This Germany formally refused to do, whereupon Great Britain declined to permit the passage by way of Holland of foodstuffs destined for the Grand Duchy.

France, however, always sympathetic toward her French-speaking neighbour and grateful for the generous assistance rendered to French refugees in the northern departments by the Luxemburgers, readily consented to supply the needs of the people by way of Switzerland, under proper guarantees.

These now have been furnished in the person of Swiss officers who accompany every train, and who are charged with the control and disposition of the flour and with the right to inspect warehouses.

What's Doing in Civic Circles---Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

The Board of Works will meet this evening. City Engineer Parsons, who has returned from Michigan, will probably have a report to submit to the committee respecting concrete paving.

Surface Drainage.

George street north is being put in shape for street paving. Surface drains are being put in and other preparations undertaken preliminary to the construction of asphaltic pavement.

Pasturing in the Park.

Horses have been seen pasturing in King Edward Park within the past week. The matter was drawn to the attention of the police department some time ago, but very little seems to have been accomplished in the way of eliminating the nuisance.

A Good Suggestion.

A well know south end taxpayer has suggested that the police who, it is stated, spent some considerable time patrolling in the vicinity of the Colonial Weaving Company's plant around the midnight hour, transfer their affections to the neighbourhood of King Edward Park where their services would be more in demand.

Charity Board.

A meeting of the Central Charity Board was held last evening. A number of accounts were passed and other business of a routine nature transacted.

A Good Representation.

The Police Department was represented in the County Court this morning by Chief of Police Thompson, Police Matron Mrs. McElhiney, Detective Meagher and P. C. Blade. The case was that of Alfred Helson, charged with criminal assault.

Oiling the Streets.

Residents on Albert street are speculating upon the length of time that will elapse before the city undertakes to oil the streets. This is one of the main thoroughfares in the city and is on the route of the street railway.

Free Fight In Lindsay

LINDSAY, June 29.— While the Italians are fighting valiantly on Austrian soil, some of the natives of sunny Italy find time to fight among themselves, as was the case near Haliburton village on Saturday, and as a result of the fracas, one of the participants is in the Ross Hospital suffering from terrible injuries.

The two Italians engaged in the melee came to the north country a few days ago to work in the woods, and on Saturday became engaged in a quarrel which had seriously consequences. One of the men became so enraged that he picked up an axe and proceeded to hack the other to pieces. In order to ward off the blows, which were falling thick and fast, the victim of the attack put up his arm and received a terrible gash. His assailant kept up the attack, and struck the man another vicious blow in the leg, completely breaking it and lacerating it badly. It was reported that the limb was nearly severed, but this could not be verified at the hour of going to press.

The assailant afterwards made his escape, but it is expected he will be captured before long. The injured man was taken to Haliburton, where his injuries were dressed and this morning he was brought to the Ross Hospital by Constable Roberts. His injuries had not been examined by a local physicians at noon.

18 Pound Shells Now on Sale

Peterborough Hardware Company Secure Something Unique in the Way of an Ornament.

Something new and significant in the way of an ornament is now on sale at the Peterborough Hardware Company. It consists of an 18-lb. shrapnel shell. They are finished in rich gilt and brush brass and are an actual representation of the shells now being used by the allies. In fact they were made for that purpose, and it was only with some considerable difficulty that the Peterborough Hardware Co. succeeded in securing a number to place on sale. The shells make a very handsome vase and in later years will possess an historical value.

17-inch Shells Explode 2 Seconds After Striking

WARSAW, June 29.—Seven eights of the wounds in the Galician fighting were caused by shells half of which were fired from big calibre guns, said Sturgeon-Major Leoghintseff to an interviewer on returning to Warsaw from the front.

"Bullets play no part now," he continued, "and the infantryman's rifle is a toy. Infantry merely occupy the trenches the cannon have won."

Most devastating of all are the new Skoda shells of the German allies, which are 17 inches in diameter and weight 2,800 pounds. The Skoda howitzer shoots at a high angle, and its shell penetrates twenty feet into soft earth before exploding two seconds after striking. These howitzers do not resemble the Krupp mortars of the same calibre, to which they are said to be inferior in every way.

When a Skoda shell hits, it means death to everything within a radius of 150 yards and even farther off. The mere pressure of its gas rips open the bomb-proof shelters and catches those who escape the metal fragments and flying debris. This gas enters the body cavities and tears flesh asunder, sometimes stripping the men of their clothes. Of course the men in the immediate neighbourhood of the explosion are annihilated.

So fierce is the heat of the explosion of the shell that it melts rifle barrels as if they had been struck by lightning.

LIEUT. MARCONI IN AVIATION CORPS

ROME, via Paris, June 29.—Signor Guglielmo Marconi, of wireless telegraphy fame, to-day begins his duties as a lieutenant of aviation in the Italian army. The inventor received an enthusiastic reception at the barracks when introduced to his brother officers by Colonel Morris. Lieutenant Marconi said:

"I am convinced that we shall work splendidly together for the protection of country and King."

Louisa Marksfeldt Given Six Months

TORONTO, June 28.—Toronto's one sensational German spy case ended to-day with the conviction of Louisa Markesfeldt on a vagrancy charge, and her committal by Magistrate Kingsford to six months and indefinitely in the Mercer.

"This poor girl," said his Worship, "has no home, no friends, and no means of living. The only thing we can do is to send her somewhere. I think six months and indefinitely in the Mercer would suffice."

"Might I suggest that it be made a transfer to the Industrial Refuge?" asked Crown Attorney Corley.

"What will that mean?" "Well this girl is not the sort usually committed to the Mercer, and I think if she were sent to the Refuge she would have work to do and would not be in evil company."

The girl did not open her mouth. She walked from the court room as serenely as ever.

ANOTHER BIG FEATURE

For Dominion Day at Port Hope Contracted For

After considerable correspondence and a very large expense, the Special Attraction Committee of the Port Hope Dominion Day celebration, have secured the services of Professor Hardy, the world's most celebrated high-wire walker. Mr. Hardy was recommended to the committee by Mr. J. O. Orr, Manager of the Toronto Exhibition, and Mr. Orr's recommendation was that Mr. Hardy had no equal. He performs stunts on the wire that would appear almost impossible. A further recommendation of his ability is that on July 4th he opens a season's engagement at White City, Chicago. The 57th Regimental Band of Peterborough will furnish the music during the day, and a special train will return to Peterborough after the evening programme.

The Best Treatment For Constipation

The Experience of One Who Knows and Places Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills First

It is not difficult to secure a medicine that will effect movement of the bowels To cure Constipation and the complications which arise from it is another matter.

Constipation of the bowels is usually preceded by torpid action of the liver. Hence it follows that if Constipation is to be cured the liver must be set right. And here lies the secret of the success of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They awaken the action of the liver and insure a good flow of bile, which is nature's cathartic. The liver, kidneys and bowels are invigorated and regulated, and the troubles with the digestive system disappear.

Mr. H. M. Bell, Innisfail, Alta., writes: "For some considerable time I have been using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I have obtained through your firm. I suppose during my life I have used nearly all the best-known pills, as I have been subject to Constipation and digestive troubles. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I can honestly say that of all the pills I have tried nothing has suited me better — no griping—action always insured, and fine for the kidneys. This is how I have found them after a thorough test, and you may use this statement if you like."

This letter should convince you of the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but there is nothing like personal experience. If you do not feel like risking 25 cents for a box, write to us for a free sample box, mentioning where you saw this advertisement. Put this medicine to the test when you have indigestion, constipation, biliousness, backache or kidney derangements. The results will soon prove to you the superiority of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

The Girls' Guild of St. John's Church held their last meeting for the season at Mrs. (Dr.) Crawford's, Mesmora.

Mr. Butcher has been principal here for the past five years and his services in that time have been most highly satisfactory. He intends, so we are informed, to take a course in the University of Toronto, and we but express the wish of all that the future may bring to them all the good things of life and success in his chosen profession. He will be very much missed in town, being especially prominent in helping along other good movements. He was also the originator of the anti-cigarette fraternity for boys, which has been the means of much good to the youngsters, and which is bound to spread in time throughout the Province and to bring him much honour and fame thereby.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Nine-tenths of All Stomach Trouble Said to Be Due to Acidity.

A Physician's Advice on Cause and Cure.

A famous physician whose successful researches into the cause and cure of stomach and intestinal diseases have earned for him an international reputation, said in the course of a recent lecture that nearly all intestinal troubles, as well as many diseases of the vital organs, were directly traceable to a deranged condition of the stomach which in turn was due nine times out of ten to excessive acidity, commonly termed sour stomach or heartburn, which not only irritated and inflamed the delicate lining of the stomach, but also set up gastritis and stomach ulcers. It is interesting to note that he condemns the use of patent medicines as well as of medical treatment for the stomach, stating that he and his colleagues have secured remarkable results by the use of ordinary bisurated magnesia, which, by neutralizing the acidity of the food, removes the source of the trouble. He contends that it is as foolish to treat the stomach itself as it would be for a man who stepped on a tack to rub liniment on the foot without first removing the tack. Remove the tack and the foot will heal itself—neutralize the acid and the stomach troubles will disappear. Irritating medicines and medical treatments are useless, as long as the contents of the stomach remain acid; remove the acidity, and there will be no need for medicine—the inflamed lining of the stomach will then heal itself. Sufferers from acidity, sour stomach or indigestion should get a small bottle of bisurated magnesia from their druggist, and take a teaspoonful in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after meals, repeating in fifteen minutes if necessary, this being the dose which the doctor has found most effective in all cases.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

The Summer Travel To Stoney Lake

Splendid Steamboat Facilities of the Stoney Lake Navigation Co.—Spend Your Vacation "Up The Lakes."

Peterborough is exceptionally well off in the matter of summer travel to our chain of northern lakes, included in the Kawartha District. No other city in Ontario can excel the ample accommodations afforded by the line of steamers owned by the Stoney Lake Navigation Company. Apart altogether from the scenic beauty and rare attractions of these lakes, the comfort and speedy transportation afforded by this line of steamers is often not fully appreciated by those of us living so near to them.

It is matter for no little surprise, to, how this enterprising Company are able to maintain their speedy fleet of steamers in the thoroughly equipped condition which they are in, year after year, with so short a season to work in. July, August and part of September may be said to be the only months in the year when their passenger traffic amounts to much. It is practically a rush season, in which they are expected to give an excellent service, and at only moderate rates. Passengers are found occasionally who are unreasonable in their demands—who think the steamers should leave them off at their islands or places of destination without taking them the rounds of the lakes with the regular course of the steamer—or who think they should be waited for, and the regular timetable ignored. But these are the exceptions to the general rule, and such persons may ocasionally be found on land as well as at sea. Due consideration for the responsibilities of the Captains and crews in charge of these steamers, will accord a proper acknowledgment of the excellent service which is given to Stoney Lake tourists during each short season. Then, too, the comparative freedom from accidents or disappointing delays is a tribute to the Stoney Lake Navigation Company's skillful handling of their steamers.

Resolve that we boost our own lakes—that we can have as good a vacation "up the lakes" as elsewhere—spend our holiday money where some of it may filter back into our own tills. We can get far enough away from the "busy haunts of men" in our own country, and at the same time, be within hail, if necessity demanded it. The only benefits worth having are the benefits we can share with our neighbours. Let us pull together as a community and co-operate with every move for our common betterment.

LINDSAY COMING TO THE COUNTRYSIDE

Sergt. Yuill, who has been on a recruiting trip in the north country during the past week is not enthused over the military spirit shown by the young men of Haliburton. The sergeant said they disappeared like chickens would when a hawk loomed up, so fearful were they of the officer forcing them into service. Notwithstanding this slight nervousness on the part of some young fellows a few recruits were picked up. —Lindsay Warder.

DID ROGERS HELP TO SECURE KELLEY'S LAWYER?

Special to the Examiner.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 29. — A telegram which passed between Sir Rodmond Roblin and Hon. Robert Rogers, in relation to the Parliament Buildings case, was filed with the Royal Commission this morning. It indicated that it was they who secured for Contractor Kelly the services of ex-Judeg F. H. Phippen, chief counsel for the C. N. R. Wanted to Plead Guilty

Ohio Woman Pleaded So That She Might Bake Bread

Mrs. Rosa Brown, 50, Norwalk, Ohio, indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of using the mails improperly, pleaded guilty, when arraigned before Judge Killets. The court asked the woman to defer her plea until next day, when she could consult an attorney.

"But your honour, my washing is on the line and I have bread to bake." the woman excitedly told the court.

The government charges Mrs. Brown wrote more than fifty letters to persons in Norwalk which were not of proper nature.

Voice of The People

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I wish through your valuable paper to call the attention of the ministers of Peterborough to the "Russel Sermon" in his night's issue, June 28. How can they put up with his slander and not protest? He says (quoting from papers, "Surely not 5 out of every 100 ministers and others graduated make any pretence of believing in the inspiration of the Bible, when they are speaking privately and confidentially! They are too intelligent to believe in eternal torture and experience a revulsion of feeling against the Bible which the Doctrine of Demons have led them teaches these Satanic delusions.

As a result we have thousands of ministers drawing salaries totalling millions of dollars annually, who outwardly pose as God's servants, ministers of His religion revealed in the Bible, but who in reality are "hypocrites." I will not take up more space, but I think Pastor Russel should be noticed by ministers.

End of June Finds Visitors Flocking to Stoney Lake

A Word of Caution That May Prevent Drownings—Varied News From The Lake.

Already the papers are reminding us that the drowning season has arrived. Although Stoney Lake becomes so populous during July and August we are remarkably free of these lamentable accidents. Still it is not safe to boast.

The best we can do is to be careful, ourselves, and to warn those fool killers who inflict others with their presence, to exercise a little common sense in safeguarding the lives of their friends, if they have no regard for their own.

Probably the most dangerous spot on Stoney Lake, especially for children, is Young's Point, with its canal, dam and lock, yet in the last half-century no child has ever lost its life through drowning; a most unique record. Many a child has fallen in, but in some way or other they were always fished out in time. Mr. Young, the obliging lock-master, has been instrumental in saving many himself, and to his trait of cautiousness more than to anything else, is due this remarkable immunity from accidents. Better to be safe than sorry.

Mr. Singer is having an addition put on his cottage in Lovesick Lake. Mr. Shannon of Lakefield is doing the work.

Another pair of honeymooners have arrived at McCracken's Landing. Miss Morgan, the obliging hostess, ought not to be short of spoons for a while at least. The latest arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. Bailey. Mrs. Bailey who, before marriage, was Miss Corine Ringel of Cleavland, is one of the most popular visitors to Stoney Lake. Her many friends will wish her the usual felicitations.

Mr. Norman Foote of Peterborough is a guest at "Forest Home."

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Wright of Detroit, are registered at the Victoria House.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Wright of Cleveland are registered at "Glenwood."

Mr. W. R. Willoughby and Miss Laura of Princeton, N.J., have arrived at the Lakes for the season.

Mr. S. G. Grills has taken up his abode at "Sea Breeze" for the summer.

Mr. Harold E. Knapman has joined the rest of the family at "Forest Home".

Miss Gertrude Chapple has returned.

Mr. Gerald K. Rackham spent a couple of weeks with Miss Pearl Brock at "Shingleshanty."

"Kelpie," the summer home of Mrs. Morson, is now open.

Mr. Botterill is making good progress with the Fraser Cottage. The roof is being put on at present.

Mrs. E. Wyley Grier and her sons, Crawford and "Jem," have joined the rest of the family at "Woodonga."

Mr. McGaw's semi-cruiser, in charge of Mr. Greene, son of Canon Greene of Orillia, is finding shelter at Prof. L. B. Stuart's summer home.

Mr. eGrald K. Rackham spent a short holiday at the lakes, returning to Kingston on Thursday.

Dr. and Mrs. Morrison motored to their cottage at Kawartha Park on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. James Dixon is having her cottage, "Trafalgar Lodge," treated to a coat of paint.

Mrs. (Dr.) Zimmerman of Toronto arrived at her summer home, Kawartha Park, on Thursday.

The first Church of England service for the season of 1915, was held in St. Peter's Church, Sunday morning.

"Beverley," the summer home of Mr. R. J. Colville of St. Thomas, has been opened for the season.

Mr. H. O. Fiske has installed a pump at his cottage "Fern Rock."

Mrs. James Stubbs spent the week-end in Peterborough.

Mr. Frank Edmand has erected his tent at Kawartha Park. Mr. Edmand was the first man to use an out-board engine in Stoney Lake. He still pins his faith in the Evinrude.

Mr. Wm. Madill of Peterborough has taken Trafalgar Lodge for the first two weeks of July.

Miss May Edgar spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. W. J. Stubbs at "Restmore."

Mr. W. J. McMurray is the guest of Mr. E. Munro Grier at "Woodonga."

THE BATH TUB MURDER

Defendant is Called Cold-Blooded Fiend—Star Witness Tells of Death of Smith's Third Wife.

LONDON, June 29—George Joseph Smith, defendant in the "bath tub murder" trial, was pictured by the prosecution as a cold-blooded fiend who played the piano in an adjoining room only a few minutes after he had killed his wife, and while her body still lay in the bath in which she met her end.

To prove this claim, the Government called as its star witness of the day Mrs. Elizas Blatch, landlady of the Bismarck Road House at Highgate, where Elsie Lofty, Smith's third wife, died or was murdered.

Mrs. Blatch caused a sensation when she pointed out Smith as the man who had engaged rooms on December 17th, 1914, for himself and wife, giving the name of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd.

Heard a Cry.

"The following evening," said Mrs. Blatch, "the woman whom I knew as Mrs. Lloyd took a bath. I heard a loud splashing in the tub, which was followed by a sound as if someone had struck an arm against the side of the tub.

"Then I heard a cry, but all was quiet after that, and I thought nothing about it.

"Three minutes later someone began playing the organ in the sitting-room. This was kept up ten minutes. Then I heard the front door slam.

"Shortly afterwards Mr. Lloyd' the defendant here, came in the front door and said that he had just gone out and brought back tomatoes for his wife's supper. He asked if his wife had come downstairs yet, and when he was told that she had not, he called for her. When he got no answer we went upstairs together, and on entering the bathroom found his wife dead in the bath tub."

The Owen Sound Sun says: A very welcome visitor in town this week is Mrs. Skinner of Peterborough, whose many friends are celebrating her visit to Owen Sound with great pleasure and many informal little gatherings. One of these was Mrs. Ed. Frost's tea on Tuesday afternoon, when about twelve ladies gathered in the pretty chints hung rooms with their sewing and greatly enjoyed a chat with the guest of honour. Tea was served from a table done with sweet peas; snap dragons in the same dainty shade being used about the reception rooms. Mrs. Frost was assisted by Mrs. Crane and Mrs. Hodgson.

Mrs. Skinner was also a popular guest at the picnic of the Ladies' Aid of Division street church on Wednesday afternoon at Harrison Park. She will remain in town, as the guest of Mrs. Eberle, for another week, Mrs. Skinner coming up this week to join her.

ASSAULT CHARGES.

A family row in the North End of the city was settled in the Police Court this morning. A man and his wife were each charged with assaulting a youngster, aged ten years.

It would appear that the youngster used some very insulting language to the neighbour woman and when the woman's husband returned from work he started out to find the boy, as he explained, to demand an apology. When he brought the culprit to his wife she gave him a severe spanking and this morning husband and wife had to answer to a charge of assault. The case was dismissed after an hour and a half of the time of the Court had been taken up.

The appearances were Mr. Strickland of the firm of Bennett and Goodwill, for the private prosecution, and Mr. Widdifield of Gordon and Widdifield for the defendants.

Italians Debarred From Enlisting

These Who Do Will be Classed as Deserters and Punished, Says Consul-General

MONTREAL, June 29.—As deserters, in the manner in which Italy will look upon all Italians of military age who join the Canadian forces.

This was the substance of a letter received by Lt.-Colonel F. A. Caseigne, O.C. 60th Overseas Regiment who was requested by the Italian Consul General, Chevalier Chilesotti, to dismiss from A Company of the 60th Battalion, which is now being recruited for the overseas service, two Italians who were of military age.

In his letter to Lieut.-Colonel Gascoigne, the Italian Consul General, referring to the enlistment of these men, stated that both were eligible for military service in Italy, and should return with the first contingent of Italian reservists which will leave Canada shortly for the front. Failing to do this these two men will be regarded as deserters and should they ever return to Italy they will be obliged to suffer the penalty meted out to all deserters.

In consultation, Consul General Chilesotti, in view of the circumstances, asked Lieut.-Colonel Gascoigne to dismiss the two men from the ranks. It was stated at military headquarters that these two men would not be retained in the ranks.

Speculation on a large scale is now going on among the members of the local Italian colony as to the place of exhibition. It is generally believed in some quarters that it will be either in Turin, Rome or New York. Owing to the disadvantages of sending men to Italy, Rome is thought. These Rivers is the more likely place.

Increase in Price of Wheat in England

Rise of Almost 80c a Bushel Since Last Year.

The average price of wheat for the forty-first week ended June 15, of the cereal year 1914-15, according to the London Grain Reporter, was $1.60 1-4 a bushel, compared with $1.85 1-4 the week before, and $1.88 -2 a month previous. The price last year for the second week in June was $1.02 3-4, against 93c, two years ago, and $1.11 three years ago.

Total imports of wheat to the United Kingdom, Sept. 1 to June 15, were $163,144,000 bushels, compared with 160,686,872 bushels last year, 186,764,784 two years ago, and 164,-341,920 three years ago. The estimated requirements from June 15 to August 31 this year are placed at 37,366,000 bushels, against 39,784,000 last year, 34,720,000 two years ago, and 56,836,000 three years ago.

To Keep Skin in Fine Condition All Summer

It would be much better for the skin if little cream, powder or rouge were used during the heated term. Mixed with perspiration, dust and grime, these things are anything but beautifying. Ordinary unrefined wax will do more for the complexion, and, without giving an oily, streaked, pasted or pasty appearance. It is the ideal application for the summer, as it not only keeps the pores clean, but gives protection to the skin which has been soiled by dirt or moisture. By consequently keeping the complexion clear, white, satiny, it does more toward preserving a youthful appearance than anything else. One ounce of unrefined wax, obtainable at any druggists, will completely renovate the worst complexion. It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

To keep the skin from sagging or wrinkling, or to overcome such condition, there's nothing better than a face bath made by dissolving 1 ounce powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel.

THE BATH TUB MURDER CASE

LONDON, June 30.—Expert testimony was introduced by the prosecution to clinch the case against George Joseph Smith, defendant in the "bath-tub murder case." Dr. Spilsbury, one of the most famous pathologists in England, testified that it would have been impossible for Mrs. Margaret Lofty Smith, the slain wife, to have been submerged in the tub in a sitting or lying posture. According to testimony Smith had given at the time of the inquest he found his wife lying upon her left side in the tub of water.

Miss Blatch, the landlady of the house, in which the tragedy occurred, had previously testified that she heard a sound of splashing in the tub in the Smith apartments and immediately afterward the fall of something like a human body. Then she heard a long-drawn sigh.

"A person suddenly submerged by a fall would lose consciousness immediately and would be incapable of making any noise" testiged Dr. Spilsbury.

The bath tub was then brought into court and marked as an exhibit.

"It would not be difficult to drown a person forcibly in a tub of that size," said Dr. Spilsbury. "It would only be necessary to hold the head under water."

Russia Will Continue the Fight Until Enemies Are Crushed

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, June 30.—"With the help of God, Russia will continue the fight until her enemies are completely crushed. Until that time peace is impossible."

Premier Goremykin made this statement in a manifesto issued to-day. The document was made public, immediately, following the remarkable conference, participated in by the Czar and his ministers, behind the great battle front in Galicia.

The manifesto was generally construed here as an answer to statements appearing in the German press that Russia was weary of the war and was ready to sue for peace.

"On all sides we find assurance that cannot be shaken in a brilliant future for Russian arms," he declared. "Let us strengthen our hearts and our resolution to carry on the struggle with Divine help until our triumph is completed.

"With firm faith in the inexhaustible strength of Russia, I anticipate that Governmental institutions, Russian industries, and the faithful sons of the Fatherland without class distinctions, will work in harmony to meet the needs of the army. Henceforth this is our only national problem, to direct all our thoughts to a united Russia, invincible in her duty."

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

"That's all right," sez I; "but it is fixed so that it won't answer to but one false alarm, so you had better not pull it any more unless you need some help."

I spoke a little cross but as I went back to the bunk shack. I chuckled soft to think that in spite of her warlike ways she was as full as much woman as some o' those little shy ones.

I had tied the end of the string to an empty can and had set the can on a shelf in my dug out, and I went to sleep without expectin' any more interruptions; but about the time I was bogged down in sleep to the roots o' my hair—Bang! went the can on the puncheon floor, and I found myself standin 'in the centre of the room, holdin' a gun in my hand and wonderin' what horrible thing had happened.

Another jerk of the string caused the can to jingle around on the floor and then I knew what was up. I put on my boots, routed out the boys, told 'em to be ready but quiet, and then I stole up to the back window and scratched on it careful.

"He's back," she whispered through a crack in the shutters.

"What of it?" sez I. "He's still got some rights here."

"He's tryin' to break in," she whispered, "and I just know he's been drinkin'. Listen!"

I listened, and sure enough tho' was some one on the front gallery makin' a mighty curious sound.

"He stumbled up the steps quite a while ago," she whispered, "and he's been flounderin' about on the porch ever since. He's tried the keyhole half a dozen times and"—

"It can't be Jim," sez I, "for he wouldn't take his key along unless he expected to leave the place run itself for a month or so."

"I have the bars all fastened," she whispered, "and the shutters—"

She paused with a squawk and I heard her settlin' to the floor, just as a regular turmoil started out on the gallery. I could hear someone staggerin' about shameful, knockin' over chairs, beatin' on the door, and takin' all the liberties possible. I wouldn't 'a' blamed Jim a mite for comin' back with enough inside to brace his ag'in' his afflictions, but I never did expect to see him take it ths way, and so I crept around to the front gallery with as much caution as I was able to scrape together.

When I saw what it was I hustled up to the bunkshack and laid a plan before the other boys, and then I went back to the gallery, seized the disturber, shouted at him, wrastled with him, and after I'd turned him loose, I began to shoot in the air. The othey boys joined in until we had as noisy a battle goin' on as a body could wish, and Monody came out of his lean-to and scouted around with a double-barrelled shotgun tryin' to decide which side he was on.

We had kept walkin' out of the grove as we fired and when we thought we had wasted about enough ammunition we quit and fell to congratulatin' ourselves upon the short stay your honoured guest was likely to make.

The boys went back to the bunkshack where they found Isaac wedged under a bunk lookin' for his other boot, he claimed, though he had one on and the other in his hand; and I went back to break the news to Mrs. Hollis that the cruel war was over.

"What was it?" sez she.

"Just a few outlaws," sez I. "They're not on friendly terms with Jim and every once in a while they call around and start something; but they're not likely to be back any more to-night, so you can rest in peace."

She wanted to hold me in conversation until her nerves got calm; but she wasn't there on my invitation, and as long as she had seen fit to comment on the Lion Head bein' a rough place, why, she might just as well get all the backin' to her judgment she could. It was one thing for Jim to call it a rough place; but it was something else altogether for her to issue the same statement.

We none of us though she would stay out the followin' day except Shorty; he said the' was only one safe way to deal with a woman who had a mission, and that was to keep a full day's ride from 'em.

What was it on the gallery? Why, it was Madame, Isaac's calf, with the bail of the bucket caught on the back of his head, but it served to break the monotony of that night in short and able shape.

CHAPTER XXV.
BEWARE THE MEEK.

Sleep's a good deal like whisky—it's about impossible to get along without it altogether, but it's surprisin' how small an amount ya can make do if you just set your mind to it. After stretchin' out on my regular movable bed, I milled around for some time between bein' ashamed at havin' scared a woman on purpose, and chucklin' at how well it worked, and just as I was slippin' back into the drowsy twilight of sleep—the time when you can feel it sort o' smooth out your muscles and pat 'em comfortable—why, back came Jim with the news that he had been shot at right after he'd split off from the stage road and started up the trail, said the feller had shot at him twice from long range with a rifle, and had then dodged back into a draw.

"Did you rush him?" sez I.

"Yes," sez Jim, "but only to the mouth of the draw."

"Don't you do that any more, Jim," sez I. "Next time he's likely to have some of his playmates waitin' there to welcome you. If it's out in the open, why rushin' is sometimes the best plan, but don't you go to divin' into anybody's ambush."

We talked it over a while, but couldn't decide on even who was likely to take a shot at Jim, if they thought it was Jim. "I don't like this sort of thing, Jim," sez I. "Of course, if some feller wants to improve his marksmanship by takin' at pop at old Baldy Hagus once in a while, why, I don't know of any one to object serious to that; but this here indiscriminate shootin' is a thing 'at's got to be stopped. It gives the neighborhood a bad name."

Then I told about the way we had entertained his guest and he sat on the bench and told about how pleased he would be if she left early in the day. I'm not the puncher who slept with the preacher and got used for a kneelin'-cushion when the preacher was took with a nightmare and thought he was sayin' his prayers; but still I'd rather have the hardest little bed in the world all to myself than just a share in a down couch on gold casters, and so I was restin' heapy on my affections when I invited Jim to shed his boots and step alongside of me. "It'll only be for a couple of hours," thought I. "Well, it'll only be for the rest o' this night," 'sez Jim.

A lot of folks get more courage out of the sun by day than out of religion by night, and when Mrs. Hollis peeked out through her window shutters and saw how little of the landscape had been shot away, she tightened up her jaw muscles and prepared to do her duty let him suffer who had to.

"Where do you go from here, Mrs. Hollis?" sez Jim, with the friendliest smile on his face ever he'd seen there.

"My duty will keep me here for some time," sez she, and she smiled just as friendly as he did.

I saw Red reach down sudden and begin to rub his shin, and I knew that Shorty had nudged him with the toe of his boot.

She certainly was a competent woman! She treated us all with just that same gentle helpfulness that the government has used in flim-flammin' the noble redman, and truth to tell, we had just about as much of a come-back as the Injun did. We used to gather together and mutter threats, but when she faced us we'd wilt like hollyhocks before a norther.

She picked Isaac right at the jump as havin' more of an idea of what civilization was than the rest of us, and she piloted him around considerable. He actually seemed to think 'at she was something extra in the way of a woman, but the rest of us kept swingin' farther and farther around to Shorty's idee.

Jim had tried to make it plain to her that he stood ready to make travellin' mighty easy for her any time she gave the word; but he balked at usin' violence and nothin' else would have any effect. "Why," sez he to me, time and again, "I never saw anything like this, I positively never did! She's intellectual far above the usual run o' women, so she knows just as well as you do, that I don't want her here, and yet here she stays, and as far as I can see, she has picked out this place to end her days in."

He kept on campin' out in my dug-out, he rode the range more and more, he mixed in with the boys friendlier o' nights, and he kept gettin' the whole game fixed tighter into his finger ends, so after all she did some good.

Isaac's calf kept on eatin' things he shouldn't and next to Mrs. Hollis he was the most unpopular member we had, especially with Shorty. The time he et the chin-strap off o' Shorty's Mexican bridle, it took the best brand of beggin' Isaac could take together to save that calf's life.

One evenin' we all sat in the bunkshack easin' off after a hard day's ridin' and Red came in with his eyes and his voice full o' tears. "Pore little cuss," he moaned, seatin' himself, lookin' into the burnin' chips, which Phil McLaughlin allus lighted no matter how hot it was, and strokin' his beard thoughtful, "Pore little cuss."

"What the h—— now?" bellowed Shorty.

Red bestowed upon Shorty an omniverous look, heaved out a sigh that wafted his whiskers about like a shower o' sparks, and sez sad and hopeless, "Pore little cuss!"

"You crazy?" sez Shorty.

"Shorty," sez Red, "you ain't got no more heart than a holler stump; but some folks there is which sympathise with affliction."

"And some," sez Shorty, "are bein' everlasein'ly tormented by the afflicted. What in thunder is it that's hurtin' you now?"

"Shorty," sez Red, gettin' up and puttin' a hand solemn on Shorty's shoulder, "the's a pore little calf outin' to die to-night—now don't ask me no more questions."

FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN

As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Dispelled Backache, Headaches and Dizziness.

Piqua, Ohio.—"I would be very ungrateful if I failed to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise it deserves, for I have taken it at different times and it always relieved me when other medicines failed, and when I hear a woman complain I always recommend it. Last winter I was attacked with a severe case of organic weakness. I had backache, pains in my hips and over my kidneys, headache, dizziness, heaviness, had no energy, limbs ached and I was always tired. I was hardly able to do my housework. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on one other occasion, and it had helped me so I took it again and it has built me up, until now I feel like a new woman. You have my hearty consent to use my name and testimonial in any way and I hope it will benefit suffering women."—Mrs. Ottopa Tuxson, 421 E. Wayne St., Piqua, Ohio.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Suffered Intense Pain in Her Back. Could Hardly Do Her Housework.

If a pain attacks you in the back "stop and think" what it is and what causes it

If the kidneys are at fault—and in a large majority of cases of pain in the back they are—doctor them at once, and doctor them persistently, as it is impossible to have a well strong back unless the kidneys perform their functions properly.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all forms of kidney trouble, and cure them to stay cured.

Mrs. H. F. Jacob, Lavant Station, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in telling you how much good your medicine has done me. I had suffered from intense pains in my back, and was so bad I could hardly do my housework. My kidneys were also bothering me a great deal. I tried several kinds of patent medicines, and was almost discouraged, and was looking for some other kind of medicine to try when I noticed your advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills, so I thought it could not hurt to try them. I noticed a great difference when I had used one box, and to my great relief when I had used three boxes I was entirely cured, and I have not been bothered since. I will not hesitate to recommend them to all I know."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

BANISH BILE!

A bilious condition of the system is the result of inaction of the liver, often causing severe headache through the eyes and temples, culminating sometimes in nausea and vomiting, which is frequently followed by a bilious diarrhoea.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt, when taken as directed, stimulates the peptic glands of the stomach and increases the contraction of its muscles from above downward. This action is communicated to the intestines and increases the flow of the intestinal juice, thus stimulating the ducts of the liver to pour out the bile, when it can be carried downward by the laxative action of the Salt, instead of remaining to clog up the liver and flow back into the stomach.

Thus, if a person who is subject to Biliousness and Bilious Headache will use Abbey's Effervescent Salt, the natural action of the Stomach, liver and intestines will be kept up and no bile can accumulate in the system.

FAMOUS SCOTTISH ATHLETE KILLED IN EUROPE'S WAR

Another great athlete has fallen in the European war in the person of Capt. John Douglas MacIntosh who was a native of Logierait, Perthshire, wher he was born forty-five years ago. During the seven years between 1891 and 1897 he gained no less than twelve Scottish amateur championships, six for putting the weight and six for throwing the hammer, and represented Scotland against Ireland in the first four years of the annual contests, being the winner of the putting event in 1897. In 1895 and again in 1896 he established putting records for Scotland at Powderhall, Edinburgh, of 43 feet 1 inch and 43 feet 3 inches respectively. He was connected with the Queen's Edinburgh for twenty-six years.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

WITH THE MYSTIC OM

Mr. Ramsammy Chundra Ghee Was Not Much of a Riddle After All.

By GEORGE MUNSON.

She was not his Molly. John Beatty realized that as, attired in a stiff skirt, which gave him a sensation of impending asphyxia, and a suit of evening clothes, which made him feel like a waiter, he stood moodily beside the door and watched his fiancee moving among her guests.

He had returned from the west after a three years' absence. He had gone to make his fortune in the mines, and Molly had said she would be true to him. He had made the fortune and Molly had been true, but . . . Well, this was not the simple, pretty country girl whom he had left three years before.

There was incense in the air, and Beatty liked the incense of wholesome oxygen. There were three poets present. John did not mind poets, but these had long, greasy hair and ditty finger-nails. And he positively loathed the black man in the turban, who was holding forth a rapt audience—Molly included—upon the mysteries of Yoga.

"To attain the infinite?" he was saying with a supercilious smile. "It is easy, ladies. Concentrate! Concentrate, and repeat without cessation the magic syllable 'Om.' Then breathe in lightly through the left nostril, concentrate all feelings in the center of the spine, and exhale through the alternate nostril, meanwhile repeating the magic syllable 'Om.'"

After that came a lecture upon Esoteric Buddhism, as set forth by the great seer and sage Patanjali, several hundred centuries before Molly had opened her pretty eyes in Binghampton, N. Y.

After the guests had gone John Beatty stood facing Molly alone. He was sick at heart and angry words rose to his lips.

"Don't you see, Molly, this isn't real?" he was saying. "It isn't wholesome. That black man—"

"You mean Mr. Ramsammy Chundra Ghee?" inquired Molly, with ominous calm.

"I do," said Beatty. "I don't like to see you mixed up with a crowd of fakers like those, dear. If he wants to concentrate on the infinite let him do his breathing exercises in some good gymnasium. Why, Molly, there isn't a real man or woman among all that crowd. You seem to have changed—"

"Yes, I have changed, John," answered Molly. "I have found myself. And you haven't changed. You have lost yourself in the whirl of worldly interests. It isn't any use, John. We could never be happy together. I want to live in the soul, to have my spiritual freedom. We could never be happy together."

"You want to break our engagement?" asked Beatty coldly.

She looked at him, half in terror. In the strong lineaments of his face she remembered the man who had won her love, of whom she had dreamed during the first of those three years that had elapsed since their passionate farewell—before she had fallen into the ways and habits of her new friends. She put out her hands.

"John—" she breathed.

John clasped her in his arms.

"God bless you, Molly," he said. "But it isn't any use. Only if you grow tired—if you want me at any time, anywhere, you'll let me know, won't you?"

Then he was gone, and Molly was alone in the incense-scented room with the idol of Buddha in one corner and the Japanese screen in the other, and the barbaric, Oriental couch cover and Turkish pillows and all the other paraphernalia of the mise-en-scene.

Her thoughts went back to those first days when she had come to New York. She had met John in a commonplace boarding house where there was no Ramsammy Ghee and nobody had heard of Buddha, and they ate steak smothered in onions and breathed through both nostrils simultaneously and never thought of their spines. And yet those had been days of perfect happiness. Now—

"Night and Day, Forever, I Dream of You."

A ring at the bell aroused her from her reverie. She glanced at the clock. It was nearly midnight. Who could want her at such an hour? Perhaps it was John! Her face hardened. Her wavering mood impelled her thoughts to bitterness. She would send him about his business. She opened the door.

"You left something, Mr. Ramsammy Ghee?" she asked.

Ramsammy entered after her and closed the door behind him. He turned toward her and held out his arms.

"You," he whispered hoarsely. "I left you, my moondower, my perfect pearl. I could not go home until I had told you that I love you. Night and day, forever I dream of you. With you beside me I would seat myself upon my peacock throne in my own land and dream away blissful hours, immersed in the COSMIC MEMBRA of the ninth sphere, my bride, my seraph."

Molly recoiled in horror. She had always associated Ramsammy with unearthly detachment and philosophic serenity, with the mystic Om and all that it denoted. And here he was talking like—a lover? No, like a drunkard. There was a quite unmistakable smell upon his breath, and all at once she understood why Ramsammy was so very partial to incense.

"Will you come with me and be my bride, lotos-flower?" inquired the black man eagerly. And without waiting for the lotos-flower to answer he clasped her in his arms. And Molly, overcome with aversion, screamed as vulgarly as any ordinary maiden.

"Oh, I hate you! Go away!" she cried. "John! John!"

The answer was immediate. With a crash the door came off its hinges, and Mr. John Beatty stood in the entrance. His stocky figure, in evening dress, the total absence of anything esthetic or esoteric, had never seemed more welcome.

With a leap he was upon the black man, and before he quite knew what had occurred Ramsammy was receiving a long deferred and long needed trouncing. John Beatty did not strike too hard. He propelled the black man toward the door with a series of well-directed kicks, got him into the passage, thrust him into the street, and, with a parting heist, deposited him upon the sidewalk. Then he turned back into the apartment. Molly was weeping pitifully as she crouched on the Turkish lounge.

"I—I saw that black skunk turn back, Molly, and I suspected something," John explained. "So I waited outside to make sure that it was all right. You aren't angry with me, dear?"

"Angry, John?" she answered, looking up. "Oh, John, can you ever forgive me?"

John sat down beside her and took her hand in his.

"Molly, dear," he said, "I guess you didn't understand—that's all. When a man's knocked about the world he somehow feels things. I knew that fellow was a cur, and yet I couldn't put it into words. Molly, if you'll marry me, you shall have a different post every night to supper, as long as his hands are clean. But I guess we'll let Ramsammy do his breathing stunts elsewhere. What do you say?"

"All right, John," answered Molly.

Was Picked Up On The Streets

Downfall of One-time Mayor of Trenton.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Picked up unconscious in Hudson street, Hoboken, a man who was taken to St. Mary's hospital suffering from uraemic coma, was found to be Frank A. Magowan, one-time mayor of Trenton, and political leader of prominence in that city. He died without recovering consciousness. He was once one of New Jersey's wealthiest men, but a policeman said he knew him as a panhandler and his condition on being found indicated a prolonged debauch.

Magowan was the son of poor parents and began to make his living when he should have been going to school. In 1867, when he was 30 years old, he was mayor of Trenton, head of five of the city's biggest industries and a millionaire. He was re-elected mayor, and in 1891 was the Republican runner-up for the nomination of Governor.

The turning point in his life and fortune came when he met Mrs. Barnes, wife of a Toronto man, in 1893. Mrs. Barnes fascinated him. That year they fled to Oklahoma, where each sued for divorce. In an effort to "bring him to his senses," Magowan's friends threw each of his enterprises into bankruptcy.

Huerta Like The Kaiser

Declares he Loves Peace—Watched by Secret Service Agents.

EL PASO, Texas, June 30.—Although he persistently denies that his presence upon the Mexican border has any political significance, Gen. Huerta, who is under arrest with Gen. Pascual Orozco upon the charge of conspiring to violate the neutrality laws, conferred with many former Mexican Federals yesterday.

"Only friendly calls," exclaimed Gen. Huerta. "I want to repeat that I have no intention of violating American neutrality. I am tired of fighting and revolution. I love peace."

In addition to his visitors, General Huerta also received many telegrams, some of which were in cipher. It is charged by representatives of Gen. Villa and Gen. Venustiano Carranza that Orozco has been busy for some weeks recruiting idle Mexicans and sending them across the border in small parties. Orozco is also said to have purchased large quantities of arms, ammunition and other war supplies which are stored in warehouses. This information is said to be in possession of United States secret service men who are here keeping close watch on the agents of the numerous Mexican political parties.

U.S. secret service agents are not at all satisfied with the assurance of Huerta that he will make no effort to jump the $15,000 bond. The secret service men shadow the former Mexican dictator and Orozco wherever they go, and even follow them upon motorcycles when the Mexicans go out for an automobile ride.

Sr. JUAN DE MATHA, Jan. 27th, 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been made well by "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered so much that at last I would not dare to eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruit-a-tives" and after taking them I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was well. I quickly regained my lost weight—and now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am fully recovered, thanks to 'Fruit-a-tives.'

PIMPLES
APPEARED ON HIS FACE AND HANDS.

The primary cause of pimples arises from the blood not being in a good condition. When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples will break out all over the body, but more particularly on the forehead, nose and chin, and although they are not a dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself. What you need, when these pimples break out, is to get a real good blood purifying medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters. One that will build up the system by cleansing the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Mr. F. A. McKenzie, Portage La Prairie, Man., writes: "Last summer I was all run down and unfit for work of any kind. All kinds of food seemed distasteful to me. Pimples appeared on my face and hands, and I seemed to grow worse every day. One day a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. Half-heartedly I did so, and the results obtained were marvellous. I regained my health, I took on flesh, and in a short time the pimples and skin eruptions disappeared entirely; thanks to the healing powers of B.B.B. I freely recommend it to all sufferers."

A BIG SUCCESS AT THE DARDANELLES

THREE LINES OF TURKISH TRENCHES CAPTURED

NEW PROGRESS FOR THE FRENCH IN THE BATTLE NORTH OF ARRAS

German Trenches Captured and Fierce Bombardment of the Whole Section is Paving the Way for Infantry Attack---German Midnight Attack, East of Metzeral, Repulsed by the French.

TWO NORWEGIAN VESSELS ARE SUNK

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, France, June 30.—(French Official Communique).—The capture of German trenches north of Chateau Carleul marked new progress for the French in the renewal of the great struggle north of Arras. Official despatches to-day reported a violent bombardment of the German positions along the Sector from Arras to Souchez. The official communique indicated the beginning of an infantry engagement all along the line. "The Germans attacked our positions south of Inn, known as the Red Cabaret," said this afternoon's official despatches. "They were repulsed at this point and also in a midnight attack on the ridge east of Metzeral."

NORWEGIAN VESSELS SUNK.

LONDON, June 30.—Two Norwegian vessels, the bark Cambuskenneth and the Norwegian steamer Gjeso were sunk by German submarines in the war zone in the last 24 hours. The crews were saved.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 30.—The Canadian casualty lists are fast approaching the ten thousand mark. The total is 9,482, of whom 1,563 were killed, 6,281 wounded, and 1,638 missing. The lists received during the past twenty-four hours contain the names of 126 Canadians who have been taken prisoners of war, 67 of them members of the Eighth Battalion.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—An expected new German submarine campaign caused recent tightening of the American wireless censorship, it was learned here from an unquestioned source to-day.

The objects of the undersea boats' attack, it was definitely known, will be the British and French cargo steamships which are about to begin carrying munitions regularly from Gravesend Bay, N. Y., Delaware River and other Atlantic ports to Saint Nazaire, Havre and Bordeaux, France.

Information from Scandinavian services was to the effect that Germany has been massing its most formidable submarines at Wilhelmshaven with a view to demoralizing this traffic.

Advices from this country to the German Admiralty concerning these vessels' sailings, it was recognized, would be in violation of American neutrality. Consequently the Tuckerton and Sayville wireless are being watched.

BERLIN (via wireless), June 30.—The Governing Board of the German Socialist party, in a manifesto passed by the Censor, to-day called upon the German Government, "in the name of humanity and culture," to begin peace negotiations. "The German Socialists expect that their friends in other belligerent countries will take steps," the statement declared.

The manifesto made public to-day amplified the statement recently published in the newspaper Vorwaerts. It placed the blame for the failure of the earliest peace efforts on the French and Belgian Socialists.

German Socialists, in their peace efforts, had some encouragement from British Socialists, the statement said, but none from the French and Belgian.

"CANADA EXPECTS TO SEND 500,000 MORE MEN."

NEW YORK, June 30.—Canada expects to send 500,000 more men to the front, according to Sir Robert L. Borden, Prime Minister, who sailed from here for England to-day on the Adriatic.

"I have not been called to England by the War Office," he said. "I am going on my own volition for safer and fuller conferences with heads of departments."

AUSTRIAN FLEET SEEKING BATTLE?

LONDON, June 30.—News Agency despatches from Amsterdam reported this afternoon that the entire Austrian fleet is preparing to force a decisive battle with the Italians in the Adriatic.

NO DISCUSSION OF PEACE TERMS.

LONDON, June 30.—Premier Asquith this afternoon refused to be drawn into a discussion of peace rumours or the terms upon which England might agree to a termination of the war.

Replying to a question put by David Mason, Liberal member for Coventry, the Premier declared he had nothing to add to previous statements, and that discussion of peace terms at this time would be detrimental to the interest of Britain and her Allies.

Mason had asked Premier Asquith if it would not be possible for him to specify upon what terms England would be willing to end the war.

OTTAWA, June 30.—Casualties announced in the 2nd Battalion to-day:—Wounded: John Brown, Scotland; Walter John Ayres, England; Daniel Waldock Douglas, England. Suffering from shock: Joseph Rigby, England. Wounded: John McCallum, Garvey, Alta.; Elliot Durham, Sault, Ontario.

ANOTHER NORWEGIAN VICTIM.

LONDON, June 30.—The Norwegian bark Kotka was submarined and sunk to-day off the west Cork coast. Her crew of eleven was saved. The Kotka is the third Norwegian vessel sunk by German submarines in British waters in 24 hours.

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENT IN MANITOBA CASE

Telegram From Roblin to Rogers Suggested That Son of One of the Presiding Judges Should Be Given a Commission

WAS READ IN COURT

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, June 30—The sensational development at the Royal Commission on the parliament buildings, this morning, when the Liberal counsel read a telegram from Sir Rodmond Roblin to Hon. Robt. Rogers, dated April 30th, as follows:

"Confidential—Friends state it is very desirable that Geoffrey E. McDonald, son of one of the Commissioners, now with Strathcona's Horse, be given a commission, say Lieutenant. See the General and explain the situation so he will understand and act. Am sure he will do this for me. Everything here already organizing. Alderman says the important thing is to secure the commission. Kelly's son died yesterday."

Judge McDonald said this was the first he had ever heard of the telegram or any effort being made by Premier Roblin to secure his son a commission. He was slightly acquainted with Sir Rodmond and had never approached him in any manner whatever.

Sir Rodmond then went on the stand and explained his only object in sending the telegram was to oblige his friend, Mr. Anderson.

Judge McDonald had never spoken to him about the matter and he had never approached the Judge about it, himself.

FIRE AT A SUMMER RESORT

Special to The Examiner:

PORT CARLING, Ont., June 30. — Two hundred young women attending the summer conference of the Y.W.C.A. at Elgin House, Muskoka, were roused at daylight this morning a precautionary measure when fire attacked and destroyed some of the buildings attached to the hotel. There was no panic and the young ladies gave much assistance in extinguishing the fire.

OVER 200,000 MEN WILL BE THROWN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT

In Effort to Bring Striking Carpenters to Terms 246 of Chicago's Plants Will be Shut Down Completely.

AN UNDESIRABLE WAR

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

CHICAGO, June 30.—One of the greatest industrial wars the country has known will be on to-morrow, when 246 plants engaged in the output of building material, will shut down completely to bring Chicago's striking carpenters to terms.

More than 200,000 men, it is estimated, will be thrown out of work. These workers include mill men, building workmen, teamsters, and allied workers.

The employees to-day declared they are fighting to wipe out for time the possibility of future strikes by union labour. Arbitration, they announced, must hereafter replace direct action.

The Kitchener League Dance

On the invitation of the Canadian Kitchener League, under whose auspices a dance was given in the Belmont Club House on the Bank of the Otonabee, last evening, about thirty couples tripped the light fantastic. The affair was a splendid success and everyone had a thoroughly enjoyable evening. Splendid music was supplied by Miss M. McDonald, who presided at the piano.

The use of their fine club house was given gratuitously by the Belmont Club, for the occasion, for which courtesy the committee in charge wish to thank the members of the club. The committee had considerable work with decorations and they managed to make a very pleasing job of it. Flags were used principally in the decorations, the affair being of a patriotic nature.

Mr. and Mrs. Nerlich At Oak Orchard

It will be of interest to visitors from the city to Kawartha Lake points to know that they have such notables amongst them as Mr. and Mrs. Emil Nerlich, who figured so prominently in Court proceedings in Toronto lately in connection with charges of aiding aliens to leave the country after war was declared. It is understood locally that Mr. and Mrs. Nerlich are spending a few weeks in the vicinity of Oak Orchard.

SAYS THE RANGERS MUST STILL LEAD WAY IN RECRUITING

Major Davidson's Stirring Address to the 57th—Regiment Has Done Splendidly so Far But Men for Oversea Forces Must Continue to Come Forward.

MORE MEN ARE NEEDED

Nine officers and three hundred and ninety-eight non-commissioned officers and men of the 57th have answered the call, but still more men are wanted, Major Davidson, Chaplain of 57th Regiment, told the men of the augers in a vigorous speech at the Armouries, last night, following the last drill of the spring training. Major Davidson remarked that Peterborough had done well in regard to recruiting for the Overseas forces. The 57th Regiment had done well—better than many people imagined, and the figures, as given above, of acual members of the Rangers who are serving the Empire would, perhaps, be a surprise.

"But we must keep on," remarked Major Davidson. "The 57th Regiment must continue to be leaders in providing men for the Overseas [illegible]. It is up to us and the [illegible] to us with especial [illegible] say: "If the men of the 57th don't go [illegible] in an ear" And [illegible] have gone the [illegible] and [illegible] also the [illegible]

Major Davidson pointed out that there was still need for more and more soldiers in the forces of the Empire and Canada must continue to do its part. As for the 57th it must be the centre of enthusiasm in this regard.

In regard to the regiment he admonished the men that although the drill was over for a short time, they were still soldiers, and must continue to act in a soldierly manner. He urged upon them the necessity of showing proper respect for the Flag and for the National Anthem.

Lt.-Col. Walker, the Commanding Officer of the Regiment, thanked the men of the Rangers for their faithful attendance during the drill season. While in the way of equipment they had not had very much to offer them this spring, yet the men had turned out cheerfully and taken a splendid interest in their work. Lt.-Col. Walker also expressed the thanks of the Regiment to the Band for their splendid work during the drill season. In regard to overseas enlistment, Lt.-Col. Walker said he had little to add to what had been said by Major Davidson. The 57th had sent 350 men to the First Contingent, 80 to the 21st Battalion, 140 to the 39th Battalion, and 40 so far to the new 58th Battalion, while many 57th men were serving in other units. More men were needed now for the 58th Battalion, and he left the question with the men. It was a question they must decide for themselves. Although the appointments had not yet been confirmed it was likely that a number of the 57th officers would be with the 58th Battalion, and it was desired to send a good detachment from Peterborough.

Some forty men from the city are already enrolled in the 57th Battalion at Barriefield. Since the last draft left last week twelve more recruits have been sworn in. Sergt. Elliott and Corp. Boylett of the 57th, who are among the number, are acting as recruiting sergeants, and are already doing good work in this respect. Sergt. Geo. Parrance of the 8th C.M.R., who is assisting Lt.-Col. Johnston in recruiting for that corps, is also working energetically.

Last night's drill was the last until September.

Garden Party A Great Success

Held on St. Luke's Rectory Grounds Last Evening.

The Garden Party at St. Luke's Rectory grounds, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Church, last evening, was a great success, a very large number being in attendance. The grounds presented a very pretty appearance. Myriads of Japanese lanterns and coloured electric lights, coupled with the natural beauty of the surroundings making it look like a fairyland. Flowers, candy, strawberries and ice cream were dispensed from very attractive booths. During the evening a musical programme was rendered, Mrs. Greenslade and Mrs. Locke, pianistes, and Messrs. Carter and Wainwright and Miss Phyllis Dawson, vocalists, contributing numbers.

Advance At The Dardanelles

PARIS, June 30.—A Havas agency despatch from Athens says the exhaustion of the Turks facing the French forces on the Gallipoli peninsula is evident and leads to the belief that the Turkish position at Krithia will soon be taken by assault. In a recent advance made by the French it is added, six thousand Turks were found dead in the trenches on the front taken. The recent fighting in the Dardanelles has resulted in an appreciative advance by the allies, the despatch says.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30, 1915

BEGIN RIGHT.

It is proposed to build a Toronto-Oshawa "good road" at a cost of $239,800, the cost to be partly met by the municipalities through which it passes. This is their own business, and good business too, though the road will only represent a through line of good highway through each. But the point of objection is that to the total cost the province — all the other municipalities that get no direct benefit—will contribute through the provincial treasury $144,600. It is a good thing to have lines of good highways —between Toronto and Hamilton, and Toronto and Oshawa, as speeding tracks for autos, and for the benefit of the few along lines of these highways; but the main object of good roads, built by provincial assistance, is not met. The object most desired, and most to be properly sought, is to have improvement of the roads of back townships, to help farmers get produce to market in an easy and cheap way, so that the farmers will not only benefit, but the dwellers in towns and villages, and cities, get the benefit of cheaper prices for products brought to them by good roads. It is fair to inquire if the work of provincial road building is not beginning at the wrong place—if the cart is not being put before the horse.

BRAVO 57TH.

This is a doubly important anniversary year and date. It is the forty-eighth anniversary of Confederation, and the forty-eighth birthyear of the good and gallant 57th Rangers. The regiment was organized in May, 1867, and is in point of fact a month or two older than Confederation itself. The 57th has been good all the way through, and is better than ever to-day; stronger in spirit and, in number, stronger than in most years of its past history.

We think we do well to meet the injunction, "business as usual"; but without the incentive of material profit, the 57th lives up to the letter and spirit of "drill as usual." Last night the regiment completed its spring drill, with its normal roster record of 300 men. Not only is it a greatly creditable thing that the regiment is up to normal strength, but the splendid spirit of the force is shown by the fact that the men drilled without pay, the government allowance being cut off this year. The expenses of drill were met by the sacrifice of the regimental fund; the men put in their drill with willing thoroughness, though their equipment was necessarily "rotten." The spirit of patriotic loyalty took the place of fuss and feathers—the pomp and circumstance of war. The 57th not only deserves the D.S.O. for putting in its drill under circumstances that would discourage less resourceful and less patriotic men, but it deserves a high place in the roll of honour for what it has given to the overseas forces. The 57th has splendidly contributed to the war forces in the field. There are at this moment 398 non-commissioned officers and men in the fighting line finished by the 57th, and nine officers, with six more officers waiting for commands; and the men and officers they have sent are among the best and bravest. The 57th deserves and gets the highest praise. In the way of duty it always stands at "attention"—never at "stand easy."

PROOF OF GUILT.

When men "burn their bridges behind them" it is a sign of a resolve of desperation; of the last resort. So it seems to be with the burning of the telegrams wanted as evidence in the investigation into the stealing in connection with the construction of the Manitoba Parliament buildings. The assumption, which amounts to a certainty, is that the incinerated telegrams had a very direct bearing upon the question of fixing the responsibility for the "boodling"; that they would have tied up Sir Redmond Roblin, Hon. Dr. Montague, and Hon. Robert Rogers, pretty closely to the wrong-doing. The very fact that the telegrams were burned is moral proof that they were incriminating. The attempted justification of Mr. Z. A. Lash, president of the Northwest Telegraph Company, is put out of court at once by the consideration that if destruction of evidence were recognised as permissible, the ends of justice could be easily and always defeated. Telegrams are regarded as confidential, but there are considerations of justice that over-ride all the sacredness of business or personal confidence. The opinion of a counsel "learned in the law" printed in another column, that Mr. Lash's defence of the burning of the telegrams has no legal justification, deserves attention. The wrong in burning the telegrams arises from the time selected. They were ordered burned when it was known they were wanted by the Royal Commission as evidence. If their destruction had been in accordance with a standing rule and regular practice, that all telegrams should be destroyed after the lapse of a certain fixed and defined time, the matter would have been simple; but to order their destruction in order to defeat the ends of justice, and prevent the exposure of wrong-doing, creates a mighty strong suspicion of criminal intention. More than that, it is the very strongest moral evidence that the burned telegrams constitute proof of guilt. If we lend ourselves to the fouling of the streams of justice we are in a very bad way. We are fighting for straight methods in international relations and intercourse. It is much more important that straight methods should prevail in our quest of justice, and the exposure of wrong-doing and wickedness in high places.

THE DOMINION.

To-morrow is Dominion Day; the forty-eighth anniversary of Confederation. We have reason to be proud of our achievement during the past half century of our definite national existence, and never more proud than we are at the moment. In a very large way we are measuring up to our responsibility, but we are young and the race is just beginning; great and growing responsibilities are facing us, and it may be well to pause a moment at the forty-eighth milestone and consider what our responsibilities in respect of our material possessions are; what responsibilities our national heritage imposes.

There is no doubt, that, everything considered, Canada is potentially the greatest and richest country on this continent. How many of us know, or reflect upon the fact of the area of Canada, close upon four million—3,729,665—square miles. A large proportion of this is, of course, at present, not amenable directly to productive development; but it is probable that there is hardly a square mile of our territory that cannot be made to contribute some form of wealth under the more intensive development that increase of population and wealth will bring about. With our immense expanse, we have only a sparse population, and the hope of the future lies largely in the fact the what has been done by a population of a few millions in the past, affords an index of the great strides we shall make in the next fifty years of Canada's century—the twentieth. We have over three thousand miles of transcontinental stretch spanned by three railways, by a population of less than eight millions, an achievement which our hustling neighbours to the south of us did not accomplish till they had reached a population ten times greater than ours.

We have other national accomplishments almost as great. With our scant population and our great resources, or trade per head, is much greater than any other country in the world, except the mistress of the seas, Great Britain. And the hope for future development is greater now than ever before. Till in recent years Britain has been indifferent to the importance and potentialities of her colonial possessions. But a new day has dawned. Canada, by virtue of her resources; by virtue of her past achievements; by virtue of her loyalty to the Mother Country and the Empire; by virtue of the high place she has made for herself as a source of strength to the Empire in the past year, has gained a great new value in the eyes of the Mother Country. We have in the past been helped onward and upward by British captial. We are to count upon an increasing aid in this direction in the future. We have taken a new place of importance in the Empire, and we shall be regarded with increasing sentimental and practical respect in the future. With what we have, with what we have done; with what we can do, we can look up our forty-eighth birthday with pride and hope. The clouds hang low at present, but without clouds we can have no bow of promise in the skies. The clouds will roll by and a new day will dawn of international regeneration of right and justice, that will shine upon new progress for the world and the Dominion of Canada.

Are you doing your bit, to help the cause of Canada and Empire in the war?

THE PREMIER INVESTMENT.

One of the well-known Investment Houses of Toronto, Messrs. A. E. Ames & Co., states that in an experience extending over a quarter of a century, there has not been such a wide interest in Government and Municipal Investment as at the present. Discriminating investors of all classes, such as Insurance Companies, Banks, Loan Companies, and private investors, are all doing advantage of present opportunities. This is due to the past splendid record of Canadian Municipal securities for absolute safety, and present attractive prices.

BURNING OF TELEGRAMS CONTEMPT OF COURT AND POSSIBLE CONSPIRACY?

A prominent Toronto counsel, referring to Mr. Z. A. Lash's recent vindication of the burning of the G.N.W. telegrams which were wanted by the Royal Commission now sitting in Manitoba, pointed out to The Globe yesterday certain cases in the Ontario courts which make Mr. Lash's defence of the deliberate destruction of telegrams devoid of any legal excuse of foundation.

According to the cases "Re Dwight and Macklam" and "Copeland-Chatterson v. Business Systems," the destruction of telegrams under such circumstances as the Manager of the G.N.W. Company at Winnipeg destroyed them, is a deliberate contempt of court. If the action of the G.N.W. Company in suddenly issuing instructions to the Winnipeg office to destroy all messages sent between that point and Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec up to May 31 was due to the interference of politicians affected by the messages which were wanted by the Royal Commission in Manitoba, then legal precedent shows conclusively that in addition to contempt of court criminal conspiracy might well be involved in such a course of action.

The Dwight-Macklam Case.

The case of Re Dwight and Macklam was tried in 1887 in connection with an election case in the East riding of Northumberland. The trial was before Boyd, C., and Osler, J.A., two of the Judges for the time being for the trial of election petitions. In this case a telegraph operator named George Macklam, who worked at the town of Colborne, was examined as a witness, and he told the court of burning the originals of certain telegrams which had been asked for by the court. He had done so under instructions received by wire from the General Manager of his company, H. P. Dwight. The defence of Macklam and Dwight consisted in the contention that the subpoena upon the operator commanding the production of the messages in question had not been duly served.

Evidence Interfered With.

It was held on the other hand, successfully, that the question was not whether there had been a proper service of subpoena, but whether there had been an interference with evidence, which, but for such interference, would have been before the court. The documents were in existence at the beginning of the court, during the trial they were destroyed by the deliberate action of the General Manager, whereby the court was hindered in the prosecution of an investigation of a public nature, and the Manager and operator were guilty of contempt of court.

The case just cited was brought to bear in 1908 upon legal proceedings of a similar character. This time it was the destruction of a letter in connection with the action —Copeland-Chatterson Company v. Business Systems. The plaintiffs in the case had much to gain through the production of a letter, which was deliberately destroyed by the defendants in an attempt to interfere with the course of justice.

"Contempt" and "Conspiracy."

These two cases, The Globe's informant pointed out, dealt merely with "contempt." Conspiracy is defined as an agreement between two or more persons "to commit any offence punishable by law." Contempt of court, being punishable by law, a conspiracy to do anything in contempt of court is therefore a criminal offence. Moreover a conspiracy to obstruct or pervert the course of justice unquestionably also is an indictable offence.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

LACROSSE GAME IS BIG HOLIDAY EVENT

The only attraction in the city tomorrow is the lacrosse game at River side Park, which promises to provide a splendid afternoon's sport for the stay-at-homes. Campbellford, the district leaders, will cross sticks with the Pecos at Riverside Park, and it will be a battle royal, Peterborough must win to keep in the running. The boys have been practising faithfully and with their strongest line-up on believe they can put a crimp in the winning streak of the cocky Easterners. The latter will bring a big crowd of supporters with them and the game should be a corker. The lacrosse club should be encouraged by a big holiday attendance.

The following players will line up for Peterborough: Gillman, Hatton, Dillon, Mein, Crough, P. Dunford, McCoy Robertson, Cranfield, H. Dunford Tood and Hamilton.

P. Lancaster of Havelock will act as referee.

LINDSAY ALL STARS HERE ON SATURDAY

There will be no City League games on Saturday, but the ball fans will have a big afternoon just the same, when the Lindsay All Star team will play a picked team from the local league. Either Jack Spratt or MacElroy of hockey fame will pitch for the Lindsay team, while it is likely that Huycke of the Thistles and Swanston of the East City team will be the battery that will face the visitors. The local players will practice to-night. The team will be in charge of Dan McCabe.

FOURNIER TELLS HOW HE HITS 'EM

Sox Swatsman Doesn't Try to Outguess Pitcher as he Formerly Did

The batter who tries to outguess a pitcher never lands in the 400 class. Such a player has his mind concentrated on what the pitcher is going to throw once there he has on the natural object of his visit to the plate—to hit the ball.

Jacques Fournier of the White Sox, the batting sensation of the American league, furnishes an excellent example of what happens to a batter who tries to outguess the pitcher—and one who doesn't. Cobb, Jackson, Wagner, Collins, Lajoie, Speaker, and the other famous hitters of the present era of baseball don't try to outguess a pitcher. They swing at every good ball that comes along, not worrying about how it is going to break. But they've always followed that course. Fournier's case is different.

Hits Only .294 in 1913.

In 1913 Fournier hit for .334. Up to mid-season in 1914 he didn't hit much better than .350.

"And then I took a tumble to myself," said Fournier. "All along I had been working on the theory that a successful batter was one who outguessed the pitcher. Every time I'd step to the plate I'd try to figure out in advance what the pitcher was going to throw and then I'd set myself for such a delivery.

"Sometimes I did outguess the pitcher. Oftener I didn't. But I always was worried over the uncertainty of the guessing game. Had I guessed wrong, or was I right? The continual worry took my mind off the fact that I was in there to bat—not to play a guessing game.

Couldn't Outguess Johnson.

"Well, one day last summer we stacked up against Walter Johnson. I figured it wasn't any use trying to outguess him, so I just walked up to the plate and banged away at what he served up to me. I made two home runs that day. Ever since I have not been trying to do any outguessing. I keep in mind only one thing when I go to the plate—that I must hit the ball. I think that system has been a success."

It surely has. Fournier began to hit like a fiend from that on and ended the 1914 season with a mark of .341.

This season Fournier started off at a whirlwind pace and he has been maintaining it. He swung into May with a batting mark around .450 and has entered June with very little of it shrunken away. If he maintains his present clip he will have a fine chance to grab away the 1915 batting championship from Ty Cobb and all the others who give him battle.

LAWN BOWLING

Word has been received that four rinks of Millbrook bowlers will visit Peterborough to-morrow and it is desired to have four local rinks meet them. Bowlers who are not going to Oshawa are asked to report at the green to-morrow afternoon.

Lawn bowling must have a wonderful influence on the hat trade. After a few lucky srevings, when your bowls seem to be amenable to your every wish, your chest begins to inflate, and your head seems to get somehow larger. Your hat doesn't quite fit. You feel like challenging also noted players of the green with a mind of pitying thought of what you are going to do with them. How glibly you ask them if they will be engaged this evening?

When everything is arranged you swing into the game with a vim that should carry everything before it, and it does—right into the d itch.

Where was the aim of yesterday? That seemed to carry the bowls around the kitty, anon to separate the enemy, and bring his plans to naught?

Alas, we are glad to-night to bisque that tuft of grass for the sad deflection!

And when we put the bowl down, so that it wobbles with its white eye showing all over the green. Someone says, "It's gone over the hill." We silently and eagerly grasp that little straw of comfort, though in our inner consciousness we know that we, alone, are to blame.

It is just about then that we begin to regain our normal level—our line of vision is nearer the earth, our cheeks are let down a notch. We begin to think that we don't need a bigger hat after all.

We begin to see that there are others quite as big as we are, and still more, a little bigger.

The competing rinks are being selected to play at Oshawa on Thursday. It is expected that about four rinks will go there. Additional arrangements will be made this evening.

A large number of the bowlers are enjoying themselves during the afternoon, and there were between thirty and forty men playing last evening. Some of the games were swift and strong, showing some remarkable good ends, and some of the ends were "weird."

The following rinks have been drawn against each other for the schedule competition this week:

Elliott vs. Maynard.
Waddell vs. Cottrell.
Moore vs. Sturgeon.
Cairns vs. Pratt.

YOUNG WILDING TO BECOME STAR

Brother of Famous Tennis Player May Soon Be Contestant For Davis Cup.

It is not likely that the name of Wilding, made famous in the annals of international lawn tennis by Anthony F. Wilding will disappear from the lists of future Davis Cup matches.

There is a young brother who is rapidly rounding into the fullness of racquet skill and who is confidently expected to fill the gap in the Australasian ranks left vacant by the untimely death of the well beloved Tony Wilding.

The Hon. F. M. B. Fisher of Wellington, N.Z., who is a member of the Australian parliament, has attended most of the cup matches on local courts. He is a friend of Frederick B. Alexander, one of the first American Davis cup players to visit Australia. When not umpiring matches Fisher tells of thrilling episodes in the matches which Tony Wilding fought.

"The younger Wilding is every bit as good as his brother, Tony," said Fisher. "He is a bit shy of the game because of the achievements of his elder brother. He just needs a bit of 'coming on' to be the duplicate of Tony. He's a hard hitting young fellow who knows the science and the strokes.

"Now that Tony is gone this young Wilding is sure to land in Davis cup matches, for he is already a great player."

ITALIANS SIX MILES FROM RIVA ON WEST SIDE OF LAKE GARDA

LONDON June 29.—Through passes 5,000 feet in altitude the Italians have entered the Austrian territory, south of Riva, on the western side of Lake Garda. They are now within six miles of Riva, which is only important town on this lake.

The following Italian official statement was given out at Rome to-night:

"There has been no important development along the entire front.

"In Carnia mountain artillery was transported with difficulty to a summit and used effectively on enemy's camp on the othe side of Valle Piccolo.

"In the theatre of operations bad weather continues.

"The enemy's aeroplanes are becoming active, positions recently conquered being bombarded, but generally with but slight results."

The Austrian official report says:

"In the Italian war theatre the situation is unchanged. The enemy is completely inactive, and only artillery battles continue. A naval aviator on the 27th bombarded near Villa Vincentia a hostile captive balloon, and compelled it to descend. He also on the 27th successfully dropped bombs on a hostile park of artillery at San Canciano and badly damaged a steamer at Sbodda, so that the stern sank to the bottom."

SHELLING MALLBORGHET

"A despatch from Udine says: "The bombardment of Malborghet continues." This laconic phrase has been repeated daily since the bombardment of the Austrian positions just west of Tarvis began on June 12. To understand its meaning one must realise that the struggle is occurring in the very heart of precipitous mountains, which rise between the Italians and Austrians like a titanic wall.

"The work accomplished by the Italians in this region is thus described by the head of the French military mission as epologic. A special road had been built for the transportation of artillery to the peaks for the bombardment of Malborghet. Donkeys and mules were used for carrying the guns, ammunition and provisions, and a thousand mountaineers and even women, climbed the heights with the packs on their shoulders.

"When everything was ready the Austrians bombarded the road and made the Italian positions untenable. The Italian gunners then decided to bombard Malborghet by parabolic fire and placed their batteries behind the mountains, where the Austrians could not see them. With the assistance of signallers on the top of the mountain the Italian gunners, in the presence of King Victor Emmanuel, and the members of the British military mission, began a bombardment of the position. The first shot fell 500 yards wide but the second fell very near, and struck what the Italians call Austria's Thermopylae. The enthusiasm on the Italian side was indescribable. The king shook hands with the officer directing the gunnery, and he was also warmly congratulated by the British officers.

"As the Italians advance in the Carso Mountains, north of Trieste, they are meeting with growing difficulties in the shape of geological formations, the innumerable grottes, caves, wells and galleries, being admirably suited for hiding batteries and being capable of defence by the large number of troops which the Austrians have for years been preparing to resist an invasion.

"Field Marshal Baron Conrad von Hoetsendorf, the chief of the Austrian general staff, studied and wrote a treatise regarding this district, and adding practice to theory, frequently held the manoeuvres of the Austro-Hungarian armies in this region."

CLAIM EVERS WILL NOT PLAY AGAIN THIS YEAR

ST. LOUIS, June 28—Most ardent admirers of the Boston Braves have come to the conclusion that John Dyname Evers was the real pep behind the world's champions. On this premise the latest development which scarcely can be termed a rumour, seems to knock Boston's hopes for a pennant higher than a kite.

While here Boston players confirmed the opinions vouchsafed recently by members of other National league teams, that there is little hope of Evers getting into the game this season. During the winter Johnnie was struck on with pneumonia and doctors for a time despaired of his recovery. A close glimpse of John's race shows how close he was to the great divide. His face is haggard, drawn, his eyes lustless and the energy which won him fame seemed absolutely gone.

Then the ankle, injured early in season, has not recovered. All in all it looks bad.

Charlie Deal this spring paid a tribute to Evers. Charlie said people could talk of Stallings as a "miracle man" all they wanted, but that Evers was the life of the team. Evers, he said, was the man who rode the Braves, infielders and outfielders into a pennant.

"He had 'em all scared to death," said Deal. "Every time a man pulled anything that looked like a boneplay Evers would be on the offender's neck good and hard. They were more afraid of Evers than they were of Stallings and especially as he was right on the field and would call the offenders as soon as the offense was committed."

Stoney Lake Breezes

STONEY LAKE, June 0.—The prize package wharf at Kawartha Park is still no use as a landing place on account of the highness of the water, and lowness of the approach. A resident of the park, who spends a great part of the summer there, states that since its erection there have been only four landings made by steamers. A couple of weeks ago a motor boat became disabled out in Clear lake and drifted into Sandy Beach. Choosing to tie his boat to the wharf while making repairs to his engine the owner was horrified to find several gashes cut into the planking by the long bolt heads which were left sticking out about one inch past the buffer.

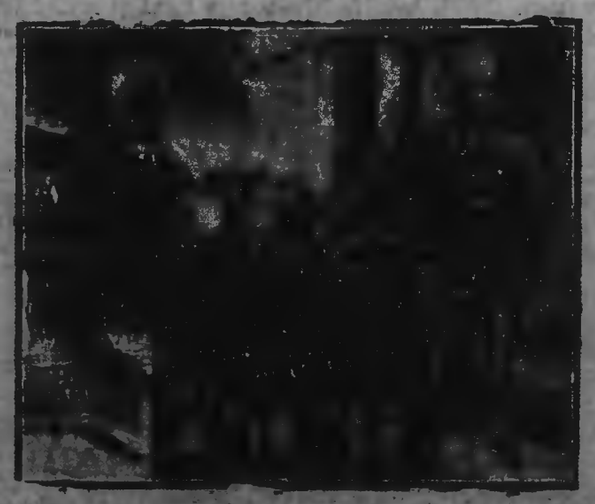
RUSSIA BUYS LARGE QUANTITIES OF TEA.

The Canadian demand for Indian and Ceylon teas increases yearly, and if one adds to this the many other contingencies brought about by the war, it can readily be understood why the cost of tea is increasing. Russia is taking enormous quantities and their buyers pay the very highest prices. The abnormal buying has forced quotations up over 10c a pound higher than nine months ago.



"PRESIDENT WILSON CALLS ON COL. HOUSE — When Col. House returned from visiting the European Governments, he said he would not go to Washington to present a report. But President Wilson has gone to visit Col. House. The picture was taken at the latter's summer home in Roslyn, N.Y.

Gott Mitt Uns On Prisoner's Arm

German Arrested in Lakefield is Lodged in Local Jail.

There is an interesting character, a German, sojourning in the local jail, who may prove to be worth while interning. He was arrested in Lakefield on Monday evening last, and could not give a very good account of himself. The constable found him trying to get into a barn to spend the night.

Yesterday afternoon he came before Magistrate Langley at Lakefield charged with vagrancy. He gave his name as Eugene Nieder, and explained that he came from Chicago to Toronto, and then to Peterborough, and was on his way to Montreal. He was a baker by trade. Magistrate Langley remanded him until next Tuesday, when he will come up for trial in Peterborough. Meanwhile the police are looking for some further information about his movements.

At the local Police Station this morning the prisoner was examined for marks when his finger prints were taken. His right forearm was tattooed with a Cross, Rifles, Crown and German flag. Between the stocks of the rifles was a German helmet. There were also the figures 1895 and 97 on opposite sides under the flag. Besides these figures were 58. I.R.N. 112. 13 Co., and the name J. Lorenz. Across the top were the words in German, Gott Mitt Uns.

J. Lorenz is evidently the correct name of the prisoner, and he has given a fictitious one to the authorities. He says he is 40 years of age and was born in Baden, Germany, where he learned to talk the English language fairly well. By the tattoo it is evident that he was in the German Army. Gott Mitt Uns, is the German Battle Cry, interpreted, "God is with us."

So far it has not been ascertained what his intentions could have been in this district, even if he had any connection with the German Government.

Your King and Country need you.

Crop Prospect Is Very Fair

WINNIPEG, June 30—With warm, moist weather throughout the first half of July and good ripening weather after that,' says the Winnipeg Free Press in presenting its 4th crop report, "the Canadian West" stands to reap a fair average crop. This would seem to be the most accurate information that is available at the present time. The long, dry spell was broken by the rain of June 3, and from that date until June 24th, frosts of varying intensity occurred nightly at many points throughout three Prairie Provinces. Most serious and general frosts occurred on the nights of June 15 and 16. On these two nights there were points in Saskatchewan where instruments recorded 14 degrees of frost. This is a record enirely without precedent in the crop-growing history of Western Canada; and it goes [illegible] that it must have been produced by some very unusual conditions.

Rain Followed Frost.

"Fortunately immediately following these heavy frosts, there were general rains and the weather continued cool and cloudy. Had frosts been followed by extreme heat and bright sun, damage would have been much more serious. While permanent damage, that is, areas where the crop has shown no disposition to come up again, is comparatively very small in proportion to the total acreage, there has been generally, a serious delay. If August should prove a warm and month and without frost this delay may have no very bad results.

Ther has been plenty of rain in almost all districts. Few points complain of too much, and only five or six declare that it is needed at the present time. Practically every point reports that warm weather is the greatest need. The reason why emphasis is laid on moisture is that while the crop has received sufficient dryness of the whole country last fall, and the light snow fall of the winter has left sub-soil very dry and there is no general reserve of moisture.

Fine Treatment For The Wounded

Visitor Writes to Mrs. Mongour to Tell Her About the Latter's Son.

Mrs. A. Mongour, 414 Dublin street, has received the following interesting letter in connection with her son, Pte. Chas. Mongour, of the 57th detachment, 2nd Battalion, who was wounded some time ago:

92 Donegal Road,
Acocoks Green,
Birmingham,
England.

Dear Mrs. Mongour,—I expect you will be pleased to hear about your boy, who has been wounded and is now in the 1st Southern Hospital, Birmingham, in Ward B. 6. He tells me he wrote to you three weeks ago, but thinks you can't have had the letter as he has had no reply. I told him that probably the mail boat had been torpedoed and your letter was at the bottom of the sea.

I go to the hospital most Sundays just to help cheer up our dear, brave heroic lads and to let them know what we think of them over here, and knowing that your brave laddie comes from Canada I have sent him some Canadian papers and he never lacks cigarettes, fruit, cake, chocolate or any little thing which I know you would take him on visiting days if you were here. I always feel so sorry for all the poor, poor mothers who are anxiously grieving so far away. He is in a beautiful building. Our new university has been converted into a hospital, and the patients are treated very well. As soon as they are convalescent they are sent to convalescent homes, where they can lie out in the grounds of mansions or beautiful homes which have been lent by some of the rich people who take the patients out in their private motors. They have every luxury they could wish for. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's lovely place is one of the homes. I hope when your brave laddie is well enough he will be sent there. He is quite bright and getting on quite satisfactory but slowly. All the better I think. Then they won't be in a hurry to send him back into the wicked, cruel war again. The visiting days are Wednesday and Sundays, so he isn't so very lonely you see. I knew you would perhaps be relieved to hear about how he is and where he is, so try not to feel too anxious about him. Everyone is kind to them. The Bishop of Birmingham sends flowers and cigarettes every day and very often comes to see them.

Yours very truly,
With my sympathy in your anxiety,
(Miss) F. Redds.

Lindsay Man Under Arrest

Would Serve Prison Term for Girl Whom he is Charged With Having Taken Away.

LINDSAY, June 30.—The Carter-Edwards case was before the magistrate yesterday again, the young girl, Sarah Edwards, being about as noted a character now as the renowned Louise Markadekt. The Edwards girl did not appear, but her lover, J. H. Carter was there to answer to the charge of taking her away. Carter is also under arrest as a deserter from Kingston; he was taken back to jail, being remanded for eight days. In the meantime the girl, with whom he is so deeply infatuated will, if possible, be apprehended. She is now in hiding around the town, and according to Governor Balfour's statements visited Carter in the jail, but he was not sure of her identity or he might have intercepted her. She was turned over to the agents of the Salvation Army in Toronto, and thereby made her escape from Mrs. Sharpe, Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, who expected to meet her when she arrived in Lindsay.

It is a peculiar case, as Carter seems bound to have the girl, and stated he would serve two years in dyrance vile or have her.

Street Railway Extension To Be Postponed

Company is Not Anxious to Proceed With the Work at the Present Time—Local Manager Explains Situation to the Board of Works.

THE DISCUSSION

Mr. W. F. Ferguson, local manager of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, is authority for the statement that the company is not prepared at the present time to undertake the consruction of a street car line of McDonnel street. Mr. Ferguson made this pronouncement at last night's meeting of the Board of Works. He said that the company intended to reconstruct such lines as may exist on streets that are included in this year's paving programme. As regards the extension of the line on McDonnel street from George to Park streets it had been impossible to get a meeting of the board of directors, without whose consent the work could not be undertaken. A week ago Mr. Ferguson informed Ald. Green of the company's intention to lay tracks on McDonnel street and intimated that a letter confirming this statement would be laid before the Council at an early date. At last night's meeting Mr. Ferguson informed the Board that the communication in question had been prepared, but had not been endorsed for the reason that it had been found impossible to call a meeting of the directors up to the present time.

Corroborated by Mr. Ferguson.

Ald. Stratton asked Ald. Green if he had not previously assured the Council in the company's intention to lay tracks on McDonnel street, asking that a communication confirming that intention would be forthcoming at an early date.

Ald. Green called upon Mr. Ferguson to reply to Ald. Stratton's question, which he did, reiterating what he had previously stated regarding the letter being prepared and delivery being withheld for the reason given above.

Ald. Stratton was inclined to the opinion that it was the duty of the Street Railway Company to indicate their intentions in writing as by-laws had been passed at a previous meeting which might have been subject to change had the Council known of the company's intentions.

Ald. Green said that he had only conveyed to the Council information that was communicated to him by Mr. Ferguson.

"Had we known what you knew before the by-laws respecting street paving were passed I feel that we would not have passed them in their present forms," said Ald. Stratton, addressing Ald. Green. "We would have arranged to extend the street paving on McDonnel street to the exclusion of some other less travelled streets," he added.

It was decided to defer action in connection with the matter until a subsequent meeting, when a communication setting forth the company's intention may be forthcoming.

CHEESE BOARD SHIED AT 16¼c

Adjourned for Another Week as They Intended to do at the Last Meeting—Market is Very Unsettled.

The Cheese Board turned down W. S. Cook's price of 16 1-4 cents this morning and adjourned for a week. Mr. W. Switzer said that the meeting should not have been held, that the expressed intention at the last meeting to adjourn for three weeks instead of two should have been carried out. The unsettled condition of the market this week was another influence, and not the last was the salesmen's belief that the market should be stronger than 16 1-4 cents.

W. S. Cook remarked that buying this week was largely a gamble, and stated afterwards that the price was really above the day's trend. He suggested that the Board should pay each salesman $10 to cover expenses, but his 'jolly' went unsupported.

he factories boarded, as follows:

Keene 95, Warminster 90, Shearer 170, Selwyn 125, Villiers 105, Warsaw 130, Westwood 200, Oakdale 112, Daisy D. 80, Myrtle 160, Ormonde 150, Young's Point 65, Lang 50, Pine Grove 61, Missing Link 75, Indian River 95, East Emily 110, Trewern 128, Norwood 180, Fleetwood 110, Killarney 86. Total, 2,487.

Mr. Gillespie opened at 15 1-4; W. S. Cook immediately raised to 16 1-4 cents. Westwood was first called but was noticeably reticent. Finally the salesman said he would like to know the feeling of the Board.

Mr. Cook called Villiers, Ormonde, Daisy D. and others, but there were no acceptances.

ANOTHER BIG FEATURE

For Dominion Day at Port Hope Contracted For

After considerable correspondence and a very large expense, the Special Attraction Committee of the Port Hope Dominion Day celebration, have secured the services of Professor Hardy, the world's most celebrated high-wire walker. Mr. Hardy was recommended to the committee by Mr. J. O. Orr, Manager of the Toronto Exhibition, and Mr. Orr's recommendation was that Mr. Hardy had no equal. He performs stunts on the wire that would appear almost impossible. A further recommendation of his ability is that on July 4th he opens a season's engagement at White City, Chicago. The 57th Regimental Band of Peterborough will furnish the music during the day, and a special train will return to Peterborough after the evening programme.

WOMEN OF RUSSIA

Petrograd, June 30.—As the war continues the women on the border suffer the horrors of war and the mothers and orphans left at home are the ones who suffer most. In America are many mothers and daughters, who were left penniless by the war of the Rebellion, but their suffering is as nothing to the women and children left as widows and orphans of the soldiers who have fought and bled for their country in Europe.

Many a mother and daughter have reason to be thankful to Dr. Pierce for relief from suffering and the cure of those weaknesses of their sex, because of his "Favourite Prescription." This tonic, which is strictly a temperance medicine, has cured thousands of those weaknesses, headaches, nervousness, backaches, which are the outward manifestations of disease in women. Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear—removes pain and misery and brings back health and strength to nervous irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from nature's roots and herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotics to wreck the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensation, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

What Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for thousands it will do for you. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Get it this very day at any medicine dealers in either liquid or tablet form.

Dr. Pierce's Medicines are manufactured in Canada at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ont.

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.—Adv.

Are you doing your bit, to help the cause of Canada and Empire in the war?

WILL KNOW HIS FATE WITHIN 24 HOURS

LONDON, Eng., June 30.— George Joseph Smith, the alleged 'bride bath' murderer, probably will know his fate within 24 hours. Prosecutor Bodkin concluded his closing statement to-day with the arraignment of the prisoner as "one of the most cunning of modern times." Pale-faced and nervous, Smith fidgetted about his seat while Bodkin accused him of drowning three of his wives in their bath tubs.

The defence offered no evidence.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Plasford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her, and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

You have shown interest in us both at school and at home, and your presence will be missed in the neighbourhood.

As a slight token of our regard we ask you to accept this sunburst and hope that it way remind you of the many friends you have made during the two years spent amongst us.

Signed on behalf of the School.

EXCURS[illegible]

Lacrosse Match In[illegible] Numerous Outings and Down the River [illegible] —Some of the Events.

To-morrow is the midsumm[illegible] day. There are numerous picnic attractions which will doubtless attract the usual crowds and provide day's outing and a measure of pleasure. It should, first of all, be regarded as Dominion Day, although there is nothing on the schedule to indicate that this feature will be emphasized as it should be. However, this is not the place for a discussion of the more weightier considerations.

The year has been a trying one in many respects, and may be well accepted as an opportunity for a day's relaxation. So rapidly have the weeks and months dissolved that it scarcely seems to be generally felt that the middle of summer is near at hand.

For those who remain at home the principal attraction is the important lacrosse match between Peterborough and Campbellford. The locals have to win this and will trot out a strong team to meet the unbeaten ten from the Tri[illegible] town. The game will be played at Riverside Park in the afternoon.

Add excursion article

The A. O. [illegible] excursion goes to Mount Julian, leaving the George street wharf at 7.00 a.m. and the Lift Lock at 8 a.m. The steamer Stoney Lake will carry the picnicers.

Nassau Lodge Picnic.

Nassau L. O. L. have a fine prize list for the races at their annual outing to South Beach. Two steamers have been chartered for the trip, which has become an annual feature at one of the most beautiful resorts on the Kawartha chain.

T. A. S. Picnic.

The annual T.A.S. picnic will be held at L.A.S. park on the Otonabee. Three boats have been chartered and will run from the Street Railway wharf every half hour. This guarantees a rapid, comfortable service. The management committee have shown an energy and interest that has left nothing unprovided for. The grounds have received considerable attention and are in fine condition. An extensive prize list for athletic events has been prepared; baseball matches will be held, music for dancing and various new attractions have been planned. Meals will be served on the grounds. There is every promise that the previous attendance records will be broken.

Port Hope Celebration.

The celebration in Port Hope will attract quite a number of those seeking variety for the holiday.

Apparently the fat lady, the living skeleton, the Siamese twins, the "dope fiends," and other unusual specimens of humanity are now on the list of undesirables.

The line will also be drawn more closely for theatrical productions. The official censor has found that many immoral shows that have been prosecuted across the border have been shown at various places in the province. The offenders, according to the censor, are not always burlesque troupes. For example, Mr. Banks had no hesitation in condemning one of Bernard Shaw's productions submitted to him last season.

SURFACE DRAINAGE FOR DOWNIE ST.

City Engineer Parsons Will Prepare an Estimate of the Cost.

At last night's meeting of the Board of Works a letter was read from Mr. D. O'Connell, referring to the bad conditions of the surface drainage system at the corner of Brock and Downie Streets. During the spring freshets, refuse is said to accumulate at the opening of the drain, rendering it ineffective. The resulting condition was said to be intolerable, and unless the request was acceded to, legal proceedings would be instituted. City Engineer Parsons said there was no doubt but what surface drains were needed at that particular point. He was instructed to prepare an estimate of the cost of the work.

Work Wanted.

Mr. Adam Cox, a teamster, will be given work in accordance with his request, which was based on the grounds that he is a ratepayer. He resides on the township side of one of the city's boundaries but owns property within the limits upon which he has paid taxes for upwards of twelve years.

Position of Inspector.

Mr. T. J. Moore applied for a position of inspector on street paving or some other such position where manual labour would not be so conspicuous. He claims to have met with a severe accident last fall, on Aylmer Street, and has not been able to work since. He refrained from entering an action against the City which he was invited to do.

The Board will recommend that Mr. Moore be placed, providing a position presents itself which Mr. Moore is capable of handling.

RETIRING SECRETARY HONOURED

Mr. J. J. Milloy Presented With a Travelling Bag.

Mr. J. S. Milloy, secretary of the City Baseball League, who is leaving the city shortly, has resigned from the secretaryship of the League, and Mr. Harry Carr has been appointed as his successor. In recognition of his able services Messrs. C. G. Graham, the president, and Donald Shook, the treasurer, presented Mr. Milloy with a handsome travelling bag on behalf of the League. Mr. Milloy severs his connection with the Review to-day.

Alfred Helson Was Acquitted

Lack of Corroborative Evidence Was Given as the Cause—Appeal May be Entered.

Lack of corroborative evidence was given as the reason for the acquittal in the County Court of Alfred Helson who was charged with having committed a criminal offence against three little girls of eight, nine and fourteen years, respectively. Judgment was delivered this morning shortly after ten o'clock. The accused was defended by Mr. G. N. Gordon, while Crown Attorney Hatton appeared for the prosecution. In the words of His Honour Judge Huycke, the case was an unique one in that two of the girls corroborated the evidence of the third girl in each case, but such evidence was not corroborative evidence within the meaning of the act. His Honour referred to a sub-section of the code which states that no person can be convicted of the offence of the nature charged against Helson unless the testimony is corroborated.

Crown Attorney Hatton intimated his intention of submitting a stated case before the Court of Appeal, which will not meet until next fall.

His Honour pointed out that not one of the girls knew of the nature of an oath. For that reason the oath was not administered.

Not Corroborative Testimony.

"In view of the Act referred to I must acquit the prisoner because the evidence was not corroborated, unless I consider that one girls evidence corroborated the other. By viture of the Act I must find that such testimony does not constitute corroboration," said His Honour.

His Honour in dismissing the accused said that he hoped he would not prove false to the recommendation of his many friends, some of whom were called upon to give character evidence.

Some discussion arose as to whether Helson should be admitted to bail pending the presentation of a stated case to the Court of Appeal.

The accused was finally allowed his liberty.

This good start was too much for the Gilmanites, who managed to score 10 runs through the five innings played. After the first innings Superintendent Gilman succeeded in persuading Archie Moore that he would make a better pitcher than umpire, and had him pitch the remaining innings for the Gilmanites with the result that the heavy hitters of the Rollinites were helpless, and only secured one more run making the result 16-10 in favour of the Rollinites. ...ty of Italy Tightens Line About Germany

...And Also Brings a Powerful Force to Aid the Slavs Against Austria

One of the first and most important results of Italy's declaration of war against Austria was the further throttling of German supplies. It is probable that quantities of supplies of all kinds had been smuggled to Germany and Austria through the Mediterranean until the time of Italy's declaration. With the Italian navy on guard and the whole of Italy in arms against Germany's principal ally, such deliveries must have been completely stopped.

Italy ranks about fifth among the world's great military powers. She has a large and powerful fleet. Her naval programming has been somewhat different than that of the other powers. In her battle ships, she has combined size, power and heavy armaments with high speed. Her dreadnought type is possibly, not quite so powerful as that of the British navy, but has a great speed. She has developed her submersible section to a very high degree, and has especially constructed and equipped vessels for salving, housing, and repairing injured submarines while at sea. In fact these vessels are so constructed that they can completely receive an entire injured submarine—as in a large pocket, and proceed on their way while the submarine is being repaired inside. Such vessels will be of great assistance to the allies' fleets. Already the Italian fleet has done great damage to the Austrian fleet, and has aircraft to take part in the Dardenelle operations with the allies.

The Italian army has a field strength of somewhat over 1,000,000. Their cavalry is recognized as among the best. The mountain artillery of the Italian Army is the equal of any similar armament in the world. In fact the whole Italian army are particularly good at mountain warfare, due to the geography of their country. They have already abundantly illustrated this point in their victorious defeats of the Austrian forces as they advance through the mountainous sections of south western Austria. They are continuing with unabated speed, and sweeping all before them. One great advantage for the Italian forces army and navy—in the experience they have gained in the ten months of war before they actually annexed. It enables them to make the very best use of their forces, supplies and equipment. Turn, gay gay silly, Italy completes the situation adds supplies to Germany and brings a very powerful force to bear against that countries enemy, both on land and on sea, and in no doubt, delivers a heavy blow on a frontier, hitherto unbroken.

WEDDING BELLS

SCOTT—CANN.

A quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Asaph's Manse, when William Bruce Scott of Smith Township was united in marriage to Laura Beatrice Cann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cann of the 2nd Line of Smith. The ceremony, which took place at 7 o'clock, was performed by the Rev. James Asaph.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott left on the morning train for points East and spent their return will take up residence in Smith Township.

GOW—JORY.

On the evening of June the twenty-fourth a very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jory, when their youngest daughter, Laura Mae was united in marriage to William Alexander Gow, of Hazelton, B.C. The bridal party took their places under an arch of evergreens and orange blossoms on the lawn to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Ida Grant, Paisley, cousin of the bride, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Hinton.

The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Ida Jory, while Charles Gow, brother of the groom, ably performed the duties of best man. Little Miss Veleria Payne, niece of the groom, acted as flower girl.

The bride looked charming in a gown of cream Duchess satin with drapings of Oriental lace, her only ornament being a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. She wore a veil, caught up with orange blossoms and carried a picture bouquet of white roses, while the flower girl wore pale hair ferns.

The bridesmaid wore pink brocaded crepe de chine trimmed with shadow lace, and carried a bouquet of pink roses, while the flower girl wore pale blue chiffon over white silk.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. E. R. Hamblin, sister of the groom, sang Love's Old Sweet Song in a very able manner after which the bridal party repaired to the dining room, where a dainty dinner was served to about one hundred and thirty guests. The table decorations were white lilies, white and pink carnations and maiden hair ferns.

The presents were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the young couple were held. The groom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls, to the bridesmaid a cameo pendant, to the pianist and flower girl pearl pins, to the soloist a sunburst of pearls, and to the best man a gold fob.

Late in the evening the happy couple motored to McCracken's Landing, where they will camp for a few weeks before leaving for their home in Hazelton, B.C., where the groom has a good position. The bride travelled in a suit of blue Belgium cloth with a white voile blouse and white lace hat.

Among the guests from a distance were—Misses Ida Grant, Lizzie Grant, Aggie Kirkland, Hannah Brice of Paisley; Mr. Arthur Grant and Miss Edna Grant, Uxbridge; Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Middleton and Violet, Mrs. Geo. Taylor and Miss Ethel Richardson, of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Robb, Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. David Edwards and Miss Minnie; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Taylor of Keene, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dixon and family, Oshawa, Miss Lizzie and Campbell Harrowsmith.

DAWSON—STOREY.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Storey, 464 Weller Street, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at 12.30 o'clock this afternoon, when their daughter, Mary Elma, was united by the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. William G. Dawson of Bailieboro.

The house was prettily decorated for the occasion with flowers, palms, and ferns. The ceremony was performed under an arch of palms and ferns by Rev. R. G. Fuster, Pastor of George Street Methodist Church, the bride being given away by her father.

The only attendant was the bride's sister, Margaret, who acted as flower girl. The bride entered the room with her father, becomingly gowned in silk crepe with chiniz lace and pearl trimmings, and carrying roses, and lillies of the valley. Her little sister, Margaret, was attired in silk crepe and carried roses. The ceremony was performed in the presence of forty guests, among these from out of the city being Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Evans and little son, from Toronto, and Miss Margaret Ball from Millbrook.

As the bride entered the room, the wedding march was played by Miss Annie Dawson. During the signing of the register, Mrs. T. A. Beamish of Toronto sang "O Promise Me."

Immediately after the signing of the register a dainty wedding breakfast was served, Messrs. T. Hooper and Sons catering.

Among the many costly presents were several of cut glass and silverware, all testifying to the esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends.

After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Dawson left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for western cities on their honeymoon. On their return they will reside at Bailieboro where Mr. Dawson is a successful farmer.

...Democratic Loan an Opportunity Should to Help —People Will Subscribe.

FIGHT TO LAST CENT

LONDON, June 30.—At the great Mans meeting arranged to arouse interest in the war loan and to stir up the patriotism of the people, which was held at Guild Hall, Premier Asquith said:

"Rather than shorten her ideals England will fight to the end—to the last cent—to the last drop of her blood.

"This is the first time in our financial history a great democratic loan has been placed, and I hope all will subscribe, no matter what their means, in order to share in the great national need."

Mr. Asquith said that the revenue from taxation would be less than $1,250,000, whereas the cost of the war for the next month would be $15,000,000 daily.

As if to give the campaign a good send-off the first really big subscription on the war loan was announced simultaneously with the appearance of Premier Asquith on the platform. It was the contribution made by a London insurance company of [illegible], of the new loan.

Premier Asquith opened the meeting by stating that apart from many of its "other features," the present war was the greatest that ever had been waged with the most productive expenditure for the year approaching a thousand million pounds ($5,000,000,000).

A. Bonar Law, secretary for the colonies, who followed Mr. Asquith, said that the country as yet could not tell what the result would be called upon if investors held back the state would have their money if necessary by a forced loan.

"We are proud of our allies," Mr. Law said, "but we must trust ourselves."

GREAT PUBLIC LOAN OPENED

THE ALLIES LAUNCH BIG ATTACK ON KRITHIA

EIGHT WARSHIPS ARE POUNDING TURKISH FORTS GREAT CRASH OF METAL

Unconfirmed Reports State That Krithia Has Fallen---Losses on Both Sides in Last Week of Fighting Heaviest on Gallipoli Campaign.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

ATHENS, July 2.—The Allies opened a fierce assault upon Turkish positions before Krithia Wednesday morning. Eight warships, led by the super-Dreadnought Queen Elizabeth, are pounding Turkish forts with the greatest crash of metal since the attack upon Fort Kilid Bahr, more than three months ago.

Unconfirmed reports reached here last night that Krithia had fallen.

Mityion despatches to-day reported losses on both sides in the last week of fighting at the Dardanelles to be the heaviest of the Gallipoli campaign. The allied expeditionary forces are reported to have at least ten thousand in killed, wounded and missing. The Turkish casualties are believed to have been heavier. All despatches received here to-day, agreed that one struggle being waged around Krithia is the greatest land struggle ever waged at the Dardanelles since expeditionary forces were put ashore.

Gen. Hamilton has concentrated his armies north of Sedd Ul Bahr, and is sweeping the Turks back along the peninsula by successive short rushes.

Each charge is preceded by terrific bombardments of Turkish trenches by Anglo-French battleships standing inside the Strait and along the shore of the Gulf of Saros.

The trench fighting is of a most desperate character, with Turkish and allied troops gripped in a hand to hand combat on the sands.

POLICE AFTER BELMONT DESERTER

Said to Have Decamped With a Peterboro Woman

Covert, it is alleged, has deserted the Rifles, donned his civilian clothes and decamped for parts unknown with the wife of a Peterborough man, who, it is said, became enamored with Covert during the latter's stay in Peterborough after enlisting. Covert and the woman were in Norwood last week, but up to date have not been located and arrested.

Gigantic Leader's Death Inspires Italian Grenadiers

MILAN, via Lugano and Paris, July 2.—The Corriere Della Sera prints an account of a charge by an Italian force, a brigade of grenadiers, comprising the tallest men in the army, at the time of the occupation of the Corno Heights, northeast of Monfalcone. The grenadiers, says the newspaper, approached to within fifty yards of the entrenched enemy, when with the cry of "Savoy" they sprang with fixed bayonets on the Austrians, who broke and fled.

A hail of artillery missiles obliged the grenadiers to change their position in order to protect themselves. The Austrians, evidently believing the Italians had retired advanced to reoccupy the lost entrenchment, whereupon Major Manfredi, a colossus in build, taking the colours in hand: "Grenadiers remember that the Sardinian brigade never withdrew."

The grenadiers, the newspaper adds, flung themselves upon the advancing troops, driving them back. A bursting shrapnel carried away the left leg of Major Manfredi, who shortly afterwards died from loss of blood. His last words were, "Good-bye boys; long live Italy!"

Rejected Scheme For Pouring Gas Into Trenches

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK CITY, July 2.—Three months before the Germans began using chlorine gas against the allies, the British Embassy at Washington rejected a plan for pouring asphyxiating gas into the German trenches, Dr. W. B. McLaughlin, Brooklyn scientist declared to-day, as it violated the Hague convention.

McLaughlin experimented with sulphide. He says he showed the British Embassy how this gas could be poured into the enemy's trenches with all the precision of gun fire, making the enemy temporarily helpless, but leaving no permanent ill effects.

FOR FEAR BULGARIA WILL ENTER WAR

Special to the Examiner:

SOFIA, July 2.—Government archives and precious objects in the Mosques at Adrianople have been removed because of the fear that Bulgaria will soon enter the war against Turkey. The Turkish Minister of the Interior, Talat Bey, accompanied by a German staff officer, visited Adrianople and superintended the removal.

To Help Nature Shed A Bad Complexion

Beauty devotees are enthusiastic over the beautifying qualities of mercolized wax. Nothing discovered within recent years accomplishes so much, so quickly, without harm, at such small expense. The principal reason for its wonderful merit is, that it works in harmony with physiological laws. Instead of hiding complexion defects, it removes them. It gradually takes off the aged, faded, sallow freckled, or blemby surface skin, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience. It is Nature's way of renewing complexion. When the natural process is retarded because of sluggish circulation or nerve tone, mercolized wax comes to the rescue and hastens the skin shedding. The new complexion which appears is a natural one, youthful, healthy, exquisitely beautiful. If you've never tried mercolized wax, get an ounce of it at the druggists, use it night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning.

Another natural beautifying treatment—for wrinkled skin—is to bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably and unobjectionably effective.

Transport Was Submarined

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The Dominion line steamer "Armenian," carrying horses from Newport News to Britain, has been sunk by a German submarine off the coast of Cornwall. Twenty of the crew were lost and ten injured, mostly Americans.

As the steamer "Armenian" was really used as a transport, it is thought that the United States government cannot make a protest to Germany regarding the loss of the Americans aboard her.

A survivor of the "Armenian" states that the German submarine was of the latest type and three hundred feet long.

Lloyd's shipping registry lists the Armenian as one of the largest of the great fleet of liners owned by F. Leyland and Company, Limited, of Liverpool. She displaces 8,898 tons, is 512 feet long, and has a 60-foot beam.

She was built in 1906 at Belfast, and is under British registry from the port of Liverpool. Shipping records list her captain as J. A. Jacobson.

Lloyd's mentions no other liner named Armenian.

CANADIANS WERE IN ACTION JUNE 17TH

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., July 2.— Casualty lists received since yesterday indicate that the Canadians were in action on June 17, the losses on that date including 69 killed, 4 wounded, 13 missing and 2 prisoners. The third heaviest action in which the Canadians have taken part occurred on June 15, when the first and second battalions lost heavily. Apparently the battalions were relieved in the trenches by the 3rd and 4th, for the losses reported on June 17 were sustained largely by those battalions. Canadian casualties to date are: Killed 1811, wounded 6289 and missing 1089. Total, 9057.

Enemy Suffers Heavy Losses

Special to The Examiner.

PETROGRAD, July 2.—A keen contest developing before Warsaw, where the Germans cannot break the Russian line, says a despatch from Grand Duke Nicholas. Russians inflicted heavy losses on Linsingen's army near the Dneister.

Russians have halted their retreat in Galicia, forming defence along the Bug and Galik Lip, preparing to give battle. Austro-German attempts to locate this new line have been repulsed with heavy losses.

Patriotic Address by Dr. Harrison At Villiers Sunday School Festival

There Was a Large Attendance at Social Held on Wednesday

The ladies of Villiers Sunday school, Otonabee, held a garden party on Wednesday evening, at which they realized about $100 to be devoted to the purchase of various supplies for the soldiers. With an attendance of at least four hundred of the old and young people within a radius of miles, with a supper in which strawberries were a feature, and with an open air entertainment, the evening provided a round of enjoyment for every person. The affair was held in the yard of the rural school a short distance north of the corners of Villiers. Bunting, flags and Chinese lanterns added a pretty setting under the star-cast sky. A fresh, cool air followed the sunset and left nothing to be desired except perhaps the route of a numerous band of industrious mosquitoes that took advantage of the subdued light and added a note of activity that was not included on the programme.

Mr. George A. Gillespie, M.P.P., was chairman of the entertainment. He was back amon gthe receding associations of his school days and was as much a part of the proceedings as if he were residing on one of the concession lines.

A feature of the programme was an ardent patriotic address by Dr. Harrison of Keene. The concert was somewhat delayed in its commencement and as a result Dr. Harrison was not called upon until ten o'clock. He therefore gave only a synopsis of the speech to which he had given some thought. His words were full of hope and encouragement and also expressed an appeal that the co-operation of the people with the Empire become more and more general. He had frequently heard the question, "What have the allies done? What has Great Britain done so far?" Germany had been storing up ammunition for many years, and in the present struggle has had the advantage. Britain found herself at war, and had only 176,000.

Dr. Harrison briefly referred to the great work this handful of Britons had done in the first heat of the war. But in addition Lord Kitchener began the upbuilding of an army and within ten months had close to four millions of men under arms, a wonderful achievement. The manufacture and assembling of shells is growing apace.

People residing in the country could not make shells, but they could supply funds. How many here, Dr. Harrison asked, had deprived themselves or had been obliged to do without any of the luxuries or even necessities of life. There had been no effects of the war to speak of. There had been no pinch. We must do better. We must deprive ourselves to the point where we can feel it and none of us have approached that footing yet. Those who can't go to the front can at least give something to win the struggle in which the very existence of the Empire is involved.

Mr. Gillespie.

Mr. Gillespie spoke briefly. He said he was confident that the people of the Villiers section would do their duty to the full extent. He had known them all, men and women, and he knew the integrity and honesty which was common among them. These manifested principles of character had always been an incentive to him and a reminder of the qualities of his boyhood comrades. If he were an officer at the front he would ask for nothing more than to lead men of the Villiers section, for he knew they were dependable in any situation. The ladies, too, he was well aware, had been assiduous throughout the winter and spring in their particular sphere of assistance to the soldiers and would continue their efforts to the end.

When Johnny Wants a Cold Drink

Another Problem For Mothers

After settling the pure food question for baby, and the pure ice question for the household, Mother has now a moment of leisure to decide what Johnny and the rest of the children should have when they want a cold drink.

Montserrat Lime Fruit Juice is the verdict. Tens of thousands of cases have been used in the British Navy this year, and the British Expeditionary forces. The reason is, it is healthy, quenches the thirst, and is a delightful summer beverage.

Montserrat Lime Fruit Juice is especially valuable in the country, where the chances are that the water is not pure.

Montserrat Lime Fruit Juice destroys the germ of Typhoid. McGill University Professors have proven this.

Montserrat, therefore, insures you against Typhoid, besides it is so refreshing, cooling and thirst assuaging.

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

"Pore little calf goin' to die to-night!" bellowed Shorty, springin' to his feet, snortin' and stampin'. "Good Lord, ain't little calves dyin' all the time everywhere Now, listen to me; the's a big calf with red whiskers goin' to die to-night, too, unless you can come out of your trance pronto and tell me what's bitin' you."

Red sat tuggin' at his ravellin's, and he sure was a venerable sight. "I'll tell you what's the matter, Shorty, as soon as we're alone," sez he, glancin' pitiful at Isaac, "though it won't affect you none. If the' was anything 'at could be done, it wouldn't be so bad; but the thought of that pore little thing starvin' to death takes all the joy out of life for me. I've got a good notion—"

"You got a good notion!" roared Shorty, shakin' his fist 'at Red. "Your intellect 'd crack your skull and splash all over the walls if ever it cooked up anything so all around useful as a notion. What you got is the headache."

It was plenty hot enough as it was, but as Shorty rushed outside he gave the door such a bang that Mrs. Hollis must have thought we were openin' more wine than usual.

By this time Isaac had been worked up to the proper pitch, and as soon as things stopped rattlin', he piped up and asked what Red's notion was this," sez Red, "'cause the' ain't nothin' can be done to help the poor little thing; but I've got a good notion to shoot it and end its misery. I just hate to hear a calf moan all night."

"What's the matter with the calf?" asked Isaac.

Red tilted back his head and gazed at Isaac beseechful. "You can't do a thing," he sez, holdin' out his hand as though haltin' a mob. "There's a mighty lot o' people who are superstitious that ill luck allus follers them what kill a calf for anything but food; but superstition or no superstition, I'm goin' to put that calf out of its misery if it gets to moanin' durin' the night."

"I'm got a bit superstitious," sez Isaac, "and if you convince me that nothin' can be done to help the calf, I shall, myself, put it out of its misery. I have had to chloroform quite a number of animals, and it is oftentimes the only merciful way."

The' was an earnestness in Isaac's homely, shaggy little face when he was hurtin' over some animal that made ya like him, no matter how big a gump he made of himself the next minute, and we sat watchin' his face while Red, with his head drooped and his hands clasped behind his back, paced up and down the room, gnawin' at his upholstery. He was the willin'est show-actor ever I saw runnin' loose.

"What's the matter with the calf?" sez Isaac.

"Well, if you must know," sez Red a little cross, "that calf has had all its upper front teeth knocked out so it can't pull grass, and it's staggerin' around about a mile out west with its tongue hangin' out and that drinpy look in its eyes an animal [illegible] when it wants to spill its soup.

This was purty raw, and we all looked steady at Isaac. It didn't seem possible that a man who knew how many ribs a buffalo had, and how many eyes a fly had, and how many feathers an ostrich had, could fall for a thing like that; but he had got all his knowledge out o' books and now he sat with his brows drawn together in pain. "Come," he said, as soon as Red had finished, "I shall go with you. Bring your rope and as soon as you have tied the poor little thing, I shall take your revolver and shoot it."

They went forth to-ether and we sat and marvelled about human minds for about half an hour. Then the' came two shots close together, followed by what sounded like a runnin' fight. At first we wondered what kind of a game Red was pullin' off; but in about a minute Missourie jumps up and puts on his belt. "That sounds ao me like real business," sez he, and we all rushed out to see what was up.

It was all quiet by the time we got outside and after a bit Red came in with a hole in his hat and a nick in his shoulder. "Things have come to a purty pass in this neighbourhood," sez he. "We went out there to where I had seen the calf moanin' this afternoon, but it wasn't there at all, and while we were huntin' for it in the starlight, Mr. Hollis suddenly remembered that cows didn't have any upperd teeth, nohow. I knew that as well as anybody, but it never occurred to me until he spoke of it out there, and if he hadn't thought of it, we'd be huntin' there yet. It's mighty funny how—"

"Get on to the shootin'," sez Phil McLaughlin.

"Well, we came back from the west, and just as we crossed the branch, a man slipped past the light which leaked out beneath the shutters on our guest's window. He was headed toward the bunk-shack and I grabbed Connie just as he started to bark and though I tried to smother it, a little gurgle escaped and the feller heard it and started south. I handed the pup to Mr. Foster, and galloped after him regardless. Shorty, who had been sittin' under a tree, gnawin' bark to keep from talkin' to himself, had heard the racket and we were side by side just as the feller reached the top o' the bank and stood for a second again' the stars. We both took a crack at him, and then tried to run him down. He can run like a deer, and once in a while he'd favour us with a little lead. Shorty's so light that the wind of a bullet blows him out of the way, but I came mighty near stoppin' two of 'em myself."

"Did you recognize him?" sez Jim.

"I don't know how bindin' it would be in a court o' law," sez Red; "but I'm satisfied in my own mind 'at that low-grade scoundrel was Panther Emmons, and nobody else."

"That's who it was," sez Shorty. "I'm willin' to bet my eye-teeth on it."

We sat up some time discussin' things and trvin' to figrer out a way to put the kibosh on Panther Emmons, but he was a slippery weasel. None of us had seen him, nor heard of him he was a master hand at coverin' up his tracks. Jim finally made us agree not to do any more night-ridin' unless there was a pair of us.

Next mornin', Mrs. Hollis preached to us bothersome about the way we spent our nights, and said she hadn't slept a wink; but when Jim said he was very sorry that she was not enjoyin' her visit, and warned her that things generally got worse as the summer advanced, she put the balky-mule look in her eyes, and said that death itself couldn't shoulder her off the path of duty. She kept Jim at the table to hear out her lecture, and when Shorty kicked over the bench and slammed the door on his way out, I looked at Jim with the weary politeness on his face and I couldn't help but think what a handicap manners was.

Me and him had fixed up to ride up toward Big Jeff's that mornin' to see if we could see anything to make us suspicious in that quarter, and when he came out to the corral where I had his hoss all ready for him, his face was flushed. "That bloomin' old Begum has got to change her ways," sez he, "or I'll lose my patience."

"What's a Begum, Jim?" sez I.

"Why, it's a female potentate of the Injun Empire," sez he.

That night I spoke of her as the Begum and Shorty wanted to know what it meant. "It's the parlor name for an Injun potentate," sez I.

"She reminds me more of an Injun turnip," sez Shorty, "she's too blame hot to be a potater." After that we never spoke of her by any other name except the Begum.

Me and Jim hadn't found anybody at Big Jeff's nor we hadn't been able to catch any knowin' devilment in his eyes. As a general rule a low-grade like Big Jeff can't help but show in his face when he's plannin' some extra meanness, but there was nothin' in Jeff's face except his common, everyday wolfishness, and so we came back home again in time for supper.

As a rule the boys threw their saddles on the top rail of the small corral, and when we came out of the mess-hall that evenin', Shorty glanced down to where his saddle had been hung, and the bridle was on the ground with Madame munchin' at it. Shorty roared out what he had to say to that calf, just the same as if there wasn't no one else on earth but them two, and the Begum gave a screech and clapped her hands to her ears.

Isaac had set his umbrella at the door of the mess-hall and had just picked it up to tote it up to the bunk-shack when Shorty started for Madame, bellowin' out the crimes he intended to commit as soon as he arrived. "Don't you hurt that calf," squealed Isaac as he rushed to the rescue, "I'll pay for the bridle."

Connie frolicked along friskin' and barkin', and as it promised a little diversion, we all followed after. Madame had been handled rough every time he'd been caught eatin' leather, and so he gave heed to Shorty's warnin' and hustled around to the far side of the corral. We all thought Shorty had been doin' his worst on the way down, but when he picked up the bridle he broke out into howls that made the trees twist around like a blizzard. He ran to vocal cords so extensive that when he was runnin' 'em full tilt, he didn't have any energy left to waste on his brain, and so didn't use words, good or bad, but just howled like a pack o' wolves bein' roasted over a slow fire.

Just as we reached him he went calm, one o' those pale calms that betoken real trouble, and he made his knife ready.

"What are you goin' to do?" gasped Isaac.

Shorty picked up his Mexican bridle which was about forty per cent. of his treasures, and pointed to where one o' the silver-star decorations was missin'. "I'm a-goin' to cut your damned adopted calf open and get my silver star," sez he in cold, quiet tones.

"You mustn't, you mustn't, you mustn't!" sez Isaac, hoarse with earnestness. "I'll pay for it, I'll keep the calf hobbled after this, I'll—"

"The only way you could save that calf, now," sez Shorty, glarin' into Isaac's face, "would be to lick me."

A curious look came to Isaac's face, a sort of a cross between a rat in a corner and a woman workin' over a sick baby. "I'm not much of a fighter," sez he in jerky, throaty tones; "but I'll do my best."

Principal War Supply Plants of Warring Nations

The main reliance of the contending forces for munitions of war has up to now been placed on the great government works. Private plants making a specialty of war material have in many instances assumed an importance as great as the government shops. It is a noteworthy point that while enormous orders for shells, cartridges and small arms have been placed in the United States, the shipment of these orders will not begin to go forward in any marked degree until the beginning of autumn next, or more than one year after war was declared.

The leading government and private plants on the Continent of Europe engaged in work for the military and naval services are—

Stoney Lake Breezes

McCracken's Landing can now boast of being the brightest spot on Stony Lake, at least while the sun is shining. Mr. Choate has covered his new store with corrugated iron roofing, and no mattet what the angle such a blaze of glory strikes the eye that one's sight is well-nigh lost.

"Into the sunshine
Full of the light,
Leaping and flashing
From morn till night."

Mr. J. W. Bennett and his sister, Miss Bennett, have taken the Edwards cottage for the summer.

Mr. Arthur Dodds, of Dummer, is assisting Mr. McQuaig in building the fireplace at the McKinney bungalow.

Mr. Walter Carveth, of Hall's Glen, paid a flying visit to "Restmore" on Saturday.

Mr. Ivor Brock came up the lakes last Friday, but had to return to Peterborough Saturday, to address the congregation of the Charlotte St. Methodist Church Sunday morning.

He came back with Dr. and Mrs. Morrison, who motored up to Kawartha Park Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Morrison and family will open their cottage for the season next Saturday.

Messrs. Munro and Hamilton, of Peterborough, are spending a short vacation at the Hamilton cottage, Bryson's Bay.

Mr. Hull, of Lakefield, is visiting Mr. Charlton at "Woodside."

"Bessie Butler" is at her old tricks again. This time she is dropping buoys at people's front doors. Passing by Mr. Wesley Sherin's cottage, the other day, she concluded he did not have enough buoys in his front yard, so she dropped another closer in. Say, but it's a whopper, not at all like the other striplings of buoys in Stony Lake. Mr. Sherin will soon have quite a family of buoys. Two are on his right hand, two on his left hand, and he should have two at the back of him. There is one to the rear now, near the light-house, but it was placed before the water was raised, and has not appeared to view since. In the meantime the Government has been so busy settling claims for damages, and building prize-package wharves that they have not had time to replace it with a taller one. Then, too, there used to be a buoy in the Devil's Elbow to designate the big rock in the centre of the channel, but for some reason or other it is conspicuous by its absence.

Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald and her son, Donald, have located for the summer at their cottage "Sandy Point Villa."

Messrs. Alex. Gibson and W. G. Ferguson, spent a few days at the lakes last week.

Mr. J. R. Donell returned to Peterborough on Saturday, after having spent a few days at "Kilkenny."

The Y. M. C. A. boys will hit the trail on the twenty-ninth of this month. This year they expect to camp on Sandy Point instead of on the narrow lot between the cottages of Mr. Fitzgerald and Miss Graham.

Mr. R. B. Lundy, of Peterborough, has taken Mr. Kearney's house at Young's Point for the summer.

Mr. Boyle, of Peterborough, is adding some finishing touches to "Shingleshanty."

Mr. Ayotte has provided a new flagpole and a set of steps leading to the water for the Husband cottage.

The summer stock of groceries for Kawartha Park arrived per steamer "Stony Lake" on Monday.

Mrs. William Stock came up to "Ivanhoe" on Monday.

Mr. and Miss Gillett, of Cobourg, have arrived at Horseshoe Island for the summer.

The Eddie cottage has been opened for the season.

Ex-Controller McCarthy and Mrs. McCarthy, accompanied by Miss Pearl, Miss Voureen, and Master Davis, motored from Toronto on Saturday, arriving at Stoney Lake landing about midnight. They spent Sunday and Monday at their cottage, "Emerald Isle."

Miss Constance Cook, of Buffalo, who has been domiciled at Juniper Island since the opening of the season, returned to Peterborough this week.

Blood Thin and Weak Too Nervous to Sleep

Here is Another Case in Which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Proved Its Great Reconstructive Influence

Thin blood and exhausted nerves usually go together. A considerable portion of the blood is constantly consumed in keeping up the vitality of the nervous system. Once the blood is deficient, either in quantity or quality, the nerves suffer and bodily pains result. Headaches, neuralgic or sciatic pains are the indications in some cases, while in others weakness, nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness are the most marked symptoms.

Mrs. R. F. Catlin, Elm Springs, Sask., writes: "For years I was troubles with nervousness, and could not sleep nights. Also had lack of colour as a result of the blood being thin and weak. My husband saw Dr. Chase's Nerve Food advertised, and got some for me, and wanted me to try it. I did so, and it has proven a wonderful help for me. By enriching the blood, it has restored colour to my face and has built up the nervous system so that I rest and sleep well. It is a pleasure to recommend so excellent a medicine."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food goes direct to the formation of pure, rich blood, and for this reason is the most certain means of increasing the quality as well as the quantity of blood in the human system. The feeble, wasted nerves are restored, and through the nervous system new vigor and energy is imparted to every organ and member of the body.

You will be surprised at the way this food cure puts new strength and vitality into the weakened body. And the best of it is that the benefits are both thorough and lasting. In this the Nerve Food differs from mere stimulating medicines which give rise to false hope and when discontinued leave you as weak as before. Put this great restorative treatment to the test and prove its merits in your own cases. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers of Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DESIGN FOR BORDERED FABRICS.

By Anabel Worthington.

As this is a season of bordered materials and embroidery flouncings it behooves us to take notice of designs that lend themselves particularly well to these fabrics. A special design is almost a necessity, and one that is unusually pretty is shown here. It is intended for misses and small women. The illustration shows very clearly just how the border is to be placed. The waist is in surplice style, made without lining, and gives a choice of three sleeves; one a full length sleeve finished with a wristband, another an elbow sleeve and the third a straight band, which looks particularly well in flouncing, and which is shown in the small front view.

The skirt consists of two deep flounces, the lower one attached to a three-gored foundation. The dress closes at the back. A bordered cotton voile would make up prettily in this style and not be very expensive. Then there are linens, organdies and crepes. Embroidery flouncing is, perhaps, the prettiest of all, and while, generally speaking, rather high in price, it is frequently put on sale and can be picked up at very reasonable figures when one is on the lookout for it. The design is also suitable for plain, that is, uncolored, fabrics of various sorts. For 13 year size you would need 7⅞ yards of bordered material or flouncing 25 inches wide; in plain material you would need 5¼ yards 36 inches wide. The pattern, No. 7,125, can be obtained in sizes from 14 to 20 years.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKETS

Wool is Bringing a High Price--Butter Holds its Position With Practically No Recession--Hogs Are Down--Wheat Now $1.15---Additional Comment.

MARKET FEATURES.

Live hogs advanced 15c, now $9.00.
Ontario wheat, down to $1.10.
Oats, down to 56c,
Butter, steady.

The markets have fluctuated slightly during the week with some interesting changes. At the same time, strawberries and various new vegetables are beginning to come in quite freely.

Dairy and Poultry.

Cheese production in Ontario last week as compiled from the various Board sales, amounted to 22,543 boxes as compared with 21,819 boxes for the previous week. This decreased output might denote that the high mark in production has been reached for this season. The Peterborough market this week showed an increased offering but the local milk receipts have fallen off somewhat. During the week there was a general tendency toward price recovery. Iroquois board reported 17 3-16 cents as the high mark for the province.

Butter is holding up well in a season which usually finds a marked recession in prices.

Butter, dairy	26-28c.
Butter creamery	31 to 33
Cheese	20 to 25c.
Eggs, new laid, doz.	21-23c
Chickens per pair	80 to $1.40
Cream, qt.	30 and 40c

Grain and Hay.

Local wheat is quoted at $1.10, a decline of 5 cents in the week, and oats are down from 60c to 56c.

Wheat per bushel	$1.10
Barley	70c
Oats	56c
Peas	$2.15
Bran	$25 60
Buckwheat, per bush	85c.
Bran	$28.00
Baled hay	$19 to $20
Loose hay	$20 and $23
Straw	$13.00

Bacon and Other Meats.

An advance from $8.85 to $9.00 in the price of live hogs. The market is reported steady. July and August should bring a strong demand for hams and bacon and already the retail trade has felt this influence. The beef market does not record a change. An influence that should add strength to the marke, if the recent purchases of cattle in Canada and the United States for France. First attempted as an experiment, it has proven successful and will, apparently be continued to a more or less large extent.

Bacon, per lb.	28c to 30c
Ham	25c to 30c
Cooked hams	35c.
Pork	15c to 22c

Farm and Dairy Market Report

TORONTO, June 22.—Our railways are the great arteries of trade, and their earnings an index on pulse of business. If we examine the trade returns of the three great Canadian systems, we find that the earnings of the C.P.R., for the third week in June were $1,619,000 as compared with $2,185,000 a year ago, a decrease of $566,000. G.T.R. traffic earnings for the week ending June 21st totalled $909,072, the largest for any seven-day period since the first week in April. Compared with last year there was a falling off of only $53,564, or only 5.1 per cent. This is a very favorable showing. The C.N.R. on the other hand for the same week, showed gross earnings of $278,900, a decline of 31.3 per cent. as compared with last year. Comparing the records of the three roads, it is clearly evident that Canadian trade, in volume at least, is considerably below this period last year. This, however, is to be expected, but it would be a mistake to attribute the total falling off to the war. We do not want to forget that the major portion of our troubles are due to the over speculation that preceded the war.

A review of the farm markets of the week shows but few changes. Grains on the whole have held steady with some increases. Live stock and dairy produce markets show marked improvement.

WHEAT

Many well informed brokers believe that the bottom has been reached in wheat and that from now on the price will improve. Speculators, however, are wary, and but little buying is being done. Trading on the new crop, too, is restricted. Interest centres largely in the winter wheat belt. Heavy rains and prevalence of rust are reported from middle western states. In Ontario, weather conditions are almost ideal. No. 1 Northern is now quoted at $1.35½; No. 2, $1.32½; No. 3, $1.30½. Ontario wheat has been reduced, now being quoted, $1.10 to $1.12.

COARSE GRAINS

Coarse grain markets are quiet. Corn has sold down; other grains are fairly steady. Oats, C.W., No. 2, 59½c; No. 3, 59¼ to 60c; extra No. 1 feed, 59½c to 60c; Ontario oats, 53c to 56c; American corn, 76½c; Canadian corn, 77c; peas, $1.50 to $1.60; buckwheat, 74c to 76c; barley, malting, 70c to 75c; feed, 65c; rye, $1.05 to $1.10. The Montreal market quotes as follows: Oats, C.W., No. 2, 60c to 60½c; extra No. 1 feed, 60c to 60½c; local white, 57c to 59c; barley, feed, 72c; buckwheat, 79c to 80c; American corn, 80c to 81c.

MILL FEEDS

The market is steady: Bran, 25c; shorts, 28c; middlings, 29c; feed flour, bag, $1.05; corn meal, 98-lb. sack, small lots, $2.30 to $2.40, cottonseed meal, ton, $35 to $36. Montreal quotes: bran, $26, shorts, $28; middlings, $33 to $34; moullie, $35 to $40.

HAY AND STRAW

The market is stronger than ever, even in the face of good crop prospects. Local merchants are buying on the track as follows: Baled hay, No. 1, $16.50 to $18; No. 2, $14.50 to $16; baled straw, $7 to $8. At Montreal the market is apparently strong with No. 1 hay $21.50 to $22; No. 2, $20 to $21.25; No. 3, $19 to $19.50, and clover, $18.50 to $19. Shippers have difficulty, however, in getting their hay to Montreal and it is suggested that the government, acting through the railways, have practically put an embargo on hay shipments for the present.

EGGS AND POULTRY

A feature of the egg trade this present season has been the great increase in new production in the Western provinces. These provinces have supplied all of their own requirements and will soon be exporters. The production in the Eastern provinces has also increased and dealers anticipate a continuation of the export trade during the latter part of the season. Eggs in cartons, 24c to 25c; selects 23c to 24c; No. 1, 21c to 22c; No. 2, 19c to 19c. At Montreal straight gathered stock is selling at 21c and selected stock 24c to 25c.

Poultry quotations follow: Old fowl, live, 12c to 14c; dressed, 14c to 16c; spring broilers, live, 18c to 20c; chickens, 17c to 20c dressed; old turkeys, live, 16c to 20c; turkeys, dressed, 23c to 25c; ducks, 17c to 18c.

HIDES AND WOOL.

The market is advancing. Hides, cured 12c to 13c; part cured, 11c to 14c; green, 12½c to 13½c; calf skins, 16½c to 17½c; part cured, 15½c to 16½c; deacons, 75c to $1 each; horse hides, No. 1 $3.75 to $4.25; No. 2, $3.25 to $3 each; sheepskins, 75c to $1; horse hair, 30c to 32c a lb.

Wool quotations are still on the up-grade: Washed combing fleece (coarse), 30c to 32c; super lb.; washed, medium, 30c to 32c; unwashed, coarse, 25c to 26c; fine, 28c to 29c; washed fleece, fine, 35c to 36c; washed rejects, 30c to 32c; unwashed combing fleece (coarse), 26c to 28c; unwashed medium, 26c to 27c; unwashed fine fleece, 27c to 28c.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES.

Wholesale quotations are as follows: Cherries, 11 qt. bkt., 75c to $1.25; 6 qt.bkt., 50c to 90c; strawberries, box, 7c to 12c; gooseberries, 11 qt. bkt., 60c to 90c; potatoes, per bag, in car lots, 45c; beans, primes, $3.10 to $3.25; hand picked, $3.20 to $3.35; green, hamper, $1.50; green peas, 12 qt. bkt., 40c to 65c; new Canadian cabbage, bush., $1; carrots, hamper, $1.50; beets, hamper, $1.00. At Montreal potatoes are quoted at 42½c a bag, and beans $3.10 for 3-lb. pickers.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The dairy produce market has taken a turn decidedly satisfactory to the producer. The butter market has advanced owing to the keen demand for the June product for storing. Such an advance was to be expected. The production to date is below that of last season and prices were dropped altogether too quickly. On this market, fresh creamery prints command 27c to 28c; creamery solids, 26c to 26c; dairy prints, 21c to 24c; bakers', 19c to 21c. On the Montreal market, finest creamery has sold at 28½c, and at the last sale of the Quebec Agricultural Cooperative Society, 994 packages sold from 28½c to 28¾, the latter being the price for pasteurized.

Much business has been done in export cheese and on Friday, Saturday and Monday, a week ago, no less than 50,000 to 60,000 boxes of cheese were sold on export account at from 16½c to 16¾c. This new activity was due to a stronger feeling on the London market. English buyers realised that they had dropped their quotations too low and they started in to buy at a lively clip. American cheese still continues to figure largely in the export trade and it is reported that Wisconsin cheesemakers will turn out 85 lb. Cheddar cheese. These cheese are quoted several shillings a cwt. lower than the best Canadian cheddars. Board quotations follow:

LIVE STOCK

The brisk business reported last week continued through the week that is just past. Packers brought up receipts in good order and quotations all around have advanced a trifle on those that prevailed when we last reported. A consideration in the trade is the possibility of extending the export dealings with Great Britain where prices have reached a very high level on all classes of meat products. During the past week some well finished steers were received and were taken up quickly. The complaint is always, however, too much common to medium stuff. Quotations follow:

Heavy choice steers, $8.25 to $8.75; handy, $8 to $8.50; butchers' steers, good, $7.75 to $8; com. and med., $6.75 to $7.75; heifers, $6.75 to $8.10; choice cows, $6.75 to $7.25; com. to good, $4.75 to $6.75; butcher bulls, $6.25 to $7.50; feeders, $7 to $7.40; stockers, $5.50 to $7.25; canners and cutters, $4 to $5.50.

Choice milch cows are in good demand at $85 to $90. Common to medium grades are not taken up so quickly at $45 to $65; springers, $60 to $80. Calves run from $2 to $10, according to quality.

Light yearling lambs are quoted $6 to $7.50; spring lambs, cwt., $10.50 to $11.50; light ewes, $5 to $6.25; heavy sheep and bucks, $4 to $5; culls, $3 to $4.25.

The lower prices talked by packers last week have been realized. Hogs are now selling at $8.85 to $9 f.o.b., country points, and $9.40 to $9.65 weighed off cars.

Choice steers were scarce in Montreal, but small lots of good steers sold at $8.50 to $8.75; fair, $7.50 to $8.25; common, $6 to $6.50; fair butchers' cows brought $6.75 to $7.00; butchers' bulls, $6 to $8. Demand for lambs was good at $8.50 to $9 each; old sheep, cwt., $6.50 to $6 50. The feeling in calves was easy, with quotations running from $1.50 to $10 each. Hogs were quiet with an easy undertone, but no actual price changes. Sales of selected lots were made at $9.50 to $9.60, weighed off cars.

McCutcheon—Fee.

The marriage of Miss Mildred Fee to Rev. A. E. McCutcheon, B.A., B.D., was solemnized at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fee, at Omemee, on Wednesday, June 23, at 2:30 p.m., in the presence of about sixty guests. Rev. J. W. Aikens, D.D., of Toronto, officiated. Miss Ella Switzer, cousin of the bride, beautifully rendered Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in ivory charmeuse with sequin and lace trimming, and a tulle veil with a crown of orange b'ossoms, and carried a large bouquet of white roses.

After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to a tent on the lawn, where the wedding lunch was served.

Dr. Aikens ably proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by the groom. Rev. D. R. Clare, of Wawaneso, Manitoba, and Mr. Wm. Switzer, of Peterborough, also graced the occasion with appropriate addresses. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents.

When Mrs. McCutcheon, with her husband, left on the six o'clock train, she was dressed in a suit of Belgian blue silk poplin, and wore a pretty leghorn hat to match.

After a short trip they will proceed to their home and duties in Beaverton.

WITH THE FRENCH WOUNDED

The Woman's Sacrifice

LONDON, July 2, (8.30 p.m.)—Away from the battlefield one sees war stripped of its glamour. We see the heroic work of nurses who are on duty day and night. There is devotion, self-sacrifice, suffering patriotism—qualities which only a great war and its terrible consequences can inspire to the highest development. The women everywhere are helping and everywhere one sees self-sacrifice and devotion to country.

The women of Canada do not know how fortunate they are. Here there are plenty of women who suffer in silence, whose strength is out of proportion to their ambition. Their hands are tied by some chronic disease common to womankind; that weak back, accompanied by pain here or there, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, maybe fainting spells or spasms, are all signals of distress for women. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood, passing from womanhood to motherhood. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and nervine, prescribed for just such cases by a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women. Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription has successfully treated more cases the past fifty years than any other known remedy. When you feel dull, headachy, backache, dizzy, or perhaps hot flashes, there is nothing you can accomplish, nothing you can enjoy. You can find permanent relief in Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription. It is sold by medicine dealers, or trial box by mail from Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of 50-cents, or one dollar for large box.—Adv.

WEDDING BELLS

MUMFORD—CURTIS.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]

tis, 690 Aylmer Street, when their second daughter, Mabel, was united in marriage to the Rev. W. J. Mumford, M.A., B.D., son of Mr. J. Mumford, Grays, Essex, England. The home was very prettily decorated with palms and ferns. The bride was attired in a gown of white brocaded silk and was attended by her sister, Miss Alberta, who was becomingly gowned in a frock of pink satin, with picture hat to match. The groom was ably supported by Rev. J. Stewart, B.A., of Toronto.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the parlour to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss I. Butcher. After the ceremony which was performed by Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., luncheon was served in the dining room, which was decorated with ferns and marguerites.

Among the guests were Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Codling of Elginburg, Ont., and Rev. and Mrs. T. S. Alty of Albion, New York.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

The Germans' Desperate Counter Attack

The British Trenches Are Fiercely Shelled

GERMANS ATTACK VIGOROUSLY ALONG THE YPRES-ARRAS LINE

Thousands of Heavy Explosive Shells Have Been Hurled at British Trenches But Infantry Attacks Which Followed Were Driven Back---Asphyxiating Gas Again Used Against French in the Argeane.

ENEMY'S SUCCESS ONLY TEMPORARY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, July 2.—The Germans are counter attacking desperately along the whole front extending from Arras north to Ypres, the official despatches reported this afternoon. The British positions around Ypres are being subjected to a terrific bombardment. Thousands of heavy explosive shells have been hurled against the English trenches in the last 24 hours. The artillery attack at certain points north-west of Ypres is being followed by massed infantry attacks and attempts to storm the English positions. Thus far [illegible] have been repulsed, the British standing their ground with great gallantry. Advancing from Labassee, the Prussian troops attempted to storm the English positions in the brickyards along the Bethune Road. Their first charge carried them close to the British works, but they were thrown back in confusion by the Britons' gunfire. Successive attacks failed to gain ground, the first charge having established a high-water mark for the German assault. Other German forces meanwhile, co-operating with the troops around Ypres, were easily repulsed, and retired after a short engagement last night.

The official communique this afternoon again referred to the use of asphyxiating gase by the Germans in a determined attack on the French in the Argonne. Despatches to the War Office said all these onslaughts have met with only temporary success, the French counter attacking and regaining the lost ground immediately after the wind had carried the gas away.

LONDON, July 2.—J. B. Jackson, of the staff of United States Ambassador Page, has officially reported that the British soldier prisoners among the seven hundred on Dardanelle Island, in Baltic Ocean, say they have no serious complaints about their treatment. They are permitted to fish, swim and play tennis. Canadians among them include Captain Northwood and Lieutenants Bell, Owen and Andrews and Dr. Hart.

OTTAWA, July 2.—Australia and New Zealand, it is stated, have decided to forward their help of the Mother Country and form a Coalition Government, to handle problems of the war.

Will Canada take similar action to that taken by her sister Dominions?

It is not believed here that she will. It will be recalled that suggestions to the effect that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and certain of his lieutenants at the commencement of the war might be called to co-operate with the Government in its war measures, were rejected by the Government press and speakers. No advance of the kind was ever made by Sir Wilfrid, and the matter was not seriously considered by either party leader.

Having secured the co-operation of various commissions the Government, it would seem, has divested itself of many responsibilities which a Coalition Government might be called upon to shoulder.

LONDON, July 2.—The big British steamer Welbury, 3,000 tons, and a British submarine were the other submarine victims reported to the Admiralty to-day.

LONDON, July 2.—Lloyd George's appeal for volunteers to speed up the production of munitions for the British army has met with hearty response, Lord Curzon announced this afternoon. During the past week 40,000 skilled workmen have volunteered for work in the munition factories.

DERBY, Eng., July 2.—Ben. Tillett, the Radical English Labor leader, to-day foiled an attempt to have the Federation of Trades Unionists extend sympathy to the trade unionists of Germany "on account of the peculiar position in which their Government has placed them."

Tillett turned all the sarcasm for which he is famous upon the Labor leaders who supported and introduced the resolution at to-day's session of the English Federation.

"I am amazed at such rigmarole," shouted Tillett. "Why men, don't you know that before the war the workmen of Germany boasted in their safes that they would crush France and then turn around and crush England?"

"This scrap must be fought to the finish. Who ever heard of two prize fighters stopping to kiss each other? Let's have no more of this sentimental bosh."

The resolution was promptly voted down.

LONDON, Ont., July 2.—Much concern is felt in some quarters here as a result of an anonymous letter from Detroit warning various firms that attempts would be made to dynamite the plants either Sunday or Monday next.

WERE AFRAID OF THE SUBS

The Crew of the Norwegian Bark Abyssinia Mutiny at Queenstown And Three are Shot by Their Officers.

POLICE INTERFERED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, July 2.—(Bulletin).— Fearing an attack by German submarines, the crew of the Norwegian bark Abyssinia mutinied while the ship was lying in harbour here to-day. In a bloody battle one of the Abyssinia's officers shot three of the mutineers, wounding two fatally. The Queenstown police ran alongside in a harbour boat, boarded the vessel and quelled the disturbance.

The Abyssinian was still in the harbour here this afternoon.

Many Dogs Yet Without Tags

611 Were Issued Last Year While 534 is the Total So Far This Year

When the question of dog tags is taken up and one finds that last year tags to the number of 611 were issued in the City of Peterborough, while to date only 534 have been issued this year, one is led to believe that several citizens must be evading the law. It hardly seems reasonable that 77 dogs have been destroyed in the city since last year, and is always the case many citizens who did not have a canine other years have one now.

Several fines were imposed by Magistrate Dumble during the month of May when owners were found to be evading the law by keeping a dog within the city limits without a dog tag. But this does not seem to have been enough warning to several others. It will be necessary for the police to go after those who have dogs "which cannot give a good account of themselves," in other words those who have dogs for which they have not made the purchase of a proper license and have them brought before Magistrate Dumble.

After a few cases had come before the Magistrate in the month of May His Worship said that the next offenders would be called upon to pay costs along with a fine. The police are after a few owners, and if they do not get their tags at once prosecutions will undoubtedly follow.

A fine does not entitle a person to keep a canine, but if it is the owner's desire to retain the animal after he has been fined he must pay for the tag as well as the fine. It would be saving money to buy a tag before being hailed into police court.

TWO NAMES WERE OMITTED

In the promotion list of the Public Schools published on Wednesday, the following names were omitted:

Queen Mary School—Senior Bk. I to Jr. II.—Harry Ebbs, Mildred Tomlins.

Port Hope Liked 57th Musicians

PORT HOPE, July 2.—The citizens thoroughly enjoyed the music of the 57th Regimental Band at yesterday's big celebration. It is believed that the impression they made will likely lead to their engagement at a big event in another Lake Shore Town.

CARRIED NO CONTRABAND

Representatives of White Star Line Ridicule the Report That Adriatic Has Been Marked Down for Destruction.

BORDEN ON BOARD

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, July 2.— Representatives of the White Star Line to-day ridiculed the report that the steamer Adriatic which sailed from New York Wednesday had been marked for destruction by German submarines. They denied the Adriatic carried war contraband and asserted there was no reason why the Germans should make special efforts to sink the vessel. The report is believed to have had its source in the fact that Premier Borden of Canada and several other prominent Canadians were aboard. Included among the Adriatic's 420 passengers are five Americans. The rumour said the liner carried a large quantity of ammunition.

FINE BARN BURNED IN OTONABEE

Mr. D. Shaughnessy Lost His Barn and Outbuildings Last Evening.

The fine barn and outbuildings of Mr. D. Shaughnessy, Otonabee Township, was struck with lightning last evening and burned to the ground. There was some insurance.

Mr. Shaughnessy lives south of Downer's Corners. At the time of the storm, last evening, all the members of the family excepting Mrs. Shaughnessy, were absent from the farm. About six o'clock she heard a dreadful crash and looking out, the barn was afire. Nothing could be done, however, to save it, and she could not do anything but watch it burn.

The barn, which was a valuable one, was built by Mr. Shaughnessy, about seven years ago. At the time of the fire fortunately all the live stock was out on pasture. There was no feed excepting a few bags of grain.

The following were the returns for the month of June this year and those of the corresponding month for last year:

June, 1915	$73,631.80
June, 1914	33,206.19

SUB IS SUNK BY AVIATOR

French Birdman, Operating an Aeroplane, Successfully Bombs Austrian Sub. U 11, Sending Her to the Bottom.

WAS A NEW CRAFT

Special Cable to The Examiner:

ROME, JULY 2.—[illegible] aviator bombarded and sank Submarine U11 in the Adriatic the Ministry of Marine announced to-day. This is the second time in naval history that a submarine has been sunk by an aeroplane. The German War Office announced a few days ago that a German aeroplane sank a Russian submarine. The Austrian 11U was one of the newest of the Austrian submarines and displaced about 800 tons. She was supposed to carry a crew of about 25 men.

Empress Trip From Lakefield

Had Large Crowd and Was Loaded With Cottagers' Effects.

The steamer Empress of the Stoney Lake Navigation Co. carried a full capacity crowd on her regular trip to the lakes yesterday. It was said to be the largest first of July attendance on the regular boat for some years. Both decks were crowded with excursionists, and the freight was stowed away in great piles. Captain Robinson made good all the way without delay, and the purser had his hands full looking after the transfer and the comfort of passengers. The sail was an ideal one and everyone enjoyed the attractions on the islands and stopping places. The steamer reached her wharf at Lakefield in time to connect with the 4.40 train for Peterborough, which sheltered the excursionists from the rain storm until reaching Peterborough.

Small Fire at Customs House

The cause of a small blaze at the Customs House at noon to-day was a carelessly thrown cigar or cigarette stub on to the awning over one of the lower windows. The stub may probably have come from one of the upstair windows.

It looked for a time as though the window frame would catch fire from the burning awning, but the Fire Department, which was called, managed to put out the blaze with a chemical. The only damage will be the loss of the awning, which was completely destroyed.

A French aeronaut's balloon basket is provided with gas chambers sufficiently buoyant to support five men should it fall into water.

FEW REMAINED AT HOME ON HOLIDAY

Dominion Day Was a Call to the Open—Water Craft of All Kinds Were Overworked—Automobiles Lost Themselves in the Country—Some Remained Quietly at Home.

CROWD AT JACKSON PARK

In the manner in which Dominion Day was spent there was nothing to differentiate it from the holiday a year ago. To all appearances it was almost identical with every first of July within our individual memories.

A stranger would certainly find no signs of a country at war. He might wonder at an occasional khaki suit but [illegible] to attract attention.

Peterborough was all but deserted. Even the cash registers in the hotel bars were more neglected than is usual on a holiday.

Many of the citizens showed their preference for Stoney Lake. The steamers Stoney Lake, Manita and Geneva cleared from the George street wharf with capacity passenger lists. It is stated that several hundred were left at the dock and little groups were passed at every look on the canal. There was no room for them on any of the boats, which were packed to the railings. Others journeyed to Lakefield and sailed around the lakes on the Empress.

Practically every automobile in the city rolled along some country road, Chemong, Oak Orchard, Burleigh and Bewdley being the favored resorts.

The boat liveries on the Otonabee had every canoe and skiff engaged in June. Along the river banks were innumerable family gatherings, many of whom trudged it from the end of the car line.

AT JACKSON PARK.

It has been many years since Jackson Park swarmed with so many picnicers. They were invariably family affairs, and the park re-echoed the voices of children at play. But the pleasure was cut short by the warning rumbles of the gathering storm, and scarcely any of the lunch baskets were unpacked.

Port Hope proved an attraction for a large number, especially of young people, who found special delight in crowds of strangers.

The holiday offered a field day for those who prefer a "quiet fish," the restful influence of a lazy day spent with a rod and line where bass are supposed to haunt but only scrubbed perch are hooked.

Intrinsically the celebration of Dominion Day was a farce except that it provided a few hours forgetfulness. It would have been utterly wasted but for the Lacrosse Club who staged a game to the customary accompaniment of rain. Le it be stated once more that the farmers do not appreciate the lacrosse team as an ally. It is admitted that the citizens do not. There were seven or eight at yesterday's game—the rest were Campbellford people.

THE STAY-AT-HOMES.

And last of all were those who remained at home; physically and financially infirm; married folk who in idyllic days had burned out their desires for "gadding about," mothers, who had left themselves fatigued ironing Gertrude's white dress and preparing her picnic lunch; and so on down the line, coming to the last and least, the man who preferred an old-fashioned "souse," a joy ride in red.

CONFIRMATION.

As the "probe" into the war contracts scandals progresses, we have confirmation of the facts brought out by the Public Accounts Committee, and justification of the course adopted by members of the Liberal Opposition, who were active in bring out these facts. We were told by a certain class of politicians and a certain class of party papers, that the Opposition was merely trying to embarrass the Government in its discharge of a great national duty. So far Sir Charles Davidson's investigation has justified the action of those who brought the scandals to light in the Public Accounts Committee, and have disposed of the plea of the politicians who demanded a general election to punish the Liberals who were vilifying the Government, unfairly criticising it and making unfounded charges of crooked war contracts, and wasting the people's money. Such criticism was a duty, and the Royal Commission now investigating the circumstances, shows that the charges in connection with war contract scandals were lamentably timely, and to the point, and have resulted in exposures that will put an end to wrong-doing, and promote the benefit of Canada and the Empire.

THE ZEPPELIN FAILURE.

Aiding the many failures the Germans have achieved, is the Zeppelin as an instrument of "frightfulness." It has frightened women and children, and in some cases, killed them; but as an effective instrument of warfare of military value, it is to be counted a failure. It is highly vulnerable to bombs, and easily set on fire. The bringing down of a Zeppelin by the young Canadian aviator, Warneford, is an illustration of the possibility of easily destroying the Zeppelins under favourable conditions. Its success depends too largely on chance to make it greatly dreaded, or of any practical military use. It has to work in the darkness, and in this regard it partakes of the sneaking spirit of the German military caste. The Zeppelin is the same lumbering craft it was when the war began. It may be more heavily armed, but it has not kept it-self to the improvements in aerial navigation that have made the aircrafts of the Allies a more dangerous enemy of the disappointing German engine of "frightfulness." It has absolutely failed as a means of terrorizing Britain, or doing any considerable damage. Destruction for destruction's sake is the main object of German methods of warfare, and of the failure of this object the much vaunted Zeppelin is a prominent example.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION.

Just as we are entering upon the first really genuine summer weather, talk of the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, Aug. 28-Sept. 13, is a chilly reminder of the approach of colder weather. It may surprise some persons that the Exhibition is to be held this year. It will be held this year in spite of a rumour that it had been "called off" for 1915. The directorate [illegible] considered such a step, [illegible] the matter from a broad national point of view, and are resolute, and accordingly taking measures to make the Exhibition a contributing agent in stimulating the commercial awakening, that it is confidently hoped will follow the end of the war, or possibly precede it.

The directors are going forward with the Fair on a larger scale than ever. The Fair will assemble and bring into prominence the products of the country in every possible department of the great national enterprises of Canada—grain production, stock raising, dairying, etc., and will also include object lessons of the importance of the industrial enterprises of the country. This year the prize list is more liberal than ever, which means a much larger volume and variety of exhibits. A prize list of nearly a hundred pages shows the great range of expected exhibits and prizes. The exhibits will take the colour of this year of war; for instance German guns captured on the battlefield will be among the exhibits that will remind us, if any reminder were needed, that we are at war, and that the war is coming our way. In no way can the extent and variety of the resources of Canada in all departments be so extensively and deeply impressed than through the medium of the Canadian National Exhibition to be held this year in Toronto, from August 28th to September 13th.

OIL ON THE STREETS.

So far the use of non-odorous and denatured oil on the streets, to keep down the dust is a success. It certainly, when the work is well done, and that applies pretty generally, kills the dust; and, thereby, brings joy to the heart of the housewife and those who use the streets. Now, when the gales which are specially prevalent this year, go careering through a street, they do not swoop up and carry dust into houses, with wide-open windows, and blacken fine filmy curtains waving in the breeze, nor cover verandah floors and seats with dust. The passing autos, especially the ones "driven furiously" by some Jehu, do not leave a wake of rolling clouds of dust.

And so far there is another important result; the oil keeps down the mud. A city official speaking of the comparative cost of oiling and water sprinkling, said the extra cost of preparing—making smooth and even—the streets for oil should be charged against it. That's one of the greatest advantages. We get the streets made, as they should be made and kept, decent for traffic and the oil, so far as we have experienced its effects, keeps them so. With yesterday's pounding rain, in which nearly an inch and a half of rain fell, an hour after it ceased, the streets where oiled were dry—there was no mud! The coating of oil where the streets were made smooth, shed the water, which ran into the gutters, instead of penetrating the road surface and making mud. If the oil does this, as well as keeping down the dust, its use, even at considerable increase of expense, over water, which facilitates mud-making, is amply justified.

The benefits of having rain water pass readily from the street surface, illustrates the capital importance of thorough drainage as a means of keeping street surfaces in good condition. This is a matter which does not receive full attention. On a certain street, a few weeks ago, the road department spent several days and, incidentally several dollars in grading the street to remove a series of gutter mud-holes that had been a nuisance for twenty years, and completely failed. The pools in the gutters after every heavy rain are worse than ever; the street being overflowed after yesterday's rain a distance of six or seven feet from the curb for long stretches. This is an entirely inexcusable and blame-worthy condition to be allowed to exist or, rather, to be created, with a fall of several feet within five hundred feet, making thorough drainage an easy thing to do, and a very difficult thing to avoid.

GOVERNMENT INACTION.

The public are inclined to expect rather too much from governments. Complaint is made that the Government has done nothing to decrease the prevalent unemployment. It has thought of doing something; it has made some inquiries; but in its answer to deputations urging government action to lessen unemployment, the Government through its leader disclaimed all responsibility and takes no action. A new campaign has been launched to stimulate production; but a commission of inquiry will not have any practical effect. We don't need information so much as action. We know that there is need for greater production; we know that there is easy possibility of greater production; and it only needs to secure greater production, to do something practical. Put same minister "on the road" to push a campaign for larger production, and induce the action which is all that is needed to secure greater production. All the ministers of the cabinet, except the Minister of Militia, who is "on the job" very industriously, and the Minister of Finance, and Secretary of State, who are making partisan political speeches, are practically doing nothing. Why should not Premier Borden get some of these gentlemen in harness, and have them conduct a flaming campaign for greater production; also a campaign to stimulate recruiting? Thus, those who should be reached would be reached in a more effective way than will not be done by a slow-moving and ponderously unwieldy commission. When generals win battles they lay their plans and carry them out on the moment. So long as governments take refuge in commissions; so long as they turn over their duties to proxies; so long will something not be done. There is a big opportunity for Canada. Her products ten times over the present amount will find a ready and profitable market, and we should be aroused to bring our full capacity into operation. It is the duty of the Government to do the arousing. Premier Borden and another minister are off to Britain to find out what to do. He knows what we have to do, and he should be spurring us on to do it. A trip to England won't yield any information on the problem of lessening unemployment, or increasing production. With these problems solved by definite action, we should be accomplishing two of the most important things possible, and in the process, solve other problems. If we could stimulate employment of the more urgently needed kind by stimulating recruiting, we should in the process help decrease unemployment. Forty or fifty thousand men given employment on the battle line, would leave corresponding vacancies for others now without employment.

EASILY APPLICABLE PROPOSAL TO PURIFY CANADIAN POLITICS

If the people of Canada really want to purify politics they can do it. At the foundation of the rottenness now being revealed from time to time throughout the country—at Fredericton, at Ottawa, at Winnipeg— and of much that is deplorable at other capitals which never may be revealed, are to be found the promoters, manufacturers, and contractors who are prepared to provide campaign funds for both parties in return for railway bonuses, contracts for supplies at excessive prices, or tariff favours which are often a more certain source of wealth than either. It is difficult to say how the vicious business began; whether the men who carry the bag for the parties made the first advance or were tempted by the voluntary subscriptions of contractors and concessionaires to shut their eyes to the looting of the public till. The blunt truth is that political organization in Canada has become fearfully expensive, that many electors expect to get a big haul at election time, and that the bulk of the money to maintain the machinery of parties comes not from the rank and file, but from men who have received financial favours in the past or expect them in the future.

Until recently the politicians have manipulated pitch without being defiled. What they did was for the party. For their own profit they would have scorned to take toll of a contractor who in turn was permitted to rob the Treasury. Men who spent money which had been doubtfully obtained upon their political campaigns lived and died personally poor and honest. They may have been "receivers" of stolen property, but they did not convert it to their own use. There have been signs of late that some of the men in our politics are becoming personally corrupt, and that a considerable part of the money now secured from exploiters and contractors is diverted to the pockets of men in public life instead of being used "honestly" in corrupting the electorate or in carrying on the legitimate work of party organization.

Corruption could be stamped out in Canada by strictly limiting the amount which might be spent on an election by any Parliamentary candidate, the sum being graded according to the sort of constituency contested, and subscriptions to all party funds, local or general, to be published under affidavit of the candidate and his agent as to the accuracy of the list, together with a statement as to how the moneys were spent. No outside organization or individual to be permitted to spend money or provide facilities for election work except through the regular fund of the candidate supported by such organization or individual. A lawyer of the highest standing to be appointed by Parliament and to hold office until removed by a joint vote of both Houses, and authorized to investigate all charges of corrupt practices and prosecute in every case in which the evidence warrants action. Imprisonment to be the only penalty for giving or taking a bribe. Constituencies in which the giving or taking of bribes are shown to be prevalent to be disfranchised for a full term of Parliament. This provision, if rigorously enforced, would make decent citizens active agents in the stamping out of corruption, for no honest man cares to be deprived of his citizenship because of the misconduct of the dishonest minority about him. And finally, no corporation or individual receiving a subsidy from or having a contract to perform work or service for the Government to be permitted to subscribe to election funds on penalty of imprisonment of the officers of the corporation or the individuals benefitting from such contracts to any material extent.

Ten years' vigorous enforcement of [illegible] would make bribery and corruption most unpopular ventures in crime. — The Globe.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Sir Donald Faversham Volunteers.

In his search for the Hindu, who had bought the idol containing the plans of the mother lode of the "Master Key" mine, John Dorr had recourse again to the pawnbroker.

That individual's curiosity was aroused by now, and he asked a great many questions, which John answered evasively.

When it came to getting a description of the Hindu the broker could give but few details.

He laid emphasis on the fact that he sold rugs and that he looked like any one of a dozen East Indians frequenting a Pacific port. He knew of no address.

With this Dorr had to be content, and he returned to Ruth to discuss with her what they should do next.

"If Wilkerson gets it there is an easy way to get him," he said in the course of their conversation.

"How?" demanded Ruth.

"Have him arrested as a fugitive from justice and held for the county sheriff and the warrant that Tom Kane swore out," he replied.

[illegible] the mine and all kinds of trouble," she said wisely. "Besides, we wouldn't be any nearer the papers father wanted me to have."

"That is very true," John agreed. "We'll keep that in reserve in case we discover that he has the idol. Our only plan, then, is to trace this Hindu. That will be a hard job."

"Why not put detectives on the trail?"

"I don't think any detective could do better than myself," was the reply.

"But you can't do it all," she argued. "You can't be looking for this peddler and keeping an eye on Wilkerson and seeing to me at the same time."

"Seeing to you is the pleasantest part of the job."

"The seeing to you is the pleasantest part of the job," he said laughingly. "I refuse to delegate that to any one. Of course you're quite right, though, about it's being too big an affair for me to handle alone. I think I'll ask Everett to join us. Maybe he can suggest something. I'll wire him, and then we'll take a trip down to the water front and interview our launchman again." He finished to find a pretty level headed chap, and he'll maybe be able to put us on the track of the Hindu if he took a steamer for the north, as I strongly suspect he did."

Ruth could not understand why the peddler should do this, and Dorr explained that the Hindu evidently had set great store on the idol, as he had not only paid cash, but had given a rug as well in exchange.

"He would know that the thing was worthless as an article of merchandise," he went on. "In the next place, he wasted no time in getting possession of it once he saw it. I have no doubt that it is sacred in his eyes—a god. It was stolen at some time from a temple. What more natural than that he should see the chance of a great reward for doing a pious duty and returning it to its native place?"

"But that's all guesswork," Ruth insisted practically.

"I know it," he admitted. "But a good guess is better than nothing to work on. Let's go and see our skipper person."

The launch captain received them genially and listened to John's story. At its finish he agreed with John that it was very likely that the Indian had recognized a native god and would restore it to its own temple.

"I've visited these eastern ports a good deal," he told them. "I know [illegible] just that trick—run off with an idol for a curio—and I know the fuss the heathens make about it too. They'll go any length to get back a first chop god."

Before they left he promised to keep an eye open for the Hindu and inform them if he got the smallest clew. With this they had to be satisfied, as inquiries elsewhere developed nothing helpful.

Everett arrived on the evening train and after dinner listened to the story of their adventures with great interest. When he had asked a few questions he and John looked at each other. Finally Everett spoke.

"It might take years to locate that lode without the exact plans," he said thoughtfully. "I don't doubt that your father, Miss Ruth, spent many a long hour and day prospecting for it. So we must have the plans if it's in the bounds of possibility to recover them. I think you will have to find your Hindu."

"There is the question of the mine," John said soberly. "It has already been allowed to go pretty much to ruin. Tom Kane would do his best, of course, but actually we are looking for the bird in the bush when we have one in the hand."

"I see your point," the promoter said promptly. "My offer of days ago still holds good. I'll finance this matter to the end, and I'll look after the mine too. So you can be care free so far as that goes, John."

"You know I wouldn't take it for myself," John began awkwardly and was silenced by a smile.

The next morning they had barely finished breakfast when the launch captain was announced.

The three of them found him bursting with news.

"I think I located your Hindu," he told them. "He came down at daylight this morning looking for a steamer sailing for the north. The Halcyon leaves at noon, and the steward gave him a job in the galley."

"But it might be another Hindu," Ruth suggested.

The captain turned toward her and shook his head. "I don't think it's possible," he said. "He answered the description clear down to the rugs. Besides that, he seemed kind of nervous, and when one of the sailors jollied him the man nearly had a fit. I'm sure he's your man."

"There's only one thing for you to do," Everett said promptly—"take passage on that steamer yourselves to San Francisco. By that time you can be pretty sure whether he's your man or not."

This was agreed upon, and Ruth started on her preparations immediately, Everett insisting that she take her maid with her.

"But I don't need her!" Ruth protested. "She's so expensive too!"

"You are merely a youngster," Everett said quietly, "and you must have a woman traveling with you. It is all right to do as you like in the states, where no one would dream of speaking evil or thinking it, but Mrs. Grundy insists on the maid."

John agreed with Everett and departed to get the tickets, in spite of Everett's warning that he had better send and get them.

The result was that George Drake, just landed from the mine and in search of Wilkerson, found him shed ding Dorr.

Drake explained his coming by saying that he had heard nothing from either Wilkerson or Mrs. Darnell, and he could be of no use at the "Master Key."

"It's just as well," Wilkerson said coldly. "I have a dozen things to attend to, and you can help. The first is not to let that man Dorr get out of our sight or turn a hand unless we know it."

In a few sentences Elliott with bitterness he told the story of the finding of the chart and the futile search for the plans and the abstraction of the idol containing them.

When Wilkerson found that Dorr and Ruth booked passage on the Halcyon for San Francisco and had inquired about the next sailings for the Orient he took Drake aside and they determined that this could only mean one thing—

Dorr was on the track of the idol.

"We'll follow them!" he said savagely. "We've spent too much to quit now."

Jean Darnell received Drake coolly and listened to Wilkerson's explanation of his new scheme without a word.

Her stormy eyes boded no good to some one, and Wilkerson feared she would abandon him.

But there was the tenacity of a tigress in her passions, and now she could not give up her sweet revenge nor forego the thought of possessing the wealth which had once been Tom Gallon's and which he had tried to conceal.

She agreed to go, and they decided to leave by train that evening, thus being in San Francisco in time to meet the steamer and watch for Dorr's next movement.

Two days later Everett again met John and Ruth in the hotel in San Francisco.

John's news was that the Hindu they sought had undoubtedly been on the Halcyon and that John had bought a steerage passage for Bombay.

"You ought to get the plans before you get to India," Everett said earnestly. "You'll find yourself in a strange land, where it will be like looking for a needle in a haystack to get hold of your man."

Dorr acknowledged this and outlined his tentative plan of getting hold of the idol during the passage.

"After all, we don't want the idol. I shall try to persuade the man of this and get him to let me have the papers concealed in it."

At this moment Sir Donald Faversham was announced.

The entrance of the Englishman who had made himself so attentive to Ruth at the southern hotel awakened little enthusiasm in either Dorr or Everett, but for Ruth's sake they played the civil part.

She, on the other hand, received Sir Donald with every evidence of lively pleasure.

"We are this minute talking of going over to India, where you lived so long," she told him after the first greetings. "And you are just the man to tell us all about it."

"Going to India!" ejaculated the baronet. "My word!"

"Yes," she proceeded. "We are after a Hindu and his idol."

At this point John laughingly came to the rescue and briefly explained the object of their quest.

Sir Donald listened quietly, occasionally glancing at Ruth, whose beauty was enhanced by pretty excitement.

At the conclusion of the tale he nursed the end of his stick awhile in very apparent perplexity.

"You know, my dear fellow," he said, addressing John, "that India is a large country filled with millions of different races. Even granting that this man is a Hindu and that your surmise about the idol is correct, I don't see how you are going to accomplish anything."

"That is just where you can help us!" said Ruth impulsively.

For the instant Sir Donald actually blushed with embarrassment.

Then he gathered himself together and went into details of what they must expect and the difficulties they must encounter.

"If you could only go along!" Ruth said plaintively when he had got them thoroughly discouraged. "You could talk their horrid language and make them behave."

"By Jove," said the baronet, sitting, "that's not a half bad idea! I have nothing to do, and I might as well see the chaps in India again as stay here."

"You know, Sir Donald was in the army there," Ruth explained to Everett.

"Brought up there," Faversham added. "Know India pretty well. I really believe I'll go with you if you'll accept of my company. What a lark!"

Neither John nor Everett received this proposal with undue warmth, but Ruth found it delightful, and before any of them realized the outrageous [illegible] of the conversation everything had been arranged.

Outside Faversham spoke to Dorr as man to man.

"I don't want to thrust myself on you in any way," he said briefly. "I happen to know India and to be sure that I can be of service to you. In fact, I should think it a jolly trip. But if you think I took advantage of the little lady's courtesy say so."

Entirely disarmed, John Dorr had to confess that Sir Donald's offer relieved him of a responsibility too heavy for him.

The two parted the best of friends, though John could not refrain from an expression of jealousy to himself.

But he knew that Ruth's interests were now doubly safeguarded and tried to restrain his unruly heart.

As the steamer sailed the next day they had little time for their preparations, but John made sure that the Hindu was on board before the last line was cast off and the big liner backed into the stream and headed slowly round for the channel to the open sea.

BOY DROWNED IN THE SCUGOG

LINDSAY, July 2.—Shortly before one o'clock, yesterday, Leo. Cleary, the youngest son of Mrs. Jeremiah Cleary, Duke street, was drowned in the Scugog River at the Ops swing bridge.

The unfortunate youth, with a number of companions, were playing on the pier on the west side of the bridge, when he accidentally fell in. His companions raised an alarm, but his body had disappeared from view when assistance arrived. It was recovered a few minutes afterwards, however. Dr. White was promptly on the scene, and every effort was made to resuscitate the boy, but without avail.

To prevent waste an Englishman has invented a mustard pot in which pressure on a piston on top forces a small amount of the contents out spout.

TEUTON OFFICERS MAKE ESCAPE

STOCKHOLM, July 2. — Aftonbladet publishes the narrative of the adventures of the German officer Klapproth and the Austrian officer Wiener, who escaped from the internment camp at Wakefield, England, a month ago.

According to the story, after the two men escaped from the camp they spent some days wandering about England. They were in great danger, but success was made possible by Wiener's perfect command of English. He had lived for some years in the United States and was on his way to Austria when his ship was held up by a British warship and he was taken prisoner.

The two men in their wandering visited Leeds, Liverpool, and London and finally managed to stow away aboard the Danish steamship Tomsk and hid in the cargo. They remained there for four days and nights without food until the ship arrived at Copenhagen. The two men were arrested and imprisoned for a time, but were later released and were allowed to go into Germany.

Dominion Day At Stoney Lake

Excellent Fishing—Eighteen Pound Lunge Landed Wednesday.

Stoney Lake put on a festive air on Dominion Day. The day was ideal. A large crowd of visitors came up the night before, and everywhere one went the amateur fisherman with his bamboo rod and "worm" was very much in evidence.

The cottagers vied with one another in decorating their summer homes

Next week should see a steady stream of cottagers and visitors.

The floating wharves were taken from their winter quarters and placed in front of the Juniper Island store on Tuesday, the 29th.

One of the most interesting features in connection with a visit to Juniper is the visitors' register. Eagerly it is scanned by the cottagers and guests to see who has arrived. The book that has done duty for so many years has only a couple of pages left. No doubt the Association will see that a new one is provided before the rush begins.

Twenty-five boys from the Young Men's Christian Association, Peterborough, arrived at Sandy Point, on Tuesday, under the leadership of the Boys' Secretary, Mr. Garnet Galley; five more will come up on Saturday. It is expected that this the eighteenth annual camp will be the most successful from every standpoint.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McCabe and guide, Jacobs took a flying trip to Deer Bay last Monday, and hooked up with four lunge averaging six pounds each.

The water is still very high. Juniper Island wharf is only two inches out.

Miss Dorothy Eddis of Toronto is domociled at "Woollahra."

Mrs. F. Norish spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Lakefield.

The "Valeric" sailed proudly into Stoney Lake last Saturday, but seeing the water so high she at once saw the danger of navigating among the many tortuous channels, and decided to go no further than Mr. Denne's boathouse wharf. There she stubbornly remained until the next afternoon when she finally consented to be towed as far as the Point by the "Comet". Monday morning she yielded to the persuasions of the minnowman, and followed him all the way to Lakefield, where she is to be operated on for an obstruction in her hydro-canal.

"Britannia," the summer-home of Mr. Tarbeaux of Toronto, has been opened for the season.

Miss Gertrude Chapple has returned to Toronto after spending two weeks with Miss Pearl Brock at "Shinglehenty."

A new flag pole has been erected at Dr. Husband's cottage by Mr. J. F. Ayotte.

Mr. Charlton, the proprietor of the Kawartha Park Store, has put in a good supply of soda, gingerale and pop, in anticipation of a grand rush from the boys of the Y.M.C.A. camp. Last year their route ran in the direction of pork and beans, and it just took them about 10 minutes to clean him out. A new supply arrived next morning, however.

Mr. K. G. Loch is having the swale in front of his cottage cleared out.

Messrs. J. W. and W. J. McKinney are having great luck fishing. They each their limit of bass almost every day.

Mr. James Stubbs landed an 18-pound lunge in Mackenzie's Bay last Wednesday.

Mr. Levi Payne is doing his share up around Horseshoe Island. Scarcely a day passes that he does not get next a few beauties.

Mr. R. G. Sturgeon is making some additions to his cottage near Young's Point.

Another new cottage is being erected on Ayott's Point next east of R. G. Sturgeon. It will not be long till the Smithtown side of Clear Lake will be taken up.

German Believes British Will Hold Firm

AMSTERDAM, via London, July 2.—Discussing the war situation in an article in the Berliner Tageblatt, Major Moraht, military expert of that newspaper, says:

"On the tenacious maintenance of our war gains in the west depends our defensive in the east. It is not yet clear whether we ought to lay stress upon England's ammunitions scarcity and the growing difficulty in recruiting up till now. We can only state that the waste of ammunition on the part of the enemy is still boundless and that the losses at the front all have been replaced. We should be well advised to believe that England will succeed in reorganizing the production of ammunition and that the English armies in France will doubtless be able to maintain their present status."

REV. G. B. GREATRIX WILL PREACH

Newly Appointed Pastor of St. James' Methodist Church Will Make His Initial Appearance on Sunday Next

On Sunday next the Rev. Benjamin Greatrix will make his initial appearance before the congregation of St. James' Methodist Church, a charge to which he was recently appointed. The Rev. Mr. Greatrix has just closed a successful pastorate in Oshawa, where he has been Pastor of Simcoe Street Methodist Church since 1911. This year Rev. Mr. Greatrix was appointed chairman of the Peterborough district, a position which he is qualified to fill, having served in a similar capacity on three previous occasions. An Oshawa exchange has the following to say regarding Peterborough's latest acquisition to the ministerial forces.

Simcoe Street Church, Oshawa

If you follow the fashionable crowd that streams down the west side of Simcoe Street on a bright Sunday morning, you will find yourself

REV. B. J. GREATRIX.
Who Will Occupy the Pulpit of St. James' Methodist church for the first time on Sunday next. He succeeds the Rev. J. N. Clarry.

comfortably seated in one of Oshawa's leading churches. As you pass from the glare and distraction of the street into the cool, quiet of the great auditorium, the spirit of the place—the spirit of rest and worship cannot but take possession of you. As the peeling of the deep-toned bell in the tower dies away, while the quivering strains of the great pipe organ linger in the large recesses of the sanctuary, the surpliced choir steals quietly into the choir loft, and after them a soldily built, dark whiskered serious appearing man, gravely, slowly ascends the pulpit. This is the pastor of the church, the Reverend Benjamin Greatrix. As he stands before you, dignified yet free, commanding yet unassuming, earnest yet restrained, you instinctively feel that the Methodist parson is not of the shouting stamp. Always he is master of himself, no word rises beyond control, no hand flies wildly in the air, no foot stamps in excited passion.

Appeal to Reason.

There are some preachers in whose pulpits a vase of flowers could not remain long without being dashed to the floor in an eager moment: Mr. Greatrix is not of this type. Never does he mistake prespiration for inspiration. His passion, like that of many of the beloved preachers of the day, shows itself rather in the strength of his thought and the intense earnestness of his voice. At college he captured the prize in Systematic Theology. Splendid combination, rough touched with oratory. This promise of Benjamin Greatrix's student days has not been unfulfilled His appeal is to the reason and the heart, and reaches the intellectual and emotional alike.

"Oh! he's great," exclaimed an Anglican lady to me this afternoon. "Yes, I like to listen to him," echoed her calm, unemotional husband. It is not that Mr. Greatrix's message is always sweet and easy to take. It has been said that the modern preacher's style is something like this: "Now, if some of you people do not repent, as it were, and become converted, so to speak, you will go to a place the name of which I do not like to mention." The writer of that sentence was not speaking of the Rev. Benjamin Greatrix. The pastor of the Simcoe Street Church speaks to the point and hits from the shoulder, like a blacksmith. He strikes hard, scattering sparks in all directions. If the iron is not the shape he wants it he hits again. If he hurts you, though it is because like a kind surgeon, he endeavors to do you good. And certainly no surgeon could be more kind and large hearted than this gentleman. He loves his people sincerely—loves humanity as a whole, you cannot but discover this in the full-souled handshake which he gives you in the church, on the street or in his home. Helen Keller says that people speak to her by the way they clasp her hand. Here is a clasp in which she would find love, cordiality, sincerity, and happiness eloquently impressed.

President of Conference.

Such is the pastor, under whose leadership the Simcoe Street Methodist Church has prospered during the past four years. As a proof that he has had the good will and good wishes of his fellow-pastors, Mr. Greatrix has filled almost every office in the gift of his brethren from Secretary of the Conference to President. He has been three times delegate to the General Conference and chairman of three different districts, Cannington, Whitby and Belleville Districts. It was in his home town of Belleville in the year 1909, he became President of this Conference.

Mr. Greatrix has always been a hard worker and the charges he has held have all been left better and more prosperous than he found them. At Campbellford a new church was built while he was there; at Port Perry, extensive improvements were made, as well as at Belleville. Cannington and Trenton. So it is not surprising that great improvements have been made in the church here.

Under his pastorate the church has been remodeled, decorated, reseated, organ rebuilt and enlarged, new heating plant installed and a new Sunday School built at a cost of about $30,000. All but about $12,000 has already been paid for. During the four years he has been here $41,394 have been raised—in 1912, $6,159; 1913, $12,697 1914, $11,918, and in 1915, $10,620.

A Message From One of the Peterborough Boys at Barrieffield.

The Examiner has received the following letter from Pte. Fred Rogers, one of the Peterborough boys at Barrieffield camp:

Care Y. M. C.A.,
Barrieffield Camp,
Kingston.

Dear Sirs,—Just a few lines I hope will be of interest. This is some camp. All the Peterborough lads I know like the life, also my humble self. It isn't real hard work and it rests with each man to get on well. We are called up at 5.30 and at 6 we go for a little physical drill. At 7 or so we breakfast. Then go to such duties as ordered at 8.30. At 12 or so we sample the cook house wares again. Then at 2 we obey such orders as given until 4.30 arrives. Then you [illegible] supper, which is at 5 o'clock. The evenings you can spend in the picture theatre or Y.M.C.A. till "lights out" at 10 o'clock. I would advise all physically fit young men to join the forces for I am sure they won't regret it. Must close now.

Wishing the Examiner every success.

Yours fraternally,
Pte. Fred Rogers,
(Late 413 London Street),
Peterborough.

P.S.—Would be glad of any gifts of towels for Peterborough lads from readers. Address,

By-Law Will Be Submitted To Ratepayers on Tuesday

Utilities Commission Seek Authority to Borrow $50,000.00 for the Purpose of Purchasing Land and Erecting a Sub-Station and Waterworks Storehouse—Commissioners Make a Statement.

On Tuesday next the ratepayers will be asked to support a by-law authorizing borrowing $50,000.00 for the purpose of paying for land and for the erection and equipment of an electric central station and waterworks storehouse and office.

In connection with the above the Utilities Commission has issued the following statement over the signatures of Commissioners T. F. Matthews, W. H. Moore and R. Hicks.

"At the present time the City is receiving power from the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission at three different points in the city. This causes large expense for rent and for operating at the different places where the power is delivered, and in measuring and checking the power. In addition, the Commission has to rent premises for the waterworks yard and office on Hunter Street. Such being the case, the city should not look forward to continuing a very extravagant arrangement by reason of the several rented places, namely, at the east end of London and Murray Streets, at George Street near Sherbrooke, and on Hunter Street at Bethune. So long as the present arrangement is looked on as temporary, no steps can be taken to adopt a new system for improving and cheapening houses, shop and street lighting. All these items need improvement. If a system were adopted without a proper central plan, the lines, etc., would have to be rebuilt and a new system for improving and cheapening house, shop and street lighting. All these items need improvement. If a system were adopted without a proper central plan, the lines, etc., would have to be re-built and a new station erected as must in any event occur before long.

Hub of the Wheel.

Under these circumstances the Commission deem it clearly their duty, acting in the interests of ratepayers generally, and light and power users particularly, to ascertain the most advantageous point at which to secure a location, and on which to erect a proper station. A central position for a light and power scheme is near the corner of Aylmer and Sherbrooke Streets, and if it were selected there, the system could be re-arranged and operated with greatly increased economy. Having this end in view, the commission took steps to ensure a site in that vicinity and succeeded in doing so on the most favourable plans, namely, that very hub of the wheel from which would be radiated an electrical current to the whole city.

At present the Commission is yearly paying for rent, light and power stations, and yards and storehouse	$1,238.00
Add the cost of operating these places	4,306.00
Making	$5,540.00
The estimated cost of a new station, yard and storehouse is $50,000 and the annual sinking fund and interest on this sum would be	$4,179.00
Add cost of operation	2,485.00
	$6,664.00
Deduct	5,540.00
Debit	$1,124.00

600 Customers Involved.

For this sum the project would be placed in an eminently better position and capable of serving the 600 customers now served by the Otonabee Company. Copper wire is one of the very expensive items that has to be provided, but with a proper central station, sending out as the spokes of a wheel, many lines of wire for carrying current, a much lighter wire would be sufficient and the saving in this respect would be a large one. Mr. Fisk, our manager and Engineer, states that a central office of distribution would increase the carrying capacity of the present wire, four times. To add to the present plant so as to serve these customers, would be expensive and more effective, and would be permanent. But even if these customers were not secured, the revenue is ample, at the present rates, to fully provide for the annual expense. The Otonabee Company customers, as well as others, are steadily being added to our works, and we understand the City Council is only waiting until the Commission has the necessary facilities with which to care for the business, when it will take steps to have the whole Otonabee Company's business transferred to the city.

The Commissioners believe you will see that the securing of the new premises and the concentration of all sub-stations and yards at one point, the large operating expense will be reduced, efficiency increased and assured, and the stock and property overseen and cared for more closely. The Commissioners consider this to be good business, and the action proposed to be prudent. It is confidently recommended by the Commissioners, who have given the subject their careful and anxious consideration.

It may be added that the proposal above set out meets with the hearty support and approval of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, who are ready to give their advice and assistance in the construction of the station at only the actual cost out of pocket in relation thereto.

We therefore ask you to record your vote in favour of the by-law on Tuesday next, July 6th.

All property owners can vote on the question.—T. F. Matthews, W. H. Moore, Robert Hicks, Utilities Commissioners.

Letter From Capt. C. Arnott

Peterborough Boy With the Strathcona Horse Speaks Well of the Canadians.

Mr. Robert Arnott, 209 Rubidge street, has received the following letter form his son, Capt. Cecil Arnott, of the Strathcona Horse, now at the front:

June 14, 1915.

My Dear Parents,— Events have moved so fast that I have been unable to write to you sooner, but now we expect to have a week's rest in comfort.

At present are guns are booming and the building in which I am stopping is shaking in its very foundations. I tell you war is 'hell,' and we got all we were looking for in our first four days' turn in the first line trenches. People say that we were subjected to the heaviest bombardment that spot had received for months.

I received your letter O.K. to-day and was glad to know that everyone was well.

The terrible sights one sees here are hard to take at first, but one soon gets used to walking and climbing over dead bodies. The Canadians have been doing some very good work in this district, and our brigade was complimented personally by Gen. Alderson the other day.

The progress is naturally slow, for the Germans are putting up a good fight, but they have to go sooner or later.

I am very tired and hope that you will excuse me if I close now.

Love to all,

CECIL.

Complains of The New Oil

That Being Used on Burnham and Roger Sts. Said to be Much Inferior.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I wish, through your columns to draw the attention of the City officials to the fact that when experimenting with a cheap, second-grade oil, having a rank odour, it would show more common sense to lay same on side street having little traffic than to do so on such streets as Roger and Burnham, East City. Those in charge used Hunter Street a few seasons ago to unload some of the notorious bad oil they used at that time.

Surely one season is enough to experiment on East City roads. There are quite a number of East City residents objecting to the use of this inferior oil. We do not object to the oil used on Hunter Street. It seems a first-class oil, but this oil that was put on last week is positively not the same grade, but much inferior.

We trust that those in authority will take notice and give us fair play in the future.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the use of this valuable space.

Yours respectfully,
A. A. FOWLER.

Tea on the Battlefield.

Tea suddenly becomes one of the items of war material, and the price has gone up in the primary market about thirty per cent. with prospects of a real shortage and still further advances in price. When warring armies start buying tea for rations on the field with its attendant great waste, and the entire Russian people are suddenly deprived of vodka, and turned to tea then it can scarcely be surprising that such a fluctuation should occur in the price of tea.

Messrs. Henderson & Co's, latest monthly circular issued from Ceylon and just to hand states: "A feature of the market was the record prices paid for flavory teas. The oldest members of the tea trade in Ceylon could not remember such high prices being realised before."

JUDGE HUYCKE THREATENS TO ABOLISH THE DIVISION COURT

Municipality of Havelock Asked to Remit Amount of Fine Imposed on Campbellford Lawyer Who Was Convicted of Speeding With Judge Huycke as a Passenger—Was Endeavouring to Catch a Train for Peterborough.

Havelock, July 2—At the last sitting of the Division Court, His Honour Judge Huycke brought up the matter of the prosecution and conviction of Barrister Payne of Campbellford for speeding on the occasion of the last visit of the Judge to Havelock which alleged offence was caused in an endeavour to enable His Honour to catch a train for Peterborough. Judge Huycke interrogated Constable McNeilsoll as to the facts of the case and was told that he had not witnessed the alleged offence but that he was told by Magistrate Joyce to lay an information against Mr. Payne before Magistrate Mathison. His Honour, after being ascertained that the Village had not passed a by-law regulating autos, informed the constable that if he had been a County Constable, that he would have dismissed him, but as he was a village official only, he had no power to do so. He then related the facts of the case and stated that if Mr. Payne had defended the charge that it would have been dismissed or in event of a conviction, that it would have been set aside, and said that if the town council did not remit the amount of the fine, that he himself would reimburse Mr. Payne. He referred to the struggle Havelock had to obtain a Division Court and the fact that it was finally established here. He said that since that time the results at times had been far from satisfactory in regard to the condition of the accommodation.

A Personal Affront.

He said that from what he had been able to gather that he considered the Payne prosecution as a personal affront to himself and the Court and that he had about come to the conclusion to abolish the Court in Havelock. Whether the Payne case was a matter of vindictiveness to Mr. Payne or to himself mattered little, and finally asked Reeve Kindred if he had any explanation to make as to why the Court should not be done away with.

Reeve Kindred, in reply, assured His Honour that he regretter the affair very much, and that it was through no feeling of ill will towards him, and as the head of the Municipality, tendered him an apology.

His Honour that he regretted the at to have the fine remitted and to have such other representations made to him as he thought proper to remedy such a travesty on justice, which, he added, would not have happened in any other place under heaven, and which was a disgrace to any community.

Orange Lodge Excursion Was a Huge Success

Over Two Hundred People Were Turned Away—List of Prizewinners

One of the most successful excursions ever held in the history of Nassau Orange Lodge, No. 487, was accounted for yesterday. So large was the demand for accommodation on both the steamers "Geneva" and "Manita" that it was found necessary to turn at least two hundred people away. The boats pulled away from Wolf Street Wharf about eight o'clock and a delightful run was made to South Beach, where an interesting programme of sports was run off. Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and Mr. R. J. Soden opened the sporting events with appropriate speeches. Considerable interest centred upon the largest family on the grounds which qualified for a prize donated by Ald. J. J. Duffus, of five dollars for the first five children, and one dollar for each child over this number. This prize which amounted to fourteen dollars, went to the family of Mr. A. DeLong, consisting of fourteen members.

OH YOU HOLIDAY!

Old Probs. showed a master hand yesterday in the German national game of [illegible] sprinkled [illegible], an ardent sun and a few degrees of humidity lured or forced hundreds of the younger set into the open, and especially to the favourite water haunts. And just when the afternoon was fairest, when the shadows were broadening along the shore, a gentle wind stirring up ripples that gaily chased each other this way and that, when there was a general movement to gather round the dainty hampers and boxes prepared so carefully, almost fastidiously, at that inopportune moment came the deluge.

Up the river and up the canal the havoc was considerable, but down the river it was beyond description. Old Probs. must have shook his sides at the "thoroughness" of his work. eally there were many amusing spectacles compared with which the movies were tame. When the rain came many of the canoeists started to [illegible] the shore, and the shelter of upturned canoes; not a few debated the futility of jumping into the river to get out of the rain. It was a holiday become a tragedy. White linen dresses, shoes, stockings, etcetera, what a bedraggled lot of rags they soon appeared. And youths had fared forth smart, and the last word in white ducks or flannels, "sneakers," outing shirts—Old Probs. shut his eyes to the desolation. Curls that had been [illegible] straightened themselves out in full confession. But why continue the morbid recital The rain came at 5 p.m. and spent itself about eight. Three hours under the tall trees and the improvised and insufficient shelters. This morning, on the car, Myrtle was herself again, and declared that "caught in the rain" was a sure enough comedy. It was one long laugh for her group and she looked none the worse of the dripping.

"Did you ever see such a mess as Katheryn? I laughed till I was sore at her. I hope she didn't mind it. She's a cheerful soul."

Shortly after dinner to-day, Katheryn was still laughing. "Wasn't Myrtle a sight? In fact we were all some spectacle. And now that I recall it there wasn't the suggestion of a grouch."

AT THE TOMB OF THE LUSITANIA

LONDON, July 2. — "Something like a panic sprang up aboard as we passed over the Lusitania's grave," said H. M. Enright, one of the passengers on the St. Paul, which arrived 24 hours late on account of the fog.

"Numbers of men and women broke down, some praying, while others threw flowers into the water. Soon after we met a fog and crawled along at three knots an hour, the absolute prey of any German submarine. Saturday night nobody went to bed. Saloon passengers, with rugs and cushions, slept on deck, while the second and third class passengers tramped the decks until dawn. The tension was great during the night, and numbers of women became hysterical, their fright quickly spreading.

"Two hundred miles from Liverpool we were challenged by the British, who wanted to know our name and destination. Several Americans had trouble with their passports at Liverpool because photographs were omitted, but none were detained. The captain said that as three American passengers were kept aboard four days after landing on the last voyage the company was determined that there would be no more irregular passports, if it was possible to prevent it."

Granville Baker described the voyage as "the pleasantest rest cure I ever had, after one of the most strenuous times of my life. Nevertheless, I enjoyed every moment of my trip. I was overwhelmed with kindness everywhere, and hope to return soon."

JUST sixteen miles north of the Mexican Boundary, San Diego is holding an exhibition which declines to be overshadowed by San Francisco. It illustrates the historical development of the Pacific Coast, not only by means of exhibits, but also in its architecture which reproduces the features of the beautiful old mission built by the colonizing priests of pioneering days. These priests both preached and practised the doctrine of irrigation as applied to agriculture, and the San Diego Exhibition is therefore making a special display of all methods of intensive cultivation of the soil. The exhibition has already been a remarkable success, and at the same time is [illegible] the Pacific Coast in connection with this exhibition are making round trips which bring them back through Canada and enable them to see the great three million acre irrigation project of the C. CAMPBELLFORD DECLARED WINNERS WHEN GAME WAS CALLED IN THIRD QUARTER

The Score Stood 11 to 6 in Favour of the Visitors in Lacrosse Game Yesterday When It Had to be Called on Account of the Rain.

Campbellford was awarded the decision over the Petes yesterday afternoon in their schedule game at Riverside park when, owing to the heavy rain the game had to be called in the third quarter, with the score standing 11 to 6 in favour of the visitors.

A special train from Campbellford brought a couple of hundred fans to support their team. Judging by their enthusiasm they were, most of them, ready to help the referee handle the game as well. Although there was plenty of room for five times as many more people in the grand stands, every close decision of the refree brought the Campbellford followers into the field. Although they have a very fine bunch of players, and on their showing yesterday a better team than Peterborough, the same cannot be said of their following from the home town. If every visiting team brought an excursion of people, and every game was interrupted like that of yesterday, lacrosse in Peterborough would soon lose those followers who want to see a game purely for the sport itself.

The game, as an exhibition was the best game seen here this season. The visitors have not lost a game so far this season and the Petes realized that to stay in the running they must take a fall out of their opponents. The first quarter was really good lacrosse with the score ending for the period 1 to 1. The Petes had the most of the play and showed some nice stickhandling, but the defence of the visitors was tight. Roe put Campbellford in the lead at the beginning when he beat Gilman from close in, but it did not take the locals long to even up. Some nice passing from the face-off, and a relay to Tedd, who was inside the visitors' defence, tied the game up for the period.

Campbellford took the lead again soon after the beginning of the second quarter, when Nesbitt scored. He was followed by Roe for the third counter, putting them two to the good. The Petes were missing some nice chances to score, with a little hard luck on their side, but Robertson managed to notch another. Roe fattened his average again and Robertson, on a pass from Hamilton, made the margin the same. Just as the gong was being run, Smith put Campbellford two goals to the good, the held time score standing 5 to 3 in favour of the visitors.

Owing to the absence of the referee the game was not started until 3.45 p.m., and at the half it looked as though the rain was about to start at any time. Before the third quarter was finished it was raining, but the game was continued until the gong sounded for the intermission, when it was awarded to Campbellford by the score of 11 to 6.

A very disgusting incident occurred in the third quarter when the Campbellford goal umpire pulled off a steal behind the Peterborough nets. Crough was close enough to be certain the rubber went behind the net and was showing the Campbellford man and the refree where it went. The visitor took a couple of passes at Crough, who decided to retaliate on his own account, with the result that the umpire got a good trouncing. What was the unfortunate part the fracas, as far as the locals' chances for a win were concerned, came when Crough was for some reason banished for the remainder of the game by the referee. Although the Campbellford goal umpire was banished as well, he seemed satisfied that he had made things easier for his team. As a souvenir of his steal he had a decorated eye to take home with him.

When the dispute over the goal arose the Campbellford crowd was worked up to a state of frenzied excitement. The grand stands were almost deserted excepting for the few Peterborough spectators and some Campbellford ladies, and it looked as though the field would not be cleared soon enough to finish the game before the rain. A few cooler heads succeeded in quelling the disturbance and the crowd was coaxed to the side lines.

The line-ups were as follows:

Campbellford —J. Farrell, P. Shannon, Thomas, Montgomery, Holmes, V. Farrell, Welsh, Nesbitt, Roe, Smith.

Peterborough—Gilman, Hatton, Dillon, Mein, H. Dunsford, McCoy, Robertson, Crough, Todd, Hamilton.

Hallelujah Wedding On Wednesday Night

A hallelujah wedding was celebrated at the Salvation Army Temple on Wednesday night when Bandsman Wm. Bradley was united in marriage to ex-Capt. Annewald, late of England. Adjt. McElhiney officiated. Short speeches, reminiscent and congratulatory, were delivered by Mrs. Ensign Mardall, sister of the bride, Band Secretary Ernie Hensley on behalf of the band, Mrs. Major Jennings, Montreal, Mrs. Hedge on behalf of the songsters. The wedding banquet followed, a feature of which was that every person present received a piece of the bridal cake. A fern pot, fern and doiley were presented to the bride by Mrs. McElhiney on behalf of the Songsters. Fire Chief Howard made a brief address.

Halts Miles Of Freight

NEW YORK, July 2.—The new Russian-American liner Czaritza, in from Archangel, reported that the place was jammed with all sorts of freight, including cotton and lumber, stretched for miles beyond the city limits. This had been put aside to allow the single-tracked railroad to transport munitions to the interior. Some of the mighty piles of freight had been held up since last fall.

Many of the original crew of the Charita were mustered into the service of the army and navy of Russia. The vessel came here short handed. There was no barber aboard and several American passengers who did not shave themselves had a twelve-day growth of beard. The Czarita will find a barber here for the return trip. She will take back a big cargo of war supplies.

A CONTENTED MIND.

"Oh, yes, we have plenty of ups and downs!" said a cheery mother, whom someone congratulated on her large and happy family.

"There has always been many needs, and not an over-supply of means, but we never cried over anything we could laugh ourselves out of, and somebody was sure to bring up the funny side of every awkward situation.

We did not always have a feast on the table, but we had wholesome fun around it."

Ah, yes! It is the point of view that decides for most of us whether our lives shall be sunny or gloomy. There is not so much difference in the happenings that come to us all as there is in the way in which we look at them.

Heaps of little ills which we moan and groan over would disappear with a hearty laugh.

Compared with India's 244,000,000 dark-skinned natives there are only about 200,000 white persons, scattered all over that country.

T.A.S. PICNIC WAS A SUCCESS IN SPITE OF WEATHER MAN

Rain Came a Little Too Soon But Executive Say Returns Are Well Up to the Usual Mark—Pavilion Proved Adequate Shelter.

"Yesterday's rain was a blessing, and it would be very ungrateful to regard it any other way," said Mr. M. J. Maher, chairman of the amalgamated Total Abstinence Societies. "It kept at home many of those who were waiting until the late afternoon to attend T.A.S. picnic, but we have other things than picnics to consider. At that our gross receipts are higher than last year and we have every reason to be thankful. The excursion is becoming more and more popular every year and this rain should be a good advertisement for next year's picnic."

Had the rain waited until later in the evening yesterday's picnic would have broken all previous records. As it is the results are reported most gratifying. From the middle of the morning the fleet of three steamers carried crowds that gradually grew in numbers until the afternoon when the south bound street cars were literally packed. The objective was continued riverwards until about four o'clock, when storm clouds began to loom above the western horizon and slowly moved up the sky in solid banks. Hundreds who waited for the cooler part of the day to enjoy the river trip to the park were thus held at hor

The T.A.S. committees worked smoothly and effectively and a big attendance was rolled up before the rain came. Enthusiasm was noticed on every hand and the committee workers may feel well satisfied with the fruits of their efforts. And not the least was His Lordship Bishop O'Brien who, 'tis said, was one of the last to leave the park, returning by automobile. It is related that he was stalled several hours when his car found a soft spot in the road, where it remained until a team of horses hitched to the front axle dragged it to a firmer surface. A trifling incident of that nature is a mere incident; to His Lordship's ardor for total abstinence.

The results of the races which were run off before the rain were as follows:

Boys, 6 and Under—1, H. Archambault; 2, B. Clancy; 3, Jim Brooks.

Girls, 6 and Under—1, E. Archambault; 2, M. Butler; 3, Peter O'Brien.

Largest Families.

The prizes to the parents of the largest families on the grounds were awarded in the following order: Albert Wolff, H. Archambault, L. Lebar, John McCabe, Tom Jones, Geo. Ahearn, Luke Milaney, M. Hanrahan, James Hickey.

Rain Ended Supper.

About two hundred of the visitors had reached various stages of supper when the first drops pattered on the boards. The torrent followed close behind. The diners found a leaky refuge under the tables, where they remained until someone discovered the pavilion had not reached the standing-room-only stage.

The entertainment feature was a successful novelty. The Jones children from the Red Mill, the Murty Brothers and others, provided a good bill. Mr. Sam Houlihan was in charge of this committee, receiving it at the last minute. His work made a hit and provided a pleasing side attraction.

SHOP-LIFTER IS FINED

Mrs. Beverley Hunt has to Pay $20 and Costs

Mrs. Beverley Hunt, who got her trial this morning on a charge of shoplifting was found guilty and fined $20 and costs, amounting to $20 in all.

Mrs. Hunt, who was in the city last week, a follower of the Pierson Show, was arrested last Friday afternoon, and in her possession was a purse, which was reported missing from the store of Robert Fair & Co. In her company was a man and he was also arrested and charged with vagrancy. They were both remanded until this morning but as the police did not have anything against him he was discharged. Two other followers of the show were arrested on Friday also, and let go this morning.

When Mrs. Hunt came up for trial last Saturday morning she entered a plea of guilty but after consulting her solicitor during the week, Mr. Widdifield of Messrs. Gordon & Widdifield, her plea was changed this morning to not guilty.

Detective Newhall was called as the first witness for the prosecution. He told how he had been on duty on George street on Thursday and Friday of last week, and noticed Mrs. Hunt and her companion going into the store of Robert Fair & Company on both days. When Mr. Fair reported the loss of the purse and the detective got a description he watched for it. On Friday afternoon he saw Mrs. Hunt on George street and she had the purse with her. She was arrested and at the police station she showed a receipt for it, which was a Cressman billhead. She later explained to him that she had persuaded someone in Cressman's to give her a recipt as the manager of the show had told her to get a receipt for everything as he had been informed by a detective that there was some shoplifting going on, and she was blamed for it.

Miss Mary Patterson saleslady from Robert Fair's store, was next called, and told how she had missed the purse a few minutes after Mrs. Hunt and the man left the store on Thursday afternoon. On Friday Mrs. Hunt returned with a pair of white gloves, which she wanted to change, explaining that she had bought the gloves there. Miss Patterson was quite sure the gloves were not bought there although they were Robert Fair & Company's stock. She made the change, and retained the pair which she got, and they were produced in court this morning.

After this evidence was in, in behalf of his client, Mr. Widdifield decided to plead guilty, asking that the Magistrate hear what the Police Matron had to say about the prisoner. He decided to do so upon the recommendation of the Crown Attorney, for the mercy of the court. At 3 p.m., the magistrate passed judgment, fining the accused $20 and costs of $10.

WEDDING BELLS

GRAHAM—HURLBURT.

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Dr. R. W. and Mrs. Hurlburt, Mitchell, on June 29th, at 2.30 p.m., when their daughter, Mabel M., was married to Mr. Harland E. Graham, B.A., of Toronto, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties, the Rev. J. W. Baird officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham left on the 3.44 train for Kingston and the Thousand Islands, and on their return will reside at 2469 Queen street east (Balmy Beach), Toronto.

UDY—MITCHELL.

A quet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the George Street Methodist parsonage on Wednesday, June 30th, Rev. R. G. Peever officiating, when Miss Lydia Annie Mitchell, of Manvers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mitchell, was united in matrimony to Mr. Harry Udy of Peterborough. The young couple were unattended. The bride was attired in a pretty dress of embroidery crepe. She wore a bridal veil, crowned with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Udy left on the 9 o'clock train for western points, the bride wearing a navy blue travelling suit with hat to match. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

HAMMOND—MANN.

The marriage was solemnized yesterday, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. R. Mann, Lakeview Farm, Smith, of Sadie Lucinda, to Mr. Albert E. Hammond, of Atwood, Ontario, son of the late Mr. Edward Hammond. The officiating minister was the Rev. J. R. Webb, of the Murray St. Baptist Church, of Peterborough. The bride's sister, Miss Ruth Mann, played the wedding march from "Lohengrin," Miss Blanche Mann singing "Oh Fair, Oh Sweet and Holy." The ceremony took place in the prettily decorated drawing rooms under an arch of flowers and ferns. The bride wore a wedding gown of white silk crepe, and a conventional bridal veil, carrying white roses and lilies of the valley. The bride's sister, Miss Martha Mann, was bridesmaid, wore a dress of blue silk crepe, and the two little flower girls were Miss Margaret Mann and Miss Frances Moore, who carried baskets of orchids. After the wedding Breakfast, which was served from tables decorated with orchids and roses, Mr. and Mrs. Hammond left on their honeymoon trip, the bride travelling in a tailored suit of navy blue Gabardine, with a smartly tailored hat to match.

ELLIOT'S

KEEP HISTORY STRAIGHT.

The German press reminds the world on the anniversary of the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife at Sarajevo that Serbia's protection of the assassins precipitated the world war.— Berlin wireless, "via Sayville."

The world needs no reminder of the crime of Sarajevo. That of the "German press" is valuable, however, in furnishing opportunity to emphasize anew the facts in the case.

"Serbia's protection of the assassins" did not bring on the war, for Serbia did not protect the assassins. Prinsep and his fellow conspirators were not Serbians. They were subjects of Austria-Hungary, were arrested in Austria-Hungary at the scene of the crime, were tried and convicted by an Austro-Hungarian court. Serbia had no more to do with the case than the United States had.

Four of the conspirators were hanged, one was sentenced to imprisonment for life. Gavrio Prinsep, who fired the shot that killed the Archduke, confessed the crime and glorified in it, and yet by some quirk of fate not explained, unless on the theory that he was the tool of the others, escaped with sentence of imprisonment for twenty years. If any "protection" was accorded to Prinsep or the several other conspirators it came from the Austro-Hungarian trial court.

The crime of Sarajevo did not precipitate the world war. It was seized upon by the German government as an excuse for inducing the government of Austria-Hungary to send to Serbia an ultimatum which Germany knew full well Serbia could not accept—and all because the Kaiser and the German Military Staff decided that the moment had arrived for them to precipitate the war, long prepared for, which was to establish over Europe and the world a Teutonic hegemony.

This is the plain truth history. — New York World.

GERMAN CRUISER BADLY DAMAGED--FORCED ASHORE

Official Report From Petrograd Regarding Thursday Night's Naval Engagement in the Baltic Sea—Losses Were Insignificant.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., July 3.—The following is the official report from Petrograd regarding Thursday night's naval action in the Baltic Sea:

A German cruiser was badly damaged and forced ashore on the Island of Gothland in Thursday night's naval engagement in the Baltic. Our losses were insignificant.

It is believed here that the German mine-layer sent ashore on Gothland was the "cruiser" mentioned in Petrograd despatches.

The Russians closed in upon the German horpedo boats and inflicted heavy damage.

The mine-layer "Albatross" was unable to escape because of her slow speed. Her survivors, including 71 wounded, were immediately interned at Roma, by the Swedish authorities on Gotha. Her head, including the captain, were buried in one large grave.

Reports from Stockholm that Russian destroyers continued the pursuit into Swedish waters, and that a protest undoubtedly would be lodged with the Russian Government.

"The Russians," said a Gothland despatch to-day, "are reported to be bringing up other naval units. It is expected that the engagement will be resumed."

"Secret" In Becker Case

Sam Schepps Says He Will Tell Governor If Asked.

NEW YORK, July 23—Sam Schepps, the so-called gentleman gambler upon whom the State relied during the first trial of Becker to corroborate the testimony of Jack Rose, Harry Valkon and Bridgie Webber, the three informers, was quoted as saying that he held "the secret in the Becker case," and would tell Governor Whitman should the governor ask him to.

"I hold the secret of the Becker case and I will tell the Governor if he asks me for it," Schepps was quoted as saying. "Whitman can get it for the asking. The story is so clear anyone will believe it; but as for proof, say, do you want that I shall go so far as to bring Becker back to Broadway and me take his place in the electric chair? I hung myself enough in this case and there is nothing doing any more."

The secret to which Scheppe was quoted as having referred is believed to be what was said at a recent meeting between Mrs. Charles Becker and Jack Rose in Schepps' jewellery store.

ITALIANS ADVANCE MID SNOW AND HAIL STORMS IN TYROL

Special to the Examiner.

UDINE, via Paris, July 3.—The Italian advance in the Tyrol is seriously hindered by the continued bad weather, which is exceptional in midsummer. The mountaineers do not recall a season when there has been so much snow on the heights on July 1. The mountain streams, usually dry at the end of June, are now deep and almost impassable.

The Italian troops are encountering snowstorms and thick fogs, which interfere with long range firing. Hailstones beat down on the soldiers Thursday in parts of the Tyrol, where the advance upward is still in progress.

More elaborate Austrian defences are confronting the invading forces. The Austrian trenches are protected by wide ditches and wire entanglements, while at other places pits have been dug and covered with branches of trees and earth, with spikes at the bottom. Into these infantry in the course of a charge are in danger of falling. The Italians, therefore, are obliged to advance slowly and with extreme caution.

Among the most effective of the Italian light troops are customs or finance guards, whose duties heretofore have kept them on the watch for mountain smugglers. These guards are now utilized as scouts and many of their exploits are being related along the front, some even being mentioned in the orders of the day. On one occasion four of these guards crawled close to the Austrian outposts and came into possession of information of great value to the Italian commanders. All refused rewards for this service.

EXPLOSION WAS DUE TO A BOMB PLACED BY A CRANK

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Excitement over the explosion in the Senate wing settled down to-day when a statement was made by officials. The only damage was in the reception room, and it was estimated to-day that a couple of thousand dollars would replace the shattered furnishings.

"The explosion was due in my opinion," said Superintendent Woods to-day, "to a bomb placed by a crank. Just what his motive was must be a mystery until we can arrest him.

"Six months ago a man writing from St. Louis to Vice-President Marshall declared that if certain legislation was not passed a bomb would be exploded in the building. We will now endeavour to find out whether there was any connection between that letter and this explosion."

ARMS AND LEGS WANTED IN RUSSIA

PITTSBURG, July 3—That there is a great shortage of artificial limbs in the European countries at war has been verified by the Foreign Trade Commission of Pittsburg which has an inquiry from Russia for 50,000 artificial legs and arms. The inquiry was referred to Pittsburg manufacturers, who communicated by cable with officials of the Foreign War Office.

The Foreign Trade Commission was notified early in June by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in Washington that there was a large market in Europe for artificial limbs. An investigation begun at once, resulted in the inquiry received.

WHY YOUNG GIRLS GROW PALE AND WEAK

The Blood Supply is Deficient and Unless the Trouble is Remedied Consumption May Follow.

When girls grow weak, pale and miserable, then is the time for parents to take prompt steps. Delay fears danger—perhaps consumption. The girl in her teens cannot develop into a happy, robust woman without an abundant supply of rich, red blood in her veins. It is the lack of this good blood that is the great trouble with nine girls out of every ten. They grow weak and depressed; lose their appetite, are breathless after the slightest exertion and suffer from headaches and backaches. When girls are in this condition there is no medicine can compare with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the use of these Pills there is splendid vigorous health, with glowing cheeks and sparkling eyes, for every unhappy fragile girl who is struggling on to womanhood in a wretched state of health. This is why thousands of girls and women, now robust and attractive, are constantly recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to their suffering sex. Miss Edith Brousseau, Savona, B.C., says: "At the age of fourteen I became very anaemic. I was as pale as a ghost, suffered from headaches, severe palpitation of the heart at the slightest exertion. I had little or no appetite and seemed to be drifting into a decline. I was attending high school in Vancouver at the time, and the doctor advised me to stop. I did so and took his treatment for some time, but it did no help me in the least. Upon the advice of a friend I began aking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in a very short time they gave me back complete health and enabled me to resume my studies. I have enjoyed the best of health since, and owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

There Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail, post paid, at 0 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OUR SERIAL STORY PAGE

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

SERIAL—Wednesday—ANE.

He set his umbrella again' the corral fence and faced Shorty with his hands held up like the way prize-fighters stand to have their pictures took. Shorty looked at him open-eyed for a minute, and then he put up his knife and fetched Isaac a slap alongside the jaw. "You get a bigger fool every day," sez he.

Isaac squinted up his eyes back behind his spectacles, peeled his lip back from his upper teeth, and sailed into Shorty. It was the funniest fight I ever saw, but it was solemn, too. At first Shorty tried to keep from hurtin' Isaac, but Isaac was taller than he was, and he blocked off with his open hands, kicked, and scratched, until finally Shorty had to settle down to real scrappin'. Isaac had been with us close to a year, playin' out o' doors most all the time, eatin' good food, and takin' treatment from the hermit, and we hadn't caught him adjustin' his organs or tryin' to boss his own lungs for months; but still, we hadn't realized how he had took on quality until he started in to dancin' around Shorty.

Little Connie was beside himself at first, for it was plain to see that he didn't want to hook on to Shorty; but after a bit he couldn't stand it any longer and he rushed in and gave Shorty a purty fair pinch. After that Shorty had to be as busy with his feet as with his hands, and he began to swing at Isaac in earnest. He caught him a full right swing under the arm and knocked him again' the corral with a thump. Isaac gave a grunt, and his face screwed up in pain, but his hand had flopped gain' his umbrell, and he picked it up and started for Shorty with a hysterical gurgle. He hit him and prodded him and took him so by surprise that he gave way, tripped over his own saddle and went down on his back.

Isaac grabbed up his terrier and stepped back, pantin' but triumphant. "Now," sez he, "you're licked and you got to let that calf alone—but I'll pay for the star anyway."

Shorty jumped to his feet and started for Isaac, but Red grabbed him by the arm and swung him around. "What's the matter with you, Irwin?" sez Red. "Didn't you just hear the gentleman say you were licked? How many times do you expect him to lick you in one evenin'?"

"Let me go," sez Shorty. "I can lick him with one hand tied behind me and both feet in a sack."

We were laughin' as silent as possible, but Shorty was consid'able mad and he'd probably have handled Isaac purty rought if Mex hadn't called out just as Shorty broke away from Red, "Is this here anything like the silver star which the calf et?"

Shorty stopped and looked at it. "Where did you get it?" sez he.

"Why, I was the last one through the thicket this evenin' and saw it lyin' on the path and leaned over and picked it up, thinkin' it might be of some value to someone. Mebbe you could use it in place of the one Madame et."

"You knew all the time that this was the star I'd lost," sez Shorty. "Why didn't ya say somethin' about it?"

"I didn't know you'd lost any silver stars," 'sez Mex. "You explained a while back that you intended to open the calf and get out a star you had cached away in him; but I knew it couldn't be this star you were talkin' about because I had this star in my pocket when you took off your bridle before supper."

"Keepin' your mouth closed at the wrong time is one way to start trouble," growled Shorty, who was coolin 'off rapid.

"Snarlin' about the manner in which a favor is bestowed, is one way to get out o' sayin' thank ya," pretched Mex.

Shorty picked up his bridle to see how the star had worked loose, and we none of us felt comfortable. It's hard to tell just what it might have drifted into, if little Connie hadn't had a dog inspiration. He wriggled down out of Isaac's arms and, waggin' his tail in a way to show he was sorry for havin' done what he still felt had been his duty, and lickin' his nose to indicate that he would think mighty well of a few words about bygones bein' bygones, he sidled up to Shorty and looked up at him questionin'. Now, Shorty had never took any notice of Connie when anyone else was around, but the little pup used to favour him a shade more'n he did even Red, and he was a mighty knowin' and a mighty self-respectin' little pup, too.

In about a minute, Shorty stooped down and patted the little feller right encourgin' and sez: "You're all right, Connie, da'gone ya!!"

"I should feel greatly gratified if you would shake hands with me," sez Isaac, with the friendliest sort of a grin on his homely face.

"I don't take much stock in shakin' hands," sez Shorty, "but if you got to see a rainbow before you're sure the storm is over, why, put 'er there."

The pressure began to lift rapid when they clasped hands, and Phil McLaughlin had the gall to say: "Now, Shorty, if you'll just hug the umbrella and kiss Madame on the brow, Red'll sing a hymn and I'll pass the hat."

CHAPTER XXVI.
BALDY HAGUS MAKES CONFESSION.

We didn't none of us care much for the name of Jennyveve, which was the name Mrs. Cooper had give to the new baby, and she didn't like to have her called Jenny; so we had all studied it over and agreed on the name of Sunshine, and we told both the parent Coopers that if they didn't like that name they were welcome to keep perfectly still about it for that was the name we intended to call that baby.

She was all plumped up with dimples, and when Mrs. Cooper'd spread a soogun on the floor she would roll around on it and have a purty fair time; but we all agreed that it must be mighty monotonous, as the boy infant was able to run around outdoors now, and he didn't take kindly to bein' wooled about as long as Sunshine wanted to 'keep it up, so we felt that somethin' ort to be did.

Well, the first time Sunshine had set eyes on Connie, she was crazy for him and we had all expected Isaac to turn over the pup pronto; but Isaac didn't have any such idees in his head. He had prepared for the child's future by givin' her a spellin'-book, and he didn't intend to turn over any more property to her until she was able to show some appreciation of what he had already done. We made up pool to buy Connie off Isaac and we offered him the price of a hoss and saddle for that little bunch o' sausage-beef; but dog-lovin' is one disease that money won't cure, and Isaac only got indignant.

Shorty had been the most wrathy of all at Isaac for not lettin' Sunshine have the sky-blue terrier, but that evenin' after the scrap when we gathered in the bunk-shack and Red began runnin' up the offer to Isaac the same as usual, Shorty came out flatfooted and called Red a soulless brute to think that any man would part with a dog like Connie for money.

After they'd quarrelled for a quarter of an hour, Red sez: "Well, what we need on this place is a regular watch-dog. Connie is the best ever, in his way, but he spends all of his time with Mr. Foster, and he don't da any prowlin' to speak of. He hunts varmints in his class, and he's got courage; but what we need is a dog who'll spend his nights in prowlin': so if Panther Emmons ever pays us another call, he'll get the right sort of a welcome."

Some o' the boys thought that such a dog would be a good thing, but some thought he might mistake friends for foes and get us into a mass. In the end, however, Red made Shorty join him, and they rode off takin' what money they happened to have hid out.

They came back just as we were gettin' ready to eat breakfast and they looked as though they had been enjoyin' a purty serious sort of a night. Their eyes were bleary, their faces were drawn, and they sat their ponies like tired men; but the queer item in their outfit was a dog which they led between 'em, a rope goin' to the horn of each o' their saddles, and the dog's jaws also tied. It was the meanest-lookin' dog ever I saw, a sort of a liver-brindle with sour eyes, and now he was covered with dust and his mouth was drippin' with foam.

"What are you doin' to the poor dog?" asked Isaac, going towards the brute.

"We're just playin' games with him, Mr. Foster," sez Red; "but you'd better not go too near him, for the only way he likes strangers is raw."

Red and Shorty got off their ponies and tied the dog between two trees so that about all he could do was roll his eyes and growl. "That won't make a good pet for Sunshine, Red," sez Phil McLaughlin.

"That ain't what he's for," sez Red. "This here is a custom-made dog, he was made to order by an old codger down on the Sweetwater, and he fills the bill. I've had my eye on him for months, but money couldn't buy him. His mammy was a large size greyhound and his sire was a fightin' bulldog, and he never was licked in his life! Look at his teeth—look at his chest, look at his legs! He can get where he starts, cut the throat of whatever it is he dont' like, and get back where he started from while an ordinary dog would be stretchin' himself and shakin' his fleas loose."

"How did you get hold of him?" sez Missourie.

"By bog-tyin' him first," sez Red.

"I mean, did you steal him?"

BUILDING UP THE CHILD'S HEALTH

A quite simple ailment attacking a child already out of health or "below par," as we say, may—and frequently does—have results out of all proportions in seriousness to its specific description. For instance, quite a mild cold in the head, which a healthy child would throw off almost at once, suffering no more than a day or two's discomfort, may easily lead on to bronchitis, pneumonia or other chest troubles, when the little subject is already in a weakened condition. This is a matter of common knowledge, and the kindred fact that the germ of any ailment, from that of the common cold onward, will find a happy hunting ground in the system, already weakened from various causes, must also be insisted upon. It has a really important bearing upon the health and development of children, especially in the quite early years of life—up till the fifth birthday certainly—when any illness has far more untowards results than at a later period.

For this reason the most ordinary cold should not be ignored, nor those disturbances of the digestice and other organs, small in themselves, but potent for harm, which are such common occurrences with little children. It is because such apparently insignificant conditions are ignored that we find children going from one cold to another, or catching every illness which may be about, with consequent check, often serious, in their growth and development, and only too often the sowing of the seeds of future delicacy.

Measles, for instance, which should be almost an innocuous ailment to children after their fifth birthday, provided proper care and precautions against cold are taken, especially in the early stages, frequently leaves a child in a more or less "run down" condition in which it will quickly catch other ailments, colds, and so on. A really bad cold, or two or three simple ones following quickly on each other's heels, will have the same resuk, and in cases of children of from twelve to fifteen, who are working hard at school and growing very fast into the bargain, even one cold is enough to leave this debilitated condition, which may speedily change to a source of real danger, behind it.

Now, of course, the main idea is to "feed up" the little patient. And it is a right one in theory; though unfortunately not always so happy in results in practice. And for the reason that the digestive apparatus and the organs which have the work of eliminating the waste products of food which has been consumed—the "ashes" left from the "burning" of the food whereby alone it fulfils is functions just as the combustion of the fuel in a steam engine alone makes it go—are weakened and out of condition as well as the rest of the body.

The result then, of ordinary "feeding up" which means simply the forcing of an extra amount of food on the patient — is simply to overtax these already weakened organs. The result is that they are even less able to cope with their work than before and the certain consequences is that even less nourishment is assimilated from the food, and the very probable one in further upset of the digestion in one or other of its phases.

And this brings one to an important fact which it would be well for every one in charge of children — and grown-ups, too, for the matter of that—to remember that it is the amount of food which is assimilated and not that which is only swallowed, which is a vehicle of strength and good.

Such considerations naturally bear more than the cases of little children than mere babies. With these the feeding question must be primarily one of regularity, and it is virtually certain that any extra food, whether in quantity or in richness of quality, will cause a distinct upset. With them, therefore some specialized preparation recommended by the doctor must be relied upon when illness has caused weakness or other untoward conditions, and each case is an individual one which must be individually treated.

Kidney Trouble?

The waste material which the Kidneys are intended to remove from the blood, if allowed to accumulate in the system, poison the blood and thus produce deleterious effects.

If from over-work, exposure to cold, or some local injury, the kidneys become congested or inflamed and cannot perform their functions, the system becomes filled with uric poisons.

Whenever a dull, heavy pain is felt over the region of the kidneys for any length of time, accompanied by a sallow complexion, loss of appetite, decrease of weight, and a puffy condition under the eyes and in the ankles, a chronic inflammation of the kidneys must be suspected, and if not relieved promptly chronic Bright's Disease will certainly develop.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt, sold everywhere at 25c and 60c which is a Diuretic as well as an Aperient, will carry out of the system the poisonous material which the kidneys cannot get rid of, and will relieve the congestion of the kidneys.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

The Health Habit.—As a matter of fact, any human being that is properly educated in the present day knowledge of sanitation and diet, should contract the health habit at a very early age and continue it throughout a very long life. Our public schools teach the children many things about caring for themselves and laws of cleanliness that were unknown to even the well educated of 50 years ago. It is only during recent years that the doctors themselves have known the source of typhoid infection and that the common housefly was largely responsible for spreading the disease. It is only during recent years that they have known the source of malaria and cholera as well as many other infectious diseases and that all of them are preventable.

The department of agriculture at Washington, has promptly taken advantage of the knowledge and published bulletins, free for asking, that will enable the farmer of the U. S. to destroy the troublesome fly pest and permanently rid the community of the danger at a cost of less than was formerly spent for fly nets for the horses and screens for the houses. When we know the cause, let us get the habit of removing it. Fly nets for horses and screens for houses are a poor substitute for a flyless home.

The poor cow that is tethered in the meadow is not protected by nets and the legs of the work horses suffer intensely. Why not do away with the fly? It's easy when you know how and the government has spent many thousands of dollars in order to intelligently tell you how. A postal card request to the department will give you full directions.

After you once experience the blessing of freedom from flies you will join forces with your neighbours and kill the mosquitoes. With these two pests out of the way and a supply of pure drinking water available, typhoid and malaria will soon disappear.

By the use of more fresh, uncooked foods, such as fruits, vegetables and nuts, there will be less constipation and therefore, less calomel used and in time pyorrhea will disappear, rheumatism will be less frequent and more easily controlled. Get the health habit by all means, the Home Health Club will help you.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

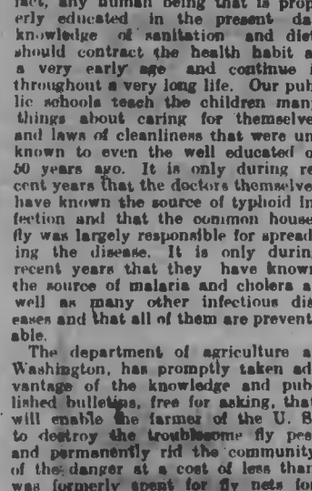
SMART AND PRACTICAL.

By Anabel Worthington.



Fortunately there is such a thing as a practical shirt waist which is at the same time smart looking. The idea is carried out in the blouse illustrated. It is as plain in construction and character as it can be, yet it has smart lines and novel features. The yoke, which is cut in one with the sleeve, is deeper than usual, making the lower part of necessity very short. Then the striped material is used effectively.

For the longer sleeve a deep cuff is provided, or sleeve section in the shape of a cuff. However, the short sleeve is going to be very much worn this season, and to make the waist as illustrated in the front view would really be the prettier style, the little vest, collar and cuffs of plain material, and some striped fabric for the rest. For medium size you would need ⅞ yard of plain material and 1⅛ yards of 36 inch striped material. The pattern, No. 7,175, comes in sizes from 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

Helps For Mending Day

The woman who likes plain needlework is almost sure to keep the general clothing of the family in good repair, of course, but the repair of outer clothing she usually regards as quite outside of her domain, and when shirts begin to "go," well, there is nothing for them but the rag bag. But it is a mistake to throw shirts away at this stage. The neat mender can prolong their life considerably.

A shirt usually begins to go first at the neckband. It wears thin there from the friction of the edge of the collar. If, therefore, the material quite breaks through, it is given a support at the back by way of a bit of thin white goods, the chances are it will never break.

To patch this place lay the cloth underneath and put under the machine. Stitch with white down the white stripe (if striped goods) otherwise with cotton the colour of the shirt. Set in several rows of stitching. Take out from the machine and turn under the edges of the patch, catching down very lightly by hand. This must always be done after the machine stitching. If done first the patch seldom lies perfectly flat and then wrinkles form when the shirt is ironed.

Should the material be really worn through, a patch can be taken from the tail of the shirts and placed under the tear, matching the stripe or design. Then the patch is darned down on the machine and finished as before described.

The next stages of wear are usually at the turn of the suffs. There is nothing to do but cut the cuff right through on this line and turn under the edges of the cuff part that is on the shirt to receive the cut-off portion again. A few stitches of the stitching around the edge of the cuff must be ripped to make the new cuff set smoothly. Then it is ready for he machine.

The replaced cuff will be about half an inch narrower than the old one, but it will look like new again

Most women do not need to be told to reinforce the seat of trousers that are wearing thin with a bit of goods not too heavy, but if they will darn it down on the machine with a thread matching the colour of the cloth the patch will be very much stronger and the cloth will never actually break through. It can't, the stitches hold it too firmly.

What To Do If Your Home Is Not Moist

Few people realize the true condition of the atmosphere in their living rooms during the period when the furnace is in operation. Many people know in a general way that the air is excessively dry, but it is only beginning to be generally understood how injurious this dry air is to health and comfort.

The average humidity at Yuma, Arizona, is about 42 degrees; at Santa Fe, New Mexico, about 44 degrees; in the Desert of Sahara, about 33 degrees. The average relative humidity in the home during the winter months ranges from 20 to 28 degrees.

These facts in themselves are of the utmost significance, and this condition of the atmosphere explains the reason why colds, throat and glandular troubles are so prevalent in winter, and it explains why furniture and wood work crack and break, musical instruments get out of tune and plants fail to thrive in the home during the cold weather.

A satisfactory heating of the home is, of course, necessary. A proper amount of pure air is also recognized as being required. The leading health experts are to-day demanding that, in addition to proper heat and ventilation the atmosphere must contain a sufficient amount of moisture to be healthful. Attention must, therefore, says a writer in House and Garden, be given to the subject of obtaining humidity in the home during the winter months.

No heating system in and of itself adds any moisture. As temperatures are raised, moisture must be added or else relative humidity decreases, and, consequently, means for furnishing this necessary moisture must be provided independent of, but working in connection with, the heating plant.

A simple and economical device that supplies the necessary moisture working in conjunction with the heating plant consists of two porous silica plates installed vertically inside the furnace casing. The principle of the moistener is based upon the capillary power of these plates. They take up water and become completely saturated as quickly as a lump of sugar. The surface of the plates, therefore, becomes immediately an evaporating surface, in direct contact with the heated air, and this evaporation continues as long as the water is supplied to the plates.

As the plates are always installed at the point of greatest heat, and since evaporation is dependent pon heat and ore, water vopor is thrown off rapidly. The detail of installation, of course, varies a little with different types of heating plants but in most cases it simply means cutting an opening through the furnace casing.

The smallest moistener manufactured has, it is stated, an evaporating area of over 300 square inches. They can be installed quickly in any heating system.

To Ward Off Summer Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all summer, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolised wax. Discoloured or freckled skin so common at this season is gently absorbed by the wax and replaced by the newer, fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, which is applied at bed-time and washed off mornings. Greasy creams, powders and rouges, on the other hand, are apt to appear more conspicuous than usual these days of excessive perspiration. Just get an ounce of mercolised wax at any drugstore and use like cold cream. This will help any skin at once, and in a week or so the complexion will look remarkably young and healthy.

Sun, winds and flying dust often cause squinting and other contortions which make wrinkles. You can quickly get rid of every line, however caused, by using a harmless wash lotion made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in 1-2 pt. witch hazel.

FRUIT DE CASSEROLE

There is no way of cooking fruit less troublesome and more satisfying than the covered enamelled ware baking dish or casserole. The casserole, properly speaking, is rather deeper than the ordinary dish used for macaroni or scalloped oysters; it is possible to use a covered saucepan for cooking fruit in this way. It should be brought to a boil with little or no water and then baked for several hours in a very slow oven with the cover on. In this way it steams and simmers tender without — unless the fruit is too ripe—losing its shape.

Foreign chefs have various delightful ways of making fruit desserts of this kind. At least one mixture makes a delightful compote of fruit for breakfast. One uses whatever fruit is in season, of certain kinds — peaches, pears, cherries red or black, and there is usually a slice of pineapple, half a peach and half a pear, and three or four cherries to an order. In addition there are a few English currants and a raisin, or a prune or two—about a tablespoonful of mixed dried fruits cooked with the fresh. Sometimes it is a dried apricot that has been soaked and then cooked with the rest. The other fruits are used in nearly equal quantities, a little less in the case of the pineapple. A French restaurant serves a similar compote, flavoured with cognac, with its ice cream. The sugar is cooked with the fruit, and the compote is not very sweet.

WAR IN THE CLOUDS

ARTIST DESCRIBES AERIAL TACTICS AGAINST ENEMY AEROPLANES

2 Companies Hold Position Five Days Without Relief

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]

PARIS, July 3.

How two companies of French infantry took a chapel defended by German trenches and held their narrow strip of captured ground for five days under a continual fire from German artillery is related in a letter published in the Figaro of recent date. The letter was written by the officer commanding the party, who was one of the handful who remained when they were at last relieved. The appalling grewsomeness of modern warfare is told in thrilling phrases in this recital of a heroic act. Parts of the story have been elided by the French censor, but enough is left to give a graphic description. It is as follows:—

"There was much agitation upon the plateau. The order had been given to my major to take the chapel at all costs. My company has the honor of being designated as the attacking company, and I am sent to reconnoitre the point of departure.

"The chasseurs who man the trenches from which we are to leave look at us with interest, because we are going to give the final blow, and because every one is sure that the chapel has been mined and that the storming company will be blown up with it.

"I give my last orders, then the whistle signal and we start off on the run. For two hundred yards, a great distance in an attack of this kind, we run through shell holes at points deep as a man's height. We take three trenches that are not heavily defended. But by the time we arrive at the chapel half the company is down behind us, for we made the trip in the cross fire of three machine guns.

"My sub-lieutenant, a cashier of the Bank of France in times of peace, but a lion on the battlefield, at the head of ten men, jumps into the little trench that surrounds the chapel and drives out two German sections. We have taken the chapel, but it has been a hard task; then my lieutenant signals to Captain X's company. Without an instant's hesitation he leads his company behind mine, through the captured trenches. He joins me and is killed just as he shakes my hand. I take command of his company as well as mine, and throughout the night a savage struggle takes place.

"The positions we occupy are in the form of a spoon, the captured trenches form the handle and the chapel the large end. Through the trenches ammunition and food are sent to us, as we are being attacked on three sides.

"The next day, seeing that they could not drive us out by assaults and not having been able to blow us up, for the precaution had been taken to cut all electric wires which the shell explosions revealed, the Germans began bombarding. All their artillery in that neighborhood was concentrated upon the small space we held, and I humbly pray to God that I may never again find myself in the midst of such a hell.

"Huge shells burst among the living and the dead uninterruptedly; we breathed only a thick and nauseous vapor. Everything was bursting, everything was whistling all about us. The reinforcements that were sent in to me melted away and I was obliged to send again and again for more men to add to the handful of heroes whom I have the honor to command.

"We could no longer get supplies, and for more than twenty-four hours we had to go without food or drink.

"What a sight! When, both day and night, hands and feet slip ceaselessly upon unnameable things which once were human bodies; when of these things one has before one the thickness of four men, one realises how small one really is in the scheme of things, and it restores religious ideas to the most sceptical. For five days that continued, and for five days my colonel, who was watching the bombardment of the chapel, kept saying to his staff officers:—'How can you expect a company to hold out in that hell? It is not possible!'

"But hold we did! We held until the moment when a huge twenty-one centimetre shell struck three yards away from me, tearing everything about me to a horrible mess and burying me with five other soldiers. We dragged ourselves out, and finding that not one of us was wounded we took off our kepis and on our knees we thanked the Blessed Virgin for having saved us.

"Shortly afterward we were relieved. And when I descended that slope to the plateau with the handful of men left from what had once been two full companies we were all crying from fatigue and shattered nerves.

"Some of us, with eyes sunk in our heads and contorted mouths, were chattering our teeth, without being able to stop. With our clothing torn and covered from head to foot with blood and brains we were horrible objects to see. But the chapel was ours!"

The giant Russian SIKORSKY machines, mounting machine guns, carrying heavy bombs

Copyright, 1915, by the New York Herald Co. From the London Sphere.

The extensive use of aircraft by the belligerent Powers has brought into being many new rules for the carrying on of aerial warfare. It has been found that the only way effectively to deal with enemy aircraft is to attack them in the air and not by shooting at them from the ground with anti-aircraft guns. The above drawing has been prepared for the London Sphere and this newspaper in order to show some of the more decisive situations which are constantly arriving during the air contests along the firing lines both in France and Russia.

The fast scouting tractor biplane has proved a very successful type. Owing to its great climbing powers and to its speed it is able to rise above its opponent and take aim from above and behind. Its marksman can then hit the pilot and observer and also the more vulnerable parts of the enemy machine. When this is the case the enemy is so placed that he has to turn fire, which is generally admitted to be a most difficult operation. While the tractor biplane cannot fire directly ahead owing to its propeller being in the way, the pusher machine cannot fire directly behind for the same reason; but with a gun mounted in the nacelle it can have a clear range of fire at any machine for some distance ahead. A favorite trick of both friend and foe when pursued is to make for a spot where it is known that friendly anti-aircraft artillery is posted and draw the pursuing machine down to within point blank range of these guns.

The Russians have recently been using the giant Sikorsky biplanes, which are driven by two 200-horse power Canton-Unné engines and can carry sixteen passengers. With this great weight lifting capacity these huge machines can mount a fairly heavy gun or can be utilized for carrying bombs heavier than anything ever carried during a flight by aeroplanes before.

French Hospital in Champagne Country a Haven for the Maimed

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]

PARIS, July 3.

An interesting glimpse into the French military hospital at Epernay is afforded by Robert de Lesseu in the Figaro.

"The hospital is admirable," he writes. "The wards are clean and spacious, the buildings are surrounded by a fine park where convalescents are strolling about.

"All the patients praise the hard work of the sisters, the vigilance of the military surgeons and the paternal care of Dr. Veron, of Epernay, who spends his entire time there. I met him hurrying to perform an operation.

"'You must excuse me,' he said, 'I have a great amount of work to do this morning. I think I can save this poor chap. It makes me happy.'

"The wards open upon the garden. Through the windows one hears the roar of the cannon. From afar off one can follow the battle raging beyond Rheims, fifteen kilometres away. It is what interests the men. They talk of nothing else; their sufferings are forgotten. They express their regret at not being out there in the trenches, under the shells.

"Under the beautiful trees are two smaller buildings. One is for the tetanus cases, nearly all Germans, who seem more affected by tetanus than are our men. The other is the mortuary chapel.

"Of the two main buildings one ward is for women, some of whom have been the victims of the Germans. One of these poor creatures told me the story of her martyrdom, Mrs. L'Heureux-Lecomte, of Le Bazil, a village southeast of Epernay. During the Prussian occupation a soldier attacked her daughter and shot her when she tried to rescue her daughter.

"He did not look any more vicious than any of the others,' she sobs. 'That very evening he had been telling me about his wife and children. It does not seem possible'—— and she breaks down. Poor martyr, by this time she has probably ceased to sob.

"Compared to such horrors the misery of the soldiers seems nothing. They are taken care of by the men of the hospital corps and they talk with affection of the nurses, who never leave their posts. But they have one favorite, Sister Barbara. From the instant that we set foot in the hospital we heard nothing but the praises of Sister Barbara. Every one in Epernay is proud of her, every one but herself, who accomplishes her daily work piously, simply, gayly.

"'An admirable woman,' said one of the residents. 'She has labored here for twenty years and has never had a day's rest. One can count by the thousands the poor creatures whom she has helped to live and to die. She has words for all, of consolation, of edification, of cheer. And she is not afraid to speak her mind, either.'

"I saw Sister Barbara; saw her as she went actively from one patient to another, encouraging one soldier, coaxing another. From the beginning of the war she has been doing this. She has spent many hours taking care of the German wounded. She trounces them roundly with her tongue.

"'Oh, the bandits! The bad man,' she says, but she sat up for three whole nights with a little Bavarian lieutenant, and she did other deeds of extraordinary self-sacrifice for other German patients, so that one cannot judge of her kindness exclusively by what she tells herself."

Frenchman Joyous in the Trenches Pities His Friend in City Office

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]

PARIS, July 3.

In a late issue of the Echo des Tranchées, a journal published in the trenches of Northern France, two letters appear which reflect the sentiments of a couple of French soldiers in an amusing yet very striking manner. The first letter is from a reservist who has not yet had a chance of smelling powder at close range. He is fretting over his uncongenial occupation, and unbosoms himself to a comrade on the firing line in language like this:—

"Surely we are feeling the effects of the war all the time here at the rear. We don't get fresh fish more than twice a week. The canteens no longer serve any 'smiles,' and we have to retire at nine o'clock every night. Such tyranny! I am attached to a military field office and am working hard. But oh, what a fuss! When the troops at the front need anything, we get a requisition. Perhaps we say in reply that it cannot be met because it has not been sent in on the regulation blank. Then we are asked to forward some of those regulation blanks, and again we reply that this latter demand will receive no official attention on account of not having been made according to prescribed regulations. Funny, isn't it, that they could not have known that much? So much bother!

"Au revoir, my dear boy. Pity me and help me in wishing the speediest possible end to all this."

From the friend on the firing line the peevish bureau clerk received the following comforting answer:—

"Our regiment is encamping in a little village and I am quartered in a big barn, filled with nice dry straw, providing me with a mattress on which I sleep marvelously well. As for the trenches, they afford us ample protection against the winged dynamite messengers which happen to come our way. Of course, I admit that existence could be better, but since we cannot have everything we desire, we have quit having any wishes or wants at all. That is the secret of wisdom. It you, too, only knew what a spirit of freedom rules out here! We think no longer of little cares of home and business, and we are spared all the petty annoyances which are encountered in daily routine life. We live from day to day a plain, free, rejuvenating existence. We sing and frolic like youngsters. And then the great fun of watching the battles of aeroplanes on high!

"So long, old man! Cheer up and see things in the right light. And if you have it dull where you are, come on out with us and get refreshed."

AFRICAN TROOPS BELIEVED SATAN WAS HIDDEN IN GAS CLOUD.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]

BERLIN, July 3.

The terrible effects victims suffer when overcome by the fumes emitted from the gas bombs used by the Germans is narrated in a vivid article written by Dr. Max Muller and published in the Neue Zuricher Zeitung. The physician gives an account of his trip to the front in Flanders, where he was enabled to study the condition of patients who had been asphyxiated by the bombs.

Numerous soldiers had just been brought to the hospital at Zuydecoute. The men were placed in different wards, according to the treatment required. Those who had been wounded by bullets were placed in one section, while the others, who had been overcome by the fumes, rested in another ward. Each day the latter needed different and more careful treatment until the crisis was over.

While in a convalescent state one of the soldiers told the physician of the battle fought on the evening of April 22. British Territorial troops and a contingent of North African soldiers were a few hundred yards from the German trenches when suddenly they saw large clouds of yellow greenish fumes approaching. In a short time the clouds were directly overhead, and the men in the trenches began to cough. Their eyes became inflamed as the cough became more violent. After a few moments the blood rushed to their heads and many of the men dropped as if dead.

Creeping on their hands and knees, some of the men were able to drag themselves to a point where a breath of fresh air was available. Every breath, however, after the gas has once entered the lungs, produces in the victim severe pain. The fumes from these bombs usually remain in one place for about ten minutes. They become less effective if there is a heavy wind.

Following the gaseous clouds there was a violent cannonade started. The regiment, which already had been reduced to one-half its number, was compelled to withdraw to the second line of defence on the canal. The soldiers, who were exhausted from the efforts they made to save their lives, were taken care of by their friends in the best possible manner. In the early hours of the morning those who had succumbed to the gas poison were removed in automobile ambulances to Dunkirk or other points further from the front.

On the following evening, the physician was told, there was a violent bombardment of Lizerne, Beisinghe and Poperinghe after the Germans had advanced about seven kilometres and had occupied three villages. Zouaves, marines and cavalrymen on foot finally arrested the German offensive movement.

Several German chemists and medical specialists, Dr. Muller asserts, were called upon to prepare the gas for use in war. Prior to the war the fumes were used in various industries throughout the country, but no one seemed to realise their value as a war weapon. Some time was consumed before the gas bomb was perfected.

In Zuydcoote, Professor Rathery, of Paris, gave a description of the physiological effects of the fumes to Dr. Miller. Out of seventy-five men, the professor said, three died from the direct results of poisoning. Two of the deaths were due to tuberculosis. Those who do not die a short time after being asphyxiated reach a crisis after suffering five or six days. Then there is a quick rise in temperature and probably inflammation of the lungs. The patient continues to be feeble sometimes for a long period, his face showing distinct signs of congestion.

An interesting story was told by one of the officers in an ambulance at Male-les-Bains, which is about one kilometre nearer Dunkirk. A gray-bearded captain suffered for five days after an attack made by the Germans with gas bombs, despite the fearful thirst and vomiting. Only after his strength had left him did he consent to be taken from the front to a hospital in Male. There he remained to be treated by the specialists.

The deadly effect of the gas poisoning is observed to be greater on the African troops than the European soldiers. When the Tirailleurs were attacked they fled, crying "Schita" (meaning Satan). They became panic stricken as soon as they saw the approaching fumes and disappeared in all directions. After the first experience they were willing to protect themselves by wearing the new face masks which prevent the soldier from inhaling the poison.

A lieutenant also told a remarkable story to Dr. Muller. The officer said he was taking a picture of a landscape. As he was looking in the view finder of the instrument he inhaled some of the fumes of a grenade that burst near by. He immediately became so feeble that he was unable to press the small hand bulb and take a picture.

The lieutenant fainted and was carried to safety by his comrades. They then became convinced the enemy shot the bombs with no other purpose than to asphyxiate those within the radii of the fumes.

HOW WAR PRISONERS ARE TREATED IN GERMANY

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]

BERLIN, July 3.

In Germany there are now more than one hundred camps for prisoners of war. Each forms a little community by itself and is detached from the world outside by high palisades. The population of a camp may be from 15,000 to 20,000. Usually a landsturm captain is in supreme charge, having under him a staff of subalterns. The prisoners are divided into battalions of 2,000 men each. The strictest military discipline prevails, and marked distinction is made between captive officers and ordinary soldiers. Within the encampment each battalion has its own reservation, enclosed by a wire fence. Every such section has a kitchen, canteen, bath house and separate quarters generally.

Inspection of the prison camps is made at regular intervals by officials of the War Department, who inspect the sanitary and other arrangements. In the dormitories a space of nearly eight feet square is allowed for each prisoner. Bread is apportioned daily for every man and other foodstuffs similar to those served to soldiers in the field to a value of fifteen cents per diem. Physicians are attached to the camp.

The number of letters received and despatched at one of the smaller encampments was 15,321 in a single month, according to a recent official report. This does not take into account the registered packages and mail parcels which pour in at the camp post offices daily, containing food, clothing and other articles intended to increase the comforts of the prisoners. A force of clerks from the censor's bureau assists the camp officials.

ROUMANIA CERTAIN TO ENTER WAR

Vulnerable Points Along the Boundary Have Been Fortified.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]

LONDON, July 3.

Roumania's entry into the conflict is considered just as certain as Italy's was. Every hour that passes brings the decisive moment nearer and it is understood it may now be only a matter of days when she will give the word to her military commanders. They, as well as many of her statesmen, have been fretting with impatience and if it depended on them would have taken the plunge long ago, but Roumania has had to proceed carefully and the counsels of prudence have prevailed.

For Roumania is vulnerable. There is a tender spot in her buckler and she has had to establish a line of defence work of which the outside world has not heard. Her oil and anthracite fields have had to be protected.

Roumania is the Pennsylvania of Europe. Her petroleum makes the finest illuminating oil produced in Europe, the finest in the world, the Roumanians assert. Her anthracite coal ranks with that of Pennsylvania, and Germany and Austria feel greatly aggrieved about Roumania's oil. They had counted on fighting the war with it.

Many of the oil fields of Roumania were financed in Germany. The German government two years ago decided to establish a petroleum monopoly. None but the State could sell oil or its products. This ostensibly was a blow dealt to the American companies. But it had other reasons. Roumania was counted on. German companies, which now had the official backing of the government, had solid interests in Roumania and with this entering wedge there would be a way found at the opportune moment for Germany to take control of the Roumanian output.

Sided with France in 1870.

The Kaiser's Ministers knew that in a war with France the sympathies of the people of Roumania would be with France, but that did not cause them much concern. They remembered that in the war of 1870 with France the people of Roumania had rioted and attacked German property and their German Prince, later King, Charles had offered to resign. They also remembered that, when the French lost, the Roumanian anti-German feeling subsided and probably reflected that most nations, like many individuals, show an inclination to go with the winning side. And if Roumania was recalcitrant, why they would make another Belgium of it. They counted as absolutely on the resources of Roumania—her oil and her wonderful richness in all the more desirable metals—as if they had been in their own territory.

But they counted without General Joffre and the fighting spirit revealed at the Marne. And that has upset greatly Germany's calculations about the sources of oil, gasolene and metals.

In the event of war the first blow the Teuton allies would deal to Roumania would be a dash for her fields of mineral resources. And the configuration of Roumania's territory lends the opportunity for many a dangerous drive.

Roumania Open to Attacks.

Roumania, generally speaking, is crescent shaped, and Austria-Hungary fills the hollow of the crescent. The upper part, running roughly north and south, is the old province of Moldavia, the lower, from east to west, Wallachia. There is a third province, to the east, on the Black Sea, the Dobrudja, but it is not of great importance. Austria-Hungary's deep salient into the heart of Roumania gives to the Teuton allies a choice of points to strike from.

How a general with the special talent of von Hindenburg would revel in the situation, with that entrant angle to work from and with, as objective, the choice of one or more of the rich wells and mines of Bacau, in Moldavia; Buseau, further south; Prahova and Dimbrovitza, in Wallachia, and then the English-owned anthracite beds of Gorgiu, out near the blunted western end of the crescent! Roumania has had to take her precautions, and while apparently busy with problems of another nature, such as the reaching of agreements with the Balkan States, this putting of her own borderland in condition to meet the prospective invader really is what has kept her occupied to date. She now has practically completed the task.

With regard to the Balkan States, it may be noted that Roumania would like the rest of the world to observe that she is not a Balkan State. She heretofore quite generally has been so classed and she did not remonstrate. Now she thinks the time has come to put the matter right. All who may desire further information on the subject will be supplied with it by the Roumanian Geographical Society in Bucharest in the form of a monograph printed in French. Roumania would not be understood as considering it in any way derogatory to be classified as a Balkan State. She simply wants to have her position as one of the Latin nations recognised, and, indeed, geographically, her territory does not fall within the Balkan peninsula.

More Latin Than the Italian.

The Roumanian language admittedly is one of the Romance group, and a great many of its words are closer to the form of the pure Latin than are corresponding words in Italian, French, Spanish or Portuguese. It is true that there has been a heavy admixture from without, and that in the spoken tongue in the past there were about three Slavic words for every two of Latin origin. But the groundwork of the language has remained Latin, just as the basis of English, despite the enormous addition of classical words, has remained Saxon. And the patriotic Roumanians declare that in the future their language will be more and more Latin.

Just as the Germans have been eliminating foreign words and since the war began have been throwing out French menu terms and English "five o'clock tea" and "sport" and "building" and more recently Italian musical terms such as "piano," "adagio," "con amore," so the Roumanians have been hard at work blacklisting the words that are not of Latin origin. This, as a matter of fact, is not a new process with them.

The amount of Latin blood in the Roumanian people is a much disputed point, as indeed it is even with the French, Spanish and Italians, but for all practical purposes in this connection it is language, with customs, manners and institutions that counts far more than blood.

CHAPTER XXIV.

"He is a Prisoner!"

DURING the long voyage to Hongkong the three were thrown much together, and Sir Donald learned in full the history of the "Master Key" mine and the present search for the plans of the site of the mother lode.

At first he could hardly believe that such things could happen, but slowly he came to understand that the tremendous passions that were fighting to be satisfied would stop at nothing.

"I fear you will find it different in India," he told John many times. "The country is immense, it is inhabited by races of different speech and habits and religions, and yet over it all there is the vague spell of the east which is so foreign to your western America that I fear you will not easily recover what you seek."

"But I must get the papers back," said John quietly. "There is no question about it."

"Many a man has refused to acknowledge that a thing is impossible,' Faversham warned him, "and the east has driven him mad. However, I am much interested myself, not only for the sake of Miss Ruth, but from a sporting standpoint, and I promise you I'll do my best to help you."

"Not so fast, young lady!"

They considered the suggested plan of taking the idol away from the Hindu during the voyage, but Faversham vetoed this after a somewhat extensive investigation.

"You see," he told Ruth, "I know the fellow's language, and he comes from a tribe far in the north of India. Most of those chaps are looked upon as rather sacred, and this man in special, I see, is much respected by the other natives in the steerage. To desecrate his image would simply mean an uproar that we could never explain to the satisfaction of the captain and his officers. In fact, we should all get into the most serious trouble."

"Then your advice is to wait?" she murmured.

"Most decidedly," said the baronet. "And the waiting isn't so bad, is it?"

The steamer was slipping easily along across a moonlit sea that night, and Ruth and Sir Donald were far in the bow watching the waves foam softly away from the cutwater.

The girl had awakened during the past few weeks to the dim happiness of being always the center of men's thoughts.

She was not in love, but she was ready to be. The experienced man beside her surmised this. His own heart was beating a new tune. He had lived much, and women had not been aloof from his life.

But this fair, proud, inexperienced, yet self contained girl wakened in him a deeper feeling than he cared to confess.

To be sure, he had John Dorr to contend with. Faversham did not underestimate him as a possible rival when he allowed himself to go so far as contemplating marriage with Ruth.

He liked the young American, and none knew better than he the effect that constant association with Dorr must have upon a young and very impressionable girl. John's own sentiments were unmistakable—he was deeply in love.

From Hongkong they transshipped to a P. and O steamer for Bombay, and under Sir Donald's expert guidance they shortly found themselves in India and installed in a very good hotel.

"We must wait here till I discover through natives just where that fellow is bound for."

"Why not simply trace him?" demanded Dorr, impatient to be about his errand.

"That would be out of the question," Faversham explained. "In the first place, you don't understand any native tongue, and in the second place the British government doesn't look with favor on strange and unattached Europeans stumbling about among the natives.

"If you leave it to me I think I not only can ascertain the exact place where this fellow comes from, but the temple where the idol belongs."

Several days passed, during which Sir Donald was busy among old acquaintances, leaving John and Ruth to their own devices.

"I've found your man and learned something of the history of the image," he said.

"And we can get it back?" Ruth inquired promptly.

"But that is what we came for," she went on.

"The fact of the matter is this," said the baronet—"that image was stolen several years ago—a great many, in truth. It is the tutelary deity of a small city on the river Bhaia, and it is about as sacred an article as you could pick up. The people of that city think that since they have lost their image the god is angry with them, and for some years they have quietly conducted a search for it."

"And this man will take it to Bhaia?" demanded Ruth.

"He has already started, I understand from some of the natives I know."

"Then what are we to do?" demanded John.

"Bhaia is some hundreds of miles up country," Sir Donald continued. "Part of the way we can go by rail, but part of the road we must travel either on foot or by litter—if we go."

"Of course we are going!" said Ruth.

"I most earnestly beg of you to stop here," said the baronet. "You don't know your India as I do, and even if we accomplished our purpose we should run double risk in getting back."

They argued the matter for some time, but Ruth refused to consider retreat at this stage, and John, impressed though he was by the other's evident sincerity, could not help feeling that as an outsider he did not understand the necessity of the recovery of the plans.

When he and Sir Donald talked it over alone the baronet was even more insistent.

He characterized the whole expedition as rash and plainly stated that should the British government get wind of such a search immediate steps would be taken to see that the Americans went no further.

Dorr was unconvinced and finally intimated that Faversham had not meant what he said when he had volunteered to help them.

Sir Donald shrugged his shoulders and admitted himself helpless in the face of such arguments.

"At least I can go along and do what I can to save the young woman from actual peril," he remarked. "I by no means promise to give you active assistance."

"I'll be satisfied if you'll just tip me off once in awhile," John responded.

Then made the journey to Bhaia safely, Ruth and John viewing the novel sights that met their eyes on every hand, Sir Donald acting as general guide and instructor.

On their arrival at the teeming city they were soon installed in an inn outside the center and some distance up the river.

Faversham wasted no time in looking up certain people he knew among the natives and was in a position to inform them that he had not only discovered the temple, but that he had learned that the idol had been recovered and would be restored to its proper shrine with due ceremony and great festivity.

"That will be just our chance," said John. "In the crowds we ought to be safe."

Faversham tried to convince him that this was not so, but Dorr insisted so strongly that the Englishman yielded to his better judgment.

"I'll try to get you within sight of the idol anyway," he consented. "But I must insist that you obey my instructions implicitly. Otherwise we shall all get into trouble and you will effectually kill any chance you may have of attaining your purpose."

The result of this was that Ruth late that night was wakened by Sir Donald's rapping on her door.

When she had flung on some clothes and opened she saw from his manner and his dishevelled dress that all had not gone well.

"It's true," Faversham told her. "Dorr couldn't resist what he thought was a chance to get hold of the idol. He was captured, but I managed to get away by my knowledge of the language and the help of some natives who are friendly to me."

For the moment Ruth was speechless; then she inquired for the particulars, and Sir Donald gave them briefly.

At the conclusion he remarked, "They won't harm him, but if it gets out that he really intended to steal that image we shall have trouble."

"But he is a prisoner!" she cried.

"True," said Faversham wearily. "I didn't dare stay. If they had got me, too, you wouldn't have known anything about what had happened for days possibly."

"But you will save him?" she pleaded.

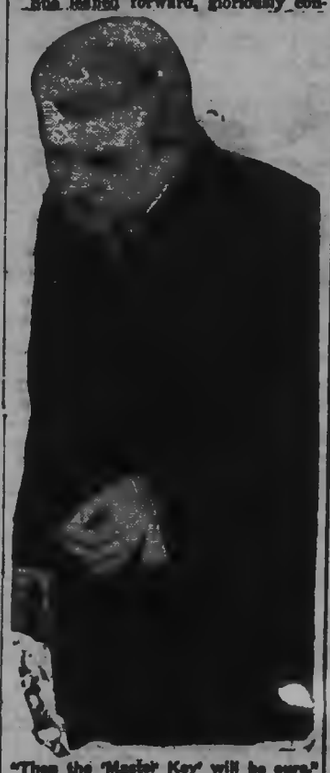
In her appealing beauty Ruth stirred Sir Donald to the depths. He knew now that he loved her.

For love of her he would do what he knew might mean his own death, but he was helpless in the grip of this sweet passion.

Yet he would not go without at least a word of hope and promise.

"I'll get him," he told her. "It will be a hard job, but I'll save him for your sake, Ruth, and when I come back with him"—

She leaned forward, gloriously con-



"Then the 'Master Key' will be ours," that John was to be brought back to her.

She did not read aright the expression in the man's eyes. She threw out her little hands to him joyously.

"I'll always love you if you will," she whispered.

He stared dizzily, and she withdrew before he could put out his hands or say a word. Five minutes later he was hastily making his way back toward the temple.

To his dying day Sir Donald was never able to explain just how he found John Dorr nor how he extricated him from the howling mob who yelled for the life of the impious man who had laid foul hands on their god.

His own recollection was of desperately using his tongue, his muscles and his knowledge of the usual intricacies of a native city.

John himself could give no clear description, but confessed that he had given up hope of rescue when Sir Donald appeared as by magic.

It was dawn when they reached the hotel, and Ruth was on the balcony watching. When Faversham looked up and called out, "I managed it!" she leaned far over, her eyes shining, and threw him a kiss.

The baronet's heart beat high. He had won her for his wife.

The fact that Dorr and Ruth had sailed for India did not escape Wilkerson and Mrs. Darnell's sharp senses, and they sailed, with Drake as their companion, on the next steamer.

"We can easily pick up Dorr's trail when we land," Wilkerson told them.

He found this true. Within two days he had also ascertained that they had left for the interior under the escort of Sir Donald Faversham.

Without delay they followed and in due time landed in Bhaia, not long after Sir Donald had rescued Dorr from the mob who had seized him when he had tried to recapture the idol. Wilkerson grinned when he told Mrs. Darnell of this fiasco.

"But will you fare any better?" she demanded.

"Sure," he said confidently. "I'll let Dorr and this British baronet burn their fingers getting the thing; then I'll get it away from them. It's a long way back to America, and if we stick tight to Dorr we'll sooner or later be able to handle the plans ourselves.

"Then the 'Master Key' will be ours for good and all."

The story of The Master Key will appear each Friday and Saturday in the Evening Examiner, and will be shown in Photo Play at the Tiz-It Theatre on Monday and Tuesday of each week.

IDLENESS.

Idleness is the badge of gentry and the bane of body and mind, the nurse of naughtiness, the step-mother of discipline, the chief author of all mischief, one of the seven deadly sins, the cushion upon which the devil chiefly reposes.—Robert Burton.

Let's see what history says:

Away Back — The Stone Age man held a pebble in his mouth for moisture and to prevent thirst. Forlorn makeshift of an arid land. Roots and herbs served better where plant life existed.

Between Times — Early Spanish explorers found the Aztecs used "chicle"—wholesome, pleasant and agreeably chewy—welcome relief from tropical heat.

Today — Refined Mexican Chicle, its merits proven by the test of time, is the basis of

"It used to be a terrible task to bathe my baby, as he was so afraid of the water," one mother says. "One day I threw a small celluloid ball in the water, and it bounced around so enticingly that baby's attention was diverted in trying to catch the elusive plaything, and his bath was finished in comfort.

"Since then I have bought half a dozen of the pretty balls to be used exclusively in the bathroom.

WEDDING SUPERSTITIONS

A bride who finds a spider on her wedding dress may consider herself blessed.

The bride who dreams of fairies the night before her marriage will be thrice blessed.

If the wedding ring is dropped during the ceremony the bride may as well wish herself unborn, for she will always have ill-luck.

Marry when the year is new,
Always loving, kind and true—
When February birds do mate,
You may wed nor dread your fate;
If you marry when March winds blow
Joy and sorrow both you'll know.
Marry in April when you can,
Joy for maiden and for man;
Marry in the month of May,
You will surely rue the day.
Marry when June roses blow,
Over land and sea you'll go.
They who in July do wed
Must labour always for their bread.
All who wed in August be,
Many a change are sure to see.
Marry in September shine,
Your living will be rich and fine.
If in October you do marry,
Love will come but riches tarry.
If you wed in bleak November,
Only joy will come, remember.
When December snows fall fast,
If you marry love will last.

GIRL WON COMMISSION

Russia Honors Young Woman of Unusually Adventurous Type

A Russian girl of 18, Alexandra Ephimovna Lagereva by name, has received a commission in one of the regiments of Don Cossacks. Her promotion from the ranks was a reward of special services. During one of the battles in the Suwalki Government, the detachment to which she belonged was surrounded by superior numbers and captured. From certain remarks which the Germans let fall, and from the way in which they looked at her, it was evident they had guessed the secret of her sex. Perhaps this was the reason that, when the other prisoners were divested of their property, she was allowed to retain her watch and compass. The prisoners were locked up in a church, outside which a sentry patrolled.

During the evening the party was visited by several German officers, who seemed to take a lively interest in Alexandra, and laughed a good deal among themselves. When all was quiet the prisoners broke a window and clambered out, and Alexandra felled the sentry with a stone. The refugees succeeded in recovering their horses, and picked up one or two stragglers, who increased their number to seven. This force attacked a German patrol of 18 Uhlans, and captured them all.

The lieutenant in command of the patrol, on discovering the number of his captors, flung off his hat and tore his hair with rage.

He was found to be carrying documents of importance, and they were brought to the Russian Commander of Alexandra, who seems to have been the virtual leader in the whole affair.

She is of medium height, slender and graceful, and, talks of her experiences of war very much as an ordinary girl of her years might speak of a tea party.

Had Proved It.

He had outspanned the wagons on the veldt between Prieska and Kenhard. The donkeys had been driven to the veldt, and we and my friend and myself, were talking in the "taal" to a Dutchman named Gert Maans about the wonders of the universe.

We mentioned that the world was round. Maans said that he knew it.

This answer was unusual for a Boer, so we asked him how he knew. He replied:

"I started to ride to Poortje one dark night through the veldt, and I rode hard all the night, and the next morning I found myself at the place I started from, so I know the world is round because I rode round it."—London Standard.

Convivial Clerk.

Rev. H. P. Ditchfield tells in the June Treasury some more stories about parish clerks. His own little church at Barkham was many years ago the scene of a deplorable episode. It was not unknown that the clerk on occasions used to patronize the village inn, which was kept by a parish worthy, Mrs. Collyer. One Sunday afternoon, when the weather was warm, and the sermon long, the clerk slept and dreamed. He imagined himself the center of an admiring company at the village inn. Hence, when the sermon was ended and the ascription said, and he was expected to utter a loud and sonorous "Amen," he startled the congregation by shouting "Fill 'em again, Mrs. Collyer; fill 'em again." The congregation naturally was somewhat scandalized.—Westminster Gazette.

Allied Forces Combine in General Attack on Dardanelles

GERMANY ADMITS LOSSES TO DATE ARE OVER TWO MILLIONS

General Attack Being Made on The Dardanelles

Special to The Examiner:

ATHENS, July 5.—A general attack on the Dardanelles by the Anglo-French naval and land forces was begun Saturday morning and continued throughout Sunday according to Mytilene despathes to-day. The warships bombarded Turkish positions from both sides of Gallipoli Peninsula for several hours before the infantry attack was begun. Several British destroyers ran close into shore along the Gulf of Saros and shelled the Turkish right flank.

GREAT BATTLE IS NOW RAGING

Special to the Examiner.

PETROGRAD, July 5.—The greatest battle since the fighting before Lemberg is now raging along the sixty mile front between the Bug and the Vistula rivers. The Austro-Germans under Mackensen are throwing their full weight of their offensive against the Russians in an effort to break through to Lublin. The War Office admitted to-day: "The ultimate result of the battle is in doubt." Official despatches, however, reported a repulse of preliminary attempts by the enemy to press forward.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., July 5.—Over Sunday casualties reported from the front number slightly over 100. They include 31 members of the 8th Battalion who are among the missing. The number killed is now 1,658, wounded 6,485 and missing 1,706. Total, 9,629. The first overseas contingent number 33,000, so that the Canadian casualties represent almost one-third of the force. A large number of wounded, however, returned to the firing line or will do so.

SIG. BRANCH IS WOUNDED IN THE HEAD

He Was Formerly Employed by Mr. W. J. Conway of Ennismore Township.

IS RECOVERING

A letter from a young man on active service, who formerly worked in Ennismore township, Signaller H. E. Branch, of the 10th Battalion brings the news that he has been wounded. According to his letter he may be back in the firing line by this time as he expected to be able to go any time when he was writing.

The letter conveying the news to his friends here that he was wounded was written by Signaller Branch on June 16th to his friend and former employer, Mr. W. J. Conway, R. R. No. 2. Ennismore township. Signaller Branch was employed by Mr. Conway for 14 months. He returned to his home in England after leaving the employ of Mr. Conway and when he came to Canada again he went to Calgary, Alta. When war was declared he enlisted with the Calgary Rifles in the 1st C.E.F.

The letter in part follows:

"It's a long time since I wrote to you and I feel that it is about time that I let you know I am getting along.

Well since we came out here (Feb. 10th), we have been into quite a number of 'scraps,' which would fill a book if I told you about them. But if I get back to Canada I will come and see you and tell you all about it.

At present it is beyond my power to do so. However, I have gone through it all until three weeks ago, during a a big bombardment by the Germans. I was hit in the back by a piece of shrapnel shell. And then again about three hours afterwards I was knocked out by being hit on the head by some heavy object. Of course I had to go to the hospital and get fixed up. But now I am alright again and expect to go back to the regiment soon. I went before the doctors a few days ago, but I was not well enough to go up to the trenches.

Now Bill, we soldiers over here always look forward to letters as that helps a fellow to keep up his spirits. And so I want you to write a long letter as soon as you can and let me know how you are getting along and what you are doing."

RECRUITS TO HARVEST CROP.

Suggested that Men in Training for Overseas Service be Used, if They Are Willing.

OTTAWA, July 5.— The army of workers required for the western harvest may in part be recruited from men who have enlisted for overseas services and are now undergoing training in Canada.

It has been suggested that by this means a great number of harvesters may be secured, and Hon. J. L. Lougheed, acting Minister of Militia, is favourably disposed to the proposal. Only such men as are willing to do so, would be taken for such work and only members of corps which are not going to the front before harvesting is finished.

Von Linsingen's army is in full pursuit of the Russians who are retiring towards Zlota Liper River in Galicia, and in the Argonne captured 255 officers and men, with 25 machine guns. Our aviators also bombarded the fort near Harwich, England, and attacked Nacey, France.

CHICAGO, July 5.—A cablegram received here announces the assassination of W. T. Stead, son of the late journalist, in Roumania.

PETROGRAD, July 5.—A German battleship was torpedoed by the Russians. It was not the Deutchland, but was of the same type.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The Morgan case assumed a more serious aspect when it was announced that five specialists were assembled to operate Saturday night to locate the bullets. The report has been confirmed that Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British Ambassador, was at breakfast in the Morgan home when the shooting occurred.

BERLIN, July 5.—The Germans are proceeding east of Lemberg with rapidity. The Russian prisoners total half a million in the Galician drive.

PETROGRAD, July 5.—In a War Office statement is contained the information that reformed Russian lines in Galicia have checked the enemy's drive and they will likely continue to prevent further gains.

LONDON, July 5.—It is reported here that the German reply to the American note will propose that Americans sail on specified vessels which will be immune from attack.

UDINA, Italy, July 5.—The advance of the Italians continues slowly with gains each day. The Austrian defence is increasing, though counter-attacks fail to retake ground.

BERLIN, July 5.—An official statement to-day says that the Germans made further gains in the Russian Province of Lublin. It admits the loss of the gains made against the French in the Vosges.

NEW YORK, July 5.—A statement issued by the Morgan firm late Saturday afternoon says that examinations disclosed two bullet wounds near the right hip. There are no unfavourable symptoms. He is resting easily.

LONDON, July 5.—The British steamer Richmond was sunk off Scilly Islands Saturday by a German sumbarine. The crew was landed at Plymouth.

PARIS, July 5.—General H. Gouroud, Commander of the French expeditionary forces in the Dardanelles, has been wounded. He is returning to France. General Bailled (formerly Commander of the French in Algeria), has taken General Gouroud's place provisionally.

An official statement reports everything satisfactory and going well.

BERLIN, July 5.—The German Admiralty confirms the loss of the Albatross in Friday's engagement.

ROME, July 5.—It is officially stated: "Along the entire front the situation remains unchanged."

Russian Retreat Deliberate Teuton Forces Weakened

PETROGRAD, July 5.—Since the evacuation of Lemberg the Austro-German advance has proceeded at the rate of about five miles a day.

On the surface the Germans' continued progress is not pleasant, but now it is quite evident the Russians have deliberately adopted Fabian tactics and will withdraw further rather than imperil the integrity of their forces by making a determined stand before the conditions of battle are equalized.

With every step that the Russians recede the situation becomes more favourable to them.

The Germans, being worn down by perpetual rear-guard actions, and their lines of communication drawing out, are not only using up their reserves, but are also weakening their forces on other parts of this front in their efforts to precipitate a decisive issue in the Galician theatre.

For their invasion of the Cholm Government they found it necessary to cut themselves loose from the railways which hitherto had played an important part in their strategy and trust to the Polish roads, which are little adapted to heavy motor transport.

In the battle of Osarow, on the left bank of the Vistula, Major General Tokaroff, who led a counter-attack with the bayonet against superior forces of Austrians, was mortally wounded.

After the final repulse, 400 bodies of Austrians were counted in a trench by one Russian company. Along the entire front of the Russians Austrian dead were piled in heaps. Opposite the wire entanglements on the right flank 1,600 bodies were counted. The Russian losses were 41 killed, 146 wounded and 127 missing.

Sudden Change In Plans For The Delivery of Note

Date of Delivery of German Reply to American Note is Now Indefinite—Reason for Postponement a Mystery.

WILL NOT BE CLEARED

BERLIN, via The Hague, July 5.—The sudden change in the plans for the delivery of the German reply remained a mystery to-day. The Foreign Office declared to-day that the date of delivery is now indefinite, but refused to give any hint as to the reason for the postponement. Ambassador Gerard would not throw any light on the situation, other than to repeat that he had sent an explanatory cable to Washington. He intimated that the reply might not be placed in his hands for another week. Until late Saturady night conferences were held at the Foreign Office. It was admitted to-day that the German-American situation was under discussion, but officials displayed the greatest reticence regarding the conference. Whatever the nature of the proposals put forward by Germany, it is deemed certain here that the German-American controversies will not be cleared up at once. The German reply will invite another communication from America.

Food Wasted While Army's Need Is For Ammunition

LONDON, July 5.—The Parliamentary debates Thursday and Friday well typify the national uneasiness and dissatisfaction with the military situation. Optimists who recently denounced any criticism as disloyal, have themselves become critics. The Daily News declares: "Lord Curzon stated that peace is distant and the peril grave, and that the scales have now dropped from every eye. It is so, an das Lord Lorburn pointed out, the chief reason for the loss of valuable time has been the muzzling of the press."

TOO MUCH OPTIMISM.

The Chronicle says "Sombre saying like Curzon's is infinitely better than the facile optimism which has no relation to facts. The situation is undoubtedly serious."

The Telegraph declares Curzon's speech could not have been bettered as a plain presentation of the circumstances in which the country stands.

Sir Henry Dalziel's demand that we scrap Von Donop, the Master of Ordnance, has created an enormous sensation. A dramatic sequel is expected. His sensational, outspoken, vigorous speech caught the Government unaware and shattered the last attempts of censorship over this policy.

CLEAN SWEEP URGED.

"The Ordnance Department has wholly, absolutely forfeited the confidence of the country. Its management has been a scandal, its blunders have been innumerable—failure in the past, the chaos in the present, and hopelessness in the future," said Dalziel.

One member, who declared the debate has caused astonishment and consternation, mildly voiced the general sentiment. The Times points out that it is an irregular attack on a department officer who was not responsible to Parliament and cannot reply. "We certainly hold no brief for the Master of General Ordnance, but we are bound to point out that it will be a bad day for the country if subordinate officials are to be impeached in Parliament while their political chiefs sit silent and scathless."

DEFECTS REMEDIED.

The Times says the defects are being remedied and prospects improving.

The Chronicle declares that while we must not condemn the Master of Ordnance unheard, one of the things certain is that these grave matters cannot be permitted to remain where they are left by the Commons' discussion. Something more must be done in the interest of the country, no less than in the interest of the individual concerned, and the sooner it is done the better. Von Donop must be vindicated or must go.

The Chronicle is inclined to lay the blame upon the contractors. It says: "One firm only delivered 10,000 shells on the day they had contracted to deliver a million, and another firm who delivered 50,000 on the day $450,000 was promised. In other cases sub-contractors found it difficult to get necessary drawings for materials from big armament firms."

Everything now is being done to remedy matters. 46,000 men enlisted in the munitions service during the past week.

FOOD BEING WASTED.

Every newspaper is now echoing the cry for strict personal economy of food and general expenditure. It transpires, however, that enormous waste, particularly over food, has been occuring in various military camps here and at the front and amounts in exces of all requirements are being issued and if unconsumed is burned in order to avoid putrefaction. This is now being remedied.

Authorities here are granting permits more freely to go to the front. Even fifth rate novelists are now readily permitted.

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

"No, sir," sez Red, "we won him. The old codger only had forty dollars, but he knew poker some, and at one time he had all our money and Shorty's saddle, but when the luck changed, we cleaned him out down to his dog."

"That was wicked," sez Isaac.

Well, we sure had a hard time gentlin' that dog. Isaac tried it first, but he had to own that it wasn't safe to turn him loose, then Red and Shorty tried it, and after them, Phil McLaughlin; but he never got so he wouldn't curl up his lip if spoke to cross. They kept him in a box-stall, and never went in to him without a club, but it began to look as though he'd have to be shot. I rawhided 'em consid'able about havin' a dog they were afraid of, and they finally put it up to me on a dare. "I'll break him," sez I, "provided that you give him to me before I begin."

They didn't have any use for him as it was, so they agreed and Sunday mornin' they all went down to see what I knew about dogs. Now, I allus was fond o' dogs but was never what you could rightly call a dog-lover, 'cause I allus wanted a dog to keep in his place and do what he was supposed to do, and I never wanted a dog to sleep with me, nor clamber all over me with dirty paws, nor to sit and scratch fleas on me whenever I wanted to stretch out and take a snooze.

They were all purty sure that Hellion—we had called him Hellion because it was a purty soundin' name, and also because it had in it a good deal of the same stuff that he did—well, they were backin' him to get the best of it, but I had tried it out with dogs before that and I thought I could make one or two things clear to this one.

I made 'em all agree not to say a word no matter what happened and to keep out of sight, and then I went in to him without any club in my hand. A dog's eyesight isn't his keenest sense by a long ways, and his head isn't near so quick as a man's head. Hellion stood up when I came in and looked at me impudent.

"Come here," I sez to him in a low tone. He never moved except to bulge out his muscles a little. "Come here," I repeated, squattin' on one heel. He raised his lip at me in warnin'. "Come here." I sez in the same tone, and I kept on sayin' it over and over without movin' from the position I'd took. He finally walked over to me sniffin' and I patted him quiet on the head, and talked to him in the same single tone.

Then I went to the far end of the stall and after a little, I got him to come to me there, and the next time I went to the front of the stall, he followed of his own will, and he actually seemed glad to have me pat him a little.

I went out to where the rest were and sez: "Humph, all that dog needed was a little decent treatment."

"I reckon you think you could take food right in to him?" sez Red.

"'Course I could," sez I, "and make him wait 'til I gave him leave to eat it."

"I'll go and get some and we'll have a look," sez Red.

He rustled a pan o' food from Monody and brought it down and I took it in and set it in a corner, Hellion watchin' me but not startin' anything. "Come here," sez I.

He came at the first word, but he gave me a low growl. "Just for that," sez I, "you'll have to do some waitin'. Go back and lie down."

His eyes got red and he growled at me fierce. I continued to squat on my right heel, and to tell him to go back and lie down. I didn't figger on him knowin' any words, of course; but I did intend him to know my voice before that session was finished, so that when I'd change it he'd take notice. I had kept my hands loose all this while, but now I pointed my finger at the far corner and said: "Go back and lie down."

I didn't expect anything much to happen from pointin' my finger; but by jing, the minute I pointed it, he crouched and made a spring for my throat — which was exactly what I hoped he would do before that meetin' was adjourned. All this happened in the flush of my youth; my eye was as quick as any dog's eye, and my hand was half again as quick as any part of a dog. Hellion weighed eighty pounds, and I had a little over a hundred the best of him; he just fought from blind instinct, and I had planned it all out, so it really was a middlin' fair fight, though I never hankered after just such another.

When he'd jump for my throat, I'd upper-cut or swing on him, and the only risk I ran was in bein' worn out, for the quality o' that dog's muscles was marvelous. When I'd hit him on the side of the head, I'd knock him to the side of the stall and he'd generally light from' tha other way but it didn't seem to faze him, and he kept on springin' at my throat 'til my shoulders began to ache. He had the grit of the bull, the speed of the greyhound, and a rage like a roarin' fire.

Blockin' off eighty solid pounds hurled at ya the way that brute's hind legs sent him, gets mighty monotonous, and it wasn't long before I had to stop talkin' to him and begin to look about for some trick that would give me the advantage. I knew I could handle him if I could once get my grip on his throat, but I also knew that whatever his teeth closed on would change its restin' place right now. A dog's heart's hung about in the middle and his ribs are poor protection.

The next time he jumped for me, I lifted him with my left, jolted him right over the heart with my right, and when he struck the floor on his back, I straddled him and had my thumbs on his wind-valve before he'd had time to notice any change in my tactics. I held him this way until he loosened up, and then I rose to my feet, tossin' him from me as I did so. I hadn't struck him my best, nor I hadn't choked him clear off, so when I tossed him from me he was able to stand but his feet were wide apart and he waved around a little.

"Come here, Hellion," I said, in the same level tone I had used all along.

His eyes were purty dull and they didn't light up any at my words. I crouched down the same way I had been at first and kept on callin' him to me for some time and finally he came over, walkin' slow and not seemin' to care much what happened. When he came to me, I stroked him gentle and talked to him quiet and serious, but he didn't wag his tail, and when I handed him a small piece of meat, he refused to take it. I set the pan of food outside and took his water bucket, which had been upset, for some fresh water.

The boys tried to make over me, but I wasn't in the mood for it. I was convinced that the old codger that Red had won Hellion from had set a heap o' store by this dog, had trained him, and made over him, and since comin' here the dog had only lived up to his teachin's. In our scrap he had been actin' from loyalty and me from vanity, and I knew mighty well that if I had really broke down his pride it was goin' to take me a long time to get easy in my mind.

He was lyin' down when I got back to him and he refused to take any notice of either me or the water. I stroked his head and he didn't give any more heed than if he'd been wood; I felt of his heart and it was beatin' along as steady as any dog's does after a hard work-out; so I took the water in my hand and bathed his head gentle, talkin' to him soothin' all the time, but not insultin' him with any baby-talk. I told him that my shoulders were still achin', and that there was a time when I feared I'd have to hit him with my gun, which would have been a dirty trick on my part.

I owned up honest how mean I felt about the whole thing and finally some of the water dripped off my hand into his mouth and then he licked my hand. Next he drank from the bucket and wagged his tail about a dime's worth. I got the pan o' meat and fed him by hand and he took each piece as gentle as could be, but he didn't look happy. I made up my mind that as soon as I could get around to it, I was goin' to take him back to his old codger's for the's trouble enough rollin' down on a feller all the time without grabbin' in any extra by hangin' on to the stingin' reproach in the eyes of a mournin' dog.

After dinner I went down to him again and he seemed a mite more chipper, so I called him to me several times and he came without any delay, but without any enthusiasm either. "Come," I sez to him after a time, "my blood was purt nigh as hot as yours while we were mixin' it, and it's full as cool as yours, now. I'm a-goin' to give you your freedom, and I hope you live long to enjoy it."

BACK FROM THE FIRING LINE

First Aid to the Wounded.

LONDON, May 17. — At almost every station on the railroads you will see men shattered and wrecked for life, men who must face the future horribly mutilated, and yet they accept their fate without a murmur of complaint or bitterness. It is the same in England, in France and, I suppose, in Russia, that all soldiers are bearing their sufferings with the greatest of fortitude.

The best aid these men have is within themselves. The human body will best resist infection from bullets when it is healthy, strong, active and with all of its functions fully alive and working. The best aid to this condition is a vegetable tonic and alterative that will first put the stomach and blood right, for these are dependent on one another. Good stomach means good blood, and likewise good blood means good stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery helps the stomach to do its work naturally and properly, stimulates the liver. The system is freed from poisons. The blood is purified. Every organ is rejuvenated. This "Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce, is free from alcohol or narcotics. It is made from the roots and barks of American forest plants with triple refined glycerine, and is the best blood purifier, because it banishes from the blood all poison and impure matter. It dissolves impure deposits and carries them out, as it does all impurities through the bowels, kidneys and skin. If you have indigestion, sluggish liver, catarrh, unsteady nerves, or a pimply skin, get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to-day and start at once to replace your impure blood with the kind that puts energy and ambition into you and brings back youth and vigor.—Adv.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are manufactured in Canada at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ont.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

A MODISH YOKE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

There is consistency about this attractive design evidenced by the yoke idea, which is carried out in both waist and skirt. The waist yoke is part of the back, but extends to the front to give a sloping line at the shoulder, the line which raglan sleeves have made fashionable. The skirt yoke has a front and a back section, with a seam at the hip, and rounds up at front and back, forming a shallow point at each side. The outline is particularly pretty, as well as unusual. Two gores or pieces form the lower part of the skirt, seamed at centre back and lapped at the front where buttons either fasten or trim, according to one's wishes to have the skirt open all the way down or merely to the depth of the ordinary placket.

The skirt joins to the waist at high waistline or at normal waistline, as preferred, the pattern allowing for either method. In regard to the sleeve, it is a close fitting model with only one seam, and finished with a small, neat looking cuff. The collar is particularly attractive, high in the back and stopping at side front where the waist edges turn back to form revers.

To trim the dress as illustrated would be exceedingly effective, using, say, a black and white silk or cotton fabric, with a plain white material for collar, cuffs, belt and buttons. For medium size 5 yards of material 36 inches wide would be required and ¾ yard of contrasting material of the same width. The pattern, No. 7,135, can be obtained in sizes from 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.
Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

CELEBRATING LIBERTY ARE WE NOT SLAVES?

"Stand Fast in the Liberty Wherewith Christ Hath Made You Free."

Hypocritical Slaves of Mammon and Custom—Ignorant Slaves of Fear and Superstition—Helpless Slaves of Sin and Weakness—"The Liberty of the Sons of God"—Slaves In the Pulpits—Slaves In the Pews—Slaves to Wealth—Slaves to Poverty—Slaves to Sinful Passions and Appetites — Only One Way to Liberty.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publiction.]

New York City July 4.—Pastor Russell last night at the New York City Temple, W. 63rd St., near Broadway, took for his text, "The creature also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the sons of God." (Romans 8:21.) He declared that his text, one of the grandest promises for humanity, does not relate to mankind in general. True Christians are already set free, so far as their hearts, their minds, are concerned. Saintly Christians, he averred, are a rarity to-day, as they have always been, since the Master declared, "Fear not, little flock; it is the Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom."—Luke 12:32.

Not until these shall be perfected by the glorious change of the Chief Resurrection will the time come for delivering the groaning creation from its bondage. In other words, the world's blessing tarries until the completion of the saintly company gathered out of every nation and denomination during the past nineteen centuries, and called in the Bible "The Church of the First-borns," "The Very Elect," "The Lamb's Wife," "The Body of Christ," etc.

Jehovah is a God of order. All His good purposes will be fulfilled in a most orderly manner. Six great days of a thousand years each have already passed over us, according to the Scriptures, and have been periods of darkness under a reign of Sin and Death. During this time God has allowed our race to experiment with sin and to note its bitter results—to experiment also in endeavors to recover from sin and its penalty, death, with its concomitants of sickness and sorrow. The long schooling of six thousand years is not to be in vain. The lesson that "the wages of sin is death" is not to be lost. Mankind is not to be left to destruction, but is to be recovered. Earth's billions, lying as unconscious in death as the brute, are nevertheless subjects of Divine interest, sympathy and provision. In the Seventh Thousand-Year Day, earth's great Sabbath, assistance will come to our race.

According to the Divine Program, Christ will then be the great King over all the earth, and the great antitypical Priest, to uplift all the willing and obedient. He will be the Antitype of Melchisedec, who was a priest upon his throne. If the Divine Purpose had merely been that the Lord Jesus Christ should do this work alone, there would have been no need of His coming into the world nineteen centuries ago to die; for He could have accomplished the entire work at one time. Now, at the beginning of the seventh thousand years, He could have died for man's sins, thus redeeming all from the curse that came through Adam; and then, risen from the dead and glorified with the Father's power, He could at once have begun His great work of setting free the prisoners of Sin and Death.

But the Heavenly Feather had a better Plan. He had purposed the selecting of the saintly few from amongst men, to be associated with our Lord Jesus in His Kingship and His priestly office. God has laid a broad foundation for a great work for humanity, in providing not only the necessary kings and priests for the Millennial Kingdom, but also valuable experiences for mankind through the reign of Sin and Death and through human endeavor to overcome these. By now all should be satisfied that life everlasting must come as a gift from God.

During Messiah's thousand-year Reign the groaning creation will be delivered from bondage into full liberty, proper to sons of God. Behold what terrible bondages are upon mankind! Look at their ignorance, their superstition, their fears, their weaknesses, mental, moral, physical, and the sum of these disabilities—death. Consider the hundreds of millions alive to-day that need assistance, and the thousands of millions unconscious in the tomb. Their awakening from death will not be the fulfilment of this prophecy of resurrection. It will mean much more—the uplifting of mind and body to all that was lost in Adam and redeemed at Calvary.

This does not signify universal salvation, except in that the Bible promises that "as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive, every man in his own order"—class. (1 Corinthians 15:22, 23.) The giving to all mankind the full opportunities of the Millennial Kingdom will fulfil God's promise. Those who shall intelligently refuse God's gift of everlasting life, by refusing His reasonable requirements, will die the Second Death. But those who at the conclusion of the Millennial Age shall have profited by The Messiah's Kingdom will be received into God's family and will be granted all the liberties and privileges proper to the sons of God.—Revelation 21:4; 22:3.

Although we should understand what God has promised of Restitution to human perfection for the groaning creation in general, it is still more important that Christians recognise the share of liberty which has already come to them. (Galatians 5:1.) Do not misunderstand me to refer to the great mass, Catholic and Protestant, noted in the statistics as 400,000,000 Christians. Alas, no! That great mass is deceived. According to Bible standards and their own confessions, they have neither lot nor part in the Church which is the Body of Christ.

This great mass is well represented in the nations of Europe warring for commercialism, the one to obtain, and the other to hold, the key of power and access to the world's wealth. Saints there undoubtedly are in all the warring nations; but they are so few that they have virtually no influence, but are forced by the others into the struggle. The mass of these nominal Christians neither know Christ personally nor give evidence of having come into God's family through the begetting of the Holy Spirit. As truly as the heathen of other lands, they are "without God and having no hope." There is a hope for them; but they know it not.

Where lies the responsibility for present conditions—that the millions of Europe are fighting like devils, each army deceived into thinking that it is the Leord's army, fighting for God and righteousness? We believe that the responsibility lies close to the door of the churches of all denominations, and especially close to the door of the religious teachers, who assume great responsibility in calling themselves the clergy and setting themselves above their fellows, styled the laity.

These ministers of the civilized world, more than a quarter of a million in number, represent a highly favored class of humanity. The majority of them have much above the average of education, and far above the average of time for study and thought. How are they using these wonderful opportunities and privileges, and the influence which goes with their positions and which is accentuated by the superstition of the masses?

I freely acknowledge that they are not responsible to me; as it is written, "To his own Master each servant stands or falls." It is quite proper, however, that we remember the Master's words, "Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked and slothful servant." (Luke 19:22.) What a fearful retribution apparently awaits these professed ministers of God and Christ who, instead of using their great opportunities for emancipating the people from the slavery of ignorance, superstition and error, are using them to promote mental bondage!

The clergy neglect their opportunities for educating the people to a proper conception of the rights of man. They have fostered the fallacy that the kingdoms of the world are kingdoms of God, and that serving the King is serving the Lord. They have not taught the people the broad patriotism that "the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof," which He hath given to the children of men; and that national barriers of selfishness and national aggressiveness are contrary to the rights of man. The clergy of each country, supported by the governments, have in turn upheld these governments; and if they have not told the people that the voice of the emperor or the king is the voice of God, they have certainly not disabused them of that idea, which the clergy of past generations inculcated.

Now that the war has come, and the misdirected people are blindly fighting for their errors and misconceptions, what is the attitude of the clergy? Under the pay or protection of the governments, are they not all supporting the governments from which they receive their pay? Are they not intent upon encouraging the ambitions of these governments and stirring up the people to war? Do they not approve the legend on the belts of the German soldiers, "God with us"? Do they not follow the lead of the Archbishop of Canterbury, in England, in encouraging the thought that all who enlist are engaging in a holy war for God? The Archbishop is credited in the press with urging the boys and the girls of Great Britain to marry early and bring up large families, that there may be more such Christian soldiers to battle for church and state.

Policy and hypocrisy are written all over the affairs of the world falsely called Christendom—Christ's Kingdom. These are not Christ's Kingdom, nor are these Christ's ministers, if we shall judge by the Saviour's statements, "His servants ye are to whom ye render service"—whether God or Mammon.

The clergy of lauds not directly involved in the war are praying, and urging the people to pray, to God to stop the war; but we hear no suggestion, from any quarter, of proper preaching and teaching to show the people the brotherhood of the human family and the sin of murder, whether committed by commands of kings, emperors, or otherwise. Where is the courage? Where is the moral stamia? It is lacking. Why? Because true Christianity is lacking.

Christ's true followers are courageous. Jesus refers to them all as overcomers, not sycophants, as lovers of peace, who contend not with carnal weapons. His followers must necessarily, nevertheless, be true heroes, copies of their Master, not afraid to speak the truth and not afraid to die for their courage. What a power a quarter of a million professed ministers of Christ might be if they truly took their stand on His side, lifted up their voices, and even now confessed how seriously they have misled the people in respect to earthly things, as well as regards the things of the hereafter!

Judged by their utterances, the great mass of those professing to be ministers of Christ are hypocrites. In private conversation, if cross-examined, they confess that they do not believe the Bible, and declare that no educated person could believe it to be a Divine revelation. Asked whether they believe in a future life, they answer that they have some hopes of a future life, but that these are built, not upon the Bible declaration of a resurrection of the dead, but upon the Platonic philosophy that nobody is dead. Asked whether they believe in eternal torture, they reply, Certainly not; Indirectly, however, they have given the inference that they believe it; and surely they have not done anything to take from the people that nightmare invented during the Dark Ages, when for twelve hundred years the few Bibles there were were relegated to the cloister and the closet, and the world was taught by self-styled apostolic bishops, who claimed the same authority of inspiration as the Twelve Apostles whom Jesus named as His only mouthpieces.

There were murderers, thieves and drunkards in Jesus' day, as there are to-day; yet the Master denounced as still greater sinners the religious hypocrites of His time who made void God's Word, substituting for it human tradition—deceiving and misleading the people—"blind leaders of the blind." Were He to speak forth to-day, His strongest condemnation would be expressed against the clergy, who seem intent upon keeping the people in darkness respecting the true teachings of the Bible—teaching them evolution and unbelief if they are educated, of delusions of the Dark Ages if they are uneducated. Policy seems to take the place of honesty. The Apostle speaks of such as having their consciences seared—toughened, hardened.

As a result, nearly all ministers will say, "We do not believe in the doctrine of eternal torture. We would not think of torturing anybody ourselves; we do not know any human being so depraved that he would wish to torture his fellow-creatures everlastingly. We do not believe that any god would do so. We doubt whether any devil would long take pleasure in such sufferings." Asked why they support creeds which so teach, and why they give such inference to the public, some reply, "It is required of us by our denominations. We would much prefer to tell the truth about the Love of God and His arrangement for the blessing of the non-elect during the Times of Restitution. (Acts 3:19-21.) But we are bound hand and foot. Our support and our honor amongst men depend on our adherence to this doctrine. If we could see a way out of the difficulty, we would be glad to be liberated."

Others answer that they give their consciences no concern, that their denomination takes the responsibility for its creed and for its teachers. Others answer that they are Higher Critics and Evolutionists, who believe that they must not tell the people their heart sentiments; but that they hope that soon public sentiment will outgrow the influence of the Bible, and that the they will be called upon to teach a Christless and, if necessary, a Godless morality.

Such bartering of the honor of the Almighty for honor of men and an easy living is as difficult to understand as that of Judas, who sold Jesus for thirty pieces of silver. So seared are the consciences of these educated men that they seem not to realise that blasphemy is the most serious of sins; and that directly or indirectly giving the inference that the God of all grace, the Father of mercies, is roasting 999 out of every 1,000 of humanity is the worst blasphemy that could be concocted. How much allowance God makes for these blasphemers we know not, but we feel that theirs is a terrible position. Would that some word of mine might assist in awakening their consciences; and that even yet nobility and manhood, not to say saintship, might gain the victory!

And does not the pew share this responsibility? Has it no meaning to intelligent men and women that they have subscribed to a creed that blasphemes God's holy name, totally misrepresents His character, and throws an utterly false light on the Bible? Is it sufficient that these should say, "We no longer believe these creeds"? Do not their names on the rolls, their present at church services, and their contribution to the upkeep of these creeds and their clerical defenders constitute a responsibility in the sight of God and in the esteem of all honest men and women? How long shall intelligent people halt between creeds of hypocrisy and cha of honesty? How long will they bow down before creed idols more horrible than any worshiped by the heathen?

While mankind is celebrating to-day the birth of this great nation which stands for liberty, freedom, emancipation from the thralldom of church and state, let us personally make fresh resolutions that we will stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ makes free, and be His servants, loyal, faithful unto death, hoping to receive "the Crown of Life, which fadeth not away."

Goodyear Tubes Can't Leak

They Outlast Any Tire

Inner tubes are made to hold air. Those that are made of one thick piece of rubber are apt to be porous. Neither can foreign matter be detected. So the air escapes and your tires run into trouble. Tubes that are colored contain much mineral matter. That heats up under friction and destroys the tube before its time.

Goodyear Inner Tubes are made of thin sheets of pure natural gray rubber. So the slightest flaw is detected and eliminated. Then these perfect sheets are wrapped layer on layer and vulcanized into an inseparable unit. The valve patch, too, is made part of the tube. It is not stuck on. And so our method makes the tube proof against inherent leaks.

14% Heavier

Countless tests have proved that Goodyear Laminated Inner Tubes outlast, on the average, any tire

Yet since those tests we have added extra layers. The smaller sizes are 12½ per cent thicker, the larger sizes 16 per cent—all pure rubber. They average 14 per cent heavier.

20% Lower Priced

Besides giving extra quality, we cut our prices 20 per cent on tubes when we announced our great reduction on Goodyear Fortified Tires. That was February 15th—in the face of the war tax on all our raw materials.

And that reduction—our third within two years—was caused by the logic of users, that Goodyear Tubes and Tires have won.

Their demand compelled us to double our factory capacity at Bowmanville, Ont. And it also cut our factory cost per tube and tire.

So this saving we pass on to Goodyear users in the form of betterments and lower prices.

Buy Fewer Tubes

No matter what tires you use, get these Goodyear Laminated Tubes and you will buy fewer tubes than in the past. For they outlast any tire that's made. And these leak-proof tubes are sold, remember, at about the prices of ordinary tubes.

Let Goodyear Tubes reveal Goodyear standards to you. Then you will want the famous Goodyear Fortified Tires that embody those standards, too. Any dealer can supply you. If he hasn't them in stock he can get them from our nearby branch.

The Clover Harvest

CLOVER for hay should be cut as soon as the first blossoms begin to turn brown. The mower fore the dew has fallen or in the forenoon as soon as the dew is off; and it is not wise to cut down too much at one time.

Clover hay should be cured in the shade, and not exposed to the hot sun unless it is frequently turned. The sun quickly dries the thin leaves, causing them to become brittle and easily lost. The leaves are the most valuable part of the hay. The drying of the leaves also closes the natural channel for the moisture to get out of the stems. After the clover has been cut, it should be turned with a tedder, side-delivery rake, or hay rake, as soon as the leaves in the upper part of the swath are thoroughly wilted. The object should be to keep the hay loose in the swath or windrow that the wind may have a free circulation through it, and to keep it from exposure to the hot sun, as far as possible.

Before the leaves and stems become dry and stiff, the hay should be raked into windrows. If it looks like rain when the hay is being raked, it should be put into well-made cocks, and, if possible, covered with cloth covers. If the weather appears likely to continue good, the clover should be left in the windrow over night and turned once or twice the following forenoon. In good weather it should then be fit for the stack or the mow the second afternoon. If the weather is such that the hay is not fit to stack but will still go into the cock, it should be put into good-sized cocks and left for some time.

A WEAK HEART

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use flood the system with rich, red, vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefit.

Doctor Blames Wife's Eugenic Ideas For Suit

NEW YORK, June 25.—Dr. Charles E. Weber, a young physician and surgeon at No. 6 Stuyvesant Avenue, Brooklyn, filed some remarkable affidavits before Justice Shearn in the Supreme Court opposing Mrs. Weber's action for separation. In the affidavits he alleged his wife refused to bear children until she was absolutely sure she could properly support them. He also says she applied other eugenic theories in their domestic relations.

Mrs. Weber, so her husband told the Court, feared motherhood and suggested that they live in a state of platonic friendship in which mutual love and caresses would be sufficient until such time as his income was large enough to support a family.

A general denial of Dr. Weber's allegations were made in Mrs. Weber's affidavit. They were married, she said, on November 3, 1911, and their domestic happiness began to waver while they were in Lakewood, N.J., on their honeymoon. She had been given a dowry of $3,000 by her father, and Dr. Weber, in insisting that the money be turned over to him, said:

"He would not assume any responsibility of supporting my children unless I did so, and that he did not intend to take up housekeeping, and was disgusted with the whole affair."

In describing what took place after their return from Lakewood, Dr. Weber said:

"We went to live with her brother, Dr. Herman H. Gruber, and then with my sister, Kate Shapiro, where she still refused to live with me. Learning the true state of affairs, my sister remonstrated with her and in my presence she told my sister:

"'Will you support my child if I have one? This man does not make enough money to support children. I will have to accumulate a lot of money for him before I can be his wife in that way.'"

The Webers later rented an apartment on One Hundred and Fourtieth Street, where their troubles continued, declared the young physician, who swore that:

"During one of the discussions at our home in the presence of members of my family her father remonstrated with her as to the mode of life she was living with me and she exclaimed: 'Are you going to support my children if I have any?' and he said 'Yes.' She replied, 'Your word is not good enough. I want a guarantee to that effect,' and he promptly slapped her face."

The couple separated on March 1, 1913, when Dr. Weber agreed to pay his wife $10 a week alimony for the period of one year. When that agreement ended he offered to pay her $5 a week alimony. Through the efforts of attorneys, Dr. Weber set forth, his wife agreed to return to him if he accepted the following three propositions, which were offered by her father:

Proposition Wife Offered.

"(1) That she was to return to me and live with me as before, she conceding nothing, and I was to wait until she changed her mind about assuming the duties of wifehood and motherhood.

"(2) That I provide adequate support if she lived separate and apart from me.

"(3) That if either or both of the two propositions were rejected that she would go to court, sue men and raise as big fuss in the newspapers, so as to ruin my character and spoil my reputation as a physician."

Mrs. Weber, in her affidavit, denied her husband's charges.

Tan, Red or Freckled

To free your summer-soiled skin of its muddiness, freckles, blotches or tan, the best thing to do is to try to free yourself of the skin itself. This is easily accomplished by the use of ordinary mercolised wax, which can be had at any drugstore. Use at night as you use cold cream, washing it off in the morning. Immediately the offending surface skin begins to come off in fine powder-like particles. Gradually the entire cuticle is absorbed, without pain or inconvenience. The second layer of skin now in evidence presents a spotless whiteness and sparkling beauty obtainable in no other way I've heard of.

If the heat tends to loosen and wrinkle the skin, there's an effective and harmless remedy you can readily make at home. Just let an ounce of powdered saxolite dissolve in a half pint witch hazel and bathe your face in the liquid. This at once tightens the skin and smooths out the lines, making you look years younger.—Emily Coulson in Home Queen.

Proving It—"I gave you a penny yesterday to be good, and to-day you are just as bad as can be." Willie—"Yes; I am trying to show that you got your money's worth yesterday."

Eczema Was Cured Twelve Years Ago

Dr. Chase's Ointment Proved to be a Permanent Cure

The old idea of eczema being a disease of the blood has been pretty well exploded by the record of cures made by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Some doctors still advise internal treatment, but the results are slow and uncertain, and too often a lamentable failure. With Dr. Chase's Ointment it is different. You apply the ointment to the sore parts. It cleanses the sores, and soon sets up the healing process. In a few days you can see with your own eyes the wonderful change that is taking place and are encouraged to keep up the treatment until the cure is complete and the sores replaced by smooth, natural skin.

It is wise to look after your general health, keep the bowels regular and the blood rich but you can depend on Dr. Chase's Ointment to cure the eczema if you will do your part and apply it regularly.

Mr. W. H. Roberts, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "I can recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to anyone suffering from itching skin disease. I had eczema on my leg and suffered terribly from the itching. I had a doctor treat me for four months without relief, and I was getting worse all the time. A second doctor gave some relief for a time, but made no cure. I tried several advertised treatments, but without relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. This ointment cured me in a month. That was twelve years ago, and I have never had a sign of the old trouble since.

'Since then we have always kept Dr. Chase's Ointment in the house, and find it invaluable for chafing, chilblains, insect stings and burns. I would not be without it if it cost $5 a box."

"This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. W. H. Roberts, and believe his statement regarding the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment to be true and correct." —(Signed) Alex. Horne, Justice of the Peace.

France Ready For Patient Effort to Ransom Peace

PARIS, July 2.—To put an end as far as possible to the criticism evident in recent sessions of the Chambers of the Cabinet, appeared at the viani, accompanied by eight members of the Cabinet, appeared at the Ministerial bench in the Senate today and taking the floor, spoke on the appropriations bill for the third quarter.

This bill, which would appropriate $1,120,000,000 to cover government expenses for the three months beginning July 1, was passed by the Chamber of Deputies last Friday.

Mr. Viviani, speaking with impressive eloquence, explained that the government had no desire to take the upper hand of the representatives of the people.

"Parliament has the control, the government the execution," said the Premier. "That is the essential principle of all democracy. We wish neither the rapt optimism nor bitter disenchantment which breaks the springs of justice. We ask merely reasoned and methodical confidence. It required a great, spontaneous exertion for this country, habituated criticisms, to become tratable. Now it is ready for the long and patient effort which will be the ransom of the peace of the world."

Mr. Viviani was accorded the warmest of demonstrations by the Senate. At the conclusion of his address Mr. Alexander Millerand, Minister of War, took the floor and delivered a speech.

"At the moment the Senate is called upon to vote the appropriations necessary for national defence," he said, "I wish to give an account of the stewardship of the Ministry of War from the outbreak of the hostilities."

When he mentioned possible discouragement he was interrupted by cries of "There is none."

"From August 1 to April 1," continued the Minister, "France has increased her military production sixfold. The curve for munitions has never ceased to mount, nor that representing the manufacture of our 75's. I can give satisfying assurances also regarding the heavy artillery and small arms. From January 1st to May 15 the other essentials of the war are equally encouraging. We are determined to pursue our enemies, whatever arms they may employ."

Mr. Millerand paid homage to the civil and military physicians whose devotion and patriotism had aided so materially the organization of the sanitary service, and added:

"None better than I knows errors and weaknesses, but we must not let details blind our vision. All our allies publicly recognize the excellence of our military industries. I ask my campatriots to be no less just."

The appropriations were unanimously passed.

GASES SUCCEED POISONED ARROWS

A Thousand Times More Destructive Than Worst Missile That Savage Warrior Could Invent.

The primitive warrior who used poisoned arrows when he did not intend to eat his victim could never have given the modern fighter any lessons in savagery, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine. Poisoned arrows are not being used in the European war, but apparently only for the reason that they are out of date and do not destroy life on a sufficiently large scale to meet the requirements of a twentieth century war.

To get satisfactory results the modern science of chemistry has been called into service. Poison gases are used, and if the wind is not right for this, liquid fire is thrown into the enemy's trenches. With the conditions favourable, a dense volume of poison gas that follows the ground in a colud fifteen feet or more in depth is sent down on the wind to the enemy's trenches.

Whoever may have been responsible originally, for the resort to poison gas, there is little doubt that both the Germans and the Allies are now using it. The Germans used it in their recent attack on Hill No. 60, near Ypres, Belgium. In the Argonne forest, in France, each side attacks with gas at every opportunity. According to press reports the gas used by the French does not kill or permanently injure its victims, but renders them unconscious for a period of one or two hours. In a recent article the new French turpinite bomb was described from information coming from an e apparently reliabl source. In the light of civilised standards, the best that can be said of turpenite is that it kills instantly.

FRENCH CEDE TRENCHES IN MOSELLE DISTRICT

ALL OTHER GERMAN ATTACKS ARE REPULSED

GERMANS MAKE A GAIN IN THE MOSELLE REGION

Superior Forces Compel the French to Retire From 1000 Yards of Trenches, But They Took Up Stronger Positions in the Rear and Repulsed All Further Attacks---Other Assaults North of Arras Were Stopped With Heavy Enemy Losses.

BIG BRITISH STEAMER SHELLED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, July 5.—The capture of 1,000 yards of French trenches in the fighting near the Moselle River was admitted in the official despatches to the War Office this afternoon. The Germans swept forward on a three-mile front, hurling superior forces into the attack, the attack was preceded by a violent bombardment that wrecked portions of the French earthworks and made them untenable in the face of determined infantry assaults. The French, therefore, retired and took up stronger positions a short distance in the rear, from which all further enemy attacks have been repulsed. Other German attacks, east of the same region, and along the Sector north of Arras, have been repulsed with heavy losses.

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION.

PETROGRAD, July 5.—"On the Wiznica River we were successful in stopping the enemy's concentrated attacks east of Krasnik," says an official statement. "The assaults, however, have been renewed with violence. From Zamosc the enemy's attempt to advance on Krasnotaf resulted in most desperate fighting on Friday night and Saturday morning, particularly near the junction of Wola and Widprz rivers. The enemy sustained heavy losses near the villages of Tarzymirhy and Zyjaw. On Saturday morning our forces, by gallant fighting, recaptured the village of Tarzymirphy, which had been taken by the enemy on Friday." East and south-east of Lemberg it is officially admitted that General Ivanoff has fallen back from Gnilalipa before superior enemy forces, and has taken up a position along the Milotalipo.

ROME, July 5.—The Italian artillery all along the Tyrol-Carnia frontier has wrecked modern works erected by Austrians at a cost of many millions of dollars, according to the stories told by the Austrian prisoners. As fast as new guns are mounted in Malborgets main defenses they are silenced by the Italians. "The artillery action along the Tyrol-Carnia frontier continues," General Cadorna reported today. "Our infantry pushed the enemy down the southern slope of Val Piccolo. On Carsie Plateau we repulsed enemy attacks, capturing 500 prisoners and two guns."

GOT AWAY FROM SUB.

QUEENSTOWN, July 5. — The big British steamer Anglo-Californian, a victim of a German submarine attack, is proceeding into this port with seven dead and many of her crew injured. She wireless to-day that a U boat had shelled her, but that she had escaped the torpedo attack and had outdistanced the submarine. Ambulances and surgeons are awaiting her arrival.

The Anglo-Californian is a 7,333-ton vessel, one of the fleet owned by the Nitrate Producers' Steamship Co., of London. She was built in 1912, and is 425 feet long, with a 56-foot beam.

HAVE MADE IMPORTANT GAINS.

LONDON, July 5.—Under Secretary for War Tennant denied in the House of Commons this afternoon that the War Office was concealing from the public any news of a serious reverse at the Dardanelles. "On the contrary," he said, "the Allies have made important gains on the Gallipoli Peninsula in the last fortnight."

LONDON, July 5.—The oil steamer "Fiery Cross," from Philadelphia for Havre, has been submarined.

ESCORTED BY DESTROYERS.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The American Line steamer St. Louis arrived here to-day from Liverpool. She was escorted down the channel by two torpedo boat destroyers to a distance west of Daunt's Rock, probably owing to the presence on board of Mr. D. A. Thomas, the British capitalist, who comes to Canada and the United States to supervise and expedite the production of munitions for the Allies.

NOT CONTEMPLATING CONSCRIPTION.

LONDON, July 5.—The British Government is not contemplating conscription to obtain men for the army, Premier Asquith declared in the Commons this afternoon. His statement was prompted by a question from a member who said he thought he saw a step toward conscription in the introduction of the National Registration Bill.

HAVE MADE PEACE OFFERS.

BERLIN, July 5.—The Serbian Government organs received here to-day declare that Austria has twice made peace offers to Serbia.

LEGISLATIVE REPRESENTATIVE DEAD.

TORONTO, July 5.—J. Harvey Hall, for a number of years Legislative representative of the five big Railway Brotherhoods, Conductors, Engineers, Trainmen, Firemen and Telegraphers, taking care of their legislative interests in the Dominion House and other legislatures of the Dominion, and of late years Legislature representative of the Order of Railway Conductors, died this morning at his home there, following an operation.

MONTREAL, July 5.—Fifty Canadian and United States citizens were among the crew of the steamer Anglo-Californian which arrived at Queenstown, Ireland, to-day, with eight of the crew dead and eight seriously wounded from shells fired from a submarine. The captain was among the dead.

39TH BATTALION IS NOW SAFE IN OLD COUNTRY

140 Peterborough Men in the Unit Which Reached Plymouth on the C.P.R. Liner Missanabie on Sunday Morning.

GOOD NEWS FOR FRIENDS

OTTAWA, July 4.—The Militia Department has received the news of the safe arrival of the C.P.R. liner Missinabie at Plymouth Saturday. On board were the Canadian Dental Corps, one company each from the 38th (Ottawa) and 47th (Vancouver) Battalions and the 39th (Belleville) Battalion complete.

The above announcement will bring relief to many homes in the city, as there are 140 Peterborough officers and men with the 39th which sailed from Montreal on June 22. Nothing was said about their departure from Belleville, although a number of relatives of the local men were in Belleville and witnessed the big send-off that was given the battalion. Capt. Carruthers, of the 57th Regiment, is quartermaster of the 39th, Capt. Ross Cameron of Peterborough, is second in command of D company, and Lieut. W. Eastwood is a platoon commander. Sergt. Instructor Dunkerley of the 57th, is Regimental Sergeant of the 39th.

"Bill" Crowley Home On Brief Visit While On Way to Ottawa

Mr. Will Crowley spent the week-end in the city visiting his mother and his sister, Mrs. Wm. Lynch. He enlisted with the Canadian Engineers for active service and leaves to-night for Ottawa, where he expects to remain several weeks until the end of the month, when he expects to proceed to Shorncliffe, Eng. Mr. Crowley resigned a lucrative position as superintendent of inside work with the Telephone Department of the Alberta Government. While in Peterborough he met many of his old friends, who added to their farewells their best wishes for his safe-keeping. "Bill' appears to be in fine condition, and just as physically fit as when he was one of the stalwarts of the Peterborough rugby, hockey and lacrosse clubs.

Wish They Were In Canada

Little Miss Louise Welsh, daughter of Pte. Richard Welsh, of the 39th Battalion, 3rd C.E.F., has received a very interesting letter from her aunt and uncle, 61 Station Road, Rainham, Kent, England. The aunt and uncle wish they were in Canada, away from the war. The letter refers to a Zeppelin going over Kent on Friday, June 18th.

The letter in part is as follows:

"We only wish we were out in Canada or somewhere else, away from this wicked war for we are scared out of our lives with the air-craft. There was a Zeppelin came over here last Friday night about 12 o'clcok and dropped about 21 bombs around about Rainham. What with them going off and the guns firing at them, we were nearly scared out of our wits. We had to get the children up out of bed and get them dressed. Poor little things it frightened them you may be sure. We are afraid to go to bed. In fact I do not undress until it is daylight. There are men on patrol from 11 until 2 in the morning."

LETTER FROM SON MOTHER THOUGHT HAD BEEN KILLED

Disappeared in Turmoil at Langemarck—Sergt. Fred Long Writes From a German Hospital—Letter Was Delayed.

ASKS FOR CIGARETTES

After she had resigned herself to the belief that her son had been killed in the battle of Langemarck, Mrs. George Long, 502 George street, received a letter from him this morning dated from a German hospital and conveying the intelligence that he was "getting on fine." It was probably the happiest experience of this mother's life. Her son Fred had enlisted with the first contingent in Valcartier. From a private he rapidly rose through the various non-commissioned positions until just before the big engagement beginning on April 22nd he was made sergeant. Then he was officially reported missing.

Since those heart-rending days Mrs. Long had not received a word of hope that her son lived. The official casualty lists did not mention his name. His Colonel did not know what had become of him. The young sergeant was last seen leading a detachment of men toward the enemy. Apparently none of them had returned.

And yet the appended letter was written on May 15. It has been exceedingly dilatory. Nearly two months oh the way, have been two long hopeless months for the young soldier's mother and the other members of the family. The letter, addressed to the mother, was first received by Mr. Sam Long, a brother. He opened it fully expecting that the news it contained would be the worst. His surprise and delight may be imagined, and the breaking of the tiding to his mother proved a pleasant and welcome task. Mr. Robert Long of the Examiner, is also a brother of Sergt. Long, whose letter is as follows:

Saturday, May 15, 1915.

Dear Mother,—Just a few lines to let you know I got wounded on the 22nd of April. I have been in the hospital for three weeks now and am getting on fine. I get plenty of food and they are very good to us here. We don't get any smokes given to us, so tell Sam to send as many cigarettes as possible, as I am dying for a smoke. I am only allowed to write once a fortnight. Hope all the family are well. Remember me to them all. Trusting this letter finds you alright. (I must stop here.)

Your loving son,
FRED.

KITCHENER'S NEW ARMY NOT YET AT THE FRONT

Special London Letter Says Not a Man of the Wonderful Organization Has Left England But That They Will Soon be on the Way.

A NEW WAR VESSEL

Special Cable to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, July 5.—A special London letter to the World dated June 23 says: Not a man of Kitchener's army, some two and a half millions strong before the last call—has yet left this country, either for Flanders or the Dardanelles. Before this issue is published, however, a number of a million of them will be under way in one direction or another.

The force at present operating and in reserve in France is over 750,000, amde up of regulars and territorials, whose losses are being automatically made up of regulars and territorials, lantly and are fine soldiers, but unless every expectation is falsified Kitchener's army represents the most splendid fighting forces, physically and morally that Britain has ever put in the field.

There are many mysterious stories of a new class of warship, nicknamed "whippets" that has been constructed in considerable numbers. It is declared to be of an extremely shallow draught, low-lying so as to be almost invisible in fact, practically a seagoing gun platform. These strange craft are oil driven with a speed of forty knots and a bit more. Their use is conjectured to be two-fold for anti-submarine warfare, and for operating in extremely shallow waters.

PTE. W. LEVOIR HAD HIS ARM FRACTURED

He is a Brother of Private Robert Levoir Who Was Invalided Home From Salisbury Plain—Resided at 699 Harvey Street.

18 YEARS IN NAVY

Pte. William Levoir, of the 57th detachment, 2nd Battalion, 1st Canadian Expeditionary Force, is officially reported to be suffering with a fractured arm, from a gun shot wound. This news came to his brother, Pte. Robert Levoir, 699 Harvey Street, yesterday morning. Pte. William Levoir is reported to be in Ilford Hospital.

Pte. William Levoir was one of three brothers who enlisted in the 57th detachment of the 1st Contingent. One of the others, Pte. Robert Levoir, Harvey Street, became ill at Salisbury Plain, and was invalided home. He has since been granted a pension by the Canadian government. This was the first pension granted in Peterborough in connection with the present war. The family of another brother, Pte. Thomas Levoir, live on Edinburgh Street. He is also in the 2nd Battalion.

At Salisbury Plain, Pte. William Levoir, the brother who was reported wounded, had the misfortune to break his ankle and he was in an hospital there for some time.

Pte. Levoir was born in England and resided in Peterborough about a year before enlisting, being employed at the Waterworks. He was an ex-navy man, having spent 18 years in the British navy.

A concert will be given in the Salvation Army Temple to-night under the auspices of the Wives' and Mothers' Club, who are anxious to send more supplies to the boys in the hospital, at Shorncliffe.

An excellent programme has been arranged, and afterwards a sale of some lovely goods will take place. The Army is turning over all the proceeds to the Club for the purpose of purchasing supplies. All are welcome.

TOBACCO FOR THE SOLDIERS

Question to be Discussed at Public Meeting Shortly.

People of Peterborough are no doubt aware of the movement on foot by the Overseas Club to supply tobacco for soldiers at the front; in fact a number have contributed generously towards this fund which has been conducted by Mr. F Browness, the local secretary of the Overseas Club. The movement is now, however, to be set going on a larger scale, and His Worship Mayor Buller will be asked to call a public meeting at which the tobacco question will be discussed and at which Mr. Arthur Private, who has come to Canada to further this work, will be the principal speaker. The public is advised to watch for the announcement of this meeting.

THREE BAPTIZED.

COOPERATION CALLED FOR.

In another column is found an article dealing with the new home, and new opportunities for useful work provided by the opening of the Simcoe street rooms for the local branch of the Red Cross Society. The chance is presented of putting the work on a basis that is needed to secure the greatest effectiveness. There should be to secure this end a larger measure of cooperation, so that overlapping may not result, and energy not be despersed, by more or less ineffective individuality of action. The zeal that incites individual activities is entirely commendable; but in a quasi military work, as this is, the principles of military practice should be applied. There must be system and co-ordination of effort. Conditions as to the needs to be met by Red Cross work are continually changing, and it is desirable that individuals and individual groups should keep in touch with the requirements as made known by the Red Cross Society. This work is of the very first importance, and it is desirable that every ounce of Red Cross Work should be made to count. This can best be done by cooperation, which simply means working together without wasted effort, or at cross purposes.

THE CALL OF DUTY.

Do we appreciate the situation? Some of use may do; but it is feared that the mass of the people of Canada are not seised of the solemn and deep significance of the meaning and potentialities of national and individual evil, involved in the tremendous struggle in which we and the greater half of the world are engaged. We have a general knowledge and feeling that the liberties of the world and the commonest rights of humanity are not only menaced, but attacked by the most powerful, most thoroughly organised force of despotism that the world has ever known. It is also vaguely felt that, if the sinister spirit of militarism and tyranny, embodied in Germany and her allies prevails, there will be an end of human liberty; for the idea of "world domination" will not if successful, be confined in, its evil application to a few contiguous or neighbouring states, but to all countries. Canada, of course, as part of the warring Empire, would be one of the. first to suffer; and "world domination" if realized cannot fail to place its mailed fist heavily upon the United States.

We feel all this vaguely and indefinitely; our loose ideas on the subject do not extend to the idea of how, in detail, national and personal liberty and well-being are involved. Our country and our life, are the only things that really count. Our country represents our life, all our interest and all that makes life worth living, or even life itself. Our family interests, our home interests, our social interests, our individual interests, our personal liberty of speech and action, our very independence of soul, are at stake.

As things are now and so far, we live our life as usual—we strive to do "business as usual"; we reap and sow; we bargian and trade, because service has been given and sacrifices made, by others and by our own, whom we at present seem to feel inclined to let bear the brunt of the battle. We do not think enough to appreciate enough the fact that the noble little army we sent overseas, has in the splendid discharge of duty, been practically decimated by death, wounds, sickness and capture, and that if we are to take our share in the preservation of our liberty, of our homes, of our lives—as lives that can be enjoyed—in peace and freedom, from systematic and unceasing enslavement to militarism—we must fill their places to the end that the fight for humanity, for ourselves and our dearest interests, may be won, and that we—all of us—may be saved the indescribable evils that would come upon us as surely as the darkness falls with the setting sun.

We don't yet know what the calamity of coming under the triumphant heel of German militarism would be in detail; but we can form some idea. In another part of this issue is reprinted an article from a German paper which shows what is the spirit of German "hate" of England—and England in this case includes Canada. If the spirit is so malignant, in the abstract, what will be the force of its application?

Under these circumstances, the Government and people of Canada are called upon to awake to a realization of the need of the hour—of what the call of duty means. We look to the Government to lead the way in arousing the national sense of duty, in kindling the fires of popular enthusiasm for our self-preservation — the preservation of all we held most dear, and which lost would make death a welcome blessing. We should, ourselves, come to think and think deeply and clearly of the situation in which we find ourselves, and of the duty we owe to ourselves. We feel and know that in this crisis, more Canadian soldiers are necessary; we feel and know that in the interests of our self-preservation recruiting must be stimulated. We may feel that our duty is to our job, to our occupations, to our routine duties, but we should, if we think, also feel that our job, our occupations our routine duties, will all go by the board if we do not individually and collectively do our bit in warding off the danger that threatens them and help destroy the hellish system that constitutes the menace. We must come to think, that this can only be done by more united action, more universal cooperation.

While the call of the moment is for recruiting, there is a still wider and more presently pertinent call. There is in the first place a call for the exercise of more sound judgment—more "horse sense"—in dealing with, in accepting or neglecting, those who offer themselves for the greatest service of their lives. There is also a call for larger recognition of the duty the country as a whole owes to the soldier who is accepted — a recognition that will render it easier to make the sacrifice which volunteering for service means; a recognition of our duty to give the soldier a feeling that the family he leaves behind—the hardest sacrifice of all—will not be neglected while he fights and probably dies for them—and for us. A larger share of assurance to this effect would encourage recruiting; and a deeper interest in providing for the wounded in every possible way, would make the work easier. But the one great incentive would be a realization of what our duty means in protecting the liberties we possess and enjoying "as usual" the privilege of peaceful pursuit of the ordinary routine of life.

THE SUN LIFE'S MILLION.

The Sun Life Assurance Company is to be congratulated upon its prompt decision to subscribe for a million dollars of the new British War Loan, and the British Government is also to be congratulated upon the adoption of a rate of interest which makes it possible for great fiduciary institutions such as this to put large blocks of their clients' funds into the national security. The policy-holders, and particularly the participating policyholders, of the Sun Life may now feel that they are "doing their bit" for the financial support of the Empire —a feeling which will doubtless help to increase the numbers of the Sun Life's clients. The slight loss in interest earnings which may result from the purchase will be more than offset by the general strengthening of its assets, to say nothing of the advertising which it will receive all over the world as the result of doing the thing in a big, prompt and courageous way.

The transaction is a typical Macaulay move, with that touch of genius which has distinguished the career of the Sun Life from its early inception. It is true that in these days it is not hard for the Sun Life to do big things in a big way. A million-dollar subscription for bonds, for instance, is not an overwhelming undertaking for a company which has over 94 million dollars of assets, and increases that total by a million every two or three months. And if the interest yield on this particular million is somewhat below the average which the Sun Life is accustomed to secure, it is a great deal higher than the Sun or any other insurance company has ever before, in the whole history of life insurance, been able to secure upon the direct obligations of the greatest Government in the world.—Montreal Financial Times.

Brazen Attempt To Bribe Royal Commissioner

Of all the ugly and sordid things disclosed in the investigation of Manitoba's political "mess" perhaps nothing is more significant of political degradation and shamelessness than one of the telegrams from the Manitoba Premier, Sir Rodmond Roblin, to Hon. Robert Rogers, the Federal Minister. No wonder Judge Macdonald indignantly denounced even the implied insinuation of an attempt to influence him. And now wonders the people of Manitoba discount their former Premier's attempted explanation. The telegram carries on its very face its own explanation:

"Winnipeg, April 30.— To Hon. R. Rogers Ottawa. (Confidential):

"Close friends say very desirable that Geoffrey E. Maconald, son of one of the Commissioners (Judge Macdonald), now with Strathcona Horse, be given a commission, say Lieutenant. See General, as to have no cipher with him, and explain situation so that he will understand and act promptly. Am sure he will do this for me. Proceedings here already dragging. Anderson says most important thing to secure promotion. Kelly's eldest son died yesterday. (Signed) Roblin."

"Very desirable!" The "most important thing"! "Confidential"! A thing so "desirable' and so "important to both the sender and the receiver of that telegram of course was "confidential." But the interests of justice, an independent judiciary, and the rights of the province of Manitoba and the people of Canada—away with all these trifles. Of what important thing," in the eyes of the tunes of political exploiters and their beneficiaries are at stake? The "most imoptrant thing," in the eyes of the Knight, was that the Dominion Minister should "see General," the Hon. Sam Hughes, 'to secure promotion" for the "son of one of the Commissioners" investigating the case in which both Knight and Minister are involved. And lest the bluff and blustering "General" might "smell a rat," the Minister is exhorted to "explain situation so that he will understand and act promptly. Am sure he will do this for me." Did Rogers ever "explain" to Hughes what Roblin wanted? And what did the 'General" say

The pity of it is that the people have become so accustomed to these forms of political chicanery and theft that the power of popular indignation seems to be paralyzed. Yesterday's repeat that the guilty contractor had "quietly quitted Manitoba" suggests either that his case is hopeless or that he at least has become disgusted with the whole mess. Evidence of even a weak imitation of the scruples of Judas Iscariot might relieve the otherwise monotonous sordidness of the Roblin-Rogers scandal. —The Globe.

Are you doing your bit to help the cause of Canada and Empire in the present crisis?

IS THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA SHOWING THE WAY OF DUTY TO THE PEOPLE?

Everywhere people are discussing the grave position of affairs in this country. The situation is grave, partly because of the crisis in Great Britain and partly because of conditions purely Canadian. The gravest feature of this grave situation is the oppressive silence and apparent inaction at Ottawa.

It may be that this silence and inaction is more apparent than real. It may be that the Government is doing its best to meet the extraordinary conditions which the war has created. It may be that the Borden Cabinet is doing everything it can to expedite recruiting, the making of war supplies, the shipping of goods and footstuffs to Great Britain, France and Russia—but if so the public does not know it.

Sir Robert Borden is silent. He has made no move to enlist the service of Canada's biggest industrial, commercial and financial leaders as Mr. Asquith has done in Britain. Sir George Foster is silent also, and if he is taking active steps to promote Canada's trade and commerce, he is not talking about it. Hon. Robert Rogers has had no message for the Canadian people, although he is reported to have personally investigated contract conditions in New York. Hon. Mr. White has made one speech on financial questions and given out one important interview, but he has nothing constructive to offer. His address at Durham was largely a partisan utterance. Hon. Mr. Cochrane is busily engaged in trying to organize the National Transcontinental, and is the one Minister who is dealing constructively and definitely with one phase of our acute commerrial situation. Hon. Sam Hughes in the Militia Department has done better work in recent months, and, while not above criticism in certain respects, has accomplished a great deal. Hon. Mr. Kemp is attempting to bring order out of chaos in the Overseas Department, but it is questionable whether he is radical enough to make the necessary improvement. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his lieutenants are apparently lolling in their arm-chairs and allowing national affairs to drift.

That appears to be the situation. There is a lack of leadership, a lack of discussion of public affairs of great moment, a lack of spectacular action, and a lack of impressive appeal to the people to help the Government meet the national and imperial crisis.

Canada will have a great crop this year, and there will be a demand in England for our apples, wheat and flour. What is the Government doing to provide the shipping necessary to transport this produce cheaply and quickly across the Atlantic? Will the apples rot under the trees and the wheat glut the elevators when September comes, because there is a lack of ships in the harbours of Montreal and Quebec and St. John and Halifax? Will the few ships available charge such high freight rates that the farmers will get a small net price for their apples and wheat and cheese? These are questions to which the people would like answers.

Hon. Lloyd George has called in some of the best men of the Empire to help organize the industries of Great Britain. France is doing the same. Why is there not a Minister of Munitions in Canada? Lord Curzon says Canadian deliveries of munitions of war have been slow. Rumour has it that the transport motor cars and waggons for the Second Contingent, which arrived in England weeks ago, are still stored on this side of the Atlantic. Manufacturers complain that they cannot get orders in such a way as to give them steady work, but that these come only in fits and starts. There is an apparent lack of national organization such as the new Coalition Government of Britain is successfully creating.

Great Britain needs munitions of war in vast quantities, and Canada has the workmen to supply them. Because the Canadian Government and the Canadian manufacturers have failed to organize for this work, Lloyd George is taking our mechanics over to Great Britain to put them to work. The first batch sailed last week, and a party will go forward every week from now on. This is a disgrace to Canada, a biting, bitter condemnation of our slackness in national organization.

The fault must lie at Ottawa. Lord Curzon says that offers have been made from Canadian manufacturers, and that these efforts were referred to the Ottawa authorities. The manufacturers would respond to appeals if such were made to them. They are patriotic. They are anxious to help. All they need is some one to organize them, and this is where the Government should have come in some time ago. Apparently the Cabinet has not realized the vital importance and gravity of the industrial and commercial situation. The manufacturers have appealed to the Government when the Government should have been appealing to the manufacturers.

Let us be fair and admit that no Government in Canada ever before faced such a difficult and unusual situation. No political foresight could possibly have foretold what has happened. Nevertheless, extraordinary circumstances demand extraordinary action. The men in the Government are asked to be more courageous and more resourceful than any of their predecessors. They are asked to do almost the impossible but they have behind them a nation which realizes the gravity of the times, the supreme importance to the Empire and to mankind of this struggle against the military despotism of Prussia. Any appeal for help to leaders in banking, commerce, industry, agriculture will bring to their service a thousand patriotic and capable citizens willing to work without hope of pay or reward. The powder is ready, but the Government must apply the match.

This war will not be over this year. It may not end next year. England stood alone in the world against Napoleon, and England won because she had a Pitt and a Nelson and a Wellington, who had faith in England. Napoleon tried to crush her carrying trade and her world-empire. From 1796 to 1815, England fought and fought and fought. Copenhagen in 1801, Trafalgar 1805, Jena 1806, Eylau 1807, Corunna 1809, Torres Vedras 1810-11, Badajos 1812, Moscow 1812-13, Vitoria 1813, Waterloo 1815—these are the chief milestones which mark the nineteen-year struggle against Napoleon. Is the British Empire virile, less imaginative than it was a hundred years ago? Are we willing to make the sacrifices our fathers did? Then let us be up and doing.

The supreme struggle of our age is proceeding. The last great war on behalf of liberty and against military autocracy is being fought. Canadians must rise to the full height of their responsibility and Canada must be organized as thoroughly and as efficiently as any other part of that empire on which the sun never sets. —Canadian Courier.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Peterboro' Boys Do Well In The Sports At Barriefield Camp

Walter Flowers of the Mounted Rifles Won the Shot-put and Was Second in the 100 Yards Dash—Mounted Rifles Men Well to the Front in Different Events.

July 1 was a big day of sports at Barriefield Camp, and as will be seen by the results given below, the Peterborough boys made a good showing.

In the morning the fastest and best football game ever seen here was played between the 38th Battalion and the 8th C.M.R. The 8th C.M.R. won out by a narrow margin.

In the afternoon a splendid programme of athletic events and contests were run off. On account of the large number of entries for the different events, only about half of the proposed programme could be finished.

The Assault-at-Arms in the evening was a great success and thoroughly enjoyed by the thousands of soldier spectators. The bouts were held on a large well-lighted platform in front of the Y.M.C.A. tent, and the seating arranged to afford a good view to everyone. All the battalions had their rooters' clubs out in full force to help their competing men to win the large pennant given by the Y.M.C.A. for the battalion winning the greatest number of points.

Afternoon Results.

100 yards dash—Pte. L. Phillips, 8th; Pte. Flowers, 8th (Peterborough); Pte. Powers, 8th.

2 mile run—Pte. McEides, 38th; Sergt. Day, 38th; Pte. McKenzie, 8th.

[illegible] 8th (Peterborough), 28 feet 8 inches; Pte. Murphy, 50th, 27 feet 6½ inches.

The Barrel Tilting was won by Standing of the 8th, after 15 men were downed.

Smith and Hassem vs. Bradley and Dobson of the 8th C.M.R.

Hallett and Roberts vs. Irurn and Runstadler of the 8th C.M.R.

The Horseback Wrestling was very keen. B Squadron, 8th C.M.R., won, represented by the following, all from Peterborough: Troopers Bradley, Saddler, Kellar, and Lynn.

The Machine Gun Section of the 8th C.M.R. contested the section of the 38th. The second team of the 8th had the best time and were most accurate, getting 98 points out of 100. The following are the results:

1st team, 38th—Time 1m. 35 3-5s., points 75; 1st Team, 8th C.M.R.—Time 1m. 6⅕s, points 95; 2nd Team, 38th—Time 1m. 21⅕s, points 85; 2nd Team, 8th C.M.R.—Time 54s., points 98.

These results are remarkably well, as can be seen. The winners ran five paces with gun, mounted gun, loaded, sighted, and dismounted, running back to starting place, and were at attention in 54 seconds. This is as good as required for active service.

The judges for this contest were Fred J. Guthans, Sergt.-Major Musketry Staff, and J. R. Bowm, Sergt. Musketry Instructor.

Obstacle Race, winners — Trooper Short, 8th C.M.R.; Pte. Matthews, 50th; Pte. Bottley, 38th.

Result of Assault.

Wrestling — 145 lbs.: Swordfager from Brown, two falls in five mins. 160 lbs.: Kitrick from Bandel.

The remainder of programme will be continued this week.

Firing Shells Over Peaks At Unseen Forts In Tyrol

UDINE, Italy (near the Austrian frontier), June 30—No really great battle is possible along the Austro-Italian frontier for many weeks. Troops are pressing forward occupying positions of vantage, important perliminary fighting is occurring almost daily, but Italy is not yet ready to launch her great smash to win back Trentino and Trieste.

There has been no delay in moving the Italian armies to the front. Mobilization went forward with clock-like precision. Italian troops marched over the frontier and seized points of strategic importance within a fortnight after the declaration of war. But General Cadorna is determined that when the Italian offensive starts rolling down upon Austria everything shall be in readiness. Italy is not "going off half-cooked."

The Italian losses in the preliminary skirmishing have been very light. Everywhere along the frontier I saw magnificently furnished but idle, Red Cross trains. The hospitals at Venice, in Udine and elsewhere near the firing line are practically empty.

The Italian commanders are elated at the brilliant performances of their troops to date. The accuracy of the Italian gunnery in particular has occasioned surprise. At Monfalcone, for instance large guns are hurling shells 12 miles over a mountain peak a mile high with wonderful effectiveness, crashing upon the Austrian forts, every shot counting.

General Luigi Cadorna, commander in-chief of the Italian armies, is a master of details. Often he directs as many as 20 small battles simultaneously.

King Victor Emanuel is continuing his tour of the battle line. Premier Salandra is showing the greatest interest in the conduct of the campaign and other administrative heads are planning trips to the front. The prime minister passed through here Sunday in a private car en route to headquarters.

The Italian army quartered here is composed of the biggest men physically I have ever seen in any army. Through many of the regiments are distributed Italians from America, cheery fellows with a love for fighting. One of them waved his hand at me and yelled: "Oh—you kid!"

Correspondents are absolutely barred from general headquarters. Officials told me "You must get out of Udine or submit to arrest." General Cadorna's secretary put it a little differently.

"If you stay here you run the risk of being shot," he said—then smilingly, "The Italian army won't be ready for correspondents for months."

16 RUGBY HEROES LAY DOWN THEIR LIVES

They Fought for King and Country —All Were Internationalists — Old Country Pars.

The toll of Rugby football players [illegible] European war continues. The latest announced is the death in action of the Oxford captain and Scottish International forward, D. McL. Bain, 2nd Gordon Highlanders. He is the sixteenth Rugby International to fall in the war.

Bain, who had only recently been promoted captain, was 24 years of age. Educated in Edinburgh Academy and Trinity, Oxford, Captain Bain played eleven times for Scotland, his "caps" being three against England and a Wles, two against Ireland and France and one against South Africa. He was a most popular man, and a grand forward in all branches of the forward game.

It was feared by many people that the Second Lieut. H. Martin, R.F.A., whose name appeared in the list of officers who died of wounds, was another Edinburgh Academy boy, Oxford Rugby Blue, and Scottish International but upon inquiry at Edinburgh Academy it was learned that the dead officer is not the famous right wing three-quarter, who, with N. Milton, F. N. Tarr and H. H. Vassaill, was one of the strongest three-quarter lines that Oxford ever possessed.

The sixteen Internationals who have laid down their lives are: Capt. C. E. Wilson (England), Capt. L. England and Wales two against Ire. L. Huggan and R. F. Simson (Scotland), Surgeon J. H. D. Watson (England), Pte. J. Ross (Scotland), Sub-Lieut. F. E. H. Oakley (England), Pte. H. Berry (England), Capt. C. G. Taylor (Wales), Lieutenants F. H. Turner (Scotland), P. D. Kendall and R. W. Poulton Palmer (England), Capt. A. F. Todd (England), Pte. J. Pearson (Scotland), Capt. Basil Maclean (Ireland), and Capt. D. M. Bain (Scotland.)

FIRE---AN ILLUSTRATION OF THE GERMAN HATE FOR ENGLAND

Translation from "Lille War Gazette," 3rd March, 1915.

The article is being sent out to the Press, all over the world, by a private individual for patriotic reasons, and [illegible] his own pocket. His object is to let the world know to what depths of barbarism the so-called "Most Cultured Nation" Germany has descended.

(By Lieutenant-Colonel Kaden.)

As children many of us have played with it: some of us have seen an outbreak of fire. First a small tongue-like flame appears, it grows into a devastating fury of heat. We out here in the field have seen more than enough of it.

But there is also the fire of joy, of sacred enthusiasm! It arose from sacrificial altars, from mountain heights of Germany, and lit up the heavens at the time of solstice and whenever the home countries were in danger. This year fires of joy shall flare from the Bismarck Columns throughout the length and breadth of Germany, for on 1st April, just one hundred years ago, our country's greatest son was born. Let us celebrate this event in a manner deep, far-reaching, and mighty! BLOOD AND IRON.

Let every German, man or woman, young or old, find in his heart a Bismarck Column, a pillar of fire now in these days of storm and stress. Let this fire, enkindled in every German breast, be a fire of joy, of holiest enthusiasm. But let it be terrible, unfettered, let it carry horror and destruction! Call it HATE. Let no one come to you with "Love thine enemy!" We all have but one enemy, England! How long have we wooed her almost to the point of our own self-abasement. She would none of us, so leave to her the apostles of peace, the "No-War" disciples. The time has passed when we would do homage to everything English—our cousins that were!

"God punish England!" "May He punish her!" This is the greeting that now passes when Germans meet. The fire of the righteous hate is all aglow!

You men of Germany, from East and West, forced to shed your blood in the defence of your homeland through England's infamous envy and hatred of Germany's progress, feed the flame that burns in your souls. We have but one war-cry, "GOD PUNISH ENGLAND!" Hiss this to one another in the trenches, in the charge, hiss as it were the sound of licking flames.

Behold in every dead comrade a sacrifice forced from you by this accursed people. Take ten-fold vengeance for each hero's death!

You German people at home, feed this fire of hate!

You mothers, engrave this in the heart of the babe at your breast!

You thousands of teachers, to whom millions of German children look up with eyes and hearts, teach HATE! unquenchable HATE!

You homes of German learning, pile up the fuel on this fire! Tell the nation that this hate is not un-German, that it is not poison for our people. Wrie in letters of fire the name of our bitterest enemy. You guardians of the truth, feed this sacred HATE!

You German fathers, lead your children up to the high hills of our homeland, at their feet our dear country bathed in sunshine. Your women and children shall starve: bastial, devilish conception. England wills it! Surely, all that is in you rises against such infamy!

Listen to the ceaseless song of the German forest, behold the fruitful fields like rolling seas, then will your love for this wondrous land find the right words, HATE, unquenchable HATE. Germany, Germany above all!

Let it be inculcated in your children and it will grow like a landslide, irresistible, from generation to generation.

You fathers, proclaim it aloud over the billowing fields, that the toiling peasant below may hear you, that the birds of the forest may fly away with the message; into all the land, that echoes from German cliffs send it reverberating like the clanging of bells from tower to tower throughout the countryside: "HATE, HATE, the accursed English, HATE!"

You masters, carry the flame to your workshops; axe and hammer will fall the heavier when arms are nerved by this HATE.

You peasants, guard this flame, fan it anew in the hearts of your toilers, that the hand may rest heavy on the plough that throws up the soil of our homeland.

What CARTHAGE was to ROME, ENGLAND is to GERMANY. For ROME as for us it is a question of "to be or not to be." May our people find a faithful mentor like Cato. His "ceterum censeo Carthaginem esse delendam" for us Germans mean:

"GOD PUNISH ENGLAND."

N.B.—A copy of this newspaper was found on a German prisoner captured during the recent fighting at NEUVE CHAPELLE. It is of interest as showing the hatred for Great Britain which is being sedulously cultivated in Germany. This hatred is being encouraged and fostered officially by every possible means.

New Belgian Wheat Crop Will Not Be Confiscated By Germans

LONDON, July 5.—Mr. Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium, has entered into an agreement with General von Bissing, Military Governor of Belgium, providing that the wheat and rye crops in the zone occupied by the Germans will be reserved for the civilian population. Mr. Hoover, who returned to-day from Brussels, said:

"The commission is certain that every well wisher of the Belgians will be pleased to know that General von Bissing has confirmed an agreement that the wheat and rye crops in the occupation zone in Belgium will be left for civilians. The occupation zone covers all of Belgium except West Flanders and a portion of East Flanders, which areas are under control of the active army and not within General von Bissing's jurisdiction. The undertaking, therefore, does not extend to the latter named territory.

"Thanks to abundant seed provided by the commission and the industry of the Belgian peasant, the harvest promises to be very good. Normally Belgian production of grain furnishes sufficient breadstuffs for between two and three months, but with the much more economical consumption now rigorously enforced by the commission, the harvest yield should cover a considerable longer period this year.

"While the details of the arrangement are not all settled, it is a part of the undertaking that one-twelfth of the harvest yield should be issued to the people each month, the commission undertaking to import the necessary balance to maintain the present ration. The precise method of acquiring the harvest is still under consideration.

"No arrangements have been made in connection with other products. The Belgians normally produce enough potatoes to carry them through the year. The commission by imports in the last two months, has managed to keep prices under two cents a pound. New potatoes are now available. Belgium ordinarily produces a large amount of sugar beets and roots for fodder. These were this year largely displaced by increased potato planting, so that there is every hope of a sufficient production of potatoes. Much the same potato situation exists in Germany, where full supplies appear likely. Therefore, there will be little necessity for the German army to draw from the Belgian potato crop.

"No arrangements have been made with regard to fodder crops, as the present military and economic situation in Belgium seems certain to continue for many months.

"The commission is now preoccupied with the solution of the problem of financing imports and the still greater problem of supporting the destitute. We hope to find some daylight within the next sixty days."

THE GERMANS PRAISE THE CANADIANS

LONDON, June 29.—A Hungarian correspondent describing a visit to a German base hospital, says that he was introduced to a number of Canadian wounded prisoners of war, with whom he chatted in the following strain:

"Where were you wounded?" asked the Hungarian. "Ypres," replied the Canadian.

"Why did you come from Canada—to fight?" "Of course; what did you think I came for?"

"Of course I know you came to fight, but dont' you see it is of no use? You didn't help England's cause. All you got was a bullet in the chest."

"You are mistaken, even in bullets, sir," said the Canadian; "I got three. As for helping England, well, you are mistaken still more—I killed at least a dozen of your people before they got a go at me, and I am still alive."

"Do you feel sorry for them?" "No doubt I do now, but I didn't then."

The correspondent adds a splendid tribute to the Canadians whom he describes as fine spirited, excellent soldiers, and nice, clean, manly fellows, who suffer silently and are very grateful. He then quoted a doctor as saying that "If you tell a Canadian not to smoke for another week he will obey. A German soldier would sneak out and smoke in some hidden place."

"The Canadians fight like real heroes. When they get caught they suffer, but take it cheerfully. Their wounded bear pain and suffering like heroes, with never a complaint."

Another Canadian remarked about his wound, said: "It's only a bayonet, nothing serious." "Why did you come over?" the correspondent asked. "I wanted to drive you Germans out of France, that's all."

"But, you see, you couldn't." "Never you mind, we'll do it yet."

"What is your opinion of German soldiers" "Good soldiers," he answered.

"And what about gas" "We blew that away," he answered with a contemptuous gesture.

"Toronto is very far away," added the journalist, "and your girl will surely forget you by the time you return." He smiled sadly, but had no answer to this remark. "When I left," says the correspondent, "he shook my hand with his left hand, and they all nodded, smiling to the doctor. 'Very nice and very grateful fellows, these Canadians,' he murmured, as we passed into the next room to the Senegalese."

GERMAN BATTLESHIP TORPEDOED BY A SUBMARINE OFF DANZIG

LONDON, July 5.—A German battleship of 13,000 tons was attacked by a submarine and blown up at the entrance of the harbour of Danzig, Prussia, a port on the Baltic Sea. At the same time a Russian destroyer rammed and apparently sank a German submarine which came up to attack the Czar's vessels. This information is contained in a Russian official statement issued in Petrograd Saturday evening which says:

"On Friday at the entrance of Danzig Bay, a submarine, with two torpedoes, blew up a German warship of the Deutschland class, which was steaming at the head of a German squadron. One of our destroyers rammed a German submarine, which was attempting to approach our warships. The submarine failed to reappear on the surface. Our destroyer suffered slight damage in the collision."

The Deutschland class of ships are pre-Dreadnoughts and carry four 11-inch and 14 6.7-inch guns, with a speed of 18 knots. The loss has not yet been admitted from Berlin.

The Baltic Naval Fight.

Further details of Friday's naval engagement in the Baltic off Gothland show that it resulted in partial victory for the Russians. A detailed story of the battle is given in the following official report issued in Petrograd:

"The Russian cruisers Rurik, Makaro, Rayan, Bogatyr and Oleg encountered the enemy at eight o'clock in the morning between the Island of Oeland and the Courland coast. The enemy consisted of a light cruiser of the Augsburg class, a mine layer and three destroyers.

"The sea was shrouded in a fog, so dense that the ships frequently were swallowed up in a darkness, and [illegible] The Russians, attempting to intercept the enemy's retreat, were attacked by the torpedo boats, but were unharmed. In a half-hour the Augsburg, finding the Russian fire too hot, abandoned her slower consort and fled full speed southward. The Albatross (the German mine-layer) began to show signs of distress, and the torpedo boats endeavoured to assist her escape, throwing volume of thick black smoke out of their funnels and rendering the fog more dense, but at nine o'clock the foremast of the Albatross was shot away, clouds of steam arose and the doomed ship began to list to starboard.

"Hauling down her flag, she made for the coast. As she was badly damaged, and was entering neutral waters, the Russians ceased firing, and soon she was seen to go ashore behind Oestgarn lighthouse.

"The Russians cruiser northward. At 10 o'clock they sighted a squadron of the enemy, including an armoured cruiser of the Roon class, and four destroyers. The Russians immediately joined battle, and a half hour later the enemy began to retreat, while several submarines attacked the Russians unsuccessfully.

"The Rurik was sent at full speed after the retiring vessels, which were joined by another cruiser of the Bremen class. The Rurik soon had the satisfaction of seeing the effect of her salvoes, for the enemy's fire weakened. The Roon's four 8-inch guns were silenced and fire broke out aboard. Obviously disliking further conflict the enemy disappeared rapidly in the fog.

The Russians sustained trifling damage. No one was killed, fourteen men were wounded.

"Shortly afterwards the Russians were attacked by torepdoes from submarines, but were protected by Russian torpedo boats, which arrived to reinforce them. One of these torpedo boats was damaged in driving off the submarine attacks."

It is not denied that the Russian warships violated Swedish territorial waters, and the situation is not unlike in circumstances the affair off the coast of Chile, when British cruisers sank the Dresden. The English papers comment on the episode in mild tone, assuming that an apology and explanation will be forthcoming. According to Copenhagen advices the greater part of the battle was fought in Swedish waters, and the crew of the Oestgarns lighthouse had to lie flat to escape the shrapnel.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me a little space in your paper to ask how much longer are the soldier's wives to be insulted everywhere they go to buy, even on the market, by having thrown in their faces, "Oh soldier's wives get lots of money." One man told me to my face we get too much money. Now I would suggest that some of these men that think soldier's wives get too much money enlist. They still want recruits, and see if their wives get too much money. I would like to tell these men and women money isn't everything in the world. Supposing our husbands who have gone to fight for those who cannot go and for those who won't go, get killed, do we get too much money then? No money, all they could give, won't repay the loss of our husbands, our little children's father. Some of these people should live the life of a soldier's wife, worry and anxiety from day to day. I think these people who have so much to say of soldier's wives should be thankful that our men have gone to fight for them. They have given up homes and loved ones, and the people should only be too glad to be able to know soldiers' wives were well looked after. It seems to some would like to see us nearly begging. I think it is about time these insults were dropped and some consideration given for the soldiers' wives and children.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

Yours truly,

A Soldier's Wife.

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was surprised to see in your columns that the so-called Executive committee of the Liberal-Conservative Association of West Peterborough was held when it was determined to spring upon the Conservative parts (without a mandate from them) a meeting to be held this month for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the House of Commons at the far off next general election, when, as they admit, that such an event "is not yet in the wind.' These self-seeking politicians spoke with an air of authority, much after the manner of the three tailors of Tooley street, who commenced their proclamation with, 'WE the people of England."

One would suppose that they had not heard of the great war that hangs over our heads with its terrible possibilities and which requires the closest concentrations of all forces, instead of a disruption of the same and the introduction of discord among our people, when it behooves every man, woman and child to do his or her "bit," while it is yet not too late. Nor have they, in the least been moved by the timely warnings of the great statesmen of the old country, yes, and of this country, too, that laying aside all political bickerings and subordinate affairs of state, we unite as a harmonious whole and work together to crush the enemy of our freedom and of the freedom of the whole world.

Even in the absence of the war, no good can be served by such premature action. Nor can anyone define any reason for such a rash act except we read between the lines. It is quite evident that they have their nominee ready to spring upon the meeting before any one else can be got to oppose him. This is characteristic of West Peterborough, which is now regarded as the most corrupt riding in the Province of Ontario. We need not recount the history of the past, not only because it is rank and smells to heaven, but also because of the universal knowledge of the same. If Canadian public life is to be made everything what it should be by West Peterborough, as claimed by one of the speakers, then there must be a preliminary cleaning out of the Augean stables in our own riding before assuming an air of superiority.

Yours, etc.,

A True Conservative.

Shake-up In The War Ministry

Special to The Examiner.

PARIS, July 5.—Rumours of Wednesday's sensational session of the Senate are only now beginning to appear in the French press although everybody in the boulevard is ready with his own intimate version of the crisis which led to the appointment of two new under secretaries to the War Ministry, one for the Commissary and one for the sanitary service.

Concerning the affair, Gustave Herbe writes as follows: "Truly our Senators might with kindness spare us a Cabinet crisis just now. For it is toward a crisis of the entire Cabinet and not merely of the War Ministry that they are leading us. I am not sure that those who think themselves big enough to replace the Minister of War have not on their programme a complete change of the supreme command."

After explaining how the duties of the Minister of War in a conflict like the present are too great for any one man. M. Herve praises the appointment of the new Under Secretaries and exclaims, "Change the present Minister at a moment when after ten months of experience we feel sure that he is proof against certain initial errors and to replace him with a man who would at least require a month of apprenticeship to adapt himself to his function? No thanks! The senatorial army commission has rendered a great service in shaking up administrative routine and apathy, but really if it should now provoke a Ministerial crisis, entailing a change in the supreme command, it would stun both the nation and the army like a blow full in the chest."

BRITISH COURTEOUS TO FRENCH TROOPS

British Headquarters, France, July 4.—One of the first considerations of the British army officials is the avoidance of all friction with the inhabitants of the occupied districts of France and the maintenance of most cordial relations with the French soldiers. A principal factor in keeping on good terms with the allied army has been the steadfast insistence on the courtesies of discipline.

Military etiquette, for example, demands that when a party of British officers are saluted by a British private, only the senior officer acknowledges the salute. When, however, the salute is given by a French private, the acknowledgment is made by all the officers.

"The idea is," a staff officer explained, "that by this act of courtesy we daily show to the French our consciousness that if we are their allies, we are also guests in their country. And where the officers give the lead, the men are quick to follow."

CANADIAN OFFICERS SAIL FOR HOME

LONDON, July 5.—Col. S. S. Meighen, of the 14th battalion, Montreal, and Col. J. A. Currie, of the 15th battalion (48th Highlanders), of Toronto, sailed on Friday for Canada for the purpose of giving special instructions to the troops now in training in Canada. Major Gault McCombe, of the 14th battalion, is now recovered from his wounds, received at Ypres. He expects to return to the front soon, as does also Major R. H. Jamieson, of the 13th battalion. Major McCombe paid a tribute to Pte. Whitby, late of the Montreal Gazette staff, who was reported missing and is now assumed to be dead. Pte. Whitby was seen lying wounded in a ditch, and even then his characteristic humour prevailed, the last words which his comrades heard from him being: "I always knew I would die in a ditch."

By publishing this correction, you will oblige,

NEW PASTOR ASKS FOR CO-OPERATION FROM THE PEOPLE

Rev. Benjamin Greatrix at St. James Church Yesterday Was Welcomed — First Sunday Was Most Auspicious.

Rev. Benj. Greatrix commenced his pastorate at St. James' Methodist Church on Sunday. In addition to conducting the morning and evening services, he visited the Sunday School classes and generally made a fine impression upon the congregation.

In his opening sermon, Rev. Mr. Greatrix said he had come to work with the people; but he needed their help and co-operation, and especially their prayers. He remarked that General French and General Joffre were great leaders and generals, but they did not do the fighting. It was the rank and file that bore the brunt and the heat of battle. In the same way the pastor needs the assistance and support of the people.

On Tuesday night St. James' Church congregation will hold a lawn social, when every one will have an opportunity of meeting Rev. Mr. Greatrix.

The evening sermon was a fine effort, conveying with beautiful thoughts a beautiful message of hope and comfort. It was based on the verses from Isaiah 43: 18 and 19. "Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old. Behold, I will do a new thing; now it shall spring forth; shall ye not know it? I will even make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert." Rev. Mr. Greatrix dealt with the Prophet's reference to the new way by which he meant Jesus Christ. It was a way open to everyone, to the high and the low, the rich and the poor. It was the way leading from earth to heaven and had been prepared for all mankind. To one and all there was the same invitation, the same welcome. Rev. Mr. Greatrix spoke of the mercy and goodness of God in sending His prophet to comfort His people then heavy hearted in their captivity. The speaker emphasized the words "Comfort ye My people" and their inspiration and hope.

A male quartette, composed of Messrs. Wright, Pacey, Baldry and Hodgson sang "He is Answering the Prayers of His People."

Island Floated Down The Lake at Chemong

A floating island of bog or marsh floated down from the head of Chemong Lake to the vicinity of Chemong Park this morning. Some time ago this was a rather frequent occurrence, but a boom had been built to confine the marshy material which hung loosely up at the west end. The boom parted recently, hence the visitation upon the park's shores. The island was about an acre in area.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not get out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctor treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

THE RED CROSS SOCIETY

Appeal to Use the Opportunities Presented by the Opening of New Rooms on Simcoe St. for the Local Red Cross Society

The Red Cross Society of Peterborough, the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, has opened a room on Simcoe street, where information regarding any branch of the Red Cross work will be most gladly given, or obtained for any desiring it.

Members of societies which are already doing Red Cross work are urgently requested to visit the room and to keep in touch with the work being done there.

Members of societies that contemplate doing Red Cross work during the summer and have not yet organized for that purpose, may arrange for special instruction for a few members by ringing up Miss Rush at telephone 1392—all materials for these instructions, including samples of work will be provided by the Red Cross Society.

The right way to do Red Cross work is according to the latest instructions issued by headquarters. These vary from time to time in accordance with the needs and requirements of the army surgeons— consequently what was right six weeks ago may not be right now.

It is hoped that all interested in the work, be they members of the society or not, will make use of the Red Cross room and take full advantage of the opportunities offered by it.

A special request has just come for extra large surgical dressings to be used in the hospitals in France near the firing line, together with instructions for making them. Will any societies, that would like to make these communicate with telephone 1392 for further information.

The room will be open Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays from 2 to 5.—Laura J. Davidson, Sec.

MORE FUNDS ARE NEEDED

St. John's Ambulance Association Needs Assistance.

June 19th, 1915.

Sir,—Is is now nearly six months since an appeal was made through your columns on behalf of the St. John Ambulance Association for clothing and comforts for the sick and wounded, and the response was so prompt and generous that our warehouse was immediately replenished with all sorts of garments, household linen and comforts.

Since the autumn a vast new army has come into being in England, while other armies have converged from the [illegible] Seas; our Northern Seas, but in the Mediterranean as well; our troops are waging war on African and Asiatic sands, as well as in the trenches of France and Fanders. The casualties are very heavy, and not only do our own sick and wounded need a practically unlimited supply of everything for their comfort, but we should have failed in our traditions if we had not sent come succour to our Allies in France, Belgium and Eastern Europe.

We are thus faced with increasing demands, while the supply upon which we have to depend shows a marked falling off, so that our shelves are emptying faster than we can keep them filled.

Our sick and wounded deserve all that we can give them; if they have sacrificed health and limbs, sight and senses, let us at least see that they have comfortable bedding in which to rest their suffering bodies, healing dressings with which to recover them of their wounds, clean and cool clothing for hospital and convalescence, and some of those obvious comforts, air cushions, invalid foods, long chairs, toilet requisites, stationery, etc., with which we hasten to the bedside of the sick. These are the days in which no one of us can ever give enough.

All contributions will be very thankfully received and acknowledged by the Chairman, St. John Ambulance Warehouse, 56 St. John's Square, Clerkenwell, E.C.

Yours faithfully,
ARTHUR M. BEDFORD.

DEATH DEALING SHELLS.

Death to Everything Within a Radius of 150 Yards.

Seven-eighths of the wounds in the Galician fighting were caused by shells half of which were fired from big calibre guns, said Surgeon-Major Leshintseff to an interviewer on returning to Warsaw from the front.

"Bullets play no part now," he continued, "and the infantryman's rifle is a toy. Infantry merely occupy the trenches the cannon have won."

Most devastating of all are the new Skoda shells of the Germanic allies, which are 17 inches in diameter and weigh 2,800 pounds. The Skoda howitzers do shell penetrates twenty feet into soft earth before exploding two seconds after striking. These howitzers do not resemble the Krupp mortars of the same calibre, to which they are said to be superior in every way.

When a Skoda shell hits, it means death to everything within a radius of 150 yards and even farther off. The mere pressure of its gas rips open the bomb-proof shelters and catches those who escape the metal fragments and flying debris. This gas enters the body cavities and tears flesh asunder, sometimes stripping the men of their clothes. Of course the men in the immediate neighbourhood of the explosion are annihilated.

So fierce is the heat of the explosion of the shell that it melts rifle barrels as if they had been struck by lightning.

TO MAKE MUNITIONS AT QUEBEC FACTORY

Mr. Wm. McLaren Resigns Position to Help Supply the Present Need of Shells, Etc.

Mr. William McLaren, Chamberlen street, leaves on Tuesday night for Quebec to assist in the manufacture of munitions at the Ross Rifle works. Lloyd George's appeal for workmen, and the emphatic statements of the need of shells has impressed Mr. McLaren during the past few weeks. As a result he resigned the position he has held with Mr. J. John, tea merchant, and signed up for six months' work at Quebec, and afterwards for a year in England if his services are required. Mr. McLaren was formerly a mechanic in the C.G.E. works. He had built up a good position with Mr. John, but felt that he should do his "bit" in the manufacture of munitions. His local position will be retained for him.

Mr. McLaren was a prominent member of St. James' Church, the Brotherhood of which presented him with a beautiful illustrated Bible at yesterday's meeting.

Decrease In The Population

Department Not Recording Any of the Soldiers Leaving the City

A decided decrease in the city's population is expected when the assessors make their returns this year. This will be due to various causes. One is that the department is not recording any of the soldiers off to war. Then a number of workingmen and others who came here from England have returned. No instructions have been received from the provincial authorities regarding the enumeration of soldiers, and so far as the local officials know no municipality is keeping track of them, it being impossible to tell at the date of assessment whether they are alive or dead, except in a small proportion of cases.

Tea Coming Into Great Favour.

Not in the memory of the oldest tea planter has the price of tea reached before the present figure in Colombo. There seems to be a widespread movement in favour of tea throughout the world, and the supply is insufficient to cope with the increased demand. Until the law of supply and demand adjusts itself higher prices for tea must be expected.

Miss Margaret Colquhoun, 163 Wescott Street, has received a letter from Lance-Corpl. Geo. King, one of the Prescott boys who as with the Peterborough detachment in A Company of the 2nd Battalion, 1st Canadian Division.

Writing on June 18, Lce.-Corpl. King says:

"I had a photo of Sergt. Stevens (of Peterborough) with your address on the back, and as he was killed at Ypres, I thought I would write and let you know. We are sorry to lose Stevens. He was a great lad, and he and I often had a good time together. We have just come out of the trenches, and had a pretty warm time this time. I am sorry to say that Lieut. Chas. Ackerman of Peterborough was wounded the day before yesterday by a shell.

"Peterborough has lost quite a few boys in this campaign, and have lost a good man in Major Bennett. If a monument is going to be erected to him, will you please let me know, as we boys of the 50th who were with the Peterborough boys would like to help in putting up something to his memory.

"With your permission, would like to keep the snap of Fred Stevens."

TOLMINO CAPTURED BY THE ITALIANS

Rome July 5th—Tolmino, a strategic point on the Isonzo, which has been the objective of a large force of Italians striving to obtain possession of the forts of St. Maria and St. Lucia, has fallen into the hands of the invaders of Austria, according to an official announcement made here.

This success represents an important move in the Italian advance against Gorits, the key to the entire position east of the Isonzo for the defence of Trieste. With Gradisca, south of Gorits, and Plezzo and Tolmino, with its subsidiary forts, to the north, strongly held by the Italians, it is felt here that the resistance of the Austrians at the major fortress will be of short duration.

King Victor Emmanuel has been present at the fighting in this district for several days, according to the Giornale D'Italia, which adds that the presence of the King inspired the soldiers to unheard-of heroism. They rushed the Austrian trenches without apparent thought of danger and overwhelmed the enemy in their mad rush.

LARGE NUMBERS OF REUGEES

Large numbers of refugees from the Isonzo district have flocked to Trieste and Gorizia, according to reports received at Udine. Trains bearing Austrian wounded are said to pass through these places several times a day.

Food for the civil population of Gorizia and Trieste is reported to be scarce. There is no bread, but the communes distribute daily small quantities of maize flour. Petroleum is lacking, and those persons whose homes are not equipped with electricity are compelled to remain in outer darkness at night.

No newspapers are permitted and the only news provided is that contained in official statements which are posted on the bulletin boards.

A despatch from the Island of Corfu to the Corriere d'Italia says that the Italian Minister at Durazzo is reported to have left for Rome to confer with his government on the situation in Albania. Durazzo having been occupied by two Serbian regiments.

It is apparent that Italy's new national loan will be a success. Subscriptions both large and small are being received in large numbers. Six of the regiments that participated in the capture of Monte Nero have been granted medals for conspicuous services.

The Italian operations against the Austrian fortifications at Malborgeth and the Predil Pass have produced encouraging results but in view of the formidable difficulties of bringing up heavy artillery in this mountain region the Italian press warns the public not to expect too rapid progress.

In some cases it has been necessary to construct entirely new roads up the mountains and the guns that can be brought into action there necessarily are less powerful than the permanent Austrian batteries which have been installed at leisure on concrete foundations. Most of the Austrian batteries are protected by domes having a six inch steel armor.

Italy has the greatest eel breeding farm in the world in a swamp along the Adriatic, where the industry has been carried on for centuries.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF GILMOUR CHURCH REMEMBER BRIDE

Presentation to Miss Sadie Mann on the Eve of Her Marriage—Was a Popular Worker in the Church.

On Thursday evening, June 4th, a very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. G. W. Mann, of Smith Township, by the young people of Gilmour Memorial Church, the occasion being a presentation to Miss Sadie Mann, daughter of Mr. T. R. Mann, on the approach of her marriage to Mr. Albert Hammond, of Atwood, Ont.

About fifty young people gathered to offer felicitations to the bride-elect, and during the evening Miss Ethel Young read the appended address and Mr. Harold Archer presented Miss Mann with a cabinet of pearl-handle knives and forks on behalf of the B.Y.P.U. of the church.

The address was as follows:

Miss Sadie Mann, Smith Township.

Dear Sadie,

Your many young friends of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church take this opportunity of expressing to you their high estimation of your character and their pleasure in offering you their heartiest congratulations on your approaching marriage.

All our lives, we may say, we have been pleasantly associated in Sunday School and Young Peoples work, and we have learned to love you for your amiable disposition and genuine helpfulness in all occasions.

We realize that your marriage will mean a great loss to us as young people, but we are fully aware that your new church relations will be all that is pleasant and helpful.

In asking you to accept this cabinet of cutlery, we all extend to you and Mr. Hammond our heartiest goodwill and best wishes for your future happiness.

(Signed)
ETHEL YOUNG,
HAROLD ARCHER.

Miss Mann made a very appreciative reply, thanking her young friends for their lovely gift, after which they assembled on the lawn where a general frolic in the moonlight was enjoyed, indulging in many of the school games, so often enjoyed in days gone by. Supper was served about eleven o'clock, bringing to a close a very pleasant evening.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Please find space in your columns for a few lines as a suggestion. His Honour Judge Huycke's sons set the young men of Peterborough a good example, but we know there are hundreds of physically fit young men that are filling places of married men, that are crying out for work; but suggestion is that all men that are physically unfit; and men that would be otherwise barred or turned down should get a certificate to that effect, and wear a button or small badge; this would be the means of leaving those who are young and fit on the rocks; and they would then easy be seen to be given their badge, the white feather. It is a disgrace that a married man should have to join, and for the Dominion to have to keep his family, saving the skin of the single man.

Yours truly,
"OUT-OF-WORK."

HOPES FOR NEW RULES

Germany Expects to Provide For Safety of Neutrals Without Giving Up Her Submarine Policy Entirely.

NOTE IS DELAYED

WASHINGTON, July 6.— Germany hopes to frame a new rule of international warfare in her reply to the United States. She hopes to provide for neutrals' safety afloat without surrendering the advantage which her submarines afford her. This, in the opinion to-day of many high officials here, is the reason for the delay in the note's completion. Some officials said they would not be surprised if another two weeks passed before the message is handed to Ambassador Gerard. It is known Germany has informally accepted America's demand for the recognition of Americans' rights to travel in safety on any ships which do not violate the regulations governing merchant vessels in time of war. He has rejected, however, the suggestion that "in the interests of humanity," she refrain from torpedoing merchantmen of every class. It is understood that all of this has been explained to Ambassador Gerard, and that he is in constant touch with President Wilson, through Secretary Lansing.

Soldiers Are In Need of Razors

Lord Kitchener Approves of Scheme to Supply the Men With These Articles.

The cutlers of England cannot turn out razors fast enough to supply the needs of the ever well-groomed British troops. The Cutlers' Company, centred at Cutlers' Hall, Sheffield, England, therefore has undertaken to collect old and spare razors, to put them in working order, and to pass them over to the War Office. 70,000 razors had been collected in this way before June 7th, 1915. More are needed.

The Master Cutler has sent on the call to Canada, explaining the need for the work, expressing the appreciation of the War Office for the work already done, and emphasizing the need for further effort by forwarding a letter signed by Earl Kitchener, which says in part:

"Mr. Wintour has informed me of the steps which you have been good enough to take in regard to the collection from private sources of razors for the troops, and I write to express to you my appreciation of the valuable help which has thereby been rendered to the War Department.

"The need for razors is not yet entirely met, and I am pleased to know that you hope to be able to obtain additional quantities."

It is hoped to collect a million razors. On account of factories being used almost exclusively for the manufacture of war munitions it is impossible to get razors made at the present time in quantities sufficient to keep up with the needs of the troops at the front, and dependence has, therefore, to be put on the general public to supply from its own surplus supply.

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hair growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 3 minutes, then removed, and the skin washed, and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.

GERMANS TRIED TO SHIP ARMS FROM U. S. TO CHINESE

Mr. S. R. Wagel, for several years financial editor of the North China News, of Shanghai, expressed in the Plaza Hotel last evening a very keen interest in the affair of Mr. Hans Tauscher, American representatives of the Krupps. Mr. Tauscher's shipment of 250 tons of arms and ammunition consigned to a German firm in Java, was refused by Funch, Edye & Co., shipping agents, ten days ago after the rifles, revolvers and cartridges had been placed on the pier where their steamship lay. Mr. Wagel expressed the opinion that the arms and ammunition were destined for Chinese in South China to be used against the Japanese.

Mr. Wagel is a native of India and is familiar with the Orient. He is author of "Finance in China" and "Chinese Currency and Baking," which have been accepted widely as text books on those subjects. Mr. Wagel is in the United States to study political economy and kindred subjects as taught in American universities, and expects to go to England next year to take up his permanent residence there.

"The report of the Tauscher arms shipment deeply interested me," Mr. Wagel said, "but I cannot agree in the opinion of officials there reported who suggested that the rifles were to arm natives in the British East Indies prompted to revolt by German agencies. It seems much more probable that the shipment was for Chinese, whom the Germans are encouraging in their anti-Japan activities.

"Japan would seize any such shipment if an attempt to land it in China became known to that government. It also would make of such an attempt a cause of war against China. Hong Kong, a British possession, is under martial law and the arms could not be landed there. The effort of the shippers to send the arms to Java is explained by the friendly attitude of the Hollanders in Java toward the Germans. The arms could be forwarded to parts of China from Java without great difficulty. The gravest prospect of discovery and seizure of the shipment by the Japanese is the almost certain effect it would have in causing Japan to hold China responsible for an act of war into which aiding importation of arms would be construed."

NARROW ESCAPE FOR MORGAN'S WIFE AND THEIR THREE CHILDREN

Holt, Would-be Murderer, Admits he Would Have Killed the Whole Family if Financier Did Not Yield to his Demands —Sensational Letter Written to his Father-in-law.

Special to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The letter that Frank Holt, assailant of J. P. Morgan, addressed, yesterday to his father-in-law, the Rev. O. F. Sensabaugh, box 1,259, Station A, Dallas Texas, in which it first was learned that he had intended to kill Mrs. Morgan and three of their children, a scheme of murder upon which he later gave more details, follows:

"Dear Father Sensabaugh:—I heard last night you telegraphed for particulars. As I already had written and telegraphed Leona and as the papers have given your interview, I did not send any more particulars. The papers must have had plenty of them.

"How terrible it all looks now, and how different from my plans! What can I say to console you and the family? This is too much—all at once. My heart and brain are in such agony that words cannot express. I fear that you wish to outstay me, but I hope you will not do that. I am well taken care of and comfortable. G. J. (Grand Jury) cannot meet until September. I am held without bail on plea without guilty, and so I just wait it through.

WISHES NOW TO DIE.

"I wish death might come to end it all at once. Life under these conditions is unspeakably horrible, yet I think I did right. Only my plans did not come out as I intended.

"I went to the Morgan home in order to ask him to use his great influence to stop the shipment of explosives. That is why I took some explosives with me in order to be able to demonstrate to him—'ad oculis'—what the use of a machine of murder means. But, of course, I did not mean to hurt any one.

"I wanted him to be in the same danger (him and his family) that we are imposing on Europe. I wanted to send him out to the manufacturers and men of influence to plead for American neutrality, while I held his wife and his dear children as hostages in some upper room of his house.

"I found the three children in the parlour and asked them to come upstairs with me. They came. No objections. I walked ahead. That was my mistake. (This sentence was underlined.) If I had walked behind them, all might be different now.

"When I reached the top of the stairs Mrs. M. came screaming toward me and Mr. M. behind her. Now, instead of stopping and giving me a chance, all went off in an explosion of excitement. No chance for an explanation—Mr. Morgan jumped at me, although I held a revolver in each hand.

TRIED TO SHOOT IN AIR.

"This physical courage overwhelmed my moral courage. We rolled on the hall floor. I tried to shoot in the air, but some one pulled my hand down. At least, this is the only explanation of Mr. M. being hurt.

"Of course, all this was over in a few moments and I was unconscious for a while. Soon I was in their hands and learned to my sorrow that Mr. M. was hurt, for he was to go out and do the work I could not do.

"The slaughter must be stopped, and we must stop helping it on. The people must rise to the realisation of their best interest and demand the embargo on arms. Let us hope it will come soon. If not, our children will have to suffer the consequences, if not even our own generation.

"I have tried to do my duty. Now the rest of the country must do theirs. God bless you all. I am in His hands, so don't worry about me. With much love, affectionately, FRANK."

When Holt was asked later about this letter, he confirmed the statement that he had intended to hold Mrs. Morgan and the three children as hostages, and added that if Mr. Morgan had refused or failed to stop the shipment of munitions he would have killed Mrs. Morgan first "and then would have blown the heads of the children off."

Cut Glass Berry Bowl For Teacher

Pupils of S. S No. 2, Smith, Say Farewell to Departing Teacher

On Tuesday evening, June 29th, the parents and children of S.S. No. 2, Smith, met on the school grounds to bid farewell to their teacher, who has been amongst them for four years. After a social time and supper over, the trustees called the gathering to order and the scholars presented their teacher with a cut glass berry bowl. She was greatly surprised, but in a few words thanked her pupils and friends for their kindness, after which all sang "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The address was as follows:

Miss M. L. Milling, School Section No. 2:

Dear Teacher,—We, your pupils, regretted so very much when we learned of your intention of leaving our school. When we look back over the last four years and think what pleasant hours we have spent together, both in our school room and in our homes, we grieve to think that those days are past and gone, yet they are ever to be remembered. We are sorry now that we have been so annoying at times when we should have been appreciative of your thoughtfulness and kindness towards us. But we thank you for your patience and perserverance with us, trusting that God will, in his own good time, reward you for it, as we never can.

Though we are called to part from each other for the present, and each one go his own road in life, we hope it may be our pleasant experience to meet you many times in after life, and we shall often recall the good advice you have day after day given us.

We cannot think of parting with so dear a teacher without giving you some small token of love and remembrance; though it be small, it is given with our sincerest love and best wishes.

Please accept this berry bowl.

ENGLAND BEGINS TO WAKE UP TO COUNTRY'S PERIL

LONDON, July 6.—The seriousness of the war is sinking in finally on England. Lord Curzon in advocating the Munitions Bill before the House of Lords declared that the country was in great danger, but predicted that by the end of the year the advantage both in men and ammunition would be with the Allies. The Munitions Bill, which was passed by the Lords, gives wide power to Mr. David Lloyd George to increase the supply.

Workmen are enrolling by thousands to help in making ammunition, and there is every indication that the people of this country, after nearly a year of war, are at last beginning to realise the seriousness of the situation.

Only a few months ago the boast was, "Business is as usual." Theatre patronage was undiminished and the restaurant trade was normal. The Cabinet Ministers now are urging the necessity of the most rigid economy by individuals, and school children are being besought to invest in the war loan. The newspapers daily are carrying full page advertisements of the war loan.

The German successes in Galicia, the slowness of the Dardanelles operations and the failure of the Allies to inaugurate the much discussed offensive in the west are responsible for this change in public demeanour.

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Omemee, Ont. writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

LIBERALS ARE NOT RUFFLED

Ask Public to Wait Until Norris and Chambers Have Been Heard

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Man., July 6. — Followers of the Liberal government are not ruffled this morning by the sworn statements of ex-Attorney J. H. Howden to the effect that twenty-five thousand dollars was paid to Liberal Agent Chambers and a similar amount more promised, in consideration of all election protests being dropped. The Liberals recall that Howden was never a strong man in the Legislature, and his work for the party in power was always behind the scenes. Government supporters to-day ask that the public wait till Norris and Chambers give their evidence before forming an opinion as to the merits of Howden's evidence.

$1000 Profit Returned To Government

Thos. Birkett Sends a Cheque For That Amount.

OTTAWA, July 6. — Another one thousand dollars of "restitution" money is now in the hands of the Government as the result of the inquiries which have taken place into war contracts. It will be recalled that in connection with the Powell drug and bandages contract, Powell, or more properly speaking, W. F. Garland, M.P., returned $6,300. The $1,000 received to-day comes from Thos. Birkett, who made a large profit on the sale of binoculars. The check was made out in favour of John Thompson, Government counsel. It was accompanied by the statement that Mr. Birkett is willing to pay over whatever excessive profits Sir Chas. Davidson, the commissioner, thinks should be returned. The amount may be more or less than one thousand dollars, but the check has been paid over as a matter of good faith. It will be turned over to the Minister of Finance for safe keeping without delay. The binocular inquiry was concluded.

Want Fisher Back on Job

Invasion of England Depends on Mistake of Fleet, Says Daily Mail

LONDON, July 6.— Continuing its attack on the new Government, the Daily Mail says:

"An invasion of England is dependent upon one mistake, and one mistake only of our fleet; that is exactly what it depends upon. The same brains that muddled the Dardanelles operations may interfere with operations of the fleet. Lord Fisher left the Admiralty as a protest against the phase of the Dardanelles campaign. He declined to return to it so long as certain muddlers are in any way connected with the Government. They are still most active members of the coalition. It is announced today that Fisher has been appointed chairman of a new board of invention. No doubt he can do very useful work in that capacity and we are glad to know that he will be at hand in case of an emergency, but the nation should insist upon his return to the Admiralty. Unfortunately, the nation knows practically nothing. It is being told a little more by the new Government, but as yet not much."

OUR SERIAL STORY PAGE

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

I threw a saddle on the paint-hoss, and called Hellion outside. He came with a shade of interest beginnin' to glimmer in his eyes and when I mounted, he kept close to my side. I put the pinto at speed a time or two, but he kept right there so I knew I hadn't hurt his neart with my blow. When I reached the stage road, I got off and he came right up to me. I took his head between both my hands, and sez to him: "Hellion(us humans try to twist and bend and hammer into new shapes all the words of nature; but I thank the Lord that no man can win a dog like you in a poker game. You're free, just as you allus have been free, and just as you allus will be free. Freedom can't never be took from a feller by force, 'cause the only real slave is the willin' slave, and that you'll never be."

I had been thinkin' big thoughts all the way down and I'v allus noticed that when I'm thinkin' big thoughts, I allus spread in all directions. As I knelt and held that dog's head in my hands, I was full brother to him, and to the angels, too , and to the winds and the mountains and the rollin' sea of the plains. I couldn't 'a' told a tenth o' what I felt for I was light as a feather at thought of all the brave things that had been done in the hard old world, and yet heavy at the sadness of it all. The dog looked into my face with deep, understandin' eyes, and I patted him on the shoulder and rode away.

He stood where I'd left him until I rounded a curve, and I gave a little sight and fell to thinkin' of Tom Smith and the girl; but in a short time I looked down and there was Hellion. "Here," sez I, pullin' up the paint-hoss, "what do you mean?"

He wagged his tail kind o' half-apologetical and yet with a certain trace o' mischief in it, too. "Now, listen, son," sez I, "I'm too much given to ramblin' to take on a regular dog like you. You needn't tell me that you've forgot the way back to the old codger's; so you might as well trot right along. I like you mighty well, but I know just as well as if it was yesterday, that if you throw in with me, you'll get me into a mess of trouble, and trouble is what I allus try to avoid."

When he wagged his tail this time he threw in a body-squirm with it, and then I knew that all that talkin' I had passed out to him in the stall had took, and that he favoured the sound of my voice. What had finally drove me away from home was my step-mother makin' my dad kill a little sheep-dog I had. This dog had been everything to me that a heathen's idol is to him, and a darn sight more, 'cause the dog could wag his tail and lick my hands and the idol can't do nothin' but sit and grin; 'til I know mighty well if I was the heathen the first time I caught that idol grinnin' at me when I went to him for sympathy I'd bust him in two with an axe; but that little sheep-dog—!

Well, I only stayed home long enough to decide that, takin' all things into consideration, it wouldn't be good policy to slaughter my step-mother. I was ten when I left home, but I'm ashamed to tell an outsider, as I was before I quit callin' up the tender brown eyes o' that little sheep-dog whenever one o' the water-blisters on my soul got broke. I didn't want any more dogs to keep, and I told all this to Hellion there on the trail.

I've allus had a secret dread that some woman I didn't think much of would marry me again' my will, 'cause I'm awful easy imposed on unless they try violence on me. I argued with Hellion and I got off and pointed his nose towards home, but he had took a fool notion to throw in with me for a spell, and the result was that we rode back to the Lion Head side by side.

Confucious rushed out and barked at him savage, but he only gave Connie the side-eye and then stood lookin' like a stone image. Isaac called Connie up to him and then he congratulated me on the way I had gentled Hellion.

"Can he shake hands?" asked Isaac, after I had turned the pony adrift and all the boys had gathered around.

"He can," sez I, "but his hands are all blistered from sawin' wood and he don't like to."

"Would you like to have me teach him how to shake hands?" sez Isaac.

"Now, Mr. Foster,," sez I, "if he was a small calibre dog that you could hold in one hand and teach with the other, nothin' would suit me better; but what I fear is that you'll lose patience and abuse him."

"Why, no," sez Isaac, "I never abuse animals."

"Except when they pester you," sez I. "Don't forget that I saw the way you insulted Crusader just because he tore the sleeve off your smokin' jacket."

While Isaac was blinkin' his eyes and tryin' to recall some quotation which would restore him to confidence, Baldy Hagus came circlin' in from the grain fields where he'd been seein' how soon stuff would be ready to cut. When Baldy had been irrigatin' himself, he didn't just feel the way most fellers do, his wooden leg used to root itself in the ground and his regular leg would walk a full circle around it; but he alls started off in the right direction.

"Baldy," sez Shorty, who used to delight in the idy of his bein' Red's future father-in-law, "come here, I want to ask you a question."

Baldy milled himself over to where we were sittin' and dropped down on the grass. "Shoot the question," sez he.

"How come you to lose that nigh prop?" sez Shorty.

"If I tell ya that, will you promise not to ask me any more questions?" sez Baldy.

"I will," sez Shorty.

"It was bit off," sez Baldy, and we all gave Shorty the laugh so hearty that Red felt called upon to take a little somethin' out o' Baldy's hide for attackin' Shorty in a weak spot.

"Was you able to stand work before your leg was bit off?" sez he to Baldy.

"I can stand work yet," sez Baldy.

"Mexican Charley sez ya can't," sez Red. Mexican Charley was the Greaser Big Jeff had workin' for him. "He sez that he gave you four bits and two drinks a day, which was just about four bits and one drink more'n you could earn. He sez he'll never hire ya again."

"Mexican Charley didn't have no more to do with hirin' me than that there calf had," sez Baldy in wrath. "Big Jeff hired me and he didn't get me at any four bits a day neither."

"Is it true that Big Jeff hurt his arm tryin' to pry you loose from a barrel o' whisky?" asked Red.

"If the truth was known," sez Baldy, "I'll bet that sneakin' Tom Smith you fellers brought in here had more to do with hurtin' Big Jeff's arm 'n airy other body had."

"Tom Smith!" popped in Isaac, with so much excitement that Connie rushed about lookin' for somethin' to bark at.

"Don't I speak plain enough to be understood?" sez Baldy, drawin' his head back at Isaac.

"Yes," sez Isaac, still excited; "but I was surprised to hear you speak of him."

"Who's he that I shouldn't speak of him?" sez Baldy. "When you fellers had him tied up, he was mighty glad to have me speak to him."

"If you know anything about it," sez Isaac, stickin' his face close to Baldy's, "tell it out this minute."

Baldy drew himself up with dignity and stared at Isaac. "Well, don't jump down a feller's throat," sez he. "I reckon I know a leetle mite more about it than airy other body in these parts. I don't mind confidin' to ya in confidence that I have had a ragin' thirst myself, after I've been speedin' up beyond my natural gait the night before, and when he begged so pitiful, I didn't have the heart to see him tortured. The four dollars he give me, didn't have nothin' to do with it."

"Oh, see here, now, the kid, so you're the meddle-finger who let Tom Smith get away?"

"Shut up," sez Baldy, which was mostly what that kid caught when he went fishin' for conversation with one of his sassy remarks, but nothin' ever seemed to make him try a new kind o' bait. "I turned him loose and I gave him a little bottle I happened to have in case any of my sons got snake-bit. He follwed the crick down to the stage road and then cut across to the mott o' timber back o' my place where I fed him his supper. Then when I thought you'd all be asleep, I loaded him into my chariot and hauled him up to Big Jeff's."

"Jeff said he'd give him a job on a ranch he had if he'd agree not to do any more drinkin', and Tom Smith said if Big Jeff would just let him finish out that one drunk, he'd agree not to go on another, never. Big Jeff turned his place over to me and Mexican Charlie, and he and Tom Smith started north."

"And you had Tom Smith in the bed o' your cart when I halted you on the road that night?" sez I.

"I sure did," sez Baldy, grinnin'.

ROYAL RELATIONS ENGAGED IN THE WAR.

One of the anomalies of the present war is the fact that the heads of some of the nations at war are closely related by blood ties or marriage. This is especially true of England, where the royal family is connected by descent or marriage with many of the German imperial, royal and ducal houses. The King of England, for instance, is a cousin of the German Emperor.

King George is also at war with his cousin, Duke Karl Eduard of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha; his second cousin, Duke Ernst August of Brunswick; his third cousin, Grand Duke Adolf Frederick of Mecklenburg-Strelitz; his third cousin, King Friedrich August of Saxony; his third cousin, Archduke Charles Francis, heir to the Austrian throne, and his third cousin, Ernst Bernhard, Duke of Saxe-Meiningen. The Tsar of Russia is at war with his brother-in-law, Grand Duke Ernst Ludwig of Hesse. King Albert of Belgium, who is King George's second cousin, is at war with his brother-in-law, Prince Charles of Hohenzollern, and King Albert's wife is a duchess of Baden.

Should Greece enter the conflict, King Constantine would be at war with his brother-in-law, the German Emperor, having married Princess Sophie of Prussia, the Kaiser's sister.

Comparative Cost of War; Big Demand for Munitions

Among the items of interest are those pertaining to the cost of the war. Great Britain spent £1,831,000,000 ($9,155,000,000) in her fight against Napoleon. The South African War cost England £211,000,000 ($1,055,000,000). In the present war the total amount raised up to April 1 (240 days) was $1,810,000,000. Of this total $190,000,000 was advanced to the Dominion and Crown colonies for war expenses, $50,000,000 to Belgium and $4,000,000 to Serbia.

The vote of credit for $1,250,000,000 was the largest single vote ever put before the English House of Commons and covers the period to the second week in July, 1915.

India contributed $287,500,000 for the year beginning April 1.

On February 16 Mr. Lloyd George stated that one-third of the British strength was at war. To place the remaining two-thirds in service would cost $10,000,000 a day during the current year. It was estimated that the war would cost $40,000,000,000 for eighteen months, including the expenditure of money, property destroyed and loss of labor.

Great Britain has also begun payment on cotton seized by her war ships, paying $200,000, or 10 per cent, on cargoes whose ownership has been proved. There were also filed $500,000 insurance claims on 350 policies of the Lusitania victims by English companies.

In France public subscriptions, compared with government appropriations for the war, were as follows:—

In 1914 the Bank of France supplied $720,000,000; public subscription, $240,000,000.

In 1915 the Bank of France supplied $200,000,000; public subscription, $500,000,000.

National defence bonds issued up to March 12, 1915, yielded $772,400,000.

In Germany the Krupps subscribed $7,500,000 to the war loan, and up to April 4 $900,000,000 was paid out in cash on the second German war loan. The German chemical trade reported a loss of $250,000,000 up to February 4.

War supplies were ordered by Great Britain and her allies in the United States as follows:—

Automobile trucks ordered by British and French, 1914, $30,000,000.

Automobiles exported to Europe from the United States in 1914 totalled $33,198,806.

Eight thousand cannon ordered from Bethlehem Steel Company for British on May 20, $10,150,000.

This same plant is now turning out daily 12,000 shrapnel and 50,000 one pounder and other small arms.

Belgian orders for uniforms in the United States on April 18 amounted to $1,150,000.

Russia purchased the following:—Eighty million dollars' worth of shells, twenty per cent of this amount in Canada, $16,000,000, and eighty per cent in the United States, $64,000,000; shrapnel from the United States on April 30, $30,000,000; car axles from the the United States on May 14, $750,000; railroad and other equipment, from Canada, $20,000,000, and from United States, $60,000,000.

Italy purchased from the United States in January 1,500,000 bushels of wheat for $1,800,000, and later in February purchased 4,350,000 more bushels of wheat for $5,940,000.

Germans Mowed Down by French Machine Guns on Alblain Road

LONDON, July. 5.— The Germans attacked the French line at several points last night, but in each instance were driven back. The strongest movement was directed against the road from Albian to Angres, where the Germans moved forward in their favourite close formation, only to be mowed down by the French machine gun fire and forced to retire after suffering heavy losses.

A German battalion also attempted to storm the village of Fey, five miles west of Port-a-Mousson and the Moselle River, but was forced to retire after reaching the French wire entanglements.

In yesterdays fighting the French repulsed two German attacks in the region about Metzeral in Alsace, and maintained all their positions in the Argonne, where the fighting was exceedingly fierce Friday night, the Germans claiming to have taken 2,556 prisoners in this region.

The allied entrenchments in Flanders, especially in the region of Neuville, Ecurie and Roclincourt, were subjected to a heavy bombardment by the German guns on Saturday.

Berlin announces that German air-the railway station at Dombasle, a place south-east of the city, and that this resulted in railway communication with Fort Remiremont, one of the French Lorraine defence works, being severed. German aviators are declared to have been victorious in several air combats.

Heroism in Labyrinth.

A despatch to the Daily Chronicle from its correspondent in Northern France says: "Details supplied by a young wounded French officer give a new and thrilling view of the almost incredible heroism by which the Labyrinth was captured. "Trench warfare," he said, "is nothing to what we had to go through in those three weeks—three weeks, not in the open, not in the trenches, but in underground lines of communication, narrow galleries in the earth, with no light but tiny pickering oil lamps.

"Remember, we were separated from the enemy only by sacks of earth pushed one against the other. The moment a bar was broken at any point a ferocious hand-to-hand fight started. Hand grenades and bayonets were the chief weapons, but the Germans sometimes used knives. One day they attacked with some liquid that left fearful burns, but no one knew when a fight might take place, so that one had to be always on watch, and when it started you had to fight with anything that came to hand—fists, if there was nothing else. But our men always got the upper hand.

"The corridors were appalling places. The water oozed down from everywhere and the smell was unspeakable. We could not take out the corpses, and we lived among them day and night. One corridor sixty yards long took us thirteen days of hard fighting. The Germans made barricades, traps and pitfalls of every kind. Pushing along in the dark, with nothing but our pocket electric torches to give us a spasmodic light, we never knew when the ground might give way, letting us fall upon bayonets fixed upright. The Germans tried mines as deep as those we already were making. Luckily, we heard the noise, and our sappers counter-mined."

A Lapse of Memory.

policeman, said to the bridegroom, who stood trembling, with his pallbearer gloves on:

"Do you, Algernon Smith, take this young woman to be your lawful wedded wife in sickness and in health, for better or for worse, till death do you part? Remember, anything you say will be used against you."—Chicago Post.

Huge Austrian Guns.

The Austrian troops used a new battery of 52cm. (20.5in.) mortars in the fighting round Tarnow. The first shot from one of these guns entirely destroyed a large tower at a distance of eleven miles. The shell weighs over a quarter of a ton more than that of the German 17in. mortars.

Totally Discouraged by Nervous Prostration

After Many Weeks of Doctoring a Friend Recommended Chases' Nerve Food and She Was Cured

There is nothing more discouraging than Nervous Prostration. Because of the exhausted condition of the nervous system, weakness and helplessness take possession of the body. The faculties of the mind as well as those of the body are affected and hope and courage disappear.

The patient, often appearing well, gets little sympathy, and few doctors understand diseases of the nerves well enough to treat nervous prostration intelligently. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is founded on the prescription of a great nerve specialist, and hence its wonderful success in curing ailments of this nature.

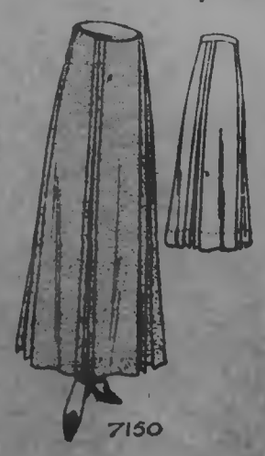
Mrs. Edith May Williams, Tilsonburg, Ont., R. R. 3, writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I suffered for years with my nerves, and at one time I was confined to my bed with nervous prostration for several weeks. I cannot just explain my feelings, but I was weak and helpless and so discouraged and despondent that I thought I would lose my mind. I doctored with several doctors and received but little benefit. At last I became very much discouraged and thought I would never get better. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before I had finished the first box I knew that it was helping me. It took several boxes of the Nerve Food to make me well and I can truly say that it is a wonderful builder-up of the nervous system."

It is only wise to prevent such dreaded diseases as Nervous Prostration, Paralysis and Locomotor Ataxia by keeping the nervous system in good condition at all times. When you cannot sleep well, have headaches and indigestion, be warned of approaching dangers and restore the nervous system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Limited, Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GRACEFUL PLAITED MODEL.

By Anabel Worthington.



It is such a long time since we have had five gored skirts that they come in as quite a novelty. This pretty design in five gores has a cluster of plaits at each seam. They are not very deep, but sufficiently so to give a good flare at the lower edge, the stitching holding them in only to the knee or a little above. High waist may be used for the model, with an inside belt, or the band finish at normal waistline. The placket opening is at left side front, in the under fold of one of the plaits.

This is a splendid design for a suit, either of cloth or linen, the coat being in tailored style. English or Scotch mixtures, or shepherd check would be appropriate, or, among the wash fabrics, linen, gabardine or corduroy. Medium size requires 4 yards 44 inches wide. The pattern, No. 7,150, comes in sizes from 22 to 32 inches waist measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

ITLAY'S SOLDIERS

Italy has some of the most efficient and most picturesque soldiers in the world. They are divided into four classes; the Bersaglieri, the Alpini, the Carabinieri, and the cavalry.

The Bersaglieri are light infantry of great mobility. They are always seen on the run, and their picturesque costume, with low-crowned plumed hat, is a feature of almost every Italian landscape.

The Alpini are specially trained to manoeuvre among the northern mountains, and their target practice consists in sharpshooting across the vast open spaces, where the atmospheric conditions would confuse the soldier of the lowlands. As to the cavalry, experts have said that that of Italy is the finest in the world.

Besides these unique corps, there are the famous Carabinieri or national police, who are recruited from the army, and then usually return to it as non-commissioned officers after seven years' service. This corps is considered the finest school of non-commissioned officers in the world. Its training and administration are also unique.

Civil Lord of the Admiralty

Duke of Devonshire.

In the last Conservative Government in England, His Grace, then Mr. Victor Christian William Cavendish, was Treasurer of His Majesty's household, and later Financial Secretary of the Treasury. In 1911 he succeeded his uncle, the late Duke of Devonshire, who, as Marquis of Hartington, led those opposed to Home Rule out of the Liberal Party. He was made Civil Lord of the Admiralty in the Coalition Cabinet.

A TITLED PRIVATE

Lord Crawford Set Fine Example by Enlisting as Stretcher-bearer

Those acquainted with the sporting qualities, enthusiasm, and energy of Lord Crawford were scarcely surprised at the splendid example he set by going to the Front as a stretcher-bearer with the Royal Army Medical Corps.

His lordship greatly distinguished himself in many directions. He is a trustee of the National Portrait Gallery, having inherited from his father that love of pictures which has made him the moving spirit of the National Art Collectors' Fund. One of his lordship's notable characteristics is his rapid walk.

No one enjoyed the joke more than Lord Crawford himself when, after he had warned the government for weeks about the danger of German spies on the East Coast and the inadequate precautions which had been taken to guard against them, he himself one night was routed out of his house by a military patrol, who "ecsularly showed that there was a light burning in one of the top rooms of his house, which commanded an extremely wide view over oth shores of the Firth of Forth."

Perhaps one of the best stories told of Lord Crawford is that concerning a theory he once held that pickpockets always manoeuvred from the opposite side to that of the pocket it was intended to "pick." But a friend, walking with him one day in the East-end, showed him that his contention was wrong. He slyly inserted his hand into his lordship's pocket on the same side as he was walking—the right. But Lord Crawford felt the intrusion, and, promptly turning to the man who happened to be on the left, he punched him in the chest, with the exclamation, "Ah! would you?" A fight was averted only by the confession of the offender and the placid temper of the rather large person who had been insulted.

The Roumanian Language.

Roumanian (or Wallachian) is one of the Romance languages—the general name for those modern languages that are the immediate descendants of the languages of ancient Rome. The language differs slightly in different parts of the country, like the north and south of England.

When Hot Days Come

The Happy Coolness of Montserrat Lime Fruit Juice

This healthful, golden juice, with its snappy, fruity, aromatic flavour, is a summer necessity as well as a summer luxury. It keeps you well, it does you good; it supplies the pure fruit acid that the system needs. Else why is it supplied by the British Government in such large quantities to the Navy and the Expeditionary forces? The reason is, it keeps people healthy and is a most satisfying cooling beverage for a hot day.

RAILWAY OFFICIALS on active service . . . . . .

I

III

IV

DURING the past few months hundreds of railway employes have gone to the war, among them probably none more prominent with the Canadian Pacific Railway than the men whose photographs are reproduced here. Each a head of an important department of the world's greatest transportation company, and each anxious to devote his services and life, if need be, to the aid of the British Empire.

Number I is Lieut.-Col. Fred A. Gascoigne, of the 60th Battalion, who was granted leave of absence from his position as Superintendent of Car Service of Eastern Lines to go to the front. He is now busily engaged in encouraging recruits to join his regiment, to which is attached a son of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the president of the road, as Lieutenant. Lieut.-Col. Gascoigne joined the Canadian Pacific as a clerk at Brockville Station on May 15, 1883, and the following year came to Montreal as a clerk in the Car Accountant Dept., from which position he rose to Superintendent on Feb. 1st, 1903.

Number II is Lieut.-Col. George Stephen Cantlie, who recently landed in England in command of the 42nd Highlanders. Lieut.-Col. Cantlie joined the railway on Jan. 1, 1885, as a clerk in the Audit Dept. and attracted such attention that the following year he was appointed Assistant General Manager and Assistant to the President. He rapidly rose to be Superintendent of the Car Service, and on Nov. 23, 1908, was made General Supt. of the Car Services, a position he occupied when he volunteered for overseas service.

Number III is Captain G. Ernest Hall, who has been doing excellent work at the front with the Heavy Brigade, being second in command. He was Assistant General Storekeeper and volunteered with one of the first Canadian units to go to the front after the declaration of war last August. Capt. Hall joined the C. P. R. on May 14, 1900, as a clerk in the Engineering Dept. at Montreal and became Asst. General Storekeeper in 1905.

Number IV represents one of the prominent officials last to leave the Canadian Pacific for Overseas Service. [illegible] Ramsay, who, is in command of the Canadian Overseas Railway Construction Corps. He was born in 1883 and entered the service of the railway as an apprentice in 1898. From that date until Sept. 19, 1903, he served in various minor capacities, when he was appointed a draftsman in the Construction Dept. From this he became an assistant engineer and Division Engineer, and on March 15, 1912, he was appointed Engineer of Construction for Eastern Lines. He was closely identified with the construction of all new lines since that date, notably the building of the new Lake Shore line from Montreal to Toronto.

STORIES OF BARON FISHER

When Lord Fisher first entered the navy there were few more popular youngsters in the service. "There never was such a plucky little beggar," remarked an old shipmate, referring to those early days. "He was as quick as a monkey, keen as a needle, hard as nails, would do anything, or go anywhere, didn't know what fear was, or that there was such a word in the language as 'can't.'"

Blunt to a degree, Lord Fisher is somewhat of a Kitchener in his methods. A few years ago "Jacky," as they call him in the navy, wanted a ship under his command to go to a certain place on a certain date. Her captain pleaded that it was impossible to get ready. "Tell —— that if he is not ready to leave for —— on the day named, I will have him towed there," was Admiral Fisher's reply. Needless to say, it did not prove necessary to carry out his threat.

He has a satirical way of rebuking naval men who are not as smart as they should be. It is particularly effective. On one occasion, having cause to be dissatisfied with the conduct of a certain ship, he wrote as follows: "I have to advise the officers of the —— that they are expected to study navigation occasionally."

The best story told of Lord Fisher is that concerning an occasion when a certain French admiral was about to pay a visit to Portsmouth, when he was Admiral Superintendent at the dockyard. Queen Victoria requested him to be sure and "be very nice" to the visitor. With a face as impassive as a Chinese mandarin, the admiral replied, "I'll kiss him if you wish it, ma'am."

New Zealand's Pensions

The New Zealand Soldiers' Pensions Act provides, in addition to the generous pensions for soldiers' wives, for the payment to the widows, not only of officers, non-commissioned officers, but to those of privates also, of one year's pay in addition to her pension, with an amount equal to one-third of the gratuity to each of the children under age. The New Zealand Act provides that a pension may be continued to sons until they attain the age of eighteen, and to daughters until their twenty-first birthday.

LONG FEARED ITALY

Austria Erected Wonderful Fortifications Against Her One-time Ally

The Austrian defences along the northeastern frontier of Italy are of great strength. Austria, although united, until the commencement of the great international conflagration by the bonds of the Triple Alliance, to Italy, has devoted colossal sums of money during the last quarter of a century to fortifying her boundaries against that power, especially that mighty rampart of Alps extending from Verona to Botzem.

Every accessible line of approach from the south has its barrier fort, usually an armored work in a commanding position for long-range fighting, and an auxiliary barrier in the valleys below, armed with quick-firing and machine guns. Armored observatories, powerful searchlights, underground cables, and signal stations aid in the defence. Besides these exterior works, the Tyrol, which juts out like a bastion into the Lombardo-Venetian plain, has a group of forts at Riva, another at Fransensfeste, to protect the railroad junction, and, finally, an immensely strong fortress at Trent, which may be described as the keep of the Tyrol, and is surrounded by a girdle of batteries and armored forts.

GARROS' LAST FLIGHT

Famous Airman was Trying to Bomb a Railway Train and had Mishap

The war bulletin of the Fourth German army gave the details of the capture of Roland Garros, the famous French aviator. He was making for Langelede, Belgium, when a railway train passed along from the north. When Garros saw it he made a dizzy voplane of 2,000 yards at an angle of 60 degrees, and came down right over the train, describing small circles above it. He then threw a bomb at it, but the missile fell on to the railway, making a hole a yard in depth by two yards in diameter. Sentries opened fire on the aviator at a distance of 100 yards. Garros threw a second bomb and ascended to a height of 700 yards. Suddenly his motor stopped, the machine oscillated and came down again in a volplane in the direction of Hulste. On reaching ground Garros set fire to his machine and took refuge in a peasant's hut. The soldiers who found him had to search a long time, finally discovering him crouching down in a deep ditch under a thick hedge.

Harwich Plays Important Part in Britain's Naval War Game

Tourists who know Harwich as the port of departure for the Hook of Holland would hardly recognise the famous harbor these days. For where the packet boats of the Great Eastern and Belgian state railways are usually moored are now stationed low-lying, tigerish-looking torpedo boats and destroyers ready to sneak out under cover of darkness and raid the enemy's fleet either while at sea or anchor. And farther up the River Stour, bob countless submarines, with their gasoline tanks filled to the brim, and torpedoes in their tubes, ready to attack "from the depths below," unseen and unsuspected.

This is the base for the British "mosquito fleet," and the sight of the low, sinister-looking destroyers, torpedo boats and submarines, moored in rows as straight as a billiard cue, is about as entertaining as the inspection of a surgeon's table of instruments!

The naval strategists in Whitehall have huge charts of the North Sea, and, by means of models, know where every vessel is, at any given moment, from the superdreadnought to the smallest submarine. They decide upon an attack by the "mosquitoes" and the orders are wirelessed from the roof of the London government buildings to Harwich, and a bell tolls, calling the sailors aboard. The rest is not known until the newspapers announce a naval battle.

The very latest "destroyers of destroyers" of the "L" class are stationed at Harwich. These boats of nearly a thousand tons each, oil fired and turbine driven, can jump off from the post half an hour after the order to raise steam is given and can, in any reasonable weather, continue at 27 knots until all their fuel is expended.

Young men, very young men, are in charge of these boats of the "mosquito fleet." Discipline is not, or rather cannot be, formal or ceremonious on these small floating masses of machinery. The lieutenant in command and the engineer officer are never out of sight, touch or hearing of the men whom they command.

The part Harwich is playing in the great war game between the British and German fleets is largely a flanking one. At the first sign of danger she is expected to shoot out her fastest destroyers and torpedo boats and attack any of the war craft of Admiral von Tirpitz that might attempt to pass down the North Sea into the English Channel.

A Pointless Eden.

There are people who can live without literature, even amid the piles of books and newspapers. One man I know who lived in comfortable rooms at Clifton was a bank official in Bristol. He was the only man of means in England I ever found without a single bit of book, paper or print about him but the encouraging notice on a new box of cigars. Did you ever know a man who deliberately refused to read books or even newspapers—and was quite happy?—London Globe.

BRITISH ARE VICTORIOUS NEAR PILKEN

SEVEN KILLED IN FACTORY EXPLOSION

BRITISH REGIMENT SCORES A VICTORY WITH BAYONET

Dashing Over Trenches Wrecked by French Artillery They Brilliantly Stormed German Positions---Violent Battle From Arras to the Sea in Which Enemy's Heavy Attacks Were All Repulsed.

ARRAS BOMBARDED ALL NIGHT

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, July 6.—(French Official Communique).—Over trenches wrecked by the French artillery, a British regiment fought its way to a brilliant victory south-west of Pilken. The British dashed forward after the Teuton works had been shelled for an hour and drove the enemy out at the point of the bayonet. The most violent battle is raging from Arras northward to the sea. The Germans have launched heavy attacks against the French positions near the Souchez Railway Station. Every onslaught has been repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy. Arras was bombarded all night. Several small fires were started but were quickly extinguished by the French reserves. Between Arras and Ecurie incessant infantry fighting has been going on since early yesterday. All the German attacks in the Argonne, on the Meuse heights and in Lepretre Woods in the past twelve hours have been repulsed, the War Office announced.

BERLIN (via wireless), July 6.—The British-French losses in the recent fighting around La Bassee have been "fearful," according to reports from the German commanders. One brigade alone is reported to have lost 3,400 of its 4,200 men. This afternoon's statement from the War Office reported that the German troops operating in North Poland stormed and captured a strongly fortified forest, taking 500 prisoners, but gave no new details of the battle south of Lublin. The victory reported this afternoon occurred south of Bialc Blofo, west of the Suwalki-Kalvarl road.

OTTAWA, July 6.—Casualties announced this afternoon—Second Battalion: Seriously wounded, Ralph Inman, Eng. Unofficially reported prisoner of war in Germany—Thomas Hancock, Kingston, Ont.; S. Young, Picton, Ont. Wounded—Charles C. Miron, Sault Ste Marie, Ont.; Wm. Levoir, Peterborough, Ont.

LONDON, July 6.—The Evening News to-day prints a despatch from its Hague correspondent, who declared the Americans in Berlin are indignant because the police did not prevent an insult to "Old Glory" on July 4.

The News said that a number of Germans, falsely representing themselves as Americans, formed an organization styled the "World Society of Friends of Truth." They paraded with an American flag draped in crepe—later depositing the flag at the state of Frederick the Great in Unier Den Linden. The society held a banquet in the evening, passed resolutions denouncing President Wilson, and protesting against the exportation of American munitions to the Allies.

VON SANDERS WOUNDED.

ATHENS, July 6.—General Liman Von Sanders, the German commander at the Dardanelles, has been wounded for the second time, according to despatches received here to-day.

BERLIN (via wireless), July 6.—The British Minister to Bulgaria, Sir Max Ironside, has been withdrawn because of the undiplomatic attitude in the negotiations between the Allies and Bulgaria, according to reports reaching here to-day. Sofia despatches assert that negotiations between Bulgaria and Turkey are proceeding with every prospect of success.

LONDON, July 6.—Russia has apologized to Sweden for violating the Swedish neutrality, permitting stray shells to fall within Swedish waters in last Friday's naval battle off Gothland, according to Petrograd despatches to-day.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The Evening World to-day declared that the United States censorship over the German-owned wireless station at Sayville, L.I., is being evaded by a secret system invented by Dr. I. Kitse, a scientist of Philadelphia, by which the same simple phrase could be made to convey several different meanings in wireless transmission by shortening or lengthening the period of sending.

LONDON, July 6.—W. J. P. Mason, the Liberal member who recently queried Premier Asquith on peace rumours, served notice to-day that he will ask the Prime Minister to-morrow whether the Government, after the war, will support an International Tribunal with power to prevent wars. The Premier also will be questioned about the rumours of dissensions between Lord Kitchener and Sir John French. Sir Arthur Basil Markham, another Liberal member, gave notice to that effect to-day.

THE SUMMER WORK KAWARTHA CHAPTER IS DECIDED UPON

At a meeting of the "Kawartha" Chapter of the I.O.D.E. yesterday it was decided to go on working all the summer making hospital supplies, and it was arranged that several members should attend at the room of the Red Cross Society on Simcoe street on Wednesday afternoon, to be instructed in the correct mode of making same, and to learn the latest requirements as issued by headquarters. This was felt necessary in order to ensure no mistakes or waste on the part of the workers. The materials will also be purchased from the local Red Cross Society.

The treasurer stated that the sum of $128.50 had been realised from the recent garden party after all expenses had been paid. She was instructed to forward the sum of $125 for the purchase of sand bags for the Canadian soldiers at the front.

MORE NEWS OF PTE. HEBER ROGERS PRISONER OF WAR

Wounded Peterboro' Boy Who Was Captured at St. Julien Has Been Transferred From Gressen to Wetzlar.

HIS EYE IS BETTER

Further information in regard to Private Heber Rogers, wounded and captured at St. Julien, has been received by his father, Mr. R. B. Rogers, in the shape of a post card and a letter written by the local boy to Miss Glassford, London, Eng., an aunt of Pte. George Minorgan. The letter is as follows:

June 4, 1915.

Dear Miss Glassford—

Your two nice letters of May 20 and 17 arrived safely on the 2nd. I certainly was delighted to hear from you, and to know that my card had gone safely. Thanks very much for letting them know at home. They must have thought at home that I was killed, because Col. Rogers was the last man I saw before we went to take up our position in the house. However, they certainly would be glad to get your cablegram. I was so sorry to hear that you had no word from George (Minorgan) or Bill (Gibson.) That was an awful position our battalion had and any that came out were very lucky. They might have been taken prisoner and not had a chance to write but if it is the worst they certainly did their duty nobly.

I don't know how to thank you enough for being so good to me in sending me parcels and the money. They have not got here yet but they certainly take longer than letters, so I am looking forward to getting them any day. The underwear will come in fine and that is about all I wanted in the way of clothes, except perhaps a pair of tennis shoes. My uniform is all right although it and my hat have several holes in it. I can only see out of the corner of my eye yet and might have to have an operation on it in England: at least that is what the doctor said at Giessen.

Yesterday all the prisoners left the hospital at Giessen as it is now for the

LASHES AND PRISON TERM

William Rose, Who Pleaded Guilty to Assaulting a Fourteen Year Old Girl, Sentenced by Judge Huycke This Morning.

RESCUERS COMMENDED

The first sentence, with lashes, ever passed by His Honour Judge Huycke as County Judge, for the County of Peterborough, was pronounced against William Rose this morning, who pleaded guilty before His Honour to assaulting a little girl, fourteen years of age, with intent to commit an indictible offence. Rose was sentenced to one year in Central Prison, now known as the Industrial Farm, with twenty lashes, ten of these lashes during the first month of his incarceration, and the other ten during the last month at the Farm.

The Circumstances.

The story of the offence, as brought out in the preliminary hearing at the Police Court, was that the young girl was on her way home from Victoria Park, where she attended a band concert. As she was going along Kirk Street she noticed a man in some bushes along the street. She commenced to run but he caught her and dragged her into the bushes. She screamed for help and a young man, Pte. Green of the 58th Battalion, who was on his way home, nearby, heard her. He went out to see what was the cause of the call. Rose saw him coming, and leaving the girl, started to run. Pte. Green told him to stop or he would shoot. Rose stopped, and when Pte. Green came up and he saw that his pursuer did not have a gun, he commenced to fight. Green got the better of the argument, and had Rose on the ground when Mr. Richard O'Brien came along. Mr. O'Brien held Rose while Green went to telephone for the police. In the meantime, however, Mrs. Green had telephoned and the officers arrived shortly after.

Pleaded Guilty.

When Rose came before His Honour Judge Huyke to elect for trial he pleaded not guilty. Through his counsel, Mr. Widdifield, he changed his plea this morning, however, to 'guilty'. Mr. Widdifield made a strong plea in behalf of the prisoner. He explained to the Court that Rose had at one time received a blow on the head which made him unbalanced at times. He was a married man, but his wife had left him. He had but his mother and father left to him now, as his three brothers had enlisted for active service. The prisoner had tried to enlist a couple of times, but could not obtain his wife's consent. He asked that, with the consent of the Crown Attorney, Mr. Hatton, a sentence to imprisonment should not be imposed, but rather, lashes, and that he be allowed to enlist.

Court Approved.

Before passing sentence Mr. Richard O'Brien was called before the Court. His Honour Jude Huycke wished to convey to Mr. O'Brien the approval of the Court for his prompt action. He also asked the Crown Attorney to convey to Pte. Green, who was at Barriefield Camp, and unable to be present at the trial, the approval and commendation of the Court.

William Rose was then asked to stand up. In addressing the prisoner His Honour Judge Huycke wished to never cease to be grateful to these two men for their timely interference. To-day he might have been on trial for his life if it had not been for these two men. He did not suppose the prisoner was able to realize now, or ever had realized the gravity of the charge. Little girls like this must be protected from men such as him. That kind of thing must be stopped, and would be stopped, in Peterborough. An example must be made as a deterrent to this sort of work.

Funeral of the Late Mrs. R. J. Green

The Fargo Forum of Dakota contains an elaborate report of the funeral of Mrs. R. J. Green. Mrs. Green, who with her husband has frequently visited Peterborough, was an aunt of Messrs. John Green, W. J. Green, and Joseph Green of this city. The deceased is also survived by three sons and three daughters, by thirteen grand children and eleven great-grandchildren.

The plant is a Canadian branch of the Dupont Ammunition Works of Wilmington, Del. Hospital trains and Army Medical Corps men were rushed out from Montreal to assist the wounded.

Aviators and a Light Squadron of Cruisers and Destroyers Penetrated Close to the German Coast Returning With Much Useful Information.

THE BERLIN VERSION

Special Cable:

LONDON, July 6. — Much elation is felt at the success of the British Naval Flying Corps and its assisting light squadron of cruisers and destroyers in penetrating so near the German North Sea coast as indicated in the official German statement today. While there is so far no report of heavy damage being done by the British raiders it is realised that the amount of information gathered by the British aviators in their recent reconnoitring over Heligoland and the Kiel Canal will be most valuable to the British Admiralty. While the German statement reassures German people that "the British attack was unsuccessful," it is felt that from the British standpoint it was really highly successful, and demonstrated the high degree of prowess of the British Naval Flying squadrons. Some authorities assert it was the most significant aerial raid of the war.

THE BERLIN STATEMENT.

The Berlin statement is as follows:

BERLIN, via wireless, July 6. — British aviators attempted a great aerial raid on the German North Sea coast Sunday morning, it was officially announced here to-day.

German airships sighted the British sky flotilla off Terschelling at dawn. It consisted of several hydro-aeroplanes and aeroplanes, accompanied on the sea by motor boats, cruisers and destroyers. "The hostile airmen were forced to retreat," said the official statement. "One British hydro-aeroplane, which succeeded in reaching toward the coast was pursued by German aeroplanes and escaped by flying over Dutch territory."

This is the first intimation from any source of this British raid over the German strongholds of Heligoland and Kiel. It is evident that this British aerial reconnoitring party successfully accomplished its purpose and got away apparently without loss. It is quite possible, too, that they dropped some bombs which did considerable damage, but the Germans do not admit it.

CITY ASKED TO HELP PROVIDE FACTORY GUARDS

Insurance Companies Will Cut Them Off If Adequate Protection is Not Immediately Secured.

GOV'T ALSO CONSIDERING

The protection of local factories manufacturing war munitions was discussed by the City Council last night, and was finally transferred to the Legal Committee for further consideration.

Mr. George Gladman and Mr. J. C. Smith of the Wm. Hamilton Co., waited on the Council, and a letter covering the same subject, was received from Mr. E. G. Patterson.

Mayor Buller stated that during the past week he had been in communication with a number of the manufacturers who stated that they had been informed by the insurance companies that the insurance they carried would be withdrawn unless their buildings were adequately guarded. Mr. Edwards, an insurance inspector, was in the city, and emphasized this fact to His Worship, who sought the assistance of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.

At last night's meeting the local member handed over the following telegram he had just received from Ottawa:

"Matter receiving best attention."

LOUGHEED.

Mr. Edwards had reported that in Toronto all the factories working on war supplies paid for their own policing. There was one temporary exception at the Ingles Works.

What Might be Required.

Mayor Buller estimated that the C. G. E. factory would need sixteen men on patrol duty, Wm. Hamilton, twelve; Auburn Woolen Mills, twelve; Bonner-Worth, six or more; Ackerman, six, and so on. Military police would receive $1.10 a day and board. Any other men would receive about $2.50 a day.

Ald. Dobbin figured that this would cost the city about $1,000 a week. A night and day shift is intended, and the above figures are totals.

Ald. Stratton—We should refer this matter to the legal committee; we are not in a position to deal with it until we have more information.

Mayor Buller—"I think we should deal with it right here."

Ald. McIntyre—"Where is the extra money to come from?"

Mayor Buller—"I can't say where it will come from."

Ald. Edgar—"What percentage of the expense is the Hamilton Co. willing to pay?"

Mayor Buller—"Toronto people felt that the companies were getting ample profit to protect themselves."

Mr. Gladman's Statement.

Mr. Gladman said he did not expect the Council to take any immediate action. The manufacturers desired an opportunity to attend the meeting at which the matter is fully considered. The matter of profits was frequently mentioned, but the Company did not know what profits they would make. It might be that they would suffer a loss. The special machinery installed proved more costly than was expected. Protection had to be provided to appease the insurance companies. This was not included when the contract figures were being made up. It was a condition altogether caused by the war, and it was in the interests of the citizens that the industries be protected.

The Mayor's estimate of guards looked large to Mr. Gladman, who said that two men, day and night, should be sufficient at the Wm. Hamilton Works. The Company was willing to pay a share of the cost of providing the protection required.

On motion of Ald. Stratton, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, the matter was left with the Legal Committee, who should advise the manufacturers when the meeting would be held. Carried.

TUESDAY, JULY 6, 1915

MAKE THE CRIME IMPOSSIBLE

If the action of Mr. Z. A. Lash, K.C., president of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company in destroying the text of messages to defeat the ends of justice, is permitted by law, the law should be repealed at once. If it is not permitted by law it should be at once forbidden by law. The telegraph system is an absolute necessity of modern civilization; but it should not be allowed to be a menace to civilization, and an instrument in promoting the corruption of our public life, and defeating the ends of justice. From the telegrams, sent by another company—with no convenient president to order their cremation—passing between Sir Redmond Roblin, Hon. Robert Rogers, etc., relating to the parliament buildings steal, we can logically infer that Mr. Lash's burnt telegrams intimately connected these gentlemens with the wrong-doing; that their destruction hindered definitely esablishing this connection; and in effect prevented their use to reveal the truth that the interests of justice demanded; and practically promoted crookedness in contracts and waste and stealing of the public money. If this brazen defeat of the ends of justice and others for which it forms an evil precedent of possibility cannot be prevented in any other way—if corporation influence is too strong to permit reform any other way—the nationalization of telegraph companies, managed by and for, and in the interests of the public, will have to be resorted to. In our generosity to the telegraph companies, we allow them to use our streets and highways for planting poles and stringing wires; they are welcome to that, but we will not allow them to help the commission of concealment, political crookedness and stealing of our money, through the conduct of officials, who abuse their trust, by practically concealing the stolen goods of thieves of the public money.

STREET TREES AND THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

The city beautiful is the city beautiful at this time, because, mainly, of its trees, chiefly, its street trees. Washed by the purifying and vivifying recent rains the foliage is at its cleanest and freshest; and, thanks also to the rain the roots are refreshed and invigorated. We cannot, without particular notice, appreciate the beauty of our street trees. Looking through many of our residence streets, we see them stretching away in the distance, forming veritable tunnels of shady greenery. On some streets the branches meet across the street; and, in others, there is a lane of open space walled in with living green, between which patches of blue sky show at the end of the tree vista. The effect is beautiful and exists without our sensible knowledge, because we are accustomed to the beauty that fills our streets from the street trees.

When we reflect on these conditions, we are seized of a new appreciation of the priceless value of our street trees, and seized of a new sense of responsibility in respect of their preservation. Every one of our street trees is the common possession and common benefit of every citizen, though in law their ownership is jointly shared by that intangible entity, the corporation, and the property owner.

What is the corporation? It is one thing in law and another thing in fact. The "corporation," "the city," is, in fact, the collective body of citizens, who pay the taxes, and for whose benefit and whose benefit alone, the legal corporation exists. In this view, the relations are exceedingly intimate, and there should be coordination of action and interest in the exercise of the respective functions incidental to these relations.

The law makes street trees the joint property of the city or corporation—the public—and the individual owner of the property opposite which they grow on the streets. It is, therefore, evident that to establish and administer right relations there should be mutual confidence and consultation between the two interests.

Unfortunately this is not altogether the case. The city or corporation seems to think, when it condescends to think of the matter at all, that it is supreme in this matter, that it can go forward and do what it likes with our street trees, without thought of consultation with the joint owners, though the city or corporation has not planted or cared for one of the thousands of beautiful trees that border our streets. Our trees, with emphasis on the "our," are too valuable to be lightly regarded and dealt with carelessly and perfunctorily.

At a belated time in the year the city is sending a gang — of two — throughout our streets to saw at the branches of our trees. What instructions they have, or under whose instructions they operate we do not know. Nor except by their works, do we know their qualifications and experience. It is evident that they do not understand the first principle of the details of properly taking off a limb or branch.

In the first place the limb is not removed closely enough to the trunk. A long prong or horn is left to be a disfigurement and injury to the tree for years. Then there is neglect to score or nick the under-side of the limb opposite the saw cut; the result is that when a heavy branch is nearly cut through and falls, a portion of the wood or the bark is ripped off, leaving an ugly scar that will require years to heal over.

Then, there is no system except the caprice of the operator as to what limbs are to be removed, nor apparently what objects are aimed at, except doing a days' work. Considerations of symmetry and the relation of individual trees to the whole tree line seem to be absent. On Simcoe street west, a branch of a grand elm opposite the residence of Mr. Aylmer, that has been growing perhaps since Peterborough was Peterborough, has been mangled off for no apparent reason. A gentleman who lives opposite says it stretched out from the mammoth trunk a distance of forty-five feet across the street, throwing out a protecting arm and forming a canopy of living green. It seemed to be sound—and it was where it was hacked off at the trunk. The sawing was so carelessly done that when the branch fell its weight dragged off a mass of wood and bark eight or nine inches wide, and nearly two feet long, a disfigurement for years. The beauty of the tree from the street is destroyed for years. The necessity for removal was not apparent. Of course the pendulous terminal branches hung low—too low "to let a load of hay pass without the driver ducking his head" as the tree-butcher explained—but constituting the chief beauty of the tree at this point.

This is mentioned to show the necessity of careful supervision and performance of street tree trimming. We want to add to the beauty and symmetry of our street trees for other objects than vagrant loads of hay. It is mentioned to show that the work should be done with more care—with more affection for our priceless street trees.

We should like to have "the city" appreciate more fully the aesthetic, the comfort, and the money value of our street trees. If by some calamity all our street trees should be removed entirely some night, the market and assessable value of city property would depreciate by hundreds of thousands of dollars, not to speak of the loss of beauty and comfort of the citizens, who enjoy the use of tree shaded streets.

These self-evident facts show the absolute necessity of the trees of our streets being regarded with more sympathy, more appreciation of their value, more taste and more care.

It is not to be expected that city officials, overburdened with other duties for which they are fitted, should properly discharge duties for which they are not fitted, and have not the time and educated taste and interest, to properly discharge.

We shall never have our street trees and the general beauty of the city properly and adequately looked after, till and unless we have them placed in charge of a park commission, or some body with similar powers, functions and qualifications. It should be composed of men who know and care—especially care—about these things.

We cannot be too solicitous as to the preservation and increase of the tree beauty of our city, and the incidental elements of beauty that consist in intelligent and honest treatment of our streets and public places with these objects in view.

In a word our street trees need great attention. Neglected, since almost the days of planting, many of them are in a decadent condition which can be remedied by timely pruning and cutting back — in the spring, so that the season of growth can be taken full advantage of to do the restorative work that nature, if given a fair chance, will perform.

OFFICIAL DIRECTIONS AS TO LESSENING HOUSE FLY DANGER

House flies are now recognized as most serious carriers of the germs of certain diseases such as typhoid fever, tuberculosis, infantile diarrhoea, etc.

They infect themselves in filth and decaying substances, and by carrying the germs on their legs and bodies and in their intestines they pollute food, especially milk, with the germs of the above and other diseases and of decay. Every fly carries germs. A single fly may carry as many as 500 million germs upon and inside its body.

Best Method to Prevent Breeding.

House flies breed in decaying or decomposing vegetable and animal matter and in excrement. They breed chiefly in stable refuse. In cities this should be stored in dark fire-proof chambers or receptacles, and it should be regularly removed within six days in the summer. Farm-yard manure should be regularly removed within the same time and either spread on the fields or stored at a distance of not less than a quarter of a mile, the further the better, from a house or dwelling.

Manure piles may be treated with borax, using six-tenths of a pound to every 8 bushels or 10 cubic feet of manure. Scatter the dry borax principally around the sides and edges of the pile and wash in with water.

House flies breed in such decaying and fermenting matter as kitchen refuse and garbage. Garabge receptacles should be kept tightly covered.

All such refuse should be burnt or buried within a few days, but at once if possible. No refuse should be left exposed. If it cannot be disposed of at once it should be sprinkled with borax, as above, or with chloride of lime.

Flies in Houses.

Windows and doors should be properly screened, especially those of the dining room and kitchen. Milk and other food should be screened in the summer by covering it with muslin; fruit should be covered also.

Where they are used, especially in public places as hotels, etc., spittoons should be kept clean, as there is very grave danger of flies carrying the germs of consumption from unclean spittoons.

Flies should not be allowed to have access to the sick room, especially in the case of infectious disease.

The faces of babies should be carefully screened with muslin.

To Kill Flies in Houses.

Mix two tablespoonfuls (one ounce) of 40 per cent. Formalin, (a solution which may be obtained from any drug store at about 40 cents per pound bottle), with one pint (six ounces) of equal parts of milk and water. This mixture should be exposed in shallow plates, and a piece of bread placed in the middle of each plate will enable the flies to alight and feed. All dead flies should be swept up, and burnt. The burning of pyrethrum in a room, preferably at night, is sometimes effective; the flies should be swept up and burnt, as many are only stupefied by this substance.—Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

AN APPEAL FOR MORE SOLDIERS

(From the Montreal Standard)

Major Hanson, who has just returned from the front, has made a striking appeal for recruits for the British army in Flanders. From his account the war is still far from over, and it is imperative that the Empire should get every man possible into the firing line.

Sudden silene fell on the vast audience at His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, as a figure in officers uniform limped on to the stage from the wings, then stopped, leaning heavily on a cane. For a fraction of a minute the silence held, as those who had stayed at home regarded the one who, leaving behind a wife and five children, had gone to the front, and now returned from the awful, but glorious field of St. Julien wounded, but not downhearted, to beg others to continue the work which he had helped to inaugurate or Canada. Then, shattering the silence, a roar of cheering went up from orchestra seats and galleries, from boxes and from aisle chairs for Major Paul Hanson, brave soldier, but most evidently most embarassed lecturer.

Briefly and simply Major Hanson described the daily life of the battalion in the days before the big engagement, and outlined the feat of Stetcher-Bearer Drake, which won for this young Montrealer the Distinguished Conduct Medal.

"So," he said, "you get a glimpse of what is happening in this war. When will it end? I do not know. I cannot say. But I know one thing, and I can say this: The more men we get to the front, the sooner the end will come. Surely you who listen to me must realise this, surely you will do your share.

"You mothers, I know it is hard for you to let your boys go, but is it not better to let him go now when he wants to, than to hold him until the time when he will have to go? There are many excuses to offer why he should not go now, but if all are to stay at home for whom excuses can be found, who will fill the gaps?

Conscription Very Possible.

"Conscription is going to come as sure as the war is going on at this moment, if there is not an immediate rush of volunteers. I know of what I speak, for I have discussed this matter with those high in authority with some of the very highest. Only a day or so before I sailed, I dined with a member of the House of Lords, who was positive that we should have to come to conscription.

"Don't think that I do not recognise what the women are having to face. Do you think that when in the long nights I thought of the wife and five kiddies at home, I did not think of other women? But when on the night that my wife and I talked this thing over, and I finally decided that I had to go, she who did not want to lose me told me to do my duty. And now, in these last two days, when I have been visiting other homes to leave here a sword, and there some other belonging of the brave who will never return, I have seen pride shining through the tears of those other brave."

Having told of the manner in which the little bugler who had induced the Major to take him with him as runner had evaded orders to go back, when sickness gave him every chance, to do so with honour, the speaker said: "Surely if this little child could set such an example, you can follow it." Reverting to excuses made by some, he continued: "Do you say your business will suffer if you go? Let me tell you that, perhaps, you will have no business in a year's time if you don't go."

"You are Needed."

"I had a brother of whom we had not heard for six years. I had just got out of the hospital, and was preparing to sail, when I received a cable from my wife telling me that Philip Hanson was with the 29th, and to look out for him in London. He came to the hotel. We had not seen one another for all these years, now Pte. Hanson saluted Major Hanson, and remarked to Paul, his brother: "Coming and going." I had found someone to fill my place in the line. For those six years he had been in Mexico, but when the call came he had hurried to the front to do his bit.

"You know we need you over there. Just remember that. I cannot say any more. You are needed, that is all."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A SMALL JOB OF PIRACY

It Happened In the Bay of Naples.

By JOHN Y. LARNED

I sailed from New York on the 10th of April as first mate of the steamer Pelican with a cargo which was to be sold out at Mediterranean ports. We reached Naples on the 5th of May, having disposed of all the cargo except a few things that we sold there, and took nothing aboard, intending to load up with Arabian goods on the African coast. The purser went ashore with money he had taken in for the goods we had sold, got it changed into gold that would pass readily in the places we expected to make purchases, and it was brought aboard in bags.

We had a promiscuous crew of white and copper colored men, the latter having been picked up on the Mediterranean coast, while the former had come from the low grade of sailors one will find in the shipping districts of New York. Since we were not loading they had nothing to do, and when the bags of gold were taken aboard a lot of them were looking over the side of the ship. And from the weight of the gold and the clinking of the coins when a bag was placed on the deck it was plain to them that they contained

I noticed an expression on the faces of several of the worst of the crew which indicated, to say the least, covetousness. I mentioned the matter to the captain, suggesting that bringing gold aboard so openly was throwing temptation in the men's way. He poohpoohed the matter, and, having warned him, I did not press it further.

That evening a liberty party went ashore. We were at anchor in the bay of Naples, and the captain concluded to let all the men go, while he and I and the purser remained on watch. This again seemed to me to be taking a risk. Naples is noted for the crimes committed in and about it. If we had nothing to fear directly from the crew we had something to fear from those to whom they might talk about the gold they had seen carried aboard the Pelican.

The bay of Naples is probably the most beautiful bay in the world. At any rate, I have in my voyages visited many, but none other impressed me in the same way. The night we lay at anchor there I remember as more beautiful than any other I have spent. A full moon stood in the heavens, lighting up the city, Vesuvius and the islands of Ischia and Capri, while it left its shimmer on the water. Then, too, the temperature was delightful. The day had been hot, but the nights in Italy are usually cool. On this night it was just warm enough to sit out on deck in light clothing.

Facing eastward from the bay one looks to his right upon Mount Vesuvius, beneath which lie the half buried, half exhumed cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum. Directly before him the city of Naples rises with the ground on which it is built, and to me, viewing it at night, it was successive tiers of light.

By 10 o'clock all who were aboard except myself had turned in, I having volunteered to stand watch till the liberty party returned. The men had orders to return at 11 o'clock, but that hour arrived without them. I was not especially surprised, for sailors ashore are not very reliable. I didn't mind their not coming, for the night was so beautiful that I had no desire to turn in.

Twelve o'clock came and still no crew. I began to get a bit drowsy and dozed in my chair. Opening my eyes, I saw a boat heading for the ship. I did not doubt that it was the liberty party returning till I noticed that there was no sound of oars or voices. Sailors who go ashore for a good time don't usually come back quietly. Besides, it very soon dawned upon me that the oars in the approaching boat were muffled.

What I have said about the gold and the crew and crime in Naples flashed through my brain. I ran downstairs to awaken the captain and the purser.

"Arm yourselves and get on deck as soon as possible!" I cried, shaking them at the same time.

I then ran to where the arms were kept and, seizing a musket, a cutlass and a revolver, got up the companionway just in time to see the boat about 100 yards distant. From the gunwale amidships I cried out to the approaching party to keep off, though if they were Italians they would not understand me.

They stopped rowing, and I could hear them talking in the guttural sounds of the low grade of the Italian people. Then without heeding my warning they resumed their course toward the Pelican. I fired a shot from the musket, but, not being sure of their intentions, aimed above their heads. If they were not bent on crime this would stop them. It did not stop them, for they pulled forward with lusty strokes.

Hearing the shot hastened the captain and the purser, who arrived half dressed, but armed, a few moments after. I had fired three times. They hailed me when the boat was within fifty yards of the ship. The party had come in a large yawl, and there were about a dozen of them. They had an advantage over us in numbers, while they were at a disadvantage as to position, for it is not an easy matter to board a vessel from a boat much lower than the ship to be boarded. Unfortunately we were at some distance from the shore or any other vessel. One or two ships had been near us when we anchored, but they had sailed or docked during the day.

While I could not tell who these men were, I presumed that they were Italians who had heard the crew talking in Naples about the treasure in the ship. Quite likely some members of the crew had been heard talking about the practicability of boarding the Pelican, seizing the gold and making off with it. There was no time to conjecture who they were. Our main business was to stand them off.

The captain and the purser were ig and since I had no time to enter into an explanation in words I decided to do so by a shot. I put a ball in among the men huddled together in the boat. That I hit some person or persons was evident from the fact that there was a commotion aboard. But the rowing was not long interfered with. A jabbering in the Italian language followed, but they did not reply to my fire. I attributed this to their having intended a surprise and that they had not expected to attract the attention of the police by the sound of firing.

My companions were by this time convinced by ocular demonstration that there was mischief in the boat near us, and both blazed away. But the boat was under the bulwarks, and we were obliged to lean over to see her. We heard one clear, composed voice, evidently that of a commander giving orders, but since we did not understand the Italian language we were ignorant of what he said. This convinced me that we were attacked by a party of brigands under a competent leader and would all be murdered unless we could drive them off.

The Pelican's crew had gone down into their boat by means of the wooden steps roped together, used for taking on and letting off pilots and such other purposes. It was hanging ready for them when they should return. I would have pulled it up on seeing a suspicious boat approaching, but had not time. The brigands began to climb it. Captain Wainright claimed the position to receive the first man who came up. The bandit must use his two hands and could not very well fight his way on to the ship, but he was protected by a man in the boat, who threw a knife at the captain, which struck him in the chest. I pushed him away and took his place. A knife whizzed by my ear so close as to clip off enough of it to draw blood, but I succeeded in landing a blow on the head of the top man on the ladder with the butt of my revolver that dropped him.

His fall disconcerted the man below him, and before he could reach the top step the purser brought a cutlass down on him which sent him after his companion.

Meanwhile I had noticed a man below take to the water and swim toward the stern. I surmised that he was making for the anchor chain to climb on board. Captain Wainright had pulled the knife out of his chest, and, thinking he might be able to protect the bow from the swimmer, I suggested that he do so, leaving me and the purser where the principal danger lay. Wainright said that he was up to the job and started forward with a musket, stanching the blood flowing from his chest at the same time. He was not seen by the man in the water, who seized the anchor chain and was beginning to skin up it when the captain dropped him by a shot from his musket.

Meanwhile the purser and I were fighting at the steps to keep off boarders. We were somewhat protected by the bulwarks from those in the boat and after the captain's mishap kept as well below as possible. But I believed the battle would at last go against us when I thought of a way to cut off the ascent. I told the purser to bring an ax, while I fought on. He did so, and when he returned I cut the ropes that held the steps. There were three men on them at the time, all of whom tumbled into the boat or the water.

Hearing the sound of oars, I looked and saw another boat rapidly approaching. That it did not contain reenforcements for the bandits was evident from the fact that they pushed off and pulled away as fast as they could. They were chased by the other boat and were fired at. As the latter passed near the Pelican I could see in the moonlight that the men in it were the showy uniforms of the carabineers, or national police of Italy. We watched them till we saw them overhaul the bandits and take their boat in tow.

They pulled back to the Pelican and left a carabineer who spoke some English on board to get what information we had to impart concerning the attack and to inform us that we would be expected to appear against the bandits. The police had been attracted by our shots.

At 2 o'clock in the morning our crew returned minus three men we had picked up at Tangier. These men formed the plan of attacking us and getting the gold we had on board, taking with them an organized band. The authorities offered to give up these men of our crew to us that we might try them for mutiny, but our captain preferred to leave them to be dealt with by the Italian courts.

Such was my experience in the bay of Naples, an experience which spoiled that body of water for me ever afterward. I have been there a number of times since, and, while it is always a scene of beauty, the memory of that night, which might have been my last on earth, always threw a gloom over its shimmering waters.

Eleven Year Old Parrot Springs A Surprise

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 6.—Setting up an annually loud chatter in her cage in the corner of the study occupied by Charles H. Hayden, a well known New Haven lawyer, a parrot belonging to Mr. Hayden attracted his attention the other morning, and when an investigation was made as to the cause of the sudden expression of glee it was found that the bird had laid an egg.

Polly is eleven years old, and nature faking was the last thing her owner ever suspected her of. A few hours later Polly laid another egg, and the attention of Herbert K. Job, State Ornithologist, was called. Job had never heard of such an occurrence before.

"It's unprecedented," he said. "It is true that certain species of fowl flourish in captivity, but the parrot has never been included in this category." Aside from the unusually loud chatter, Polly had no comment to make.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B. C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly completely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

TEA IN THE TRENCHES.

It is said that tea is the favoured beverage of the soldiers in the trenches. It is certain that tea is the most refreshing and sustaining drink under the circumstances, and it has good warmth-giving qualities. It is the first experience of tea for many of the soldiers, and the taste will undoubtedly spread when they return to their homes after the war. In fact, everything points to a greatly increased consumption of tea all over the world, and as the supply is insufficient to cope with it, the high prices now obtaining may continue for some years.

GERMAN RESERVISTS AROUND BIG POWDER WORKS AT DOVER, N.J.

NEW YORK, July 5.—German naval reservists, gathering in several of the little towns in the vicinity of the United States government powder factory at Dover, N.J., one of the largest of its kind in the world, not only aroused so much suspicion that the federal secret service men have them under espionage, it was learned yesterday, but also there is a strong military guard constantly patrolling the mountains surrounding the extensive works.

Within the last few months, when the scrutiny of the men of the crews of the great German steamships tied up at the piers at Hoboken became so strict as to make it uncomfortable, scores of the men scattered to other places. Something like a hundred, it is reported, found their way to Dover and there obtained employment in the large mills. The town has a population of 13,000, and of these probably one-half or even a greater proportion of the men work in the factories. Most of them are Americans, but recently there has been an influx of foreigners among whom the Germans are showing very strong. There are rolling mills, silk mills, iron works and various other factories situated on the little river that winds its tortuous way through the town. One large factory is controlled by a man who has made very strong pro-German statements from the very inception of the war. Some of these men are skilled mechanics. Six miles to the southeast, in the little town of Denville, is another gathering of new arrival Germans. There are perhaps half a hundred of them, and it is known that several if not many of them are of the crews of the German steamships. They appear to be fomenting no propaganda, but they are decidedly pro-German whenever the occasion arises.

Two Hundred Buildings.

There are something like two hundred buildings, not low, temporary shacks, but huge structures two and three stories high, constructed of brick while the iron or wooden storehouses are one hundred feet long, forty feet wide and about thirty feet high. The main offices and the officers' quarters are typical fine looking army buildings, which would grace the post at Fort Myer, Va. At this place all the smokeless powder used in the army is made, and great projectiles, ranging from 6-inch to the great 16-inch shells for the coast defence, are loaded here.

Factories Work Day and Night.

The factories are working normally—that is, day and night. Certain powder preparations take a long time; for instance, it requires forty hours' boiling of the cotton to rid it of all its impurities before it can be used. The buildings are strewn along in the valley, and the frowning peak of Mount Piscatiny looms just opposite headquarters. But any one approaching the reservation gains no idea of the cast works in it. Only a building may be seen here or there, or groups of two or three. Generally they are so surrounded and hidden by trees that the most that may be counted at any time are a dozen of the two hundred. The naval depot is in another clump of woods and so surrounded as to be practically obliterated from view.

A military guard is maintained at all times. There is, of course, instant telephone communication and every precaution has been taken that should things ever come to a crisis between the United States and Germany, a regiment could be poured in in two hours' time. The company on duty now could stand off mobs of thousands indefinitely.

PRESENTATION TO TEACHER

Miss Galvin Presented With a Pearl Necklace.

On June the thirtieth the pupils and parents of school section No. 4 Ennismore, assembled at their little school to say farewell to their teacher, Miss Vivian Galvin and Madeline Guiry read the following address, while Eleanor Kennedy presented Miss Galvin with a dainty pearl necklace the gift of the pupils.

Address.

To Miss Galvin:

Dear Teacher,—It is with feelings of deep regret we assemble here this afternoon to express to you to some slight degree our sincere farewell wishes.

By your zealous endeavours and untiring patience, although you have been among us but three short years, you have won our love and deep respect, while at the same time you fathered the material welfare of our little school. There were times, perhaps, when, owing to tasks unperformed, we received from you an angry frown but we realize now, that that look was due to youd eep desire to make of us real live little men and women as well as to "the love you bore to learning."

We only mention this last, because with exception, all our parents and friends know full well that as an able promoter of education you rank among the first.

It is only we, however, who have been under your motherly care day by day and who have noted the high standard of your morals and the thoroughness of your work who can fully know our loss.

In view then, dear teacher, of your unparalleled efforts in trying to secure for us the best morally and intellectually, we cannot let the occasion of your resignation pass without asking you as a slight token of our esteem and gratitude to accept this necklace and while you may not longer be our teacher, be certain we shall always wish for you the happiness and prosperity your fidelity merits.

Signed on behalf of the pupils of school section number four.

Madeleine Guiry,
Eleanor Kennedy.

At the conclusion of the address Miss Galvin thanked the pupils for their gift and expressed her sincere sorrow to be leaving them. She also stated that she was delighted to have an opportunity of extending her thanks to the parents for their kind ly interest always shown in her behalf.

Small Stuff From The Council

Aylmer Street Wants Pavement to C.P.R.—By-law to Change Street Names Ran into an Ambush—How the Council Treats the Plumbing Inspector—Mayor Wants More Music in King Edward Park

A petition to pave Aylmer Street, from Charlotte Street to the C.P.R. crossing, was presented to the Council last night by Ald. Duffus, who said every ratepayer had signed it but one.

Mayor Buller—"You must not forget that three blocks on that street are fronted by the city and the G. T. R. and we would have to pay a lot of the cost.

The petition was referred to the Board of Works.

Gets Cheque Back.

Ald. Saunders moved, seconded by Ald. Stratton, that Mr. J. Carroll be returned his cheque which accompanied his street paving tender. —Carried.

Oil Only One Side.

Ald. Duffus urged that the city endeavour to oil only one half of a street at once, as requested by the [illegible] Association. This had not been carefully followed on some streets.

Elm Street Did it.

Ald. Saunder's by-law, to change the names of several streets, received a month's hoist in the second reading. It proposed that Cedar Street become Murray Street, and Brown Street, East City, be known as Auburn Street. Ald. McIntyre suggested that provision be made to change Elm to Brock, as desired.

Ald. Saunders objected to any delay.

Ald. Duffus—The section of Boundary Road should also be changed.

He moved, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that the by-law be referred back to include these additional changes. —Carried.

The by-law will likely be submitted at the next meeting.

Graded Stewart Street, South.

Mayor Buller promised Ald. Duffus that the City Engineer would attend to the grading and water-tabling of Stewart Street, south of Perry street.

Ald. Weir's Method.

Hunter Street, from Rogers to Concession, is in good shape for oil, Ald. Weir states. It is much used and he offered to trade a piece of some other street that should be oiled for this section which would last longer under the oil treatment.

Mayor Buller—Specify what part you will cut off.

Ald. Saunders—George Street, from Romaine to Lake, comes first.

The Mayor—"You fellows can't put one over the new Chairman."

Ald. Evans pointed out the need of oil on Charles Street.

Ald. Weir asked the Clerk to give him a list of the streets watered last year, in order that he could "swap" a block for the Hunter Street section.

Commission Government.

Ald. Edgar gave notice of a motion he will introduce at the next Council meeting that a by-law be prepared for the 1916 elections to ascertain if the ratepayers are favourable to a form of municipal government by commission.

Keep Them Away.

Ald. Stratton moved, seconded by Ald. Weir, that signs be posted around the incinerator property to keep young people away, in view of the fact that they might fall into the furnaces, not to mention other dangers.

Ald. Duffus—"No one should be allowed there unless on business."

A Little Music, Professor.

Mayor Buller asked Ald. McIntyre to find out why there had been no concert in King Edward Park since the first and only opening programme

Mayor is Chairman.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that the Mayor continue to act as Chairman of the Board of Works in the absence of Ald. Green.

Council Condoles.

Mayor Buller expressed the Council's regret that Ald. Green had been called West by the death of his nephew and the illness of his brother. He would be absent several weeks.

Council Real Generous.

Plumbing Inspector Thompson was granted two weeks' holidays, providing he secures a substitute Inspector and pays him.

Those are no holidays, said Ald. McIntyre, who stated that the Inspector had worked eleven years without any holidays. Mr. Thompson intends to spend a week in Toronto for repairs to an artificial limb, and to get away is willing to provide a substitute, Mr. Rathbone.

Want Definite Statement.

Ald. Stratton objected to the indefiniteness in Mr. W. G. Ferguson's letter to the oard of Works that the Peterborough Radial Railway Board had not met and hence no decision was ready in regard to the proposed line along McDonnel Street. He moved, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that the Company make a definite statement as to what and when they intend to do in regard to this line as the city plans to pave that street.

Water Street a Good Road.

Mr. T. F. Matthews wrote that Water street, between Brock and Dublin Streets, had recently been overhauled and olled and the surface was now in good condition. With another treatment of oil, Mr. Matthews believed it would be one of the best macadamized streets in the city, and would last several years. He wrote that he believed other parts of the city required the pavement more than that section of Water Street.

Board of Health Member.

Ald McIntyre was appointed by by-law as a member of the Board of Health, Dr. Amys resigning, to act as M.O.H.

A Polish Appeal.

Francis Sedziak, secretary of the Polish Relief Committee, Winnipeg, asked for a donation toward the fund to aid the war-stricken Poles in Europe.

Wants City to Come Across.

W. J. Francis and Co., Montreal, reminded the city of a bill for $2,011.45 for services in connection with the City's Arbitration case. The amount had been reduced $500 by the Company owing to the length of the case.

Mr. Howson's Case.

Mr. Geo. H. Howson explained in detail his side of the argument with Mr. C. A. G. Spence, in regard to work done under Mr. Spence's direction for Mr. Howson, at a cost of $9. The latter claimed that it was not worth anything like that sum, and the matter has been before the Council in one way or another for some time. Last night it was suggested that Mr. Howson and Mr. Spence both attend a meeting of the Legal Committee and arrange some settlement.

War Tax Stamps.

Tax Collector Green asked the Council to allow him $5 a month to cover war stamps on letters to those who have to be followed up to pay their taxes. In many cases, he said, more than one letter had to be written to delinquents, or those who were inclined to be tardy. It was an unusual condition. On Ald. Stratton's suggestion the City Treasurer was authorized to provide Mr. Green with the stamps he requires for this purpose.

Ald. Langford Modest.

Ald. Langford put in a plea for the Council' attention to the steps on Aylmer Street, north, near Mr. Moore's residence. Mayor Buller said the Council would give it a once over when they make their next inspection tour.

LACROSSE

The lacrosse club is considering the idea of trying to arrange the Millbrook and Hastings games here to be played before the Bonfire [illegible] in Campbellford. It is believed that both these towns will be willing to come here before the present scheduled dates.

In the meantime the game in Hastings on the 14th with Campbellford will be watched with interest from this quarter.

GUNNER BAMFORD KILLED IN ACTION

Another Peterborough Artilleryman Gives Life for the Empire.

A letter badly cut up by the censor from Bombardier Geo. Colquhoun of the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, C.E. F., tells of the death of another Peterborough boy at the front in the person of Gunner Wm. Bamford, who left here with the 24th Field Battery detachment in the first Canadian contingent. Gunner Bamford's relatives are in the old country, but he had been a resident of Peterborough for some time and had many friends here.

The censor has deleted the portion of the letter describing how Gunner Bamford and Gunner Tom McDonald were killed. Bombardier Colquhoun's letter says:

"We are still in the firing line (four lines deleted). Two of them were killed and three wounded. The names of the two killed were McDonald and Bamford, both of them from Peterborough. Father will know McDonald. He worked with him on the canal. (Here another portion has been blue-penciled by the censor.) "You can imagine," the letter continues, "it was pretty warm for the time being, but our casualties were slight considering the place they were in. Lieut. Craig of Cobourg was wounded, but I cannot say how bad, also Lieut. Kelly, but they say he will be back again soon. I hope he is and all of the others. Corp. King was the other man hurt. The Germans have a very strong position where we are now."

Gunner Bamford's death is the seventh fatality among the Peterborough artillerymen at the front.

Ald. Weir Would Dump the New Oil Into the River

The Council last night would not listen to any proposal to substitute a cheaper oil for that first used on the streets. A change had been made by way of an experiment, which the Mayor said he knew nothing about until he heard complaints regarding it. The oil was $35 a car less than the first used. It was obtain by Ald. Green from Mr. Clancy. The Mayor thought Ald. Green had likely made an agreement that the oil would be returned if it did not prove satisfactory.

Ald. Weir said it would be economy to dump the rest of the car into the river. Ald. Evans was equally determined that no more of it would be smelt in East City.

Ald. Saunders—We've got it on Romaine street, and it's pretty close to that tried several years ago.

Mr. Parsons Did Not Know.

The City Engineer said he had been away, and when he returned he found the new oil had been ordered and used.

Mayor Buller held that to avoid possible difficulties they finish the car.

Ald. Dobbin strenuously objected. He had seen enough of it.

Ald. Evans said that the change might effect the guarantee of the first company.

Ald. Langford pointed out there was a saving of $35 a year from the new oil.

Ald. Evans— Burnham street was never in as bad shape as it is since that oil was put on it.

Ald. Edgar— The chairman of the Board of Works had no right to order any other oil, but that recommended by the Council, without coming to us first.

Mayor Buller—It was left with the chairman and the City Engineer to get the first oil.

Ald. Weir to Mr. Parsons —Have you an analysis of this oil?

Mr. Parsons said an analysis had been received of none of the oils, simply a report recommending the first oil.

Ald. Stratton moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that the matter of oil be left with Mayor Buller, acting chairman of the Board of Works.

Mayor Buller—I will try my best to have it cut out.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner, —

Sir: Will you allow me a small space in your paper in answer to 'Henery's' letter of July 3rd:

Henery stated that there was a hen at 634 Union street that had sat on 13 eggs and had brought out 14 chickens. I may say that was very good, but I have heard of the same occurrence on very rare occasions. On Friday night I had a letter published in the Examiner that I had a hen that had sat on 26 eggs and had brought out 25 chickens, but I find there has been a mistake in the count.

On going to the barn to feed the hen and chicks on Sunday morning to my astonishment I counted 28 chickens instead of 25, and I may state that this hen and chicks are kept in the barn away from the other hens. Now, I think this will put Henery's story in the shade. The chickens are about 10 days old. If Henery or any of his freinds have any doubt regarding my statement if they will take a walk up to Downer's Corners they will see the hen and 28 chickens running about and looking in the pink of condition.

Now, who can beat this?

P.S.—I also think it a good recommendation for the eggs, which were purchased from Mr. Gordon's Poultry Farm at the corner of Park and Romaine streets.

Thanking you for publishing the above, I remain, yours,

Barney Corrigan,
Downers' Corners, Otonabee.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—One often hears conjectures as to what will be the religious status of the world at the conclusion of this terrible war. Often it has happened that out of evil good has come. May I point out to your readers that past history tells of striking revivals that have followed in the wake of war. In the 14th century the preaching of Wycliffe and the Lollards followed the wars of England and France. In the 17th century a spiritual awakening, under General Fox, followed the Civil War. The most striking example of all was seen in the Napoleon wars—1800-1815, when the state of Europe, in many respects, was at its lowest. Yet that period was marked by a singular revival in religion and proved to be one of the greatest periods of missionary enterprises ever known. The Baptist Missionafy Society was founded in 1792, the Religious Tract Society in 1800, and the British and Foreign Society in 1804, and yet in 1796 the Bank of England suspended payment, and 1796 the first missionaries of the London Society were convoyed down the English Channel by British war vessels and the second group were actually captured as prisoners-of-war.

Again the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny was followed by the revival of 1859, which affected England, Ireland and the United States. The mention of Finnie is sufficient in this connection. It was not long after the Civil War in the United States that Moody's remarkable meetings were held, and soon after the Boer War, in 1900-1902, came the wonderful revivals in Wales and India.

HOPEFUL.

THE ST. LUKE'S PICNIC WAS ANOTHER BIG SUCCESS

Three Hundred Scholars and Friends Had a Pleasurable Outing Down the River.

After a tempestuous night on Sunday and an equally so type of morning early on Monday the weather cleared for picnic day for the congregation and Sunday School scholars of the Anglican Church of St. Luke, in East City, arrived. At eight o'clock, under conditions of weather, decidedly improved, yet windy and more or less cloudy, the staunch steamer "Stoney Lake" left the wharf at East City, and, calling at the Government Wharf on George Street, and subsequently at the Street Railway Wharf, where other contingents were embarked, started with some three hundred souls aboard on the journey down the Otonabee towards the objective, viz., Jubilee Point.

The trip down the river through its many winding reaches, was pretty enough, for Old Sol frequently put in his appearance, although not so often as would appear to be suitable for a July day. Nevertheless, everyone was happy and cheerful, and at eleven o'clock the "Stoney Lake" moored at the quay at the Point.

It was not long before the many picnic hampers were transferred, most of them to convenient places on shore, although some elected to take their early dinner on board. Many happy little and big parties were soon made up and enjoyment seemed to be the key note of the day. Shortly after the St. Luke's party had disembarked, the numbers were increased by the arrival of another steamer bringing a Sunday School excursion from Norwood, which had embarked on their steamer at Hastings. Consequently Jubilee Point was a scene of great hilarity.

After the important event of feeding, various sports were indulged in. There were games of baseball for the men and boys, skipping ropes for the girls and women, races of every description for young and old, male and female, including potato races, shoe races, threading the needle and a host of other games too numerous to mention. Mr. J. J. Turner, Junior, was indefatigable; he was here, there and everywhere, literally keeping the ball rolling, while the Rev. Mr. White and Mrs. White were equally strenuous in their efforts to give pleasure to the youngsters, whose day it really was.

The weather had held up well, enabling many to roam in the pretty woods around, where wild-flowers and ferns were much in quest. Comparatively few persons seem to be able to appreciate the beauties of the wild flowers, frequently disdainfully designating them as "weeds," and consequently worthy of little or no consideration.

At 3.30 the multitude assembled on the sward near the quay, when the many prizes were distributed by Mrs. White, ably assisted by Miss Clara Adams and Mr. Turner.

Hearty cheers were given to the ladies as well as for the members of the Sports Committee, which, it is needless to say, were well deserved. At 4 o'clock the final whistle blew on board the boat, and shortly after the "Stoney Lake" was homeward bound. Then began another important event, viz., tea—and the merriment over this festive meal was great and contagious.

Many photographs of many groups were taken to perpetuate the recollections of the day. One little shower came on, which did not in any way interfere with the pleasure of the day.

'Twas but a little summer shower, for a quarter of an hour," as the song has it; and it soon passed away and the sun shone brilliantly.

Somewhere around seven all the party had been safely landed; but before they left the steamer "Onward Christian Soldier," "O Canada," "The Maple Leaf," "God Save the King," and 'Auld Lang Syne" were sung, every one voting that they had spent a very enjoyable day.

Nor must the thoughtful care of the officers and crew of the vessel be passed over. As usual they did, in their well-known, kindly manner, everything that could be done to contribute to the comfort and safety of their passengers.

German Design to Use Poison Shells Seen in Advertisement

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 6—Since the publication of the advertisement describing the poisoned bombs alleged to have been used by the Allies in the National Machinists Magasine the fear has existed here that the Germans have hit upon some such diabolical invention which they purpose soon to add to the horrors of their warfare.

It is remembered that before the Germans began the use of poison gases they spread reports that the Allies were using them, and the German propaganda which spread the report regarding the poisoned bombs bears every earmark of a similar plot.

An investigation has been begun here into the circumstances of the publication of this advertisement, in which was inserted the following statement:

"We are going to say a little more—something which might be interesting. The following is a description of the thirteen and eighteen pound high explosive shells which are now being used so extensively in the war to replace the common shrapnel:

"The materials high in tensile strength and very special and has a tendency to fracture into small pieces upon the explosion of the shell. The timing of the fuse for this shell is similar to the shrapnel shell, but it differs in that two explosive acids are used to explode the shell in the large cavity. The combination of these two acids causes terrific explosion, having more power than anything of its kind yet used. Fragments become coated with these acids in exploding, and wounds caused by means of them mean death in terrible agony within four hours if not attended to immediately."

The only result of this investigation thus far has been that the Cleveland Automatic Machine Company, which inserted the advertisement in the National Machinists' Magazine, has published the statement that it did not include the above quoted words in its advertisement, and that they must have been inserted by mistake.

The National Machinists' Magasine has stated that it received the copy for the advertisement from an advertising agent who vouched for its authenticity. No statement, however, has come from the agent.

While the issue of May 6 of the magasine, the number in which the advertisement appeared, was being made up, a German walked into the office of the publication and asked if it was certain the advertisement was to be printed.

After its publication it was spread through the United States and through the German press, and now surgeons of the German army are issuing statements accusing American manufacturers of making poisoned shells which have been responsible for the death of so many Germans.

That such propaganda should be resorted to to kindle anger against the United States in Germany is revolting enough, but it is feared that beyond this the Germans are about to repeat their trick with the poisoned gas and to come forth with poisoned bombs.

TRIED TO END LIFE

Holt Attempts Suicide by Gashing Wrist With a Pencil.

Morgan, attempted to take his own life during the night in his cell at Mineola jail. A doctor was hurriedly summoned and the wound sewed up. Holt lost considerable blood, but it was stated he was out of danger.

PETERBORO' BATTERY THROUGH AN ATTACK

Ambrose Borris Says it Was the Stiffest the Battery Went Through—Mentions Fatalities Already Mentioned Here.

Writing from France under date of June 19th, Ambrose Dorris writing to his brother, Mr. Bert Dorris, states that he has been a gunner since the battle of Ypres. Previous to that engagement and from the time of his enlistment he had been a driver in the 4th battery with which he is still connected. "We have been in two lively battles since I wrote you last. I have been a gunner since the battle of Ypres, and have been with the gun ever since. We have just come through the most dangerous attack that our battery has yet been in. We had two men of our own gun killed, and on the other gun one wounded, and two of our officers wounded. We have four guns in a battery. We just put two of them in this dangerous position. How any of us came back safe is a miracle. I was on No. 1 gun. My two friends were killed. Both were from Peterborough; also the one man on the other gun is from Peterborough. You will perhaps read about this attack in the papers. I consider myself real lucky. I will do the same thing over and over again as long as I am spared to do so."

More News of Pte. Heber Rogers

German wounded, and came down to a camp hospital at Wetzlar. That will likely delay our mail too. We are in huts here on beds and are very comfortable, especially as we can go out in the yard any time. At Giessen we only got down for an hour the last few days we were there. This is a Russian camp, but there are about 20 English in the hospital. Words fail me in trying to thank you for being so kind to me.

Lovingly yours,
HEBER.

MISS GLASSFORD WRITES

In a letter to Mr. R. B. Rogers, Miss Glassford says: "I am surprised that the money has not reached him by this but I hold the receipt and I presume it will be forwarded to him long before this reaches you or indeed long before this present date. Then once the parcels begin to reach him, they will begin to reach him regularly, for I have sent two parcels every week. It seems such a long time and I am sure the poor fellow must be thinking we have forgotten him, but, indeed, such is not the case.

"Yesterday I sent him a parcel including a loaf of bread. We are having special bread made with oil in it, which will keep for 15 days or so. Then we have sent him cafe au lait, that is, coffee, milk and sugar mixed up together, and all he has to do is to pour boiling water on it and have a delicious cup for breakfast. Then I have sent him some chocolates and cigarettes, and also two shirts and underwear. * * * * One thing you can rest assured of, that parcels keep going in regular to Heber, and I know he is a brave good soldier and will be a brave good prisoner as well, but we know the hardest of all is the waiting—waiting.

"You will no doubt be very sorry to learn that Lieut. Ackerman has been wounded. Possibly however you have heard of it through the Canadian news before this letter reaches you. I trust that it is not serious.

"I am sending Heber a picture of Mac, the little dog who was with the boys. He is an Aberdeen terrier, and Heber was very fond of him.

"Lily (sister of Pte. Geo. Minorgan) has had a letter from young Theodore Quinn. She has been anxious to know all she could about her dear brother. He tells her that Billy was shot through the head and that George was shot in the breast. We understand from Major Mills that George evidently was not killed outright but was taken to the dressing station and died on reaching there.

"My sincere sympathy will go out to Mrs. Ackerman. I do not know yet how serious her son's wounds are, but likely we will hear in due course and will correspond with her.

"I do not think it is likely that I will come over to Canada until the war is over. I think that I could do more here than I could over there. Our lives are best spent in serving others, just as those dear boys gave up their lives and liberty for a great cause. Such I feel is our privilege also."

Ald. Edgar Thinks Fire Chief Should Stay on the Job

"I would like to ask under what authority the Fire Chief is allowed to leave the city limits any time except his holidays.

This was one of Ald. Edgar's questions at the Council meeting last night. He did not confine himself to those few words, for the south ward representative is first and above all generous in his diction.

Mayor Buller— Ald. Duffus should answer that.

Ald. Duffus—It has always been the custom of the Chief to leave the city on a written order from the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee.

Ald. Edgar— [illegible] by-laws?

Ald. Duffus— I am not sure about that. It was not the intention of the Chief to take his regular holidays this year. He asked permission to be out of the city a few hours on several occasions.

Ald. Edgar's Contentions.

Ald. Edgar —If two weeks are not sufficient holidays for the Chief give him more. But during other times he has no authority going outside the city limits. After his holidays he should be on the job the rest of the time.

I take exception to any place he might go.

Ald. Edgar reviewed the necessity of the firemen reaching a fire with the greatest despatch, the place of the Chief at the head of the brigade to direct and so forth.

Ald. Langford inquired if the Chief's journeys were mere hearsay.

Ald. Edgar—Not exactly. I read it out of the papers and witnessed some of it myself. The Chief should not go outside the city without a written order signed by the chairman and the Mayor.

All of which is respectfully submitted to Chief Howard.

"Pickings" at the Incinerator Are Worth About $500 a Year

Aldermanic Discussion Indicates Conditions Which It Was Admitted Were Scarcely Economically Sound for City—Alfred Helson Wanted His Old Job Back Again

THE "PICKINGS" GAME

The City Council considered last night the restoration of Alfred Helson to his positon in charge of the incinerator, which he vacated a few weeks ago, to answer to a serious criminal charge of which he was acquitted. Ald. McIntyre, who introduced the subject, was given the authority he already possessed, that is, power to act.

In view of the circumstances he did not wish to carry out the promise to Helson without securing the opinion of the Council. The incinerator man was told that if he were acquitted his position would be given back to him. Keegan, his interim successor, had been doing very well, Ald. McIntyre said.

Ald. Saunders—"It was intended that Helson should get it back."

Ald. Edgar—"If Helson is willing to do the work without extra help I would give him back the job. It was promised to him. Keegan has been presuming too much upon the collectors of garbage. Everything was going along well until he got there.

It Certainly Was.

Ald. McIntyre incidentally disclosed a few incinerator details that at least amused the Council. Helson assured Ald. McIntyre that if he got all the "pickings" he would do without extra help. The term "pickings" explains itself.

"I think we can get from $400 to $500 a year for the rags, etc., down there. The Council has no idea of what the stuff is worth."

Ald. Saunders—"The garbage men go over it first."

Ald. McIntyre—"I know they do; but it is also gone over a second time at the incinerator. I am assured we can get $5.00 a week for it.

Ald. Dobbin's Logic.

Ald. Dobbin — "We are going directly opposite to the objects of that incinerator. It was intended to burn all the refuse."

Ald. Duffus—"And we have to purchase wood to burn the green stuff. I think the operator is putting it over the Property Committee."

It was pointed out that when rags, etc., are removed someone is paid for them and the city then pays for wood to make up the deficiency of inflammable articles, a large quantity of which is removed and sold.

Ald. Edgar—"I suppose that explains why extra help is required. Some one has to pick out this refuse.

Worth $10 a Week.

Ald. McIntyre—"A man told me the "pickings" were worth from $8 to $10 a week. He was willing to take two weeks on trial and then pay us whatever it was worth.

Ald. Edgar said there was no trouble there until Keegan got the job.

He moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders that Helson be re-appointed, providing he does the work without extra help.

Ald. Stratton said he did not regard Helson a proper person to place in charge of the plant. He moved that the question be referred back to the Property Committee with power to act. This amendment carried.

GREAT INTEREST SHOWN IN CANADIAN TROOPS

Pte. Patrick Duggan Sends Home a Letter Received From a Resident of England—Also Tells of 14th Battalion's Share in Another Scrap

(Mr. Chas. Duggan of Peterborough has received several interesting letters from a relative,—Pte. Patrick Duggan, formerly of this city, who was at the front with the 14th Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 1st Canadian Division. In the first one, written on June 3, Pte. Duggan says: "We received socks, etc., after the battle Ypres, and I found a ticket on mine with a young lady's address, so I wrote back and thanked her for the same. In return I got a letter and a parcel, hoping I would accept the same and write when I got an opportunity. The name is Miss Dorothy Foster. I had a letter from her father yesterday, so I am enclosing the same, as I think it is a very nice letter."

The letter enclosed is published to show in what regard the Canadians are held in the old country:

41 Stewart Place,
Alfred Street,
Nottingham.

May 29, 1915.

Dear Patrick,— Thanks for your letter which we got this morning. We are so pleased to know you are still alive and well after the dreadful fighting through which you must have passed lately. Permit me to say how I honour you and your brave comrades out here for the gallant and heroic courage you display in facing the unspeakable Germans and combatting the horrors to which they subject you. I would like to be with you taking my little share, but unfortunately for me I am past the military age. However I get a little satisfaction from the fact that my business is connected with the military and I am in charge of a department in a hosiery factory where we turn out many thousand pairs of pants for soldiers, underwear every week. The work is to put on bands, etc., and about 120 females are employed in the room. I was astonished to read of you being in the trenches 17 days, and it must be almost beyond description what you witnessed on that and on other occasions. Were you in during that terrible time when the boshes used poison gas? But I will not ask any questions further about these things, as I am sure they must be too horrible almost to think about. It is a coincidence that Dorothy's present should introduce us to a Canadian, as I have a nephew out at Boissevain, Manitoba. He went out from here four years ago and is managing a farm, the owner of which is out fighting with the Canadian contingent. My wife's sister, with her husband and family are also in Saskatchewan. They went from Burton-on-Trent, so it seems quite homely to be writing to you, although of course it is possible you are a real Canadian. Still, you will agree I am sure, that it is rather curious my daughter's very small comfort should put us in touch with you, and I do hope that it may be possible perhaps to see you some day. Who can tell? Anyway my wife and daughter and myself wish you again God speed, and if it should be your lot to come safely through, and your lot should bring you to England, we should most gladly welcome so brave a defender of our dear, homeland. Dorothy is knitting a pair of socks and she wishes me to say that we will be sending them in the course of the next week or so. Kindly look out for the parcel as my wife and self will again enclose something if you will please accept. Do write again to us at any time you have an opportunity to do, and believe me when I say that our every wish is for your future welfare and safe return. With kind regards,

Yours very sincerely,
John H. Foster.

Another Letter.

In a letter written on June 14th, Pte. Duggan writes as follows:

France, June 14th, '15.

Dear Charley,—Your letter to hand, dated May 30th, which I received last night. I was very pleased to hear from you, and to know that you have started work again. Having received no letter from you for a long period I was wondering how you were getting on. No doubt you have heard from me since, stating the cause of my being in hospital, and stating that I was back again with by regiment. We were taken up to the trenches one afternoon, and we were told that we were going to be in a charge in five minutes time. We were then in the third line of trenches. Well we went on a fruitless errand. The Huns seeing one line after the other coming up beat it, so that when we got away up to the front line there was no one there. I didn't see one German. All I saw was plenty of shell flyin garound. We lost some 300 odd in our battalion. They were all hit with sharpnel. While we were out in the open one shell burst about two yards in front of me. The two fellows on my left got hit and the chap on my right got it. I didn't get a scratch. We have been in and out of the trenches since twice, but we had a nice, quiet time. We came out of the trenches a couple of days ago so we are now in billets a little way behind the firing line. Well, this is all I have to say at present. Hoping this letter will find you in the best of health, as it leaves me at present. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,

Yours,
PAT.

P.S.—Did you get my letter stating all about the battle of Ypres.?

IMMORTAL SOUL OF FRANCE BURNS IN CATHEDRAL RUINS IMPRESSIONS FROM RHEIMS

NEW YORK, July 6.— Mme. Jane Mendes, of Paris, who is treasurer here for the Vestiare des Blesses, a society organized to take care of the French wounded, has written an interesting description of the ruined Cathedral of Rheims and its surroundings Mrs. Mendes is one of the few women who have been allowed by the French government to go to the war area. She went in her official capacity with a commission investigating the condition of the wounded soldiers of the republic.

"It was the end of April" writes Mrs. Mendes, "when we approached Rheims automobiling. The weather was fine. The hills bore their fruit trees in blossom, white and perfumed The swallows flew twittering through the air. But I was insensible of nature's renaissance; I was watching for the cathedral.

"All at once I saw it, like a martyr dead on his feet. The tears came to my eyes for we had hoped so much that it might be spared.

"In Paris, while the German army was approaching Rheims, all sorts of rumours floated about. 'Some said: 'Precautions have been taken. No efficacious bombardment of the edifice can be made.' Others:—'The Germans will not dare to touch it. They will be afraid of arousing the wrath of the world.' Finally the rumour ran about that there was nothing more to fear. The United States had taken the cathedral under its protection and the American flag was hoisted upon its towers. No one stopped to reflect that this was impossible. We grasped every straw of hope.

The Martyred Basilica.

"But now the basilica is before us —a skeleton, dead. We stand before it, hardly daring to advance lest we step upon sacred cinders. Finally we enter, wandering through the ruins. Everything is topsy-turvy. Statues, broken angels, clock towers, gargoyles, colonades, everything is pell mell—smashed, melted, burned. One does not know where to put one's feet for fear of committing sacrilege. Suddenly I uttered a cry. One more step and I would have stepped on the face of Christ. I become faint and they had to hold me up.

"I was asked if I wished to view the ruins from above, to see the decapitated angels, the twisted iron of the roof, all the agonizing details of destruction, but I did not want to see it. I had suffered enough and I wandered out of the martyred basilica.

"Outside, in the midst of the sacred ruins, a woman was kneeling, clad in mourning, praying. And I remembered the words of Rodin: 'The cathedral brings to mind the figure of a woman praying.' No, the soul of the cathedral has not been destroyed by the effacement of its beauties. Through the ages to come it will be remembered as a woman praying in the ashes, in her eyes the immortal flame of the soul of France.

"Waiting out there I called to mind the words of the German professor, Jean Joseph Goerres, published in the Theinische Merkur in 1814:—'Let us reduce to ashes the basilica of Rheims, where Klodovig was crowned, where the empire of the Franks was founded. Burn this cathedral!'

"One hundred years later, September 5, 1914, while the German horde was near Rheims, the Berliner Blatt said:—'The western group of our armies in France has already passed the second line of forts except Rheims, whose royal splendor, dating from the time of the lys, will not fail to crumble into dust under the blows of our howitzers.'

Kaiser's Broken Promise.

"Nevertheless, when the Germans entered Rheims they did not touch the cathedral. The reason is very simple. They thought that their victory was certain. They never intended surrendering Champagne, and they wanted the glories of Rheims for themselves. The Kaiser proclaimed himself the protector of the art treasures of France and of Belgium. When, however, on September 12, the French, victorious upon the Marne, re-entered Rheims, it was different.

"Two days later the German batteries opened upon the cathedral, and the Kaiser no longer was the protector of the art treasures. From nine o'clock on the morning of September 14, 1914, to the present time, they have directed their fire upon the basilica, each shot fanning the flame of hate they have kindled.

'The Germans have not sought to excuse themselves. Last New Year's honour of the destruction of the cathe the Fatherland, one of their poets, Rudolph Herzog, wrote an ode, "In honour of he destruction of the cathedral of Rheims.' One of the verses, translated, reads:

"'Its bells no longer sound
"'In the two towered dome,
"'Ended is the benediction.
"'We have closed with lead,
O, Rheims, thy house of idolatry.'

"Still seated, as I pondered on these things, I saw a little girl approach, limping. She was about seven years old. Questioning her, I found that she had been struck by a fragment of a shell and was a cripple for life. I visited the miserable cellar in which she and her mother sheltered themselves, where they had been since last October. Then I took the little one with me for a guide and went to a cemetery.

The Cathedral's Silent Bells.

"We arrived there. Tombstones overturned, statues decapitated, wreaths scattered about. Even the dead themselves had not been spared their peace. And upon one of the largest tombs a great figure of Christ thrown to earth, the arms of pardon still extended wide.

"The lower part of the statue was broken into splinters, reduced to a hundred pieces, as if the agonies of the cross and the lance had not been sufficient.

"Leaving the cemetery I bought an armful of flowers, from an inerant flower seller, not knowing yet just what I should do with them. On leaving the little girl I asked her:

"'What would give you most pleasure in the future, my dear?'

"And she answered, leaning close to me, almost in a whisper, as if she feared to be overheard by those who had done her injury:

"'Vive la France!'

"My companions were wating for me when I returned. Before leaving we went to see the bells. We entered the cathedral again and stood before the broken, silenced bells, cracked half melted, whose sonorous tones for ages sounded celestial voices upon the earth, but which now have, like soldiers, died for their motherland.'

"I knelt down and placed upon them the flowers I was carrying."

WHAT WILL U. S. DO?

PARIS, Saturday, July 3.— Senator Stephan Pichon, formerly Minister of Foreign Affairs, writing to the Petit Journal under the heading, "What Will the United States Do?" sums up the acts of "murderous piracy" of the Germans since the sinking of the Lusitania and refers particularly to the reported naval bases along the coast of Maine.

Senator Pichon says that when "new submarines whose construction are near completion are ready the Germans will be able to commit in the neighbourhood of America acts of piracy which they now accomplish in the North Sea Channel and in the Irish Sea.

"In coolly sinking the Armenian," the writer says, "these nefarious pirates added another crime to those whereof they bear responsibility before the world and especially before the United States. It is their way of defying the government at Washington. Will that government stand it?"

Making a Dual Industry Of Dairy Farming on a Peterborough County Farm

The man who attempts to farm 100 acres or more of land and at the same time run a retail milk route, has his hands full. He is apt to find himself tied more closely to his work than a galley slave. R. J. Waller and his son Carl have solved the problem of running the two together on their farm of 118 acres near the city of Peterborough, Ont. They have made the farm and the milk retailing business two separate and distinct enterprises. Mr. Waller, Sr., owns the farm and produces the milk. Mr. Waller, Jr., owns the retail route, the equipment that goes with it, and sells the milk. The arrangement is working to the advantage of both parties. The father is assured of a good market for his milk; the son is assured of a steady supply of good, clean milk for his customers.

Medical Health Officers Inspecting a Sanitary Stable.

Each one of these men is responsible for the official supervision of the health of one Ontario town. All were pleased with the sanitary stable of R. J. Waller, Peterboro, Ont., in which this illustration was taken. Notice that the only part of the equipment purchased were the swing tie-ups and water bowls. Light, white-wash and sanitary, cement flooring contribute to the purity of the milk produced.

The feature of the Waller farm that attracted my attention most favorably was the cleanliness that prevailed in and around the buildings, and all effected without an exorbitant outlay in either equipment or upkeep. The milk is not sold at the fancy prices commanded by the certified product in our larger cities. In winter the price is only seven cents a quart delivered. Economy, therefore, has to be studied in its production. In the new stables abundant provision has been made to utilize the two free factors in the production of clean milk—big windows let in floods of sunshine, nature's own germicide, and the air is kept as pure within as without. The walls, ceilings and woodwork are whitewashed until they glisten. The only additional precautions, necessary are to keep the cows and the stables clean, and in the estimation of the Wallers, it is just as easy to keep the cows clean as to keep them dirty, and more satisfactory.

A Good Dairy Stable

The stables have recently been remodelled with an eye to both convenience and economy. The floors are of cement throughout. Swing stanchions allow the cows a maximum of liberty. Water is provided in individual basins in front of each cow. The bedding is let down through a chute behind the cows where it is needed. The hay comes down a larger chute in front of the stalls. And here I noticed one of the small precautions that go to make clean milk. Instead of the hay being shot through a hole in the ceiling, distributing germ-laden dust throughout the stable, the chute is closed right to the floor, and the feeding operation is accomplished without dust distribution. The root cellar and the silo both open conveniently to the feeding room.

During my inspection of the Waller stables, several of Ontario's medical health inspectors, who were then convened in the city of Peterborough, Paid Mr. Waller a visit. They were much pleased with the provisions that had been made for producing a sanitary product at a moderate price, and were quick to notice, too, that desirable features had been incorporated into the buildings without a great cash outlay. The whole plant demonstrates that what is needed to equip a sanitary stable is not much capital, but a will to do, making use of nature free cleansers, sunshine and pure air.

The 18 cows milked on the Waller farm do not produce all the milk and cream required for the retail route. The rest of the 300 quarts that must be got daily comes from the farm of Mr. H. Snowden, adjoining. Mr. Snowden is a son-in-law of Mr. Waller, and just as interested in producing good milk. He has recently completed one of the most up-to-date and sanitary dairy barns in Peterborough county. No less than one-half of the wall space is in window glass. The equipment throughout is entirely of cement and steel. The water system is on the individual basin plan. Stable work is facilitated with overhead litter carriers. Such equipment, of course, represents a large initial outlay, but Mr. Snowden is determined that his shall be a model dairy barn. He is now busy erecting a cement silo, 14 x 30 feet, and at a later date the addition of a summer silo is contemplated.

This Stable Is the Latest Word in Sanitary Construction.

One-half the lower wall space is in window glass, the construction is altogether of steel and concrete. The walls and ceilings are whitewashed till they glisten. —Photo on Farm of M. Snowden by an Editor of Farm and Dairy.

The outstanding feature of these farms, of course, is the method of marketing. Producing milk and cream for a retail trade requires greater precautions than are common in ordinary dairying. At the same time the price realized is more satisfactory. The successful marketing of the milk calls for special knowledge and special attention, and this is made possible through Mr. Carl Waller giving the retailing end his undivided attention. The plan in its essence is cooperative and is working to the advantage of all.

Hetty Green, The Wealthiest Woman in America, is Known In New York as a Tax Dodger

NEW YORK, July 6.—The bright, particular star among professional shunners of the tax collectors is Mrs. Hetty Green, called "the richest woman in America."

Not within the recollection of the oldest employee of New York's Tax Department has this super Croesus among women—and men—paid New York one single penny of personal taxes.

She is the tax-dodger par excellence: the fly in the ointment of the City Government; the beam in the eye of the Tax Bureau; the skeleton in the Manhattan closet; the spectre at the municipal feast.

House Can't Run Away.

Mind, Mrs. Green always pays her real estate taxes—and very promptly. She turns in just $880.20 a year. But she pays because she has to.

Every piece and parcel of her holdings amounts to two—Nos. 3 and 7 West 30th St., assessed at $33,000 each. And this is the sum total —$880.20—which is Mrs. Green's little bit toward lighting street lamps and paying policemen, and turning out fire engines, and building docks, and cleaning the streets, and all the thousand and one other needs of such a complex community as New York.

Mrs. Green's modest real estate fairly cries out "Come and take me," when taxes are due. The reason, of course, is that real estate can't hide —as Mrs. Green sometimes does; nor can it run away to another State as she runs regularly about tax-time every year. No, indeed; Mrs. Green's holdings are right there for the Tax Appraiser to see.

"I Don't Live in New York."

But with personal property it is wholly different. This consists of stocks and bonds, mortgages, automobiles, horses, art works, silverware, jewels and all the other pleasant tangible concomitants of wealth.

The better part of this—securities —can easily be hidden in a safe at home or in a box in the safe deposit. Then where does the tax-gatherer come in when he goes nosing about?

Nowhere!

Nor does the owner of these highly desirable pieces of paper even have to put them in a hiding place provided he—or she—is able merely to say, "I don't live in New York."

Which is what Mrs. Green does—annually.

And that is why this has been written, for May has passed, which is tax collecting time, and Mrs. Hetty [illegible] of $60,000,000 (or is it $100,000,000) moves to Hoboken, once more.

Moving Once More.

Once more. Surest thing you know. That is a regular proceeding with Mrs. Green.

She dwells in New Jersey, she does business in New York (whence come her millions) and she lays claim to legal residence in Vermont.

Therefore she says she does not owe the city any money and beats the tax commissioners to it with monotonous regularity. Let us see—here is the word of Lawson Purdy, president of the Tax Department, for the same:

"There is a tradition in the department that nearly twenty years ago Mrs. Green was assessed as residing at a hotel in Manhattan, because her late husband, E. H. Green, appeared to be living there at the time. Mrs. Green, however, made affidavit that her residence at the time was Bellows Falls, Vt., and the assessment was cancelled.

"For a good many years it has been generally believed that Mrs. Green's residence has been Hoboken, N.J., and she has not been within the jurisdiction and has not been assessed."

As Safe As If In Africa.

So, once more, the tax commissioners have thrown up their hands in despair at the goingings on of the elusive and evanescent Mrs. Green.

They protest that they don't want very much money from this richest of women. In fact, they would take pretty much anything she would care to give. There is no thought of assessing her on $60,000,000 or half that, or even a sixtieth of it.

Personal assessments in New York are very light, when the fortunes of the payers of the same are considered.

For example: Henry C. Frick and Cornelius Vanderbilt pay on but $500,000 each: Jacob H. Schiff on $400,000; James Gordon Bennett on $300,000; ex-Senator William A. Clark on $275,000; Kate W. Winthrop on $200,000; George F. Baker on $200,000 and Mrs. Alice Vanderbilt on $100,000.

But not a penny stands against the $60,000,000 of Mrs. Green on the tax books. No; for Mrs. Green dwells across the river in Hoboken, N.J. absolutely safe from the New York tax collectors as if she were a resident of Timbuctoo.

Agreed To—"I am doing my best to get ahead,' asserted Chollie. "Well, you certainly need one," assented Dollie.

"Indeed," she insisted, "I'll dae nae sic thing: I ne'er could raise a man for mysel', and I'm no, guess to raise men for King George."

LAWN BOWLING

Bowling on the green has become quite popular this summer, as can easily be seen by paying a visit to the lawn on Brock Street any fine evening, and, judging by the enthusiasm displayed by a number of the younger players the "Vets." will have to look well after their laurels or take second place to some of the "youngsters"; however, both are working well together, and have many close and exciting games each evening. All games scheduled must be played this week.

GOLF

On Monday afternoon the finals for the Captain's prize (a handsome pewter stein) was played between Mrs. Suckling and Miss O. Cavanagh.

After a close contest Mrs. Suckling won on the 18th hole. Miss Cavanagh gave Mrs. Suckling a handicap of six. Falling on the 3rd, 7th, 8th, 12th, 16th and 17th.

First nine holes—

Mrs Suckling ..	7	5	10	5	6	6	9	9	7
Miss Cavanagh ..	6	6	11	4	4	5	7	10	7

Second nine holes—

Mrs. Suckling, three up on the second round. The weather conditions: very strong winds and rain were against the players making their usual good scores.

COUNTY CONSTABLES WILL PROTECT LOCAL FACTORY

To Reduce to the Minimum the Danger of Damage to the Plant of the C.G.E. Company, Twenty-one Employees Were Appointed Constables by His Honour Judge Huycke.

Upon the request of the Canadian General Electric Company, through their superintendent, Mr. E. G. Patterson, and their solicitor, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, twenty-one men were formally appointed constables for the County of Peterborough, by His Honour Judge Huycke, this morning, the intention being that these men should look after the interests of the Canadian General Electric Company, during the time they are manufacturing munitions of war.

Mr. Hall and Mr. Patterson appeared before the Judge this morning and explained the situation. The company felt that the plant was in danger of damage, owing to the fact that munitions of war were being manufactured there. They felt that in this the public peace was being menaced and requested that the twenty-one men, who were present in court, all employees of the company, should be formally appointed constables for the County of Peterborough.

The following men take the oath of office as newly appointed constables: Messrs. Robert Anson, Robert S. Cotton, Robert G. Cottrell, John Trombley, Wm. J. Nelson, John G. M. Wilson, Pardee B. Wright, Wm. Rose, Robert Martin, James Constable, Arthur D. Jardine, Harry Castle, Chas. Peters, Stanley Stinson, Charles Millegan, Wesley Sanderson, Alex. Anderson, Maurice Hynes, Peter Milloy, William Doidge and Daniel Hillier.

The City Council has had requests from manufacturers in the city for adequate police protection. It is possible that experiences of manufacturers in other cities in Canada and particularly Ontario have made them uneasy in Peterborough, where munitions of war are being manufactured. The following letter was received from the Canadian General Electric Company, by the City Council last evening, but no action was taken:

His Worship, Mayor Buller and Council:

Gentlemen,—In view of the danger of damages occurring to our plant due to the fact that we are manufacturing munitions of war, I wish to place before you a request for more adequate —in fact sufficient police protection, especially at night. It is the writer's opinion that there ought to be at least one or two men patrolling the block surrounding our property, and I would ask that you and your honourable body provide same.

Yours very truly,
Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd.
E. G. PATTERSON,
General Superintendent.

His Honour Judge Huycke in making the appointment this morning said that it was not in his power to appoint these gentlemen constables for the duration of the war, but he would depend upon their resigning when the war had ceased, as they would not likely wish to be constables any longer. He explained their duties in brief. They would be within their rights to be inquisitive when anything suspicious was being done. In these times even civil, law-abiding citizens might come under suspicion under some circumstances, but by interrogating they would be able to find out where he stood. "Do not be too nice at this time," said His Honour. "You are not only appointed for the protection of your employers' property, but for the preservation of the interests of the citizens at large."

The men were directed to take the oath of office before Crown Attorney Hatton.

There have been many inquiries as to who shall pay the new constables. They are merely County Constables, and as far as remuneration for their services is concerned they will only be entitled to the usual fee of a County Constable when an arrest is made, or their attendance in court is required. Their office gives them authority to make arrests where necessary or make inquiries.

The marriage was solemnized at noon on Wednesday, June 30th, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Mann, Lakeview Farm, Smith, of their daughter Sadie Lucinda, to Albert E. Hammond, of Atwood, Ont, son of the late Mr. Edward Hammond. The officiating clergyman was Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of the Murray street Baptist Church, Peterborough. The ceremony took place in the prettily decorated drawing room under an arch of flowers and ferns. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a graceful wedding gown of white silk crepe and the conventional bridal veil and carried white roses and lily of the valley. The bride's sister, Miss Martha B. Mann, who was the bridesmaid, wore a becoming frock of pale blue silk crepe. The two little flower girls, nieces of the bride, Frances Moore and Margaret Mann, were daintily dressed in white and carried baskets of orchids. Mr. J. Elmer Milburn was groomsman. The bride's sister, Miss Ruth G. Mann, played Liszt's transcription of the Bridal chorus from Lohengrin, and Miss Blanche Mann sang "O, Fair, O Sweet and Holy."

WAS HURT WHILE DIVING IN LAKE

Former Peterborough Boy Badly Injured.

TORONTO, July 5.—As a result of striking his head on some submerged concrete while diving in shallow water off Fernwood Park avenue, at Balmy Beach, on Sunday afternoon, James Main, aged 25 years, who lives at 92 Dupont Street, is in the General Hospital to-day paralysed from the waist down, a dislocation of the spine, and two scalp wounds. He had been diving, with some comrades in shallow water and in doing so he misjudged the depth and struck his head with great force against a large piece of concrete. His companions became greatly alarmed when he did not come to the surface and went into the water after him. They pulled him out and took him to the club house near by, from where he was later taken to the hospital. To-day his condition is serious, and there is no improvement. Main is a well known member of the Toronto Canoe club, being coxswain of the club's war canoe. He is a son of Mr. Thomas Main, steam boiler inspector of the Department of Public Works, and worked as an insurance agent.

His many Peterborough friends will be sorry to hear of the accident. Mr. Main was brought up in Peterborough.

PORT HURON DOCKS AND SHEDS BURNED

Loss Falling Chiefly on the G.T.R. Reaches About $4C0,000.

PORT HURON, Mich., July 5. — The Grand Trunk freight sheds at the foot of Thomas street, at which steamers of the Port Huron and Duluth Steamship Company unloaded, were destroyed by fire late this afternoon, entailing a loss estimated at from $250,000 to $425,000.

The origin of the fire is unknown. It was discovered about 5 o'clock and within a few minutes the freight sheds, which were 720 feet in length, were a mass of flames. The office if the Port Huron and Duluth Company, south of the sheds, was also destroyed. Only the coal chutes of the steamship concern were saved.

At the time of the fire there were several hundred tons of sugar, flour and feed stored in the sheds. The docks burned for several hours and will be hard to replace owing to the swift current which runs at this point. The steamer Lakeland, which left for Duluth Saturday night, took most of the westbound freight and much of what was destroyed to-day was to have been sent by rail to eastern points.

The sugar was being held in storage for the Canadian North-West. Twent-two freight cars were also destroyed on a siding where spreading rails held them. F. D. Jenks, general manager of the Port Huron and Duluth Steamship Company, stated to-night that probably the freight sheds would be rebuilt. The loss falls upon the Grand Trunk, with which the Port Huron and Duluth Company has a working agreement.

Mr. Jenks said that boats of his line would probably unload at Point Edward for the rest of the season, although nothing definite can be determined now.

The records of the steamship company were saved, but the railroad and freight records were destroyed. The loss is distributed as follows: Buildings and docks, $50,000; flour, sugar and feed and other products awaiting shipment, $150,000; loss of freight cars, estimated $25,000; damage to dock property and ferry slip, about $200,000.

Following the disclosures which came to light at Windsor, and other boundary points recently of systematic outrages by German sympathizers, it occurred to the Hamilton controllers that too much dynamite was being stored in Hamilton quarries and other places in the city, and that similar attempts might be made there. WOMEN AND CHILDREN SEEK COUNTRY LANES WHEN THE ZEPPS COME

Mr. Vincent, the George Street photographer, has received the following letter from a friend in Hull, England:

58 Hessle, Road, Hull.
England, 29.-6-'15.

I am writing this by your mother's request to let you know just the outlines of our Zeppelin raid, on June 6th:

When a raid is expected on the east coast we have an alarm sounded by hooters, and on Sunday, June 6th, the alarm was given about 10 p. m., calling our special constables (Civic Guards) out, and about 11.45 the bombs were dropped in various parts of the city. None of us want the terrible experience again. One has to have heard them and the awful noise the Zepps make to realize at all the awful feeling they create, not knowing whether the next bomb is to drop to you or your home. We are all very thankful that all of us connected with your mother escaped injury and that your mother's shop and home escaped, although bombs were dropped very close to the shop, and also in Coltman Street. In fact had all the bombs exploded that were dropped in Hull I am afraid not many would have been left uninjured in some way. Several fires were caused in Hull. Edwin Davis, in the Market Place, was burnt down to the ground, not a brick left standing, and many poor people in Campbell Street, South Parade, and Porter Street, have had their homes demolished, so you will know that we have been right in the midst of it. East Hull has suffered the worst, especially among the poorer people. In fact with the exception of the Davis Place it is all the poor class that have been hit. We have been up and out until daylight three times since the raid, on account of the Zepps. being sighted off the coast and as I am writing this I am feeling tired, as last night was one of our nights out. The hooters were sounded at 11.20 p.m., that means no bed until 2 or 3 o'clock. It is a most pitiable sight to see thousands of women with their children as soon as the hooters sound, making off into the country lanes round about Hull.

Are Busy On War Orders

Ames Holden McCready, Limited, report that their factories are busy on war orders for the Canadian soldiers. These orders are a portion of those recently placed with various Canadian manufacturers by the War Purchasing Commission at Ottawa for Canadian troops, now being outfitted.

This company have submitted a new pattern of army boot to the Government, which has been approved and adopted as being the most suitable in point of fitting, comfort, and wearing qualities for the requirements of our Canadian soldiers. The boot in question is made of tan calfskin with double soles and Goodyear Welt sewn, and a steel plate on the heel.

It is expected that further orders will be placed at an early date, not only for the soldiers now being trained in Canada, but also for Canadians at the front who are requiring more boots and who, it is understood, much prefer the Canadian boot for comfort and service. Such action on the part of the authorities will be much appreciated by Canadian labour.

Turkish Losses at The Dardanelles Now Totalled at 80,000

Latest Advices From Constantinople Places Losses at Above Figure--Adriatic Due to Enter War Zone To-day

Special Cable to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, July 7.—In completed compilation of 1915 fatalities and accidents due directly to Independence Day celebrations, including Saturday, Sunday and Monday, the Tribune to-day announced a death list of 29 and 1,110 injured, as the figures for the whole country. The fire loss amounted to $369,025. Last year's figures were twelve dead, 879 injured, and a fire loss of $99,545.

ATHENS, July 7.—Turkish losses in the Dardanelles fighting both on land and sea now total 180,000 according to Constantinople advices to-day.

NE WYORK, July 7.—The Whitee Star liner Odriatic, for whose safety much concern is felt because of rumours that she is marked for submarine attack, was due to enter the "war zone" to-day, providing she had not radically changed her course. Included among her 420 passengers are Premier Bordan, of Canada, and eight prominent Americans. It is said she carries a large cargo of war munitions.

GENEVA, July 5.—Severe fighting is in progress on the plateaux of Cornico and Doberda between the Italians and the Austro-Hungarians, according to advices received here to-day from Innsbruck.

The Austrians continue to cast down boulders and to blow up hidden rock galleries on the advancing Italians.

A large Italian army is reported to be marching on Plava from Western Gorizia and to be driving back the Austrians.

An Austrian aeroplane, carrying a pilot and an observer, fell down a precipice on to the spur of Monte Nero on Saturday. The two were killed.

Ypres Now a "Dead City" Shell-torn Ruins Deserted

(By Frederick Palmer.)

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, France, June 21.—"How are the turrets? Still holding out?" they asked up and down the line of any one who has come from Ypres. Everybody has a tender personal interest in the turrets of the old Cloth Hall which deepens with each day that they survive in defiance of the German gunners above the wreckage wrought by German shells.

People are still living in Rheims and Louvain, but Ypres is absolutely a dead city. No face appears in any door or window that can still be called a door or window; no figures are seen moving through the shell holes in walls that are still standing.

Before the war Ypres had some 18,000 inhabitants. Now it has not a single one. No one is making any effort to make any ruin habitable.

The Cathedral which stands back of the Cloth Hall was a noble edifice, no doubt, but there are a great many cathedrals in Europe. The Cloth Hall is unique; the best of its kind. Any one who ever saw it always remembered its turrets. Different conquerors of Ypres put her women and children to the sword, but no one had even harmed the old Cloth Hall beyond taking away a few statues.

ITS HISTORICAL SOUL.

Last February perhaps four or five thousand people remained in Ypres. They were going and coming about the streets as usual, keeping their shops open and doing what business they could. A visitor could get a meal in a restaurant or have his shoes cobbled. Only one house in the big square had been hit.

The Germans threw in occasional shells mostly directed at the Cathedral. Restoration work which age required had just been finished on the Cloth Hall before the war began. The people paid for this in their civic pride and let other civic improvements wait. For the Cloth Hall gave Ypres a civic distinction.

It was the historical soul of Ypres.

The old frescoes on its walls told the city's early history. It meant to Ypres quite as much in its way as Westminster Abbey to London or Faneuil Hall to Boston. Every man or woman born in Ypres had been brought up to tell the time of day by the raised gilt figures of the old golden cloth face.

By February the people's sense of horror was exhausted. Destruction of things sacred to them had become routine. When they heard another explosion and word was passed that the Germans had scored another hit they went around to the Grande Place to see if the turrets and the gilt clock face were still unharmed. And they said: "The Cloth Hall still can be restored."

The next time I went to Ypres there was not a single house left on the Grande Place that resembled a house. In the second battle of Ypres when the Germans had another try for the Channel ports the sensation of their attack with asphyxiating gas over-shadowed what they did with their guns.

THE JOB OF DESTRUCTION.

They went at the job of destruction systematically. Their object was confusion for British reinforcements hurrying up along roads crowded with refugees; wholesale death for men in billets in town and destruction and delay for supplies and munitions coming through the streets.

This was excellent theory which did not work out in practice. The main result was that the homes and offices and cafes of 18,000 people were destroyed.

The 42-centimeter (17-inch mortar) had is part in the work. Debris in the streets still remains where it fell. Paving stones are scattered about from the explosion in the centre of the Grande Place and made a crater about 15 feet across and 10 feet deep. Another which could have brought down a cathedral tower dug a still larger crater in the soft earth of the cathedral grounds.

Another bombardment would seem as bootless as flailing last year's straw or kicking a dead dog. However, the Germans keep on throwing shells into the wreckage at intervals, as if they could never be satisfied that they had properly finished the job of chaos. Every standing wall was chipped with shrapnel.

Would-be Assassin of J. P. Morgan Killed Himself in His Cell

British Army and Navy at the Dardanelles Gradually Curling Up the Turkish Defences--Germans Have Orders to Take Calais at All Costs.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BOLOGNE, France, July 7.—A German submarine was sunk by an armed French trawler.

PETROGRAD, July 7.—The German-Austrian army lost two thousand men in a recent battle near Krasnik. The whole advance halted.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Frank Holt, alias Muenter, the German who shot Morgan, killed himself by diving from the ceiling to the floor of his cell.

ROME, July 7.—The Italian army is still advancing on the Carso Tableland.

ATHENS, July 7.—The British army and navy at the Dardanelles is gradually curling up the Turkish defences. A French destroyer has sunk a number of Turkish vessels.

PARIS, July 7.—French observers say that the Germans have orders to take Calais at all costs so that England can be reached.

BERLIN, July 7.—Count Von Reventlow in an article to-day called on Germany to keep up its submarine campaign in spite of the United States or anybody else.

LONDON, July 7.—Lord Chancellor Loreburn declared in the House of Lords yesterday that Europe headed for bankruptcy, unless wisdom soon enters the councils of leaders.

PARIS, July 7.—Reports from the front to-night indicate further advance of British troops around Pelliken. Losses were very heavy.

LONDON, July 6.—General French reported to-night that the British captured two hundred yards of German trenches north of Ypres this morning, and a number of prisoners and machine guns.

Reports state: "Especially in the neighbourhood of Ypres the enemy is employing numerous gas shells. The enemy exploded eight mines without effect. We blew up fifty yards of their front line north of Neuve Chappelle Sunday and drove out the survivors with a bayonet charge."

The Only Canadian Who Has Been To Berlin Since War Has Started

MONTREAL, July 6 — A London cable to The Gazette says: Capt. W. M. Hart, of the C.A.M.C., Winnipeg, boasts that he is the only Canadian who has been to Berlin and back since the war started, but he admits that his impressions of the Kaiser's Capital were only fleeting, though sufficient to make him detest the Teutons.

Together with a territorial medical officer, he was one of a party of British exchange prisoners who recently reached England. During the Ypres attack at the end of April, Captain Hart was attached to the 5th Battalion, Western Cavalry, and had care of he wounded. With the commanding officer he went to procure ambulances, which they were successful in obtaining, but a blocked road rendered passage impossible. Capt. Hart went forward alone to rejoin the wounded, but was taken prisoner on an open plain by a group of Germans.

He was first sent to an internment camp at Mainz, and afterwards to Danholm, a small island in the Baltic. The conditions at Mainz were wretched, the bread being much inferior to the war bread used by the population, while the meat supplied seemed to be horseflesh. Capt. Hart and his companions chiefly subsisted on food mailed by friends. A sample of the loaf served out was brought back by Capt. Hart, and is now displayed in the window of the Canadian Immigration Department on Trafalgar Square.

Officers Badly Cowded.

The captued officers were crowded 19 to a room at Mainz, although the German officers were given separate rooms. At Danholm the conditions were rather better, the commandant there being more humane. The journey to the Baltic was made via Berlin, of which the prisoners saw little, but they received insulting greetings. When first examined after being captured, special interest was shown in the fact that Capt. Hart was a Canadian, and hrough an interpreter he was asked. "What did the English tell you to persuade you to fight?"

From Capt. Hart's observations of the Germans, he is convinced that whatever humanity they possess is entirely superficial.

Annual Meeting of Sunday School Association

The Dummer S. S. Association held its annual meeting in the Methodist church, Warsaw, on Friday, June 25th afternoon and evening.

Afternoon lesson, President E. Hamblin in chair. After singing, prayer, led by Rev. Hugh Brown, and scripture reading by the president. The secretary's report was read. The S. schools in the township are, on the whole, making progress. Nearly all the S. schools in township at least had their report in. Some of the heads of departments showed good work, Unfortunately, partly because they did not understand just what they should do, some showed none. However, as a result of the convention we are certain a great advance will be made in all departments this year.

It is a pity every one could not have heard Rev. Mr. Rollins of Young's Point give his interesting, practical and inspiring address on 'Teacher Training.'

M. Denike was unable to be present.

A conference led by Rev. C. W. DeMill of Havelock, should do much good. Some questions were, "Why no home department?" "What is relation of organised class to the school?" "What are the characteristics of a teacher?" which raised the question of personal magnetism.

President named the nominating committee, choosing one from each S. S. represented.

At the evening session, president was in the chair. After opening exercises, Rev. M. Triven of Norwood, gave an interesting address on "Evangelism in the S. S." Rev. Mr. DeMill gave a splendid talk, taking for his subject, "Follow me and I will make ye fishes of men." and in connection with this, "It is not the will of my Father which is in heaven that one of those little ones should perish."

Collections taken afternoon and evening, during which some members of the choir rendered suitable music. The congregational singing was from the convention song leaflet.

The officers for ensuing year are:

Sec.-Treas.—Mrs. D. Miller, R. R. No. 2, Warsaw.

Vice-Presidents—All ministers who are in charge of congregations where the S. S.'s are, viz:

Rev. M. Hinton, Warsaw; Rev. H. Brown, Warsaw; Rev. W. H. Roberts, Young's Point; Rev. Glover, Westwood; Rev. Waddell, Norwood.

Supt. A. B. Class—Rev. W. H. Roberts.

Supt. Temperance—Mr. Alex. Watts.

Supt. Home Department —(This is added this year)—Miss Clara Payne.

Supt. teacher training— Miss Ella Dewart.

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

I grabbed him by the arm and gripped a pinch of it fierce. "Sober up," I sez, "and pay heed to what I'm tellin' ya. You've sold me out just once, and just once is all your ticket calls for. The healthiest thing for you to do is to find some way of squarin' yourself with me. When you confessed to me before, you didn't tell it half, or I'd 'a' given you a better start in gettin' your religion."

All the time I'd been talkin' to him I had been tryin' to make my thumb and finger nails meet in the muscle of his arm, and when I finished he gave a squawk and jerked back his arm almost as if he would have struck. At that we heard a deep growl, and there stood Hellion, his teeth all cleared for action and his eyes shootin' fire. I was tickled.

"For God's sake, whose dog is that?" sez Baldy goin' pale, for his face was on a level with Hellion's, and not a yard away.

"Steady, Hellion," sez I, puttin' my hand on him gentle. "You mustn't tie into any human varmints unless I set you on. You see, Baldy, fellers has been prowlin' around here some nights, and we're kind o' fixin' to hear about it while it's still news." I thought if Baldy really was a go-between it wouldn't be a bad notion to give him somethin' to tell.

"You win," sez Baldy. "I'm on your side from now on."

He got up soon after and drove off, lookin' sober and thoughtful.

All the boys had a lot to say about Tom Smith's throwin' in with Big Jeff; but Isaac had more than any one. He thought some one ought to go up the very next day and squeeze a lot of information out of Big Jeff, but none of the rest of us thought it would do a mite of good—and especially I didn't think so.

The Begum had about wore herself to a bone that day tryin' to get us hold a Sunday School, and she had Shorty so pestered, he was tryin' to fix it with Monody to give him his meals in the cook-house. She had told him over and over that he had said enough cuss-words on the night he thought the calf had et is silver star to risk the souls of all the men in Texas. It allus riled up Shorty to have anybody but Red pry into his private affairs, and he looked upon his own soul as bein' about the most private affair he had, but you couldn't throw the Begum off a trail even if it led through a desert o' pepper.

When she saw me come into the mess-hall with Hellion, she bounced up and down and acted verbally for some minutes. She had a splendid voice! "Are you goin' to let that dog run loose?" sez she, as soon as she had wore herself down to normal.

"He's too tight built to run loose," sez I. "He's the purtiest runnin' dog I ever saw."

"I mean, are you goin' to let him go unchained without a muzzle on?"

She didn't understand our way of talkin' any better than we did hers, but she had the best of us on nerve. "Why, we want him to watch the place nights, ma'am," sez I, "and he wouldn't be any use chained up; but if you've got a muzzle that'll fit him, why, I'd be willin' to put it on."

"Of course I have no muzzle," sez she, and Shorty choked. He didn't get more 'n one comfortable meal in ten all the time she was there.

"Would he attack any stranger who came here after night?" sez she after a bit.

"It's hard to tell, ma'am," sez I; "but I'm willin' to bet on it."

"Well, I think it's wicked," sez she, "wicked!"

We all thought it was mighty funny that she should get so worked up about shootin' around the house after dark, and then think it wicked to keep a prowlin' dog to 'tend to any prowlin' men who were likely to be a bother.

CHAPTER XXVII.
REBELLION.

Whenever Red couldn't think of any other devilment to perform, he used to ask Shorty questions in such a close and friendly tone that Shorty 'd try to answer mebbe a dozen of 'em before he'd come to and throw somethin' at Red. Once Red asked him what his idy of justice was, and Shorty he pondered in silent anguish for a spell and then sez: "Gettin' acquitted o' shootin' a Greaser, that's my idy o' justice."

About all the knowledge Shorty had had been thrust upon him with bumps and jars, and it's a good bet that this answer had come from his heart and from his own personal experience; but actual justice is a mighty cold star to trail by. We had been used all our lives to tyin' into a herd, cuttin' out what we wanted, puttin' a brand or a saddle on it, and thinkin' nothin' at all of the critter's feelin's, and yet when the Begum sailed into us in just the same way, we lost all control of our smilin' muscles and mourned prodigious.

The' actually didn't seem to be one excuse for any strange, female to swoop down on us and wrangle us around the way the Begum did, and she got steadily worse. She wasn't satisfied with our morals, manners, clothing, housekeeping, scenery, nor even with the poor dumb brutes that had to associate with us, and on the very Sunday night that Hellion joined in with us, she began to give an hour every evenin' to what she called our uplift; and this was blame embarrassin' to a foreman who was satisfied with his outfit.

Back from where she came from, she had been a herd-header for true and she told us her history with her face shinin' and beamful. She was the president of one society, chairman of another, and general manager of a third, besides conductin' a church and hospital. She had copies o' speeches she had unloaded on all these combinations and at every other place where she could fool a posse o' folks into sittin' helpless before her; and she brought out these speeches to the bunk-shack and read 'em to us nights until we felt responsible for every evil in the world from crowded tenement houses to the preacher's back wages. She sure could rawhide a feller with bitter words, and we all felt like a small boy on the front bench at a revival meetin'—scared to stay, not darin' to leave, and plumb afraid to talk back.

Her mouth was so unusual wide that when she'd get to hurrahin' up proper, her face would look like an empty coin-purse, but she had a grand voice. When she'd lean out over us with her hand clutched into the air as though strainin' her last stretch to reach a bunch o' grapes, and demand of us what we had done to relieve the sufferin's of the pore Hindu women who had to throw their girl-babies to the crocodiles, and who had to be burnt upon the funeral piles with their husbands whenever it suited the husbands to die, why, we were all ready to go over to that country and manufacture widders at such a rate the' wouldn't be wood enough in the land to even get the husbands done to a turn, let alone throwin' any extras on to the funeral piles; but up to that time we wouldn't have felt called upon to worry about the Hindus one way or the other even if we had known who they were or where their range was.

One day we were all noonin' down in the triangle and the boys all turned loose and expressed themselves; even Mex spoke up and sez: "It is better that a millstone was tied about thy neck and that thou was throwed into a den of hungry lions, than to dwell upon the housetop with an angry woman."

"Look here, Happy," sez Red to me, "I've been takin' notice o' you for some time and I know 't you set yourself up to be a heap shrewder 'n the common run, but I can't figger out just where it comes in. If you really are a genuwine herd-header, why the smoke don't you devise up a plan to make this lady-grizzly a little tamer?"

"'Cause," sez I, "I ain't got an outfit with nerve enough to carry it through."

"Aw, slush!" sez Red. "You put out the plan and I'll see its carried through. Will you stand by me, fellers?"

They milled around for a few minutes, but finally agreed, and then I spoke to 'em and sez: "Fellers, she lords it over us—the' ain't no other reason. Now, if we only had as much nerve as she has we could put it all over her, for we're on our own range while she's a stranger in a strange land. She rips into us and tears off a piece o' hide, and we apologize for bleedin'. The thing to do is to tie right into her first and treat her as offhand as though she was a horned toad."

They all looked scared and finally Red said: "That would work bully I know it would; but we just ain't got the nerve to put that over."

"You got nerve enough yourself," sez Shorty, "if you'd only make a rush at the start."

"Well, try this for a beginnin'," sez I; "all I ask you to do at first is simply to stare at her hair. The's somethin' wrong with it, and I'll give six-bits to the first feller who finds out what it is. Don't pay any more heed to courtesy or politeness, nor any other such drawback; and never let her raise her eyes without findin' some o' yours fast on her hair."

They picked up heart right on the jump, and that night at supper, food rained on the floor promiscuous, for none o' that gang had time to watch what direction his knife took; but the Begum was so hardened to bein' on platforms that it didn't decompose her for a mite. Next morning at breakfast, however, she began to take notice, and she'd raise her hand unconscious and pat her hair into place every time she caught anybody gapin' at it; and that night at supper, she was the worst fussed one at the table.

Finally she picked out Shorty as bein' about the most insultin' in his glances, drilled a frown into him, and flared out: "What is the matter with my hair?"

If she had shot at him, he'd have known mighty well what to do, but this knocked the breath plumb out of him. He rose weakly to his feet, turned pale, bugged his eyes out, wiped his lips with the back of his hand, and looked at her beseechful. It was a solemn moment, it was, by gum! "Why don't you answer me?" she shouted.

"I—I—I ain't got the nerve," gasped Shorty. He grabbed at his hat, knocked it on the floor, dived for it with both hands, and then bolted out the door without bein' able to pick it up.

"Is the man crazy?" sez she, passin' the buck to Mex.

"No'm, no ma'am," sez he, "he ain't crazy. He's just—, well, he's just unusual soft-hearted."

"What do you mean?" sez she, glarin'.

"Well," sez Mex, and then he paused and looked at her hair, and then reached up mechanical and scratched the back of his own, screwin' up his face while he did so. His expression was so puzzled it was painful, but it took him some time to see a way out of it. Finally he sez: "You see, ma'am, the Bible sez that a woman's hair is her crownin' glory, and so it's naturally a scary thing to trieffi with. That's all, that's all, ma'am."

(To be continued.)

TWO NERVOUS WOMEN

Made Well By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I had a severe case of nervous prostration, with palpitation of the heart, constipation, headache, dizziness, noise in my ears, timid, nervous, restless feelings and sleeplessness.

"I read in the paper where a young woman had been cured of the same troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I threw away the medicines the doctor left me and began taking the Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. Your medicine has proved itself able to do all you say it will and I have recommended it in every household I have visited."—Mrs. MARY JOHNSTON, 2310 Siegel Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Sad Case.

Ephrata, Pa.—"About a year ago I was down with nervous prostration. I was pale and weak and would have hysteric spells, sick headaches and a bad pain under my shoulder-blade. I was under the care of different doctors but did not improve. I was so weak I could hardly stand long enough to do my dishes.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and happy and I have begun to gain in weight and my face looks healthy now."—Mrs. J. W. HORNBERGER, R. No. 3, Ephrata, Pa.

An Easy Way To Increase Weight

Good Advice for Thin Folks

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomachs or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable, new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convrt food into rich, fat-laden blood. This master-stroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through its re-generative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear, and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Leading druggists of Peterboro and vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

CAUTION—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

Oxygen and Breathing.

That there is less oxygen in the rarefied air of celebrated mountain health resorts than in any room with closed windows, no matter how crowded with persons, was an unchallenged statement made in the Times by the English expert on ventilation. Dr. Leonard Hill. The British Royal society has just published a prayer supplementary to the report on the Anglo-American Pike's Peak expedition by Miss M. F. Fitzgerald, which concludes with the statement that "arterial blood contains considerably more oxygen at high altitudes than at sea level." The lungs are better ventilated, for one thing, but it is certain, also, that the old theory that the lungs should be plentifully supplied with chemically pure air must be discarded. The little cell-like alveoli at the ends of the lung branches have a special power of extracting oxygen, even while the supply of oxygen in the air is deficient. This secretory power is increased at high altitudes, and the increase does not disappear until a considerable time after descent to sea level.

And How the Deficiency Was Made Good.

By EUGENE A. VOGT

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Don't fool yourself! Not every man who is broke is unworthy of his manhood.

It's just the other way with the chap worth while, and Jack Ruford was almost as good, decent and clean a fellow as his sweetheart thought he was.

Mabel Ainsworth—that's the girl with the unerring judgment—had a father when Jack failed in business.

Mr. Ainsworth instituted proceedings with his daughter, Mabel, who loved Jack, broke or whole, and for reasons known only to the feminine mind did not hesitate to say so. Mr. Ainsworth tried to reason.

He was a lawyer in good practice, and his logic was excellent. Mabel remarked that she loved Jack. Her father began to intimate something heavy about filial love, duty, obedience, and so forth.

Mabel repeated that she loved Jack. The father sought Jack and talked to the young man in a manner for which Jack would have knocked the talk out of him had he not been Mabel's father.

"Look at this!" commanded Ruford and thrust an open letter under the proboscis of his reluctant father-in-law.

"Well, what is it all about?" asked Ainsworth after he had read the typewritten lines.

"It's this," replied Jack, more in pity than in ire. "The Wetmore Drug company of New York offers me the sole agency for Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Iowa"—

"Yes, yes," interrupted Mabel's father, with offensive impatience.

"Yes, yes—sir—when you talk to me, Mr. Ainsworth!" corrected Jack sternly. "Yes, yes!" repeated Ainsworth without affirming anything in particular.

"There you go again!" snapped the potential conqueror of the drug trade of four progressive states. "How many times shall I have to tell you that it's 'yes, sir,' to me from you? Please do not forget that again, my dear Mr. Ainsworth. By the way, how much money will it take to buy your daughter from you, with your aboriginal ideas of paternal ownership?"

"Not an infernal red cent!" roared Ainsworth. "Nor a yellow million nor a stack of greenbacks as high as this postoffice—from you, sir! I'll sir you! Even if you had the ability to make any appreciable part of it, you couldn't have my daughter now for all the money in the world, sir!"

"Are you through?" asked Ruford calmly. The lawyer nodded violently. "All right, then," proceeded the young man. "I'm really surprised at you, Mr. Ainsworth. And with your legal attainments too. Mabel is of age. You know that. I know it and she knows it. Listen to me! I can walk down this Main street three blocks, turn into Locust and walk four and a half more, stop at 416, enter, wait four minutes for a certain young lady to put on her hat and coat, walk out, up Locust one and a half blocks, ring a bell, enter house, emerge married. And you know it!"

"I know it!" gasped the hapless father.

"A man who can do that, Mr. Ainsworth," proceeded Jack unfeelingly, "must be handled with care. Let us, then, try kindness."

"I always thought, Jack," said the lawyer in his best appealing voice, "that at heart you were a very decent young fellow."

"I am," agreed Jack modestly. "My purpose being to get down to a calm discussion of the differences between us, I shall not refer to your wonderful restraint of expression of your good opinion of me."

Both men laughed at this sally.

"Now, Mr. Ainsworth," proceeded the young man pleasantly, "you are mostly right about me and would be all right if you weren't so infernally vigorous in expressing yourself. I have no right to marry Mabel in my present circumstances, until I have shown—mostly for my own satisfaction—that I can make money enough to support her. Now, I shall be gone a year. When I come back, if I can show you $5,000 will that soften your heart?"

"Jack," replied Mabel's father with deep feeling, "if you ever show me $5,000 of your own money, honestly earned, and if I don't drop dead at sight of it I'll consent."

"Mind you," said Jack as they shook hands on it, "I am doing this thing out of pure magnanimity of soul. You understand that, don't you?"

"Fully," acknowledged Mr. Ainsworth.

It was on the three hundred and fiftieth night of his quest that Jack arrived at his hotel in St. Louis, bubbling over with enthusiasm. He joked with the clerk as he registered with a flourish and staggered the bellboy who escorted him to his room with a fifty cent tip. After the minion had bowed himself out Jack threw himself on a chair and exultantly opened his suit case.

"It's all over, Mabelita!" he cried, addressing that young lady's photograph, which he had pinned on his suit case's inner lid. "We've got it! We've got it! The Wetmore Drug company owes me $5,140.00. Those last seven orders in Decatur give me $147.30 and make us cross the line, darling. Now for a run home to dear old Pillingsby to see you and get you to name the day."

The bellboy entered and obsequiously tendered a telegram on a near silver salver. Jack looked uneasily first at the bearer, then at the message. He tore open the yellow envelope. He stared at the slip of paper he extracted from it, his eyes wide and incredulous.

At last he roused himself, smoothed out the sheet and stared at it as though he hoped the very fixity of his gaze would change its tenor.

"No," he mumbled hopelessly. "It's no use—it's there, it's there! 'Wetmore Drug company asking compromise with creditors. Offer 20 cents on dollar.' He repeated it stupidly and with inane comments.

His head sank down on the table, and he was lost in utter dejection.

* * * * * * *

Jack Ruford arrived in New York on the second night after the receipt of the crushing telegram. He entered a modest hotel on a side street near Broadway and scowled at the attentive bellboy who relieved him of his suit case.

There was nothing for him to do but to think—until the morrow, when, Jack hoped, the offices of the Wetmore Drug company would be open. He ordered the bellboy to escort him and his baggage to the room assigned to him.

"What kind of a joint is this, anyway?" snarled the distracted young man as the bellboy set the wrong suit case on the table of the room. "This isn't my suit case."

"Oh, beg pardon, sir!" apologized the bewildered boy. "Isn't it?"

"No, it isn't, isn't it," mocked Jack angrily. "Take the thing away and fetch mine. Marked J. R."

The bellboy hastened away with the offending portmanteau, but soon returned, saying: "Sorry, mister. I brung it to the wrong room. It looked so much like yours."

"Well, then, why the dickens don't you get it?'

"That's the trouble," stammered the bellboy. "The lady says for you to come and get it yourself. She won't give it to me, sir."

"Won't, hey? She won't, won't she?" demanded Jack furiously. "Take me to it, kid. I'll set her straight in two seconds—just exactly two seconds."

The dazed boy led the irate guest down one corridor and up another and stopped before a door marked 216. Jack knocked authoritatively, and a feminine voice called "Come in." The young man flung open the door.

"Madam," he began, icily stern. "Mad—I—I"—

And then this prince of glib talkers suddenly lost the power of articulation, for Mabel Ainsworth slowly turned to face him, confirming the first wild guess, fear and hope which the sight of her figure had inspired.

"I think it very careless of you, Jack," began Mabel reproachfully, "to keep your suit case unlocked."

"I—I"—

"Oh, it's all right this time," she reassured him. "Thinking it was mine, and as I never lock mine either, I opened it and saw—this."

She waved her hand toward her photograph resting in its conspicuous place against the inner lid of the suit case.

"I suppose," he said gloomily, "that all is over, Mabel. I shall have to give you up, darling. Billy Wetmore"—

"What!" she cried indignantly. "Give me up on account of $6.80?"

"Six dollars and eighty cents! I don't understand!" gasped Jack.

"Of course you don't. But that is all we are short on our five thousand."

"I—I"— stammered her lover. Then with infinite gentleness: "It's 20 per cent, dear, one-fifth he offers. Understand? One-fifth of our five thousand—just one thousand, dear, just one"—

"Oh, no, it isn't," she interposed impatiently. "You see, papa"—

"What has he been doing now?" asked Jack doubtfully.

"He saved the situation for you and himself," she assured him. "You see, I told papa very flatly that at the end of the year I would marry you anyway, money or no money"—

"Mabel, darling, I can't do it!"

"Because you do not love me any more, Jack?" she asked cruelly.

"You know better than that, Mabel," he replied reproachfully.

"Forgive me, dearest," she said contritely. "I do know it." She tenderly placed one of her pink fingers on her conspicuous photograph. "As I was saying—and, please, let us talk business, dear—papa, being assured that I would marry you anyway, proceeded, lawyer-like, to save his face. When he learned that you—poor, overtrustful boy—were letting your monthly earnings stand with Mr. Wetmore he wrote that gentleman—whom, in the first place, he had induced to offer you this place—all about why you were working so hard and induced him to send your monthly earnings to the Pillingsby National bank, where the money is now deposited in your name. But there is only $4,993.20, and papa's strong point as a lawyer always has been technicalities. So I came to New York—in some way—to get that $6.80. And, oh, Jack—my own dear, splendid, faithful Jack—we have to get it honestly or at least legally."

One hour later (western time) Mr. William Ainsworth sat in the morris chair in his library, chuckling over the following telegram:

Dear Papa—Jack is here at hotel. He just sold me his supply of drug samples at sacrifice. Six dollars and eighty cents! Please deposit that amount to his credit in Pillingsby National bank and charge my allowance account. We are leaving for home on midnight train.

Tell Mary Smith she will be bridesmaid. Jack sends his love. He is looking well. Lovingly, MABEL.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Homsburger, 10 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed 20 years."

AND THIS IS CULTURE!

Vaddili Vodianoy, a victim of German savagery, was visited in Mitau Hospital in Russia, by a well known Lett author, who asked him to describe his experiences. As the man was unable to speak with his mutilated tongue, paper and a pen were given him, and he wrote the following: "This torture was practised on me by the Germans in the forest near Shavli. I was scouting. Suddenly I met three Germans. One of them was a senior non-commissioned officer, and the other two were common soldiers. The non-commissioned officer asked me in Russian where our chief leaders were and how large our forces were. I answered with absolute silence. He shouted at me: 'We will soon make you speak, you Russian pig.'

"Then he drew a dagger, and cut off first, my right and then left ear. I stood and was silent. The question was repeated, with the same result. Then in a fury of hatred, he seized me by the throat, and cut off my tongue. While he was doing this I lost consciousness, and I did not come to my senses till the morning, when I found myself lying in a pool of blood."

"ROGER" THE FATAL GAS

Alkali Workers Long Familiar With Poison Clouds Used by Germans

The deadly chlorine gas that is being used by the Germans is utilized for more peaceful ends by the alkali workers at Widnes and St. Helens, England.

For chlorine is the gas which, pumped on to slaked lime, transforms this into bleaching powder. The workmen nicknamed it "Roger"; why, nobody seems to know. But the term is universally used, and always quite readily understood, for at the cry "Roger's coming! Clear lads!" so frequently heard in the alkali works, there follows immediately a wild rush of men away from the danger zone.

But 'Roger," in the shape of a green, perceptible, and palpable poison, fog-borne along on the wind, follows hard on their heels; and woe betide the poor wretch who stumbles and is overtaken by it. Such a one is said to be "gassed," and the alkali workers affirm that no one who has once undergone the experience is ever again quite the same man. There is always something wrong with his breathing.

This, however, only applies to men slightly gassed. What the workers call a "feed" of chlorine kills a man outright inside of an hour or so. Of course, the workers take every possible precaution, such as, for instance, working with goggles on their eyes, and bulky muzzles over their mouths made of twenty thicknesses of flannel, but despite everything accidents frequently happen.

Nevertheless, constant familiarity with this particular danger breeds a certain amount of contempt for it, as for most others, and the regular alkali workers often speak slightingly, and even jestingly, of "Roger." They even make use of him for their own ends upon occasion. For instance, the factory yards are sometimes infested by stray, prowling cats, who steal the men's dinners. A favorite dodge is to decoy pussy to where the green fog is, when, of course, that cat becomes a dead cat without more ado.

Another incident that shows the deadly power of chlorine occurred in Widnes some time back. A hawker from a distance came with a donkey cart, and drew up in a yard attached to some chemical works where bleaching powder was being made. Suddenly there rose the familiar cry of "Roger is coming!" followed by the usual rush [illegible] on the part of the workers. Only the hawker, ignorant of the terrific danger, stood gazing open-mouthed at the flying figures, and wondering what all the commotion was about. And he would have been caught by the green gas, without doubt, had not a burly workman paused for a moment to pick him up in his arms and bear him, kicking and struggling, to safety. He did not even get a taste of the chlorine, but when he returned a few minutes later he found his donkey stone-dead—poisoned by "Roger."

The gasoline tank of a new self-heating flat-iron is said to be danger proof and can also be used to heat a small portable stove.

Maple Syrup arrives at Salisbury Plains

The Old Way

Putting in the Spout

The making of maple sugar and syrup has become but a memory in the recollection of residents in many of the older parts of Canada. The industry is still, however, an important one over large areas in Quebec and to a less extent in Ontario and the provinces down by the sea. Sugar making from the maple, which is confined entirely to this continent, had a very early beginning. Before the advent of the white man the Indian had learned to extract and concentrate the sap of the maple tree. On the approach of spring the trees were gashed, with the tomahawk, in a slanting direction and beneath the opening made was inserted a wooden chip or spout to direct the fluid drop by drop into the receptacle resting on the ground. The sap was caught in a birch bark dish and boiled in earthen kettles. The small quantity of dark, thick syrup thus made was the only sugar available to the Indians and is stated by early writers to have been highly prized. The early settlers from the Old Land learned from the Indians the art of sugar making and indeed followed for many years their crude methods of manufacture. Even yet primitive equipment and methods are stated to be used in back sections of the country that turn out their annual crop of dark, inferior syrup and sugar.

For perhaps a century the white man followed very closely the primitive methods of the Indian save the substitution of iron or copper kettles for vessels of clay or bark. In the early days before the timber acquired much value the axe continued to be used for tapping the trees, the sap was caught in wooden troughs and conveyed in buckets on the shoulders with a sap yoke to a central point to be boiled. No sugar bush was fully equipped without snowshoes which were frequently found necessary in gathering the sap. The boiling was done in large iron kettles suspended from a pole in the open woods in a sheltered location with no protection from the sun, rain or snow or the ashes, falling leaves, moss and bits of bark that were driven about by the wind.

An early improvement was the substitution of the auger for the axe in tapping, coopered buckets took the place of the birch bark "case" or hewn sap trough, while the kettle gave way to the modern evaporating tank made famous by the name of Grimm. During the past few weeks along the lines of the Canadian Pacific in Quebec and Ontario farmers have been busy with the tapping of the maple trees and year by year the industry is growing in importance, but at the moment it is confined to Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. It is estimated that the industry represents an annual valuation of nearly two million dollars and is carried on by 55,000 growers, but the increasing value of maple wood has led to the removal of many fine sugar orchards. The illustrations depict the old style of evaporation as well as the modern. With all the advances that have taken place in manipulation, sugar making has not lost its romantic side. "Sugaring off" at sugar camps in the woods is still looked forward to by young and old, who regard the event as a social feature affording rare enjoyment. In well-organized camps the gathering of the sap with buckets has been superseded by the horse, while where very large areas are covered sap is conveyed to the sugar house by metal pipes.

Considerable interest is centred around the modern evaporator and it is through the kindness of the Grimm Manufacturing Company of Montreal that we are able to reproduce these pictures demonstrating the evaporator in operation. The evaporator is an advance on the old kettle and the sheet iron pan and is designed for rapid evaporation and economy of fuel. While there are several makes, all are on the same principle. The pans have corrugated bottoms and partitioned off to give a zig zag course to the sap; also equipped with a float feed which allows fresh sap to flow in as rapidly as the water evaporates. The sap enters at one corner, and by a zig zag course flows from 30 to 100 feet before reaching the outlet at the other end. The sap thickens as it flows, and has to remain in the last compartment only a very brief time before it has reached the consistency of syrup.

NOTES FOR THE GARDENER

When Pea Vines Should be Torn Up—Cut Roses With Stems Long—Care of Flowers and Vegetables.

After the first few pickings of peas it is just as well to remove the vines as there is little use waiting for the last few to ripen. The space cleared may be re-planted in peas, beans, cabbage, or celery. Cabbage plants should be watched carefully for slugs. Small butterflies lay their eggs on the heart of the cabbage plants. These soon hatch the slugs which feed on the young cabbage head. Their presence is easily detected and their destruction sure if a little "slug shot" is dusted in to the centre of each plant. Even when the plants are apparently seriously damaged it is quite possible to save them in this way, as a new growth starts quickly after the enemies have been destroyed.

When Tomatoes Flower.

The object of most home gardeners is to secure early tomatoes. It is next to impossible to get both early and late fruit from the same vine. To get early tomatoes of good size and quality, it is necessary that the vines should not be hampered with too much fruit. If the vines have been properly staked up and all but a few branches removed, it is an easy matter to control the growth so that the growing strength will be thrown into the production of a few big tomatoes that will ripen early. By allowing but two panicles of bloom to set on each stalk the desired result will be obtained. When the small fruits are set on both these panicles the top of the stalk should be pinched off to stop further growth of the vine. After this has been done, "suckers" will try to force out at the leaves. These should be removed. As the fruit develops it may be necessary to thin out the clusters. The fewer left the better they will be. Tomatoes require lot of moisture during the growing period, and while they are sun-loving plants, fruit may be injured if exposed to the full glare of the sun. When tying up, it is wise to so fasten that the clusters of fruit will hang down naturally and be somewhat shaded.

Watering the Flower Beds.

The appearance of flower beds or borders is often greatly marred by mud splashes on the bloom. This is especially so where light coloured or white bloom is present. Soiling of the bloom can be prevented if a long nosed water can is used and the water applied at the roots. When watering do not stand in the one place until the water flows in rivulets over the bed. Move along the bed backward and forward, giving a little as you go and a little more when this has soaked in. When watering is necessary it is best that the ground receive a thorough soaking. Potted plants and hanging baskets should be watered until the water runs from the drainage hole in the bottom of the pot.

Cutting Roses.

When cutting rose bloom cut with long stems; in fact the stem that carries the bloom should be taken off where it joins the main stalk. A second bloom in the fall may be secured from hardy roses if they are well cultivated and fertilized this month. Roses require a lot of water, but drainage must be good.

Pinch back, by removing the centre of the top with the thumb and finger) such plants as chrysanthemums, dahlias, asters, and cosmos. This will prevent too high a growth and induce a branching out.

Suckers will form on fruit trees. These may be killed in their infancy by a mere rubbing off of the buds with the hand. If they have reached proportions that won't permit of this, cut off close to the branch with a sharp knife. The use of a saw will be necessary if these are allowed to go.

Sweet peas, marigolds, phlox, and other flowering annuals should have their flowers picked before they form seeds or they will soon stop blooming altogether.

When squash or melon vines have formed sufficient blossoms pinch off the ends of the laterals. This will throw the strength into the fruit.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Such a dress as this is welcome for all the myriad summer fabrics which we see displayed in the shops, and which, perhaps, we have bought without any very definite idea how we would make them up.

Front and back of the blouse are plain, with a Quaker collar as a finish to the neck and cuffs of a corresponding shape to trim the sleeves. These may be long or short.

The skirt has three gores and is fitted at the upper portion. It closes in the centre of the front and is trimmed above the hem by a bias fold of the material or by something in contrast with it.

This is one of the models which we see in lawn, gingham, beach cloth and other wash fabrics, and also in taffetas, voile and the like. It is simple enough for a morning dress, and yet, owing to its style, it will answer just as well for afternoon if made of suitable material.

The dress pattern, No. 7,263, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 4¼ yards of 36-inch material.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

WOMAN SUFFERAGE

It's War Time Aspect

LONDON, July 7. — The women of England are doing their duty. They are taking care of the wounded, or if they cannot assist in work of that kind they are adding their savings to promote the good work. They are knitting and sewing for the soldiers at the front. The suffragists have given so little trouble to the government that it will undoubtedly soften the hearts of those in Parliament, since the "militants" have turned all their energies to aid the fighting men of England, and so suffrage may soon come after this terrible war is over.

Thousands of women in Canada have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of womanly ills by Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription. This medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells more widely to-day then any other womanly tonic. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, pain at times, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce.

Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of. In ninety-nine per cent. of these cases it is the womanly organism which requires attention; the weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes, are only symptoms. Go to the sources of the trouble and the other symptoms disappear.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are manufactured in Canada at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ont.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequalled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, easiest to take. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. 25 cents vial, by druggists.—Adv.

THE BAD OLD DAYS OF THE BRITISH NAVY

Jack-Tar of Seventy Years Ago Brutally Treated and Poorly Fed—Law-breakers Sentenced to Wardship

Less than 70 years ago the British navy was precariously maintained at strength by recourse to expedients so extraordinary that it spoke volumes for the thoroughness of discipline and the sound grasp of affairs possessed by petty officers that they remained tight in the proud position of top sea dog. Smugglers and poachers, whatever their individual short-comings, are not a class of cowards, and probably there was nothing very reprehensible in giving those men when convicted the choice of doing six months in prison or 36 months in the navy. Nowadays, however Jack Tar, though anything but thin-skinned, would rightly feel that a blow had been aimed at the dignity of his calling were he asked to fraternize with men who had chosen the navy only because it promised to be a degree more tolerable than prison.

Took Crippled Recruits

Sixty years ago, when the Crimean campaign was commencing, an almost insuperable difficulty was encountered in getting men to man the fleet. Recruits the naval authorities would not look sideways at nowadays were sent down to newly-commissioned ships with the blessing of the recruiting official and the best hopes of some accommodating doctor. Many of these would-be tars, however, were promptly rejected by the ship doctors, who in turn, were over-ruled by the worried admiral responsible for getting complements quickly completed. It is actually on record that about this time a man with a wooden leg was thrice passed and thrice rejected, on each occasion securing a place on a ship's strength, only to be quickly shunted when his infirmity was officially known. As neither side would apparently own itself beaten, an excellent way to impasse was found by giving the afflicted party a rating as cook.

It is less than half a century ago that Jack Tar was shod in a way which for sheer impracticability reached the sublime. It was not so much a boot as a slip-shod slipper, with a low heel stuck on so slovenly that it tumbled off the first wet day. No uncommon thing was it for the sailor when on marching duty to toss the miserable things over the first convenient hedge and finish up the journey on his bare feet.

Armed to the Teeth!

In those days Jack Tar, when ashore on any other quest but his own individual pleasure, possessed what might be termed a good natured resemblance to a South Sea buccaneer, relieved in measure by a straw hat of picnic dimensions. Encircling his manly person was a belt studded with cartridges, and, in addition, he carried the never-failing cutlass, in close proximity to which was sure to be jauntily stuck at least one pistol, with a butt heavy enough to fell an ox.

It may be—probably is—the case that the messing in the navy to-day could be improved without the sailor getting a whit more than his due, yet within the past two generations the quality of the food has taken a very pronounced turn for the better. In former days, when Jack went on one of his periodical long voyages, day after day the lower deck diet alternated between salt beef and salt pork, and, as both were hard and tough and almost virulently saline, the change at best was only only of the frying pan fire order. A man required a digestion of pre-historic days to thrive on such fare.

Instruments of Torture

As might naturally be expected from the very mixed nature of naval personnel of those days, punishment was a busy institution, and was prone to take severe shapes. Indeed, in many instances it descended to the depths of brutality and degradation. Every big warship had its instruments of torture, the most prominent among which was, no doubt, the cat, only a degree less terrible than the bloodthirsty knout. But the frequency of its use depended not a little upon the humanity of the captain, and, even in the days of Drake and Nelson, there were officers who set their face against its use. Many a fine fellow has been permanently incapacitated by a brutal dose of the cat, yet the torture was but child's play to that of keel hauling, which cut short the life of the victim who hadn't the constitution of an ox. Fortunately, this particular punishment, if it ever was officially recognized, dates back to a period when sea life at best was very little to be preferred to death. A most common punishment which held good in the navy till the year 1836, when it was abolished, was mast-heading a defaulter.

New Fighting Methods

But perhaps the greatest change of all concerns the method of fighting. As recently as half a century ago a pistol was a particularly useful weapon to the sailor in a sea battle. Ships then drew near enough each other for the very blast of the broadside to momentarily turn day into night 'tween decks—sometimes, indeed, close enough for some daring bloods with cutlass between teeth and pistol in hand to dart out of the favoring smoke pall and clamber up the shrouds of the enemy. To-day sea fights are usually long range affairs in which cutlass and pistol figure not at all, and even guns of small calibre are rapidly being found to be of little use on a warship.

German soldiers carry small tin whistles, to blow for medical aid should they be wounded.

The Czar approved a decree imposing a temporary war tax on all exempted from military service.

A fuel for internal combustion engines made in South Africa by a chemical process from paraffin is said to be superior to gasoline as it leaves no carbon deposit.

SURGERY MIRACLES SAVE MANY LIVES

Some remarkable operations —true miracles of surgery—have been performed during the war to replace missing parts of the bodies of soldiers torn away by shell fragments.

Many hundreds of poor fellows have had nearly the whole of their faces blown away and yet have survived. To restore the missing parts so that the sufferers can face the world successfully after the war is one of the most useful services that surgery can render. This has been done with vary success in several cases.

It is not surprising that the most brilliant operations of this character have been performed by American surgeons. At the outbreak of the war a great number of the cleverest American surgeons hastened to the scene to get the benefit of the wonderful opportunities it would offer. Dr. Alexis Carrel, the surgical wizard of the New York Rockefeller institute; a Frenchman by birth, joined the French army medical force. He is reported to have replaced the missing arm of General Trumbeau-Faber of the French army with the arm of a dead soldier.

Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, now regarded as the most brilliant and original of American surgeons, promptly joined the medical force of the American hospital in Paris. He is considered even more dextrous than Dr. Carrel in removing animal organs and joining the several parts together in novel ways. He is the inventor of a new system of anesthesia, in which the shock that would be carried by the nerves to the brain of an unconscious person undergoing an operation with ordinary ether is entirely cut ont. In this way the danger known as "operative shock" is avoided. Dr. Crile has tried his system with great success on many dangerously wounded soldiers.

One poor fellow came to the American hospital whose face had been nearly blown away and who had been hastily treated at the front without any attempt to restore him to a natural appearance.

"Poor fellow, you did have hard luck," said the American surgeon.

"Monsieur, my wounds are an honour! My countrymen will know that I have suffered for them," the formless face mumbled in a voice that was hardly audible, but the attitude showed offended dignity.

His jaw was two-thirds shot away and the remnant had been pieced together on the battlefield so that it was out of line. His lips had been ripped to pieces and were turned back in frayed fragments. His beard was growing away inside his mouth and tickling the roof of it. He was unable to eat solid food. His few remaining teeth were all out of place, his lower molars attached to strips of gum being part way down his throat. His nose had completely disappeared.

The American surgeon slowly and delicately dissected away the displaced tissues and followed a well thought out plan to restore them to their natural positions, with artificial additions to replace missing parts.

The remnants of the jaw bone were pressed into their natural line and some of the back teeth were restored to their normal position. Teeth in the upper and lower jaws were made to articulate so that they would meet and chew solid food. An American dentist collaborated with the surgeon in the work.

Now came the most novel and delicate part of the operation One of the patient's ribs, which he could easily spare, was removed and shaped so that it could take the place of missing forward two-thirds of the patient's lower jaw. Artificial teeth were fitted in this novel jaw bone.

A handsome celluloid nose of good harmonious colouring, with carefully constructed nostrils, was adjusted over the site of the missing organ. Spectacles were furnished to hold the nose in place and conceal the most conspicuous join at the bridge.

The patient withstood the operation, and in a month he looked like another man. He could eat and speak normally, and he will be able to work at some useful calling when the war is over.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE BURDENS OF AGE.

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, lame, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing eyesight. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They ensure the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

Youthful, Wrinkless Skin Easy to Have

You who desire to regain a youthful appearance will do well to make the acquaintance of two simple, but valuable, prescriptions here given.

To make an effective wrinkle remover, mix an ounce of powdered saxolite and a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in the solution. Immediately every wrinkle is affected. It acts wonderfully on sagging facial muscles, also, the lotion possessing remarkable astringent and tonic properties.

To get rid of an aged, faded, freckled, or discoloured complexion, buy an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, and apply nightly as you would cold cream, erasing this mornings with soap and water. This will slowly absorb the undesirable surface skin, revealing the younger, brighter, healthier skin underneath. There's nothing to equal this treatment as a facial rejuvenator.

TURKISH FLEET FAILED IN AN ATTACK
LINERS IN MID OCEAN MAY BE IN DANGER

TURKISH FLEET SHELLED THE ALLIES BUT HAD TO RETIRE

Steamed Into the Straits and Bombarded the British and French Forces But the Return Fire of the Anglo-French Fleet Forced Them to Retire Into the Sea of Marmora---Allied Aviators Shelled Aerodrome.

FIERCE FIGHTING AT DARDANELLES

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, July 7.—For the first time since the Dardanelles operations began the Turkish fleet has participated in a violent assault on the allied land forces in an attempt to hurl the expeditionary troops into the sea. In an official statement from the War Office this afternoon it was reported that the Turks opened a general attack against the Allies on Monday afternoon. The Turkish battleships steamed into the Strait and, protected by the guns of the Narrows forts, shelled the allied lines for several hours. The Anglo-French battle fleet meanwhile responded to the fire from the Turkish fleet and Asiatic forts, sending projectiles curving over the peninsula towards the Turkish squadron in the Narrows. The first evidently was effective. French aviators brought word that the Turkish warships had retired in the direction of the Sea of Marmora. In their pursuit of the Turkish airmen, fifteen allied aviators bombarded an enemy aerodrome.

ATTACKS REPULSED.

PARIS, July 7.—(Official).—A determined attack by the Germans upon the French position east of Ailly woods carried the enemy into the first line of trenches, the War Office admits this afternoon.

By subsequent counter attacks the enemy was driven out with heavy losses. The heavy bombardment continued along the line north of Arras throughout the night. The shell fire was so terrific that the infantry on both sides were held to the trenches except at Souchez Railway Station, where the Germans made a feeble attack, but were driven off. Similar attacks against the French position on the Meuse heights were repulsed.

THE FRENCH CASUALTIES.

LONDON, July 7.—The French casualties totalled fourteen hundred thousand since the beginning of the war until June 1, 1915, according to an appeal issued to-day by the French Relief Society. Of this number four hundred thousand are reported killed, seven hundred thousand wounded, and three hundred thousand taken prisoners.

A ZEPPELIN SMASHED.

AMSTERDAM, July 7.—A Zeppelin headed for England became unmanageable and fell several hundred feet, smashing on a farmhouse near Asseneve, according to Ghent advices to-day. The German authorities suppressed details as to the casualties and damage.

IMPORTS INCREASED.

LONDON, July 7.—For the month of June, 1915, the British imports increased more than 89,000,000 over the same month in 1914. A large part of the increase came from purchases in the United States. The exports for the same month showed a corresponding decrease of over 33 millions.

THE OTTAWA INQUIRY.

OTTAWA, July 7.—The inquiry into the purchase of 100,000 "housewives" for the Canadian soldiers at 53 cents each from the Two Macs Company of Ottawa was concluded this morning before Sir Chas. Davidson. Stewart McCleneghan, the president of the company, the principal witness, produced invoices to show that his raw materials had cost $35,808 and wages cost $7,000. The total cost of "housewives" was $42,808. The company received from the Department $53,000, leaving a profit of over $10,000 on the deal. McCleneghan calculated his gross profit at about twenty-five per cent.

CATHEDRAL DESTROYED.

BERLIN, via wireless, July 7.—Arras cathedral was set afire and practically destroyed during the German bombardment of the city last night, the War Office reported to-day. The Germans found it necessary to shell the city, it was explained, because large bodies of French troops concentrated there during the fighting.

FAVOURABLE FOR ALLIES.

NEW YORK, July 7.—"Everything looks favourable for the Allies," said surgeon-General G. S. Ryerson, of Toronto, head of the Canadian Red Cross, upon his arrival to-day from Europe on the liner Espragne, with his daughter. "Too great praise cannot be paid the French for their great work," he added. Surgeon-General Ryerson had one son killed, another wounded at St. Julien. His wife went down with the Lusitania.

KINGSTON, July 7.—There are now in custody at Fort Henry 245 Germans, 35 Austrians and one Turk. The total registration of all enemy aliens of military age in Canada shews one thousand Germans, four thousand Austrians, and one hundred and thirty Turks.

OTTAWA, July 7.—The Military Department announced to-day that leave of absence for one month may be granted any well-conducted non-commissioned officer or man of the expeditionary forces now in Canada to enable them to take part in the harvesting throughout the country. Special instructions along this line are being sent to the commanders of the training camps.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 7.—The Canadian casualties continue to creep up towards the ten thousand mark. The number of names reported up to ten o'clock this morning is 9,893. The killed total 1,684, wounded 6,434, and missing 1,775.

ANXIETY OVER FATE OF LINERS IN MID-OCEAN

Trunk Load of Dynamite With Clock-work Explosion Supposed to be on Either the Cunard Saxonia or the American Liner Philadelphia

ADRIATIC IN WAR ZONE

Special to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, July 7. — Keenest anxiety prevails in shipping circles to-day regarding the statement of Frank Holt, alias Muenter, J. P. Morgan's German assailant, to the effect that he placed a trunk load of dynamite in the steamer Saxonio of the Cunard line, or the steamer Philadelphia of the American line, with clock-work explosion, timed to explode to-day. Both steamers are now in mid-ocean. The Philadelphia's captain has been communicated with by wireless, and says all trunks on his ship were inspected and found all right. The Saxonia's wireless has not been raised yet. In the meantime there is also much apprehension as to the safety of the Adriatic in the war zone to-day.

EVENING OF CHURCH SOCIALS

ST. JAMES' LAWN SOCIAL.

The lawn social under the auspices of the congregation of St. James church was held last night on the church lawn and proved a fine success. An attendance of over two hundred was recorded and everybody enjoyed themselves. Rev. Mr. Greatrix was present and made a short address. Mr. Wm. McLaren who left for Quebec a few hours later, was also called uopn, and "Billy" replied in his old time happy style. The concert numbers were all well received. And most satisfactory were the refreshments, strawberries and real cream and other dainties. Altogether the occasion was a most delightful one.

CHARLOTTE ST. TENNIS TEA.

The members of the Charlotte street Methodist church C.L.A. held a tennis tea last evening on the tennis lawn. Forty of the young people were present. Refreshments were served by the allies and a very pleasant evening was spent. The Tennis Club have decided to hold a tennis tournament in the near future. Suitable prizes have been obtained and the schedule will be drawn up in a few days.

ST. ANDREW'S TENNIS TEA.

The tea at St. Andrew's yesterday evening was a great success, both in regard to attendance and play. The different teams representing Knox and St. Andrew's churches were very evenly matched and honours were quite equally divided.

The officers of St. Andrew's Club desire to thank all those who helped so materially to make the evening's sport such a success.

A Special Programme

At Friday night's concert the 57th Reigmental Band will render an especially attractive programme, in which a feature will be a new number, "Musical Memories," a selection introducing some fifty well known songs as arranged by Herman Fincke and Mackenzie Rogan, the latter the conductor of the Coldstream Guards. The beautiful selection, "Reminiscences of Gounod" will also be played as well as the splendid overture, "Fra Diavalo." Altogether the programme will be of more than the ordinary high standard.

If all the documents stored in the Patent Office at Washington could be placed end to end they would form a strip that would reach around the earth three times.

DID HOLT HIDE BOMB ON ATLANTIC LINER?

NEW YORK, July 7.—That Frank Holt, alias Muenter, hid a bomb on the steamship now bound from her to England, is feared by the authorities here to-day. Before his attack on J. P. Morgan he sent a letter to the authorities saying a vessel which sailed from New York July 3 would be blown up July 7. Much secrecy was observed concerning the letter, but it was known that the authorities here, and the secret service officials in Washington, were informed concerning it. Whether or not the threat was an empty one the police had no means of knowing. Four steamers sailed from New York Saturday, July the 3rd, for European points. They were the Philadelphia of the American Line, for Liverpool; the Chicago of the French Line, for Bordeaux; the Saxonia of the Cunard Line, for Liverpool; and the Krisaniaforj of the Norwegian-American Line, for Bergen.

LASH IS ORDERED

John Martin Who Pleaded Guilty to Serious Charge is Sentenced by Judge Huycke in County Court To-day

A THREE MONTHS' TERM

John Martin, the young married man who pleaded guilty before His Honour Judge Huycke this morning to a charge of having had carnal knowledge of a young girl not yet of the age of 14 years, was sentenced to spend three months at the Industrial Farm, formerly known as Central Prison, with thirty lashes, fifteen of these to be given upon entering and the other fifteen when he is leaving.

This makes the third case of a similar nature in the past two weeks. The first man is at present out on bail awaiting the decision of the Court of Appeal. The second case was disposed of yesterday when William Rose was sentenced to one year and twenty lashes. The case this morning makes the third and last, for the present.

His Honour Judge Huycke included lashes in the sentence yesterday for the first time in any sentence during his regime as Judge for the County Court of the County of Peterborough. It was followed up by another sentence this morning with lashes, which should be an effective punishment for such offences.

PERCUSSION CAPS FOUND

Two Boxes Apparently New in Weeds Close to the Ackerman Building, Corner George and Dalhousie Streets

PROFITS ARE PARED

Two fresh boxes of percussion caps found among some weeds next to the Ackerman factory might have been placed there without any destructive intent. Mr. W. C. Ackerman told the Council's Legal committee last night, but the discovery nevertheless caused some deep thinking among the heads of the factory.

One of the employees had been sent out to cut weeds adjacent to the building and while engaged at this work he found the two boxes which, from their appearance, had been placed there since the recent rains. They seemed to be caps from No. 12 guage shot gun shells and might have been dropped there innocently or probably with no malicious intent. They had not greatly alarmed Mr. Ackerman, but they had given rise to deeper thoughts in the direction of protection.

Regarding Profits.

It had been mentioned during the committee's discussion that Toronto considered that the manufacturers were receiving a sufficient profit from their war orders to pay for the protection they needed. Mr. Ackerman stated that they were now competing with the rest of the world not at war. United States leather manufacturers have an advantage over Canadian shops. There is no United States' import tariff on leather, but Canada has a duty on leather coming into this country. The result is that Canadian tanners are sending their leather across the boundary where it is being made into harness, etc. They are able to come into this country and buy leather supplies, but if they wanted to import leather from the United States they have the Canadian duty to pay. Mr. Ackerman told of a recent trip to Montreal to figure on infantry sets. A price of $12.50 allowed a working profit, but on returning to Peterborough he received a telegram asking if he would accept $11 a set. He felt sure that the prices were being pared in most other war orders, too.

Mexico was represented by Francisco De LaBarra and all the prominent members of the Mexican colony. The Ecuadorian Minister to France and the military attache of the Japanese Embassy also were present.

The body of the late Mexican President was deposited in the vault of the church, where it will await shipment to America a few days hence.

RECRUITING IN PETERBORO' STILL CONTINUES STEADY

CAPT. PARK GETS LEAVE OF ABSENCE FROM THE BOARD

Principal of the King George School Has Been Accepted for Overseas Service—Will Get Half Year's Salary From Board of Education

A WELL KNOWN OFFICER

Captain Maurice Park of the 57th Regiment, and Principal of the King George Public School, having secured an appointment for active service, was granted leave of absence by the Board of Education, last evening, with one half year's salary, to be paid in monthly instalments.

Capt. Park is the son of Dr. H. G. Park of the Normal School staff. For the past four or five hockey seasons he has been one of the mainstays of the Peterborough Intermediate O. H. A. team, playing the centre position. He will be greatly missed next season in hockey circles, also local social musical and military circles. Among the school children he has done quite a lot towards fostering sports. It was mainly due to his efforts that there was a Public School Hockey League here last winter. Capt. Park succeeded Capt. Carruthers in the command of C Company of the 57th.

The action of the Board of Education in granting Capt. Park leave of absence for the duration of the war and salary for one-half year is commendable. Other cities in Ontario are paying members of their teaching forces, who enlist, one year's salary, and leave of absence. It is only fair that Capt. Park should receive some consideration and that the granting of the salary be established as a precedent for those other male teachers in the city who are able and willing to go.

In all probability Mr. Steer, the Assistant Principal of the King George School, will take charge of the school during the absence of Capt. Park. This will mean that another lady teacher will have to be appointed. The Chairman of the Board, with Mr. Mowatt and the Chairman of the Committee on Appointments, were appoined a Committee last evening to look after the filling of the vacancy, with power to act. They held a meeting after the adjournment of the Board, and decided to offer the position to a young lady whom Inspector Mowat recommended, and who was available last night, but would not be to-day.

Capt. Park has been appointed to the 59th Battalion, C. E. F.

WAS TO GET $25,000 CHAMBERS SAYS

Special to The Examiner.

WINNIPEG, July 7.—In the witness box at the Royal Commission to-day, Wm. Chambers admitted that he was to get twenty-five thousand dollars for his own efforts to call off the election protests. Chief Howell, as a witness, was asked if he knew of any suggestion or idea of money consideration in connection with the proposed calling off of the Royal Commission. He said he had not heard the slightest intimation of such suggestion.

$58.30 Was Sum Raised

The Womens Patriotic League of Ashburnham held their regular meeting yesterday with the president in the chair. The treasurer's report was very satisfactory. It was announced that $5,830 had been raised from the chair donated by Mrs. Dover, which was won by Miss Hamilton, Hunter street.

Fifty Have Gone From This City to Barriefield in the Last Couple of Weeks — Twenty-six of Them Have Had Some Training.

SIXTEEN ARE MARRIED

Although recruiting in Peterborough is not as brisk as it was for some of the earlier contingents, yet in comparison with other centres, enlistment here has been steady. During the past couple of weeks fifty men have been sent to Barriefield camp, and five or six others have been passed by the doctor and will go in a few days. Thirty-three of the last recruits to go have joined the 59th Battalion, while seventeen have gone to the 8th Mounted Rifles to take the places of the Peterborough men drafted as reinforcements for the Strathcona Horse. During the past few days Lt.-Col. Johnston of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, who is the recruiting officer for the Mounted Rifles, tried the experiment of using a recruiting sergeant, and Sergt. Geo. Farrance of the 8th C.M.R. did good work in that capacity. He left to rejoin his regiment yesterday, and for the balance of this week Sergt. Morley of the 8th will try his luck. The 57th also used Sergt. Elliott and Corp. Bovlett in recruiting work for a few days.

Would Help Recruiting.

If some arrangement could be made to provide the recruits with uniforms here and have them receive several weeks' preliminary training in Peterborough, there would in the opinion of local military officers be a decided increase in enthusiasm. The sight of men in uniform is a stimulus to others to don the khaki and the men acted as magnets. As it is now the recruits are hustled to camp within a few days after enlistment and there is no excitement to attract others.

The class of recruits coming forward is uniformly good as is evidenced by the fact that only one of the last fifty sent to Barriefield has been rejected there.

The theory that some people seem to have that only the unemployed are enlisting is refuted by a glance over the record sheets of the last fifty local recruits. Of course a number were unemployed, but many have left positions to enlist. Some have come in from the farm, others have left factory and office. As the first line of the song "Tommy Atkins" puts it, "We take them from the city and the plough."

26 Had Experience.

Of the last fifty sent from Peterborough, twenty-six had previous military training to some extent—15 in the 57th Regiment, 6 in other units of the Canadian militia, 4 in British regiments and one in the United States army. The other twenty-four had not drilled before joining.

Twenty-three were born in Canada, twenty-two in England, four in Scotland and one in Ireland. Of the fifty, the relatives of thirty-eight reside in Canada and of the other twelve in the United Kingdom. Sixteen of the fifty are married men.

A Fine Record.

Without any special appeal, Peterborough has sent nearly 800 men to the front in the different detachments from here, while other Peterborough boys have gone with other units, including the Cobourg Heavy Battery, the 45th detachment, the 46th detachment, the Canadian Engineers, Strathcona Horse, etc., while all through the units of the different contingents are Peterborough boys who have enlisted elsewhere, bringing the total up to about 900. Failure to pass the medical examination has stopped many and the total number of applications runs well into four figures.

Recruiting for the 59th Battalion at Barriefield and for the 8th C.M.R. will continue daily at the armouries.

JUSTIFYING WRONG-DOING.

The Mail and Empire innocently remarks that—

> The war contract scandals have to do with horses, surgical supplies and binoculars, but fortunately they do not include "sawdust wharves."

Nor do they include the South Sea Bubble scandals of many generations ago. It is futile and foolish, and confession of a weak case to resort to the tu quoque style of argument. The logical extension of such an argument is to justify one wrong, one crime by another, to hold murder at a precedent, and unproven charges as a justification of proven and confessed wrong-doing. The war contract scandals have been so abundantly proven that not only no decent and fair-minded partizan journal excuses them, but confession of guilt is made, by restoration in part of the stolen profits. Mr. Garland, M.P., for Carleton, returned a part of the loot derived from his double crime—breach of the Independence of Parliament Act, which forbids a member from trafficing with the government for profit, and the scheme to make unjust profits from surgical supplies—not only making money out of the sufferings of our soldiers, but making it dishonestly. He has been consistent in resigning his seat; and we shall see if his repentance is sincere; and whether he is not chosen a candidate for a renewal of his representation, as has been recently done in respect of other besmirched politicians. Another confession. T. M. Birkett has tendered the return of $1,000 as "excess profits"—a euphemism for stealing—in respect of the supply of inferior binoculars, for army use, costing $17 and sold for $52 each. It is a simple red herring policy to drag in "sawdust wharves" and like things — dead issues, exploded scandals — in face of live scandals, trebly proven — by the Public Accounts Committee investigation, by the Royal Commission now sitting, and by restitution of the loot.

Incidentally it is a pleasure to report that the commission inquiries showed that one firm that had contracts, Mackenzies, Limited, Ottawa, who supplied hospital clothing to the Militia Department, were satisfied with a profit which to the commission seemed reasonable. The comment of the commissioner is good to hear amidst the protean forms of crookedness that are being revealed these days—"The transaction appears thoroughly satisfactory, and Mr. Mackenzie has given his evidence in a very outspoken manner." If the Mail and Empire quotes precedents to excuse wrong-doing, it might, to balance the account, quote the precedent of "outspoken" Mr. Mackenzie in the witness box and commend it to some of the witnesses that appear before the Davidson Commission, and the Manitoba Commission. We are waging a war for the principle of straight dealing, and our war on German methods at home should be as relentless as our war on German methods in Europe.

WE SHOULD UNITE AND KEEP UNITED.

Both the weather—or rather the season—and loyalty to patriotic, national and Imperial interests, contraindicate the discussion of politics, particularly party politics in the silly season. The only politics that is permissible is practical politics, the consideration of how we can as a government, and as a people, do our full duty in helping the Empire by doing our best to contribute, in all ways, to her fighting strength.

The need of the hour is to devote our undivided attention, to this object, to unite our people and arouse their interest and even enthusiasm, in the matter of Canada and the Canadian people, every Canadian, putting the best foot forward—doing his and her very best in all departments of the duty that calls upon us. If we regard a dose of party politics—a general election—or an anticipatory general election campaign as the best way to unite our people, and concentrate their attention upon their duty at this perilous time, then the actions and course of the government or some members of it, is understandable and justifiable. We have, or have had, two or three ministers of the government stumping the country on a political mission. We have had Hon. Mr. Meighen, firing the party heather in Ontario, and Hon. T. Chase Casgrain, making political speeches in Quebec, both flatly forbidden by the exigencies of the hour. Incidentally there is a great difference in the character of the two sets of speeches. Mr. Meighen's are purely political—offensively partisan, recrimonatory and calculated to provoke disunity and impair the harmony of sentiment and action that are necessary to our most effective service in waging our share of warfare. Mr. Casgrain's speeches—he has a reputation for fairness and patriotic spirit to maintain—while political and partizan, do not by their tone so flagrantly promote disunion and discord. While Mr. Meighen declares that the Liberals in Parliament have hampered the government in the prosecution of their war measures, Hon. Mr. Casgrain on the contrary, frankly admits the fact that the Liberals have shown the greatest loyalty throughout and have supported the government to the utmost in all that pertains to promoting the successful prosecution of the war by Canada.

We look to the government for leading and light in the present crisis. We are all convinced that the great thing, the most needed thing, is a campaign to promote recruiting which we are also convinced can best be done by arousing the public sense of responsibility and creating a responsive enthusiasm. Have we any attempt made in this direction? We have a dozen or more cabinet ministers dozing the summer hours away in recess idleness. They should be "on the stump," not the political, or party stump, but the patriotic stump, making speeches and strong appeals to the spirit of Canadians of military agei and in the process incidentally arousing our whole people to a more practical realization of the duty of more earnestly and thoroughly carrying on the work, auxiliary to the work of our soldiers in the fighting line. Hon. Mr. Rowell, the Liberal Ontario Opposition leader, is setting a splendid example in his coast to coast tour. He strikes a note of true patriotism and appeal to the patriotism of Canadians in all his speeches. He is, however, the voice of one crying in the wilderness, where we should have a score or more of our public men, if not making speeches, making appeals to the public conscience in some way, and inciting to greater zeal, in this time of crisis, for both Canada and the Empire.

Our most pressing present national business is war—red war, the war that calls for fighters on the battlefield—not the war of petty party politics—the struggle for a little party gain. We must, if we are to parallel the pace set by our soldiers in action so far, live up to their splendid precedent of devotion and discharge of, duty. We must forget that we are divided in politics; forget everything not absolutely essential, and unite heart and soul, young and old, men and women and, especially, politicians and people, to do our bit to the last bit, with unity of sentiment and action, and with a convinced and sane enthusiasm, in doing our duty to Canada and the Empire, in a fight for the interests of us all, as well as for the world of civilization and the cause of humanity.

TRADE THRIVES ON SUBMARINE BLOCKADE.

One interesting fact about the trade returns— apart from the enormously swollen imports, which are, of course, easily explained — is the apparent briskness of the re-export trade as compared with British exports properly so-called. On the month's trade while British exports are down by eight or nine millions, re-exports are very nearly the same as they were last May. The five months' figures of course show a heavy falling off in both—eighteen millions in the re-exports. Allowing for the normally greater volume of the latter, the difference is about what would be expected. Whether the colonial trade is reviving faster than the native British—which may, of course, very well be the case—or whether they are special circumstances to account for the recovery of the re-exports, we do not know. What is almost laughably apparent is that the attempt of the enemy to disturb the carrying trade has totally failed. It seems to thrive on a submarine blockade.—London Daily News.

THE INSTRUMENTALITY OF SCIENCE IN MODERN WARFARE

That peace has its victories no less than war, is a proverbial commonplace. That war hath its scientific triumphs eclipsing even those of peace, must now be recognized. This is not to say that all the wonderful discoveries and inventions brought out or developed by the exigencies of war could not be and would not be made in time of peace; but simply that the emergent needs of war have had a marvellously stimulating effect in promoting and practically applying inventive talent and scientific research. When Judge Verne wrote "Forty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" and "The Clipper of the Clouds" he seemed to be allowing his vivid imagination to transcend the bounds of the reasonable probability, or at least possibility, deemed essential to sane fiction. But the wildest dreams of Verne were as nothing to the realities of 1915. It was a far cry from Montgollier : (who by the way died and was buried in Montreal) with his "wonderful invention of 1783 "the smoke balloon" to Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin in 1900 with his first dirigible. The latter was evidently intended from the first for military purposes and owes its rapid development after many discouraging experiences to the fact that the German military authorities recognized its possibilities. The Count himself was an officer of the German Army.

Curiously enough, Francis Bacon, commonly called Lord Bacon, had as early as 1623 a glimmering of an idea of the heavier-than-air flying machine which has developed so amazingly during the war. As usual, however, with this man of vivid scientific imagination, having made the suggestion he dismissed it, with his easy-going: "The farther extension of this experiment mght be thought upon."

An equally marvellous but less spectacular invention, the submarine, has proven an equally important factor in the war. Its effects have been spectacular enough. Both devices have exceeded the expectations of the general public and both have to some extent disappointed the military authorities who have spent so much public money in developing them. In the domain of pure science when a radical discovery is made, the first question that occurs to the average man is "But what is the use of it?" And science can only reply with its old rejoinder "What is the use of a baby?" The man who has cultivated the faculty of observation is not apt to underestimate the practical importance of any discovery.

The non-scientific mind has three thoughts regarding all the great discoveries and inventions. The first is the sceptical, "It can't be done"; the second is the unimaginative, "But what's the use of it?" the third is the ungrateful and contemptuous, "Any fool could have done that." That there is great scope for the work of both submarine and aerial craft in time of peace there is no doubt; and we are only just beginning to learn something about their limitations, their possibilities, and their legitimate applications in war.

What everybody knows, is as a rule, not correct. Everybody knows, for instance, that "it must be" the simplest thing in the world for an aeroplane to travel over a city at a great height and drop bombs upon the buildings carefully selected by the aviator. Claude-Grahame-White and Harry Harper point out that it is practically impossible for an airman to aim at a knot of people in the street because he must always drop the bomb before he sees them. When a bomb is dropped from a machine 4,000 feet in the air and travelling at sixty miles an hour it will continue to move forward for 1,400 feet before it reaches the ground. The machine is probably wavering in its flight and the wind may deflect the bomb. Altogether there is enough of chance in the matter to explain why the German Zeppelins so seldom hit anything worth hitting, from a military point of view. If they flew near the earth they would make better shots, but this would be more dangerous to the Zeppelin than to anything on the earth.

For scouting purposes the aeroplane is invaluable and Mr. Charles Dickenson, president of the Aero Club of Illinois, points out a field of usefulness for aerial craft which seems very promising. As is well known, an aviator flying from 300 to 500 feet above the surface of the sea can see a submarine 150 or 200 feet below the surface. Aeroplanes have been used effectively in keeping the Russian coasts in the Baltic and the Black Seas free from submarines, and it is argued that a few aeroplanes on the Irish Coast would have saved the Lusitania. A battleship costing $7,500,000, says Mr. Dickenson, may be efficiently protected by a hydro-aeroplane costing $7,500—mighty cheap insurance. At that rate a few millions spent on aeroplanes would clear the war zone of submarines in about a fortnight.—Montreal Telegraph-Herald.

Lieut.-Col. Lacey R. Johnson

IN view of the benefits derived from certain voluntary agencies, such as the St. John Ambulance Association, the Safety First movement, the Railroad Y. M. C. A. and Athletic Associations, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has decided to appoint an officer to co-operate in the development of such organizations amongst the employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway with the title of General Welfare Agent. Lieut.-Colonel Lacey R. Johnson, heretofore General Superintendent of Angus Shops District, who since he joined the service in 1882 has been actively identified with the general uplift of ideals and service among the railroad employees, has been appointed to that office.

Lieutenant-Colonel Lacey R. Johnson was born on June 22nd, 1855, at Abingdon, Berkshire, England. He entered the railway service in 1870 and served his time as a premium apprentice to the Great Western Railway of England at Swindon Works for five years. Later on he went to India and for three years was draftsman and foreman of the machine and erecting shops of the Scinde Punjaub & Delhi Railway. In the year 1882 Lieut.-Colonel Lacey Johnson came to Canada and very soon he became General Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway shops at Carleton Junction, Ont., which position he occupied for three years. He was then appointed Assistant Master Mechanic of the Eastern Division and in May, 1886, to Sept., 1901, he was Master Mechanic of the Pacific Division and Supervising Engineer of the Pacific fleet steamships. He was then appointed Assistant Superintendent of Motive Power at Montreal, a position he occupied for 11 years, and on July 1, 1912, he became General Superintendent of the Angus Shops at Montreal.

Radium Fertilizers

THE columns of many of the magazines have recently carried advertisements of so-called "radium fertilizers," setting forth in extravagant terms the benefits to be derived from the use of radium as a manure.

These fertilizers are in most cases ordinary nitrogen, potash, and phosphorus fertilizers, with the addition of, at most, infinitesimal quantities of radium, derived from the residues left after the extraction of all commercially available radium from its ores. Since the present market price of radium is $10,000 per grain, or $70,000,000 per pound, it is readily apparent that a fertilizer cannot contain very much of it, even when sold at the high price of 25 cts. per pound.

The claims that radium aids plant growth are, at best, by no means proved. Professor Cyril G. Hopkins, of the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, found that the application of radium to the soil, in quantities worth as much as $100 per acre, had no noticeable effect in increasing the crop yield. No doubt these "radium fertilizers" are of benefit to the soil, but the benefit is in all probability due rather to the nitrogen, potash, and phosphorus they contain than to any radium which may be present. Until the value of radium as a fertilizer has been actually demonstrated the economy of paying high prices for such fertilizers is decidedly questionable.

A Loss For Indian River

INDIAN RIVER, July 7—The recent rain has been of much value to the farmers and the crops around here were never more prosperous looking.

Mr. V. Corkery of Peterborough will be with Mr. Sheehan for the harvest.

Mr. John O'Leary of Peterborough will be with Mr. Garvey for the harvest.

The social given by the Baptist Church on Monday evening last was a decided success. The weather prevented many from a distance attending. The first item on the programme was the baseball match between Indian River and the Bethel nine. The game started at 5 o'clock, the visitors being first to bat. A very close game was played. The pitcher from Bethel was very wild at times, but played very well, while the catcher was good. The other seven played well and are a good bunch, especially Wellington Fife, who is a hard hitter. The Indian River boys are doing better with practice. Mr. Donegan, in the box, is improving; Mr. J. O'Leary did well behind the bat. Mr. John Howley played his usual game and J. Sullivan is certainly improving fast. Mr. Jos. Collins played well at end. John Head played good at right field. Both teams are to be congratulated for their manner of playing, holding the score at 10 to 8 in Bethel's favour. Mr. Corken of Douro acted as umpire and was impartial in that capacity, which helps a good deal. The teams lined up as follows:

Bethel—H. Read, c.; Stokes, p.; A. Fife, 1st b.; H. Borland, 2nd b.; E. Fife, 3rd b.; H. Compton, l.f.; A. Davidson, r.f.; W. Fife, c.f.; and S. Davidson, s.s.

Indian River—J. O'Leary, c.; J. Donegan, p.; J. Foley, 1st b.; J. Collins, 2nd b.; Jos. O'Leary, 3rd b.; J. Head, s.s.; J. Howley, r.f.; J. Sullivan, l.f.; Wm. O'Leary, c.f.

It might be noted that Howley, for Indian River, made three runs and lost once on third base. A return match is to be played in the near future, as both teams are evenly matched, and the return game should be good.

The ladies deserve credit for the splendid tables that were spread and all enjoyed a pleasant evening.

To Have Wavy Hair Like Nature's Own

Here's a brand new recipe, of unquestioned merit, that I advise you to make note of, unless you are one of the few possessors of naturally wavy hair. It's very simple, for all you need do is to apply a little liquid stimerine at night with a clean tooth brush—and in the morning you will find this has dried in the sweetest curls and waves imaginable. They will be just like Nature's own, having no resemblance to the effect produced by a hot iron, which is so obviously artificial.

The application is really beneficial to the hair and gives it that lively lustre so much desired. As it is so easy to obtain a few ounces of the liquid stimerine from your druggist—sufficient to keep the hair curly for many weeks—there's no reason now for putting up with either that straight, contrary hair or with the curling iron nuisance.—Marie Demarest in Pilgrim Magazine.

ST. JOHN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL HAD A PLEASANT PICNIC TO CHEMONG PARK

It Was Highly Successful

The Weather Man was very kindly disposed yesterday. Old King Sol put on his best Sunday-go-to-meeting look and shone benignly all day. His beneficent rays, tempered by a delicious westerly breeze, made it a most pleasant day for a drive to Chemong Park, where the pupils of the Senior and Junior Grades of St. John's Church Sunday School were to have their usual annual outing.

The children of the Primary or Infant classes had already celebrated, that function being a separate undertaking.

At about 2 o'clock there started from the lovely grounds surrounding the ancient-looking edifice crowning the summit of the hill, viz., St. John's, a merry party of somewhere around eighty, all and each one intent on making the best of everything—for that afternoon at least. All were optimists, none were pessimists! These happy young folk, who were accompanied by Canon Davidson and some half-dozen of their teachers or school officers, were loaded up into large breaks, drawn by two and three horses, and the necessary comestibles being perched in a pleasant drive for about six miles was commenced. After a lovely ride through pretty country looking all the better and fresher for the recent rains, which had freshened up everything, and, moreover, laid the dust on the roads—no small factor in the enjoyment—Chemong Park was reached about half-past three.

Shortly after the arrival of the party, races and games of various types were instituted. Mr. Arthur Kingdon had thoughtfully provided a swing, which was immensely patronized by the girls. One of the officials was kept rustling in swinging the little ones. About 5 o'clock, tea-time was called and ample justice was evidently done by the youngsters as well as by their seniors, to the various baskets brought out. Then more games, more swinging, more amusement generally, until at seven, it was "all-aboard for Peterborough," when the homeward drive was commenced by a different route to that taken on the outward journey; thus giving a pleasant change of country. About 8.15 the party arrived in the city, each expressing him or herself in a greater or lesser degree, as having enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon. And, if happy faces and beaming, sparkling eyes are any criterion, one might safely bet the truth had been told.

The following is a list of the races and winners. Mr. F Russell officiated as starter and handicapper, and Canon Davidson and Miss Ruby Quartermaine distributed the prizes:

Flat race, boys of 12 and over, (handicap) — David Bradley, Bertie Pitchford.

Flat race, boys 10 to 12 years — R. Lang, A. Halliday.

Flat race, boys 7 to 10 years (handicap)—H. Young, T. McCullough.

Flat race, girls 12 and upwards (handicap)—B. Cooke, M. Knowles.

Flat race, girls, 10 to 12 (handicap)—Dorothy Hayes, Madeline Kelly.

Flat race, girls, 9 to 10—K. Shurety, Ivy Stevens.

Says There Is Interest In India Japs on the Watch

MANILA, July 6.—Serious unrest throughout India is reported by officers and passengers of the Spanish mail steamer Alicante, which has arrived here after touching at Aden, Arabia, at Colombo, Ceylon, and at Singapore. The official explanation is that the troubles are due to the present international differences, but it is said they are in reality the result of animosity felt by the natives against the white population.

There have been several outbreaks it is reported, in the vicinity of Colombo, capital of Ceylon, where it is understood revolting natives were severely punished by British military forces. Several Englishmen have been murdered and Colombo stores have been sacked. As a result, martial law has been declared and all British subjects, physically fit, have been mustered into the military service. Arrangements are said to have been made to transport all white women and children either to Australia or their home countries.

The Alicante's captain is authority for the statement that passengers who have travelled recently throughout India consider the situation serious.

There have been no further outbreaks at Singapore, but because of the uneasiness over conditions the authorities have called for service all Britons between the ages of 20 and 35.

The native population of British North Borneo also is reported restless and many natives have been killed. Japanese cruisers are said to be patrolling the waters of Borneo.

A riotous outbreak in Ceylon by Buddhists against the Moslems, in which many Moslem shops were looted and many persons were killed was officially announced in London on June 7. This disorder, it was stated, was "due to a sudden outbreak of racial and commercial animosity and not directed against the European population or the Colonial Government. The latest telegrams state that the situation is in hand and improving."

The British official press bureau announced on July 2 that two fanatical Mohammedans had run amuck at Jhansi, India, killing a major, a captain, a lieutenant, a bombardier, and wounding a captain and a sergeant, all of the 8th Indian Cavalry. The act was said to have been an isolated one, in which no one but the two murderers were involved.

Ten cents a pound added to the cost of tea means one twentieth part of a cent per cup. This tiny fraction of a cent means all the difference between satisfaction and dissatisfaction. Salada tea costs slightly more than ordinary tea but is all clean, fresh leaves in their most perfect form. Ordinary tea contains doubtful constituents and besides never has that unique Salada flavour.

THE WEATHER

Frequent and abundant showers during the last few days should thoroughly saturate the soil, and leave no room for complaint of a lack of moisture. The rainfall for Thursday amounted to 1.38, Saturday, .69, and Sunday night .40 of an inch, or a total for July so far of 2 inches and 67-100. The rainfall for 1914 and 1913 was about eight inches below the average, and for the present year up to date is also short.—W.P.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drugstore. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Since the purchase of Alaska by the United States its waters have yielded fishery products valued at more than $250,000,000.
